NDSU enrollment sets record

NDSU's enrollment stands at 10,538 students, a record high. The official tally, taken at the end of the third week of classes, was announced Sept. 20.

"This is truly a historic fall enrollment at NDSU in many ways," said George Wallman, vice president for student affairs. "This is a 5.4 percent increase from the 10,002 students we had last fall."

According to Wallman, the number of new freshmen stands at a record 1,935 students, which represents a 9 percent increase from a year ago. "We also have enrolled 1,105 graduate students, a 20 percent increase and our largest number ever," he said. "The increase in graduate students was something we worked hard on and it shows that this can be done. It bodes well for our future."

In addition, total course credits taken by all students increased by 7 percent from last fall.

Wallman said the growth in enrollment is the third largest increase in NDSU's history and reflects favorably on both NDSU and the Fargo-Moorhead community. "Obviously, students like this setting," he said.

Wallman added that the university is ahead of the projected pace needed to reach a goal of 12,000 students. "We are eager to complete a new apartment complex, residence hall and renovate Minard Hall for additional classrooms," he said.

Alumnus among terrorist attack victims

Robert Rasmussen, BS '82, Hinsdale, Ill., is listed among the victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the World Trade Center in New York. A memorial service was held Sept. 21 at Hawley Lutheran Church, Hawley, Minn.

An employee of Vestek, a unit of Thomsen Financial, Rasmussen was born in Fargo and grew up in Hunter, N.D. He earned a bachelor's degree in construction engineering at NDSU and was active in Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, cheer team, choir and Student Government.

Survivors include his wife, Anna, and three children, who reside in Hinsdale.

A trust fund is being established for Rasmussen's children. For information, contact Sherri Schmidt, Alumni Association associate executive director, at sherri@ndsualumni.com.

Patriotic buttons available

The NDSU Alumni Association is making 2,500 patriotic buttons available to people on campus. The project is in response to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York and Washington, D.C.

The 2.25-inch diameter buttons show an American flag and the words "United We Stand." They are available free of charge while the supply lasts at the front desk of the Alumni Center and a limited number can be picked up in the Memorial Union.

"The Alumni Association decided to take an active role because we wanted to demonstrate our support for our country," said Liz Christianson, Alumni Association assistant director. "We're encouraging faculty, staff and students to wear the buttons proudly."

State of the University rescheduled

President Joseph A. Chapman will deliver the State of the University Address at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in Festival Concert Hall.

Proposal reminder

Faculty are reminded to submit research proposals for the Research Development Support Program sponsored by the Research Foundation by 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5. Awards will be available approximately Feb. 1, 2002. Detailed application guidelines are available on the Web at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/research/funding/rdsp/descr.shtml.

Institute for Regional Studies closing announcement

The Institute for Regional Studies will close for the day at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 3. The institute will be hosting a class at that time.

Varsity Mart sidewalk sale

The Varsity Mart has scheduled a sidewalk sale for 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Sept. 27-28. Selected items from all departments will be on sale.

Policy updates announced

The following policies recently have been added or revised. To see the complete policy, visit www.ndsu.nodak.edu/policy/.

Policy 154 - Distribution of Literature

Updates the policy to make it consistent with Student Code of Behavior and adds provisions on literature distribution outside and in buildings on campus.

Policy 166 - Institutional Safety

Language is updated to accommodate title changes and to reference new Policy 347-Institutional Biosafety Committee.

Policy 182 - Severance Payment

Revisions reflect changes in State Board of Higher Education Policy 707. Changes eliminate the provision that employees receiving severance payments must release the institutions from liability and all employment rights under board policy and the written agreement, but links the severance option more closely to NDCC 54-14-04.3

Policy 346 - Animal Welfare

These changes update institutional titles as well as the names of referenced federal agencies referenced in the policy to their current titles and names.

Policy 347 - Institutional Biosafety Committee

This is a new policy supporting the recently reorganized NDSU Institutional Biosafety Committee (IBC) and includes the committee's role and areas of procedure.

Policy 360 - Early Retirement

Policy update removes the requirement of SBHE approval for some employment in the university system following an early retirement agreement.

