

DSU begins search for Agricultural Experiment Station head

A search committee has been appointed to fill the position of director of the North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, the agricultural research arm of NDSU.. The 21-member committee, appointed by Vice President for Agricultural Affairs Patricia Jensen, will begin its national search in early September with a goal of having a candidate in place by next summer.

"The committee will work to find an individual who will serve the best interests of the state and provide leadership to the Experiment Station with the university's mission of teaching, research and outreach in mind," said Jensen.

The committee is chaired by George Wallman, vice president for student affairs, and Al Schneiter, professor and chair, soil science.

Committee members are Sharon Anderson, director, NDSU Extension Service; John Bollingberg, director, North Dakota Corn Growers Association; Virginia Clark, dean, College of Human Development and Education; Jerry Doan, chair, State Board of Agricultural Research and Education; Tim Faller, director, Hettinger Research Extension Center; Neal Fisher, administrator, North Dakota Wheat Commission; Neil Gudmestad, professor, plant pathology; Burdell Johnson, chair, Ag Coalition; Valrey Kettner, assistant vice president, sponsored programs administration; Cathy Logue, assistant professor, veterinary and microbiological sciences; Stan Melroe, North Dakota Stockmen's Association; Jerry Miller, scientist, United States Department of Agriculture; William Nganje, assistant professor, agribusiness and applied economics; Paul Nyren, director, Central Grasslands Research Center; Jimmie Richardson, professor and chair, soil science; Jurgen Schwarz, associate professor, cereal and food sciences/ag and biosystems; Jim Tilton, professor and chair, animal and range sciences; Paul Tinerella, graduate student, College of Agriculture; and Ona Vig, grants officer, NDSU agricultural budget office.

Ex-officio members are Sandra Holbrook, director, equal opportunity, and Keith Berke, executive director of University Relations.

Equine studies program pleased with Fargo track approval

The director of NDSU's new equine studies program is pleased the state Racing Commission approved a revised plan for a Fargo horse racing complex Aug. 22. On a 4-1 vote, Fargo was selected over Mandan.

Jason Turner, assistant professor of equine studies, said the NDSU equine studies program begins this semester in a rented indoor arena and stables west of Hector Airport, owned by the Home on the Range for Boys.

"Our program was moving forward regardless, but this is a good shot in the arm. The decision allows us to continue to make plans and develop our program and facilities," Turner said. "We think the track is going to provide an excellent opportunity for our students involved in the NDSU equine studies program. It will be an added benefit in the long-term in terms of offering some unique course offerings and educational experiences."

President Chapman to deliver State of University Address

President Joseph A. Chapman will deliver his second State of the University address at 4 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 13, in the Reineke Fine Arts Center. All faculty, staff and students are invited to the reopening of the main campus gate at University Drive and 12th Avenue North immediately following the address. A reception will follow at the President's Home.

Business Office closed Sept. 11

The Business Office will be closed Tuesday, Sept. 11, for financial aid disbursement. Departments are asked to hold their deposits until Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Libraries Labor Day holiday hours

All NDSU Libraries will be closed Saturday, Sept. 1, and Sunday, Sept. 2. The main library will open between 1 p.m. and midnight Monday, Sept. 3, but the branch libraries will remain closed. Regular hours resume Tuesday, Sept. 4. A current listing of hours can be found on the Libraries' Web page at www.lib.ndsu.nodak.edu, by using the HRS command on the online catalog, or by calling the information tape at 1-9456.

As of Aug. 15, 45 students had enrolled in courses for the equine studies program. Among the courses being offered this fall are light horse management, equine evaluation and basic equitation.

Fargo's costs for the first phase of the track project are expected to be $2.4 million. Organizers say the North Dakota Horse Park Foundation, Fargo, plans to build the track, parking lot and barns first, followed by a grandstand and other facilities in later phases.

New bus partnership begins

NDSU and the Fargo-Moorhead Metro Area Transit system have established a partnership to provide students, faculty and staff with bus transportation options around the city and campus. The routes, which began operation Aug. 27, are designed to provide access to work, shopping, food and entertainment.

The new federally-subsidized "Gold Route 20" provides NDSU riders transportation from the Research and Technology Park, University Village, Memorial Union, IACC and the Wellness Center to the West Acres Shopping Center, Target store, Century 10 Cinema and West Acres Cinema. It also will have stops at West Acres-area hotels which will provide temporary off-campus housing for NDSU students. The route runs 6:23 a.m.-10 p.m. on weekdays and 8:23 a.m.-10 p.m. on Saturdays.

