Description

“Home-Grown: German-Russian Farm Kids Remember” features stories from narrators of the Dakota Memories Oral History Project (DMOHP). These narrators grew up on the Northern Plains, from South Dakota to North Dakota to Saskatchewan. During their oral histories, they share memories of growing up in an agricultural region. This program features fascinating stories about farm machinery, techniques, and animals. Furthermore, agricultural historian, Suzanne Kelley, has added scholarly commentary, placing this ethnic group’s agricultural practices in the larger historical framework.