Policy 505 - Property, Plant and Equipment

Updates policy in light of 2001 legislative action and increases equipment capitalization threshold from $750 to $5,000.

Policy 515 - Travel-Employees

Updates policy in light of 2001 legislative action:

- Part 4.1 increases in-state mileage from 25 to 31 cents per mile.
- Part 4.2 increases private airplane mileage from 35 to 70 cents per mile.
- Part 4.3 increases limit on in-state rate (31 cents) from 150 to 300 miles outside the state border
- Part 4.4 increases mileage rate for employees located out of state
- Part 7.1 increases in-state lodging limit from $42 to $45 (plus tax) per night.

Policy 601 - Rights and Responsibilities of Community: A Code of Student Behavior

This addition prohibits students from transferring their class lecture notes or instructor provided materials for commercial purposes unless approved by the course instructor.

NDSU to offer emergency management minor

NDSU will offer a minor in emergency management, starting in the fall of 2002. The program was approved during the summer by the State Board of Higher Education.

"It will be the first program like it in the state of North Dakota," said Thomas Riley, dean of arts, humanities and social sciences. "We are a state that has been engaged in two of the top 10 national flood disasters over the past decade, so there clearly is a need. The minor will be valuable to a number of people in criminal justice, facilities management and other areas, and now we are able to offer one."

The inter-disciplinary program will consist of 19 credits, with core courses including Principles of Emergency Management, Emergency Planning, Hazard Mitigation Planning, Disaster Response/Recovery and Disaster Analysis. Supporting core courses will be Psychology of Disaster, Sociology of Disaster and Crisis Communication.

The minor also will feature a series of electives from a number of departments, such as agribusiness and applied economics; apparel, textiles and interior design; business administration; history; political science; sociology and communication.

"We'll also be working closely with the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the North Dakota Division of Emergency Management," said Gary Goreham, associate professor and chair of sociology and anthropology. "Some of the textbook materials we'll be using will come directly from FEMA and, hopefully, we'll have internships at the county, state and federal levels."

Goreham said the minor will compliment a number of major courses of study, including political science, psychology, sociology, engineering, facilities management or business. "It will work perfectly with any of those," he said.

The program will be housed in the Department of Sociology/ Anthropology. For more information, contact George Youngs, professor of sociology and anthropology, at 1-8941.

Public Art on Campus sculpture to be displayed

The first sculpture under the Public Art on Campus program is scheduled to be unveiled in a ceremony 3 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9, near the entrance of the NDSU Main Library. The work by student Rick Woodland is titled "The Olive."

More than six feet tall, the free-spinning, three-dimensional sculpture is an abstract olive made of wood, steel and copper.

Woodland is a senior art student from Wilder, Idaho, who is focusing on sculpture. He also will present his baccalaureate art show Oct. 9-19 in the Memorial Union Gallery.

"This is one of the grandest opportunities for me. It is a giant first step. I am honored and thankful for an art department that has given me the chance to do this," said Woodland. "The library is a noble place for my work and I'm hopeful the sculpture will be a place where people meet."

Thomas Riley, dean of arts, humanities and social sciences, said Woodland's work is the start of what he anticipates will be an expanding program. "Over the next few years, the hope is to have student art on exhibition on the lawn at a number of locations across campus," he said.

Under the program, NDSU students produce works and Physical Plant builds bases for the sculptures. The pieces are to be on display for six months, with the possibility of renewal for another six months.

Meister receives national advising award

Mark Meister, assistant professor of communication, received the Mortar Board National Excellence in Advising Award during the honor society's national conference in Columbus, Ohio, July 27-29.

Nominated by the NDSU chapter, Meister was chosen for exemplifying the ideals of Mortar Board, which include scholarship, leadership and service.

The nomination materials praised Meister's "enthusiastic spirit of service," and said he "has gone above and beyond in contributing to Mortar Board by sharing himself, his experiences and his advice."

Meister said he felt honored that the local chapter would nominate him for the prestigious award. "The significance to me is that I get to work with good students here at NDSU. Mortar Board has some exceptional students and, to me, that is the honor," he said.