The "NDSU On-campus Circulator" is a shuttle bus service, with stops every 10 minutes at the Wellness Center, Research and Technology Park, Fargodome, residence hall high rises and Stevens Hall. Hours of service are 7:20 a.m.-4:20 p.m. on school days.

The existing "Route 13" brings NDSU riders from the Memorial Union and Bison Sports Arena to the Fargodome, Fargo North High School, the downtown Fargo Post Office and the Ground Transportation Center. At the center, riders may transfer to any other route in the Fargo and Moorhead systems.

"As NDSU enjoys record enrollments, a growing number of students are living off-campus. Free bus service is a real benefit for them," said NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman. "In addition, on-campus students appreciate easier access to movie theaters, shopping and entertainment. This new transit service is further proof that Fargo-Moorhead is a great place to be a college student."

Fargo Mayor Bruce Furness said, "The City of Fargo is dedicated to providing a safe, efficient public transportation system. This new service will greatly enhance the transportation choices of NDSU's students. We look forward to a successful and rewarding partnership with NDSU."

According to NDSU Police Chief Tim Lee, the MAT system will allow NDSU students to ride the buses through the 2001-02 academic year on an unlimited basis. "Students can show their NDSU card and they will ride for free," Lee said, noting that faculty and staff can receive reduced fares for the system. "NDSU students can ride any of MAT's routes six days of operation each week as often as they want at no charge. We are excited about the potential."

Julie Bommelman, Fargo transit administrator, said, "The City of Fargo Transit Department is looking forward to this wonderful opportunity to partner with NDSU. We anticipate this new partnership will enhance transportation choices for NDSU students and staff, as well as promote use of the overall transit system, which benefits everyone in the community." For more information about the routes, visit www.ndsu.edu/bus-shuttle or www.matbus.com or call 232-7500.

RDSP request for proposals announced

The NDSU Research Foundation, through the Research Development Support Program (RDSP), is accepting faculty research proposals in two categories for the fall 2001 competition.

The purpose of the program is to stimulate additional scholarly activity at NDSU by assisting faculty in conducting their research plans. The Innovation Awards category is for research and development projects that anticipate future patent or copyright activity and have commercial potential. The Investment Awards category is for preliminary research projects that are likely to lead to larger grants from outside sources.

NDSU employees holding faculty rank of tenured, tenure-track or special long-term appointment as it pertains to Experiment Station and Extension are eligible to apply. There are no restrictions regarding former grant activity or length of time at NDSU.

Applicants may request up to $10,000 for expenses directly related to a research project. Proposals must be clearly research-oriented and final report is required. The application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5, and awards will be available approximately Feb. 1. Awards will be announced following a competitive merit review process. Once awarded, funds will be available for one year.

Detailed guidelines are available on the web at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/research/funding/rdsp/descr.shtml.

Arabic class offered

A class in elementary modern Arabic will be offered through the Department of Modern Languages beginning this fall.

The class is offered through the University of Washington via interactive video, and is intended for those with no previous knowledge of Arabic. A native Arabic speaking teaching assistant at NDSU also will assist.

Students who successfully complete two semesters of Arabic are eligible to attend Al Akhawayn University in Morocco to continue their study, choosing from courses in business administration, sciences, engineering and the social sciences. Students who successfully complete two years of Arabic study will receive an Arabic language certificate from Al Akhawayn University. All except language courses at Al Akhawayn University are taught in English.

The four-credit class begins Monday, Sept. 10, and meets Monday through Thursday. Tutoring also will be available. Students interested in the course can register for it under Modern Languages 199, Elementary Modern Arabic, call number 47465.

For more information about the Arabic course, contact Paul Homan, associate professor and chair of modern languages, at 1-8852, or the study abroad adviser, Office of International Programs, at 1-7895.

Sunflower researchers host Taiwan reporters

Eight media representatives from Taiwan visited the USDA-ARS sunflower research unit at the Northern Crop Science Laboratory Aug. 15 to learn about the health and quality benefits of sunflower oil.

Most of the reporters write for the lifestyles sections of their newspapers, television stations and news services.

Brady Vick, sunflower research leader, Jerry Miller, and C.C. Jan, research geneticists, Northern Crop Science Laboratory, gave presentations about the unit's sunflower research program. Jan also served as interpreter.

