Prairie Public Broadcasting, the Tri-County Tourism Alliance, and the NDSU Libraries’ Germans from Russia Heritage Collection are pleased to invite you to the world premiere of Women Behind the Plow, the 10th documentary in the award-winning Germans from Russia series.

This 60-minute documentary expands upon the stories from the book of the same name and includes memories of the women featured in the book, as well as stories about women on the farm from the Great Depression until today. As daughters of German-Russian immigrants, they shared the historic traits of their ancestors: love of family, hard work, and Christian faith. They embodied the German-Russian expression “Arbeit macht das Leben süß” or “Work makes life sweet”.

More than 20 women were interviewed for the project from “German-Russian Country”, a three-county area in south-central North Dakota that includes Emmons, Logan, and McIntosh counties. “It’s an area strong on agriculture, but even stronger on heritage and stories,” said Michael Miller, Director & Bibliographer of the Germans from Russia Heritage Collection.