Meister says he takes a "laid back" approach to advising. "It's a group where the students are bright and excellent leaders," he said. "They keep things going and I just provide the advice I can about what they need to do to remain safe, be consistent with university policies and that whatever they do is a good reflection of what goes on here at NDSU."

Founded in 1918, Mortar Board is a national honor society that recognizes college seniors for distinguished ability and achievement. The organization has 209 chapters across the nation and more than 230,000 initiated members.

Animal and range presentations, publications listed

Faculty, staff and students from the Department of Animal and Range Sciences made presentations at the annual conference of the Society for the Study of Fertility at the University of Cambridge in July. The following presentations were made:

Faculty:

•Lawrence P. Reynolds—"Immunolocalization of Endothelial Nitric Oxide Synthas (eNOS) and Vascular Endothelial Growth Factor (VEGF) in Ovine Utero-Placental Tissues of Early Pregnancy," authors: Reynolds, Arnold, Kraft, Kirsch and Redmer.

Graduate Students:

- •Abraham Scheaffer—"Effect of Dietary Restriction on Small Intestinal Vascularity in Ewes," authors Scheaffer, Arnold, Redmer, Caton and Reynolds.
- •Chainarong Navanukraw—"Immunolocalization of Endothelial Nitric Oxide Synthase (eNOS) in Ovine Antral Follicles," authors: Navanukraw, Kraft, Redmer and Reynolds.

The following presentations were made at the 2001 Society for the Study of Reproduction annual meeting in July at the University of Ottawa:

Faculty:

•Anna T. Grazul-Bilska—"Effects of Cyclic AMP on Gap Junctional Intercellular Communication (GJIC) and Progesterone Secretion of Ovine Granulosa and Cumulus Cells In-Vitro," authors: Grazul-Bilska, Bilski, Weigl, Reynolds and Redmer.

Graduate Students:

•Jong Tae Choi—"Effects of Epidermal Growth Factor on Embryonic Development after In-Vitro Fertilization of Oocytes Collected from FSH-treated Ewes," authors: Choi, Redmer, Reynolds, Bilski, Weigl and Grazul-Bilska. •Daniel Arnold—"Effect of Nutrient Restriction on Placental Vascularity and Fetal Growth in Sheep," authors: Arnold, Scheaffer, Redmer, Caton and Reynolds.

Mary Lynn Johnson, research scientist and ARS adjunct faculty, gave the presentation, "Cloning and Evaluation of Expression of Connexin (Cx) 43, Cx32, and Cx26 mRNA in Sheep Tissues," authors: Johnson, Redmer, Reynolds and Grazul-Bilska, at the 2001 International Gap Junction Conference held in Honolulu during August.

Anna T. Grazul-Bilska, assistant professor of animal and range sciences, Dale A. Redmer, professor of animal and range sciences and Lawrence P. Reynolds, professor of animal and range sciences, had research published in the "Growth Factors During Ovarian Angiogenesis" chapter of "Vascular Morphogenesis in the Female Reproductive System."

Garden-Robinson to lead folic acid study

Julie Garden-Robinson, extension food and nutrition specialist, recently received a grant of more than $17,000 from the North Dakota March of Dimes to conduct an educational campaign on the importance of folic acid in young women.

Garden-Robinson

"Folic Acid Now: An Intervention for 18-24 Year Old Women" will target younger women of childbearing age and deliver information designed to increase awareness and knowledge of the importance of folic acid in preventing neural tube defects. Young women attending college in Fargo-Moorhead are the primary target group.

The project will include a media campaign, various on-campus promotional activities and information for young women not currently planning to become pregnant.

The campaign began in August and will continue through May. Campaign partners include the NDSU Extension Service, Fargo Cass Public Health, Cass County Extension Service and several academic departments at NDSU, Minnesota State University Moorhead and Concordia College.

Kath receives governor's award

Sheila Kath, administrative secretary in zoology, received the Governor's Award for Excellence in Public Service at a State Employees Week ceremony held Sept. 17 in Bismarck. She was one of four in the state to receive the award.