The group also visited sunflower growers in North Dakota and South Dakota, and toured sunflower processing plants.

Taiwan is the second largest importer of U.S. sunflower oil, which holds a 33 percent market share of the vegetable oils purchased in that country.

For more information, contact Vick at 239-1322.

Germans from Russia collection publishes book

The Germans from Russia Heritage Collection has published "Why are you still alive?: A German in the Gulag" by Georg Hildebrandt. The popular book was published in 1993 in the German language, with the title "Wieso Lebst du Noch?: Ein Deutscher im Gulag."

Hildebrandt's biography revives the story of the many Germans who died in Siberian detention camps during the Stalin dictatorship. As Germans, they were declared as public enemies, and after 1941 they were accused of collaborating with the Fascists.

"Testimonies were only rarely given by German camp inmates; more rarely yet, by those German colonists who experienced themselves forced collectivization in the Volga region, in the Ukraine, and in the Caucasus, and on the Crimean peninsula, and who have survived decades of resettlement in Siberia and Central Asia," writes Erich Franz Sommer in the book's preface.

The price of the book is $35 plus $3 postage payable to the NDSU Libraries. Mail orders to: Germans from Russia Heritage Collection, Georg Hildebrandt Book, NDSU Libraries, P.O. Box 5599, Fargo, ND 58105-5599. The Web address for information on the book is www.lib.ndsu.nodak.edu/grhc/order/general/hildebrandt.html.

Submission guidelines for "It's Happening at State"

"It's Happening at State" is a weekly news publication published for and about the faculty and staff of NDSU. Stories in "It's Happening" also may be distributed to off-campus media outlets as news releases. Story submissions are encouraged and will be edited for Associated Press style and length.

Occasionally, submitted stories may be cut or held due to space constraints. The deadline for all submissions is noon Thursday preceding the publication date, unless otherwise noted. If items that usually appear on a weekly basis are not received by the Thursday noon deadline, it will be assumed that there is no submission for the week. Stories are placed in one of six categories: University News, People, Events, Shorts and Reminders, Research Opportunities and Calendar.

Stories likely to be published include, but not limited to:

- University President announcements
- Faculty or staff member receives award
- Professor presents lecture/paper
- Department seminars
- Professor/department receives grant
- Student receives high academic honors
- Nominations for faculty awards sought
- NDSU Fine Arts events
- Campus organization performs community outreach (volunteering, charitable fundraising, etc.)

Stories not likely to be published include, but not limited to:

- Non-NDSU-sponsored community events, even if the event is held on campus
- Non-academic student achievement (athletics, livestock, judging awards, etc.)
- Student organization news or announcements
- Classified advertisements or classified-type announcements

Students and "It's Happening"

Because "It's Happening" is an internal news publication primarily for faculty and staff, only high academic honors and awards received by students are published. Examples include Goldwater Scholarship recipients and national scholarship or competition winners.

Occasionally, a feature story about an athlete or team is published when national honors such as NCAA All-American team selection or Division II Athlete of the Year are received. "It's Happening" does not publish team standings, news or announcements for either club or NCAA sports.

General news from student organizations is not published. However, if an organization is planning an event that is a form of community outreach that promotes the university, a story on the event may be published, space permitting.

Community events and "It's Happening"

"It's Happening" does not publish events scheduled on campus that are not sponsored by the university.

These criteria serve as guidelines when considering stories for submission. There may be situations when exceptions are made. In situations where "It's Happening" is unable to publish a story, for whatever reason, other outlets on campus such as The Spectrum, KDSU and department newsletters should be sought to announce news.

Address or subscription changes, both on or off campus, should be sent to Char_Goodyear@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Neas nominated for EDUCAUSE board

Neas

Bonnie Neas, assistant vice president for federal government relations and director of Internet research, has been nominated for the EDUCAUSE board of directors. The international association has a mission to help shape change in higher education through information resources and technologies in teaching, learning, research and institutional management.

Neas was notified of her nomination by Denny Farnsworth, staff liaison of the EDUCAUSE Nomination and Election Committee. Voting will be conducted in September by the organization membership, which includes more than 1,800 colleges, universities and education organizations and 190 corporations. Persons elected to the board will take office during the organization's October convention in Indianapolis.

