HISTORICAL NOTE

The first mention of Women’s Volleyball is found in the April 17, 1918 issue of The Spectrum, titled, “Why not girls athletics.” The article discusses women’s athletics in general and specially basketball, soccer, gymnastics, tennis, baseball, and volleyball.”

In 2008, in their first year of Division I post-season eligibility, the team had the best record in the Summit League and won the championship. They went to the NCAA Division I tournament where they lost to the University of Minnesota. In 2009 NDSU lost to IPFW Summit League tournament after winning the Summit League regular season. In 2010, NDSU beat IPFW to win the Summit League tournament and faced and lost to the University of Minnesota in the first round of the Division I tournament.