Kath has worked in various administrative support positions at NDSU for more than 35 years.

Martin research in Japanese law published

A research article by Drew Martin, assistant professor of business administration, was published in the Sept. 9 issue of the Academy of Legal Studies in Business (ALSB) International Business Law Journal.

The article, "Foreign Lawyer in Japan: Disparate Views," was co-authored by L. Ciano, associate professor of law at Kansai Gaidai University in Japan, and examines how changes in Japan's foreign lawyer law have affected the demand for foreign lawyers. It explores whether foreign and Japanese businesses have an equal understanding how recent changes affect them, if businesses have similar attitudes about legal services in Japan, and whether it makes sense to further expand the role of foreign attorneys in Japan.

Martin's areas of research include overseas business assistance programs, cross-cultural communications, marketing to Japan and customer perceptions of service in global markets. For more information, contact Martin at Drew.Martin@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Schmieg named NCC Player of the Week

Volleyball player Rachael Schmieg was named the North Central Conference Women's Volleyball Player of the Week for Sept. 10-15. She earned the honor for the first time in her career and is the first NDSU player of the week since the 1999 season.

Schmieg is a junior outside hitter from Chaska, Minn.

Events

Cultural Awareness Month celebration set

Seminars by diversity educator Michael Nejman, films on cultural issues and a stage production will highlight NDSU's first-ever Cultural Awareness Month celebration scheduled for Oct. 1-26.

The NDSU celebration coincides with National Cultural Awareness Month. "For this first attempt at celebrating Cultural Awareness Month, we're excited about the variety of events that we have planned, and the educational content that will be covered," said Kerri Spiering, director of International Programs. "We're hoping that students, staff and faculty will take advantage of these opportunities."

Nejman

Michael Nejman, coordinator of student activities and adjunct faculty member at William Rainey Harper College, Palatine, Ill., is scheduled to present three seminars Monday, Oct. 1, in the Memorial Union Dakota Ballroom. "Responding to Culturally Inappropriate Comments," a session geared toward students, is set for 10 a.m., and will offer practical solutions to awkward situations. "Culture, the Oppression Continuum and the 'isms'," geared for faculty and staff, is scheduled for 2 p.m. and "Power and Privilege," designed for a broad audience, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

A Brown Bag seminar on multiculturalism is scheduled for noon Wednesday, Oct. 3, in the Memorial Union Peace Garden Room. "Multiculturalism Works: Making Ethnic Diversity a Professional Asset," will feature a panel of multicultural professionals from the Fargo-Moorhead area discussing the advantages and disadvantages of ethnic and cultural diversity in their professions.

"Where Did That Idea Come From?" a program by Lori Horvik, assistant professor of theater arts, is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 3, in the Memorial Union Century Theater. The program explores the influence of foreign films on contemporary American cinema.

"Off to the Races," a play by 7 A.M. Productions of Greensboro, N.C., is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, in Askanase Hall Walsh Studio. The play provides a social commentary on the way people continue to judge others by their physical appearance.

A 1973 documentary, "Distorted Image," is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 8, in the Memorial Union Century Theater. The 28-minute film shows examples of cartoons and caricatures from American popular media between 1850 and 1922 that served as a commentary on immigration. Discussion and refreshments will follow the film.

A Fajita Fiesta buffet lunch is scheduled for 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15, in the Alumni Center. Tickets are $6, and can be purchased at the International Programs or Multicultural Student Services offices in Ceres Hall through Oct. 11.

A screening of, "Double Happiness," is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 22, in the Century Theater. The film portrays a young Chinese woman who tries to balance her modern dreams and life with her traditional parents. Discussion will follow.

A "Mid-Autumn Festival and Asian American Celebration," is scheduled for 9 p.m.-1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 26, in the Memorial Union Cul-de-Sac lounge as part of the MU Live series.

Cultural Awareness Month celebrations are sponsored by Campus Attractions, International Programs, Multicultural Student Services, Staff Senate, the YMCA of NDSU, the Division of Academic Affairs and the Division of Student Affairs. All events except the Fajita Fiesta are free of charge. For more information, contact Spiering at 1-7895, or Tracy Ekeren, assistant director of Multicultural Student Services, at 1-1029.