"I am honored to be nominated," Neas said. "EDUCAUSE has played a significant role in my information technology career. For higher education information technology professionals, EDUCAUSE's reference materials and professional development offerings are the best in the field. It has also provided many opportunities to work with national leaders in information technology teaching, research and management issues."

EDUCAUSE was incorporated on July 1, 1998, and was the result of the consolidation of two prominent higher education technology associations—CAUSE and Educom. The association, with offices in Washington, D.C., and Boulder, Colo., is intended to galvanize thought and action at the intersection of higher education and information technology.

McCullagh participates in scientific review panel

Marjorie McCullagh, assistant professor of nursing, participated in a scientific review panel for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention May 15-16 in Washington, D.C.

The panel reviewed grant applications for research projects that focus on reducing childhood agricultural injury and disease. Reviewers critiqued applications for three to four awards totaling $600,000.

The centers' extramural grant program periodically seeks applications to provide funding for research on achieving selected portions of the nation's health promotion and disease prevention objectives. The program seeks the input of experts in their respective fields to review applications and select applications for awards based on scientific merit.

Schnell visits ROTC training site

Schnell

Craig Schnell, vice president for academic affairs, got a close look at training conducted by the Reserve Officer Training Corps during a trip to Randolph and Lackland Air Force Bases in San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 7-10.

Many of NDSU students currently enrolled in the ROTC program received field training this summer at Lackland. Typically, the students receive the training between their sophomore and junior years.

"I really enjoyed the visit because it gave me a chance to see how they are training the military leaders of the future," said Schnell, who was a guest of the Air Force. "I was particularly impressed by the professional level set by the Air Force. They are interested in the whole person, including their education. In order to be an officer, you have to be a college graduate."

Schnell toured the flight line and witnessed field training exercises for combat situations. "The Air Force put cadets into impossible situations where there is no one solution. They're training them to be innovative," Schnell said. "I was impressed with the North Dakota students I met. They were doing outstanding, and this has been the case for the past 30 years with students from the Dakotas in the contributions they have made to the military."

NDSU is the host campus for a wing of Air Force ROTC Detachment 610, with students also coming from Concordia College and Minnesota State University Moorhead. The University of North Dakota hosts the other wing of the detachment, with participation from students at the University of Minnesota, Crookston; Park University; Central Michigan University; and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University.

The detachment expects to have about 150 members for fall semester, which is the largest number in recent years.

"Trips like this are intended to give educators a first-hand look at how we do training in Air Force ROTC. We want them to see what the students are really experiencing during field training and discover more about the ROTC mission," said Col. Clark Wigley, Detachment 610 commander. "One of the reasons we picked Dr. Schnell for the trip is that he is intimately associated with the education of students. We knew he would return with a better understanding of what the Air Force is trying to accomplish, particularly here on campus."

Graduate student awarded chemistry fellowship

Tara Rheault, a fourth-year graduate student in the Department of Chemistry, has been awarded an American Chemical Society Division of Organic Chemistry Graduate Fellowship. The fellowship, which includes a stipend of $19,000, is one of 16 to be presented across the country for the 2001-02 academic year.

Rheault and her adviser, Mukund Sibi, professor of chemistry, were notified of the award by Dennis Curran, Bayer professor of chemistry at the University of Pittsburgh and a member of the Division of Organic Chemistry's executive committee.

"This gives me confidence going into the job market," said Rheault, who is expected to earn her doctorate in May 2002 and will seek a position in the pharmaceutical industry. "It puts me in a select group, since I had to compete with people earning their Ph.D. at places like Harvard, MIT and Scripps Research Institute."

The award also includes a trip to the 2003 National Organic Symposium in Indianapolis, where she is expected to present a poster on her work with radical aldol reactions. Rheault's fellowship is sponsored by Merck Research Laboratories.

"I am very proud of her and I'm really excited about the fellowship," Sibi said. "This is a nice honor for her, our research group and the university. We have been able to compete at the national level and that's an important thing."

A native of Fargo, Rheault has a six-year-old son, Christian. She previously was awarded a three-year National Science Foundation Graduate Fellowship.

Events

Post-high school planning program scheduled

A post-high school planning program for high school students and parents is scheduled for 6-8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 24, and 9-11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, at the Bison Sports Arena.

The program's goal is to provide high school juniors and seniors in western Minnesota and eastern North Dakota an opportunity to visit with representatives from nearly 100 post-secondary educational institutions and military organizations.