Engineering and tech expo scheduled

The NDSU Career Center will sponsor the third Engineering and Tech Expo scheduled for 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28, at the Bison Sports Arena..

The expo offers an opportunity for employers to connect with engineering and technology students in a casual business environment, and build relationships with students searching for Cooperative Education assignments and full-time employment. Eighty-six companies have registered to attend the event. More than 1,000 students are expected to participate. Several student groups, including the Sunsetters solar race team, will provide displays. Students should bring current resumes.

The College of Engineering and Architecture also will host a reception for expo participants, students and faculty from 5-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 27, in the Memorial Union Gallery.

For more information, call 1-8466 or visit www.ndsu.nodak.edu/career_center.

Lively Arts Series presents 'Luma'

"Luma: Theater of Light," a visual performance piece based entirely on the subject of light, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, in Festival Concert Hall.

Combining light, color, movement and music, Luma treats the audience to an illuminated spectacle difficult to categorize. Using new light technologies and performance art disciplines, Luma transforms a darkened theater into a spatial canvas, where illuminated objects and chaotic characters paint surreal worlds. The experience continues beyond theater, with light inventions and innovations on interactive display.

Ticket prices are $13 for adults, $10 for seniors and NDSU employees, $7 for children and non-NDSU students and $6 for NDSU students. Tickets are available at the NDSU Memorial Union Ticket Office, by calling 1-8458, or at any TicketMaster outlet or by calling (701) 235-7171.

Brown Bag Seminar to explore multiculturalism

The YMCA of NDSU has scheduled a Brown Bag seminar, "Multiculturalism Works: Making Ethnic Diversity a Professional Asset," for noon Wednesday, Oct. 3, in the Memorial Union Peace Garden room.

A group panel of multicultural professionals from the Fargo-Moorhead community will discuss the advantages and difficulties of ethnic and cultural diversity in their occupations. Drawing from their personal experience, they will offer insight regarding the multicultural experience, and offer advice to students about entering the workplace.

The seminar is free and open to the public. For more information, call 1-5225.

Leo Kim exhibition on display at the Memorial Union Gallery

"A Celebration of North Dakota," an exhibition of black and white photographs by award-winning photographer and NDSU alumnus Leo Kim, is on display through Oct. 5 in the Memorial Union Gallery.

The exhibition features North Dakota's skies and vast, open landscape. Thirty-five photographs focus on sky and land. Kim's subject matter includes grain elevators, prairies, wheat fields, a Ukrainian Orthodox church and the spring thaw.

Kim lives in Minneapolis, where he works as a professional photographer.

The exhibit is sponsored in part by the College of Agriculture, North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, NDSU Extension Service, Northern Crops Institute, the Office of the Vice President and Dean for Agricultural Affairs, North Dakota Art Gallery Association, North Dakota Council on the Arts and NDSU Student Government.

Gallery hours are 9:30 a.m-6 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and 9:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Friday. A reception and artist talk are scheduled for 4-6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28, in the Memorial Union Gallery. For more information contact the Memorial Union Gallery at 1-8239 or Peg.Furshong@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Music faculty recital set

The Department of Music has scheduled a faculty recital of British vocal music for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, in Beckwith Recital Hall. Admission is free.

The recital will feature baritone Robert Jones, assistant professor of music, and Andrew Froelich, professor of music, on piano. Featured works include music by Benjamin Britten and Gerald Finzi, and songs by Ralph Vaughan Williams, Charles Villiers Stanford, and Gilbert and Sullivan.

The NDSU Men's Ensemble, under the direction of graduate assistant Paul Barta, also will appear in the program.

The recital was rescheduled from its original date of Oct. 11.

Research Opportunities

The Office of Sponsored Programs Administration in Old Main 201K announces the following funding opportunities and deadlines. For more information, refer to the Web site or contact person provided with each listing. For information about other grant opportunities, you may conduct an online funding search via SPIN, available at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/research/funding/spinplus.shtml.