The event is sponsored by the Minnesota Association for College Admission Counseling and the North Dakota Association of Admissions Counselors.

For more information, contact Rhonda Kitch, admission counselor, at 1-9421.

United Tribes powwow day trip planned

Multicultural Student Services and the Skill Warehouse program have scheduled a day trip to the 32nd annual United Tribes International Contest Powwow Saturday, Sept. 8, in Bismarck.

Described as one of the country's largest collegiate contests, the event includes dancers from across the United States and Canada competing for nearly $30,000 in contest money. The event will be held outdoors and will include authentic crafters and food vendors.

The cost of the trip is $12 for NDSU students and $15 for all others. Seating is limited to 20 people. Advance registration and payment are required by Thursday, Sept. 6. The bus will depart from the Memorial Union's south entrance at 8:30 a.m. and will return late evening. For more information and registration, call 1-7900.

NDSU Women's Club events scheduled

The NDSU Women's Club has scheduled its first two events for the 2001-02 academic year. All interested faculty and staff women, wives of faculty and staff and women in the community are invited to attend.

Gale Chapman, wife of NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman, will host a welcome reception to renew interest in the club, scheduled for 6:30-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, at the NDSU Alumni Center. NDSU faculty and staff, wives of faculty and staff, former employees, retirees, friends of NDSU and all women in the community are invited to attend. President Chapman is scheduled to speak about campus events at 7 p.m. Guests also will have an opportunity to create autumn greeting cards or their nametags for the evening with scrapbooking and stamping materials. Guests are asked to bring donations of non-perishable food or personal items to benefit the YWCA Women's Shelter. Babysitting and ride service will be available, and can be reserved by contacting Mrs. Chapman at gchapman@gwmail.nodak.edu. Refreshments will be served.

The main group meets three times during the year. The first event, a presentation by wood carver Guy Paulson, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 10, at the Heritage Hjemkomst Interpretive Center, Moorhead. Paulson, who did much of the carved work on the Norwegian stave church on the center's grounds, will give a slide presentation and show some of his carvings. The club's scholarship winners also will be introduced at the meeting. Coffee and dessert will be served. For more information, contact club president Doris Rudesill at 235-4629 or vice president Jan Nowatzki at 239-7014.

Members pay annual dues of $10, half of which goes to their scholarship fund. This year, the club will award $500 each to juniors Heidi Krause, Lake Benton, Minn., and Chentel Christman, Cavalier, Minn., according to Rudesill. Scholarship winners are selected from a group of applicants, and are based on academic achievement.

The club also has several special interest groups that meet monthly. Interest groups include gourmet, bridge, crafts, hospitality, international women, sewing (afternoon and evening clubs), study club, moms and tots, valley gardeners and variety club. Members may join any or all of these groups at no additional cost. For more information on the special interest groups, contact Darlene Rogers at 293-5614.

The NDSU Women's Club was started in 1920 by Mrs. Ladd, wife of former NDAC president, Edwin F. Ladd, as a way for wives of faculty and staff to get to know each other and provide scholarship money for female students.

Hard Bop quartet on MPR broadcast

Minnesota Public Radio will broadcast a performance by the Hard Bop Saxophone Quartet as part of its "Regional Artists in Concert" series. The broadcast is scheduled to air on KCCM 91.1 FM at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 6.

Matthew Patnode, assistant professor of music, is a member of the quartet. Other members are Russell Peterson, Paul Liversage and Harley Sommerfeld.

The broadcast also will include performances by the Tri-College Percussion Ensemble, the Concordia Men's Vocal Quartet and Concordia College faculty.

Theater department to host high school conference

The Department of Theater Arts will host the Upper-Midwest High School Theater Conference scheduled for 4-10:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2, and 8-5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3. The conference is specifically designed for high school students, teachers, drama coaches and advisers.

The event serves as the official North Dakota State Thespians Conference, and has become a venue for students, teachers and advisers from schools in the Upper Midwest Region to network and interact with each other.

The conference is geared toward active involvement through several hands-on workshops for both students and teachers. University faculty and guest artists will conduct the workshops ranging from "Acting for Anyone" to "Rehearsal Techniques for the High School Drama Coach." Attendees will have the opportunity to participate in group activities and performances. Teachers also will have the opportunity to receive continuing education credit for participating in the conference.

For further information, contact Sandra Paulson, scheduling and promotions coordinator, at 1-9564.