National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute-NIH Role of Infections in Cardiovascular Disease http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/rfa-files/RFA-HL-02-002.html

Deadlines: Jan. 7 for letters of intent; Feb. 12 for applications The NHLBI is inviting applications to support studies on the role of infectious agents in the development of vascular disease. In vitro and in vivo research on the specific cellular and molecular mechanisms by which infectious agents contribute to atherogenesis are of interest. The secondary objective is to encourage development of the biological basis for therapeutic interventions that target these molecular mechanisms.

Challenge America Design Competition www.nea.gov/guide/NPW02.html Deadline: Jan. 11 for letters of interest; applications due

The National Endowment for the Arts, in an effort to promote and use design to make communities better places to live, seeks applications for its Challenge America grants, which support competitions for design in the public realm. This year's competition has a special focus on school design. Areas include architecture, urban planning, industrial design and/or land-scape architecture.

Environmental Protection Agency Environmental Education Grants www.access.gpo.gov/nara/index.html Deadline: Nov. 15

National Endowment for the Arts

The Environmental Protection Agency is inviting applications for projects to design, demonstrate or disseminate environmental education practices, methods or techniques, including assessing environmental and ecological conditions and specific environmental issues and problems.

National Science Foundation Embedded and Hybrid Systems www.nsf.gov/pubs/2001/nsf01161.html Deadline: Dec. 5

The NSF is seeking applications for research to help create and unify the foundations for managing interacting physical and computational systems and supply the technologies needed for building reliable software and network-enabled embedded systems. Relevant research areas include hybrid modeling and control of physical systems; domain-specific design, programming and software synthesis approaches for embedded systems; verification and analysis technology for checking and certifying correct operation of embedded software and systems; and virtual machine strategies for embedded systems.

National Institute of General Medical Sciences-NIH Summer Research Experiences for Undergraduates http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/rfa-files/RFA-GM-02-002.html

Deadline: Jan. 15 for letters of intent; Feb. 15 for applications The NIGMS is inviting applications for short-term programs that recruit undergraduate students from the quantitative and physical disciplines, such as engineering, mathematics, computer science and physics, to work with NIH-funded investigators and learn about biomedical and/or translational research. The project period is four years.

New staff hired

Brian Jambor has joined ITS as a digital conferencing specialist. Jambor will coordinate technical video, audio and data conferencing and implementation for NDSU's videoconferencing facilities (including NDUS IVN). As part of the digital conferencing team, he will focus on efforts to research, evaluate and recommend improvements and systems changes. Jambor has a bachelor's degree in mass communications from St. Cloud State University, and most recently was employed as a radio engineering technician.

Custom multimedia services available

Two student graphic designers have been hired to assist students and faculty with instructional graphics. Available services include free-hand drawing, custom charts or diagrams, video capturing and editing, optimized graphics for the web, animations of processes, graphics for PowerPoint presentations, custom photography, posters, web tutorials and custom clipart. There is no cost for the services. For more information, contact Nancy Lilleberg at 1-7140 or nancy.lilleberg@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Online forms combined on one Web site

Web links to many administrative and academic forms campus have been placed on one Web page to allow easy access for campus personnel. Forms for accounting, human resources, payroll, research, academic affairs, equal opportunity and physical plant can be found at www.ndsu.edu/forms. Forms used campuswide may be added to the list by using "Get Your Form Listed" link on the Web site. Contact Nancy Lilleberg at 1-7140 or nancy.lilleberg@ndsu.nodak.edu for more information.

Viewlets Farm helps students, faculty and staff learn technology skills

ITS and University Studies have collaborated to provide a new training method to teach technology and computer skills to students. The Skills for Academic Success class focuses on student retention and provides instruction on study skills, library usage, technology services and several other campus activities.

The instruction also is available on the Web, with a program called Viewletbuilder. Students, faculty and staff can learn to use campus technologies by accessing a 'viewlet', which is a short animated sequence showing step-by-step processes. The first set of viewlets is available at www.ndsu.nodak.edw/its/viewlets.
