

Technology Fee Advisory Committee seeks proposals

The Technology Fee Advisory Committee is seeking proposals for technology action plans that directly benefit and improve the quality of education via technology and benefit campus life of the students. Faculty, staff and students are encouraged to propose projects by the March 15 deadline.

The committee solicits and reviews proposals, then recommends the allocation of funds to Craig Schnell, vice president for academic affairs.

Access the solicitation, descriptions, instructions and forms at the committee's Web site at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/tfac/actionplans/. Proposals should be sent to the Technology Fee Advisory Committee, c/o NDSU Vice President for Academic Affairs, Old Main 103.

For more information contact committee members, or Richard Chenoweth, special assistant to the vice president for academic affairs, at 1-7106 or Richard.Chenoweth@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Summer, fall dates set for Intensive English Program

The Intensive English Language Program (IELP) is scheduled for five weeks this summer from July 15 to Aug. 16, and for 15 weeks during the fall semester. The course is designed to develop skills needed for academic study and general use of the English language in the United States.

The IELP is open to high school graduates interested in studying advanced English. The program assists international undergraduate and graduate students who are conditionally admitted to NDSU upon meeting the English proficiency requirement. Prospective international teaching assistants who have not obtained a 600 on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) are required to attend the program. It also is available for foreign scholars and other visitors on campus and people in the community who wish to improve their English skills.

The IELP is a self-supporting program offered through the Division of Continuing Education. Tuition, which includes health insurance, is $1,590 for the summer program and $2,575 for the fall program. Summer classes meet six hours per day. Fall program classes are scheduled for 12 hours per week with additional hours for tutoring and language practice.

For additional information, contact the Office of International Programs, 338 Ceres Hall, at 1-7895, or ndsu.international@ndsu.nodak.edu, or visit its Web site at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/International.

GraSUS accepting fellowship applications

The NDSU Graduate Student-University-School (GraSUS) program is accepting applications for graduate and undergraduate teaching fellowships for the 2002-03 academic year. Information and application materials can be found online at www.ndsu.edu/grasus, or by contacting Don Drummond, education project specialist in science and mathematics, at 1-7336, or Dogan Comez, professor of mathematics, at 1-7490. Application deadline is March 1.

Applications sought for Steinhaus-Rhinehart Scholarship

Applications are being accepted for the NDSU Development Foundation Steinhaus-Rhinehart Scholarship. Students with a senior standing as of fall 2002 semester can apply for the $500 scholarships. The scholarships provide assistance to students in science and mathematics, agriculture and biological sciences. Applications are available in Ceres Hall until the March 18 application deadline.

Wood receives distinguished service award

Wood

Nona Wood, Student Life associate director/student rights and responsibilities, received the Donald Gehring Distinguished Service Award at the annual conference of the Association of Student Judicial Affairs (ASJA) Feb. 9-11 in Clearwater Beach, Fla. The award is considered the highest national honor in the profession.

Wood was nominated by several people on campus, including NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman, who wrote in his letter of support, "She is an imminently qualified person who often works away from the spotlight, delving into intricate matters related to student infractions and penalties, while carefully safeguarding a student's rights and privacy."

Prakash Mathew, dean of Student Life, wrote, "Students are Nona's main focus. She is concerned not only about their academic performance, but also about their well-being, success and their future. Her commitment to anything she undertakes is obvious to everyone who is associated with her."

In her nomination letter, recent graduate Erin Nelson wrote, "Even while upholding the student code of conduct, Nona's concern for the well-being of the student far outweighs the disciplinary action. Upon entering her office, students sense a warmth and sincerity that is overwhelming and can easily establish a comfortable rapport with Nona."

Wood is a member of the ASJA board of directors, representing Regions 7 and 8. An active member of the North Dakota Campus Violence Project's advisory committee, she also was a member of NDSU's Commission on Alcohol and Other Drugs, which completed its work in 1999.

The ASJA traces its history to 1986 when the University of Louisville's Donald Gehring proposed a professional organization to serve the needs of campus judicial officers. ASJA has grown to 1,200 members in the United States and Canada, representing more than 750 colleges and universities

Grazul-Bilska receives USDA research grant

Anna T. Grazul-Bilska, assistant professor of animal and range sciences, recently received a $170,000, three-year research grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The research, "Rose of Gap Junctions in Regulation of Luteal Function," will focus on the regulation of cellular interactions mediated by gap junctions within corpora lutea, an important ovarian structure, responsible for maintaining reproductive cyclicity and pregnancy in mammals.

Dale Redmer, professor of animal and range sciences, and Lawrence Reynolds, professor of animal and range sciences, will collaborate on the project.

Kloberdanz named 'scholar in residence'

Timothy J. Kloberdanz, associate professor of sociology, has been named a "Scholar in Residence" for Devils Lake's Central Middle School by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Kloberdanz will work as a humanities counselor and consultant for a special education project at the school. He will work with several area teachers to identify common cultural traditions shared by various local ethnic groups. They hope to eventually integrate culturally relevant materials, ideas and concepts into the school curriculum.

The school serves a large number of students from the Devils Lake area including several from the Spirit Lake reservation.

A public lecture exploring the results of the study is scheduled for April.

Kloberdanz has worked with North Dakota's ethnic groups for approximately 25 years. He teaches a summer institute for educators focusing on the role of ethnic identity in individuals, families and communities in the northern Great Plains. He estimates that there are approximately 75 distinct ethnic groups in the state.

Construction students participate in national competition

NDSU construction students received top scores for their oral presentation at the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and Centex Homes' construction management annual competition. The competition was part of the NAHB International Builder's Convention Feb. 6-11 in Atlanta.

The students were required to develop a marketing plan, cost estimate, project schedule and a sales plan for an actual residential land development project. The project involved the design of the infrastructure of 50 single-family homes in the Indianapolis area.

Teams presented their work before a panel of industry professionals for judging. Teams from approximately 45 colleges and universities competed.

Student team members are Brett Andersen, John Beatch, Treven Iverson, Nathan Kraft, David Parrill and Aaron Rohrich. The team was coached by Charlie McIntyre, assistant professor of construction management and engineering.

The team also will compete at the 2003 competition. For more information contact McIntyre at 1-7194.

Phi Kappa Phi scholarships announced

Two NDSU seniors are the recipients of Phi Kappa Phi scholarships for the 2001-02 academic year.

Jill Kay Anderson, an English education major from Lidgerwood, N.D., is the recipient of a $1,200 Carolyn Nelson Phi Kappa Phi scholarship. Anderson plans to continue her education in learning disabilities or English language learning. Her adviser is Richard Shaw.

Heather Davidson, a crop and weed science major, is the recipient of a $1,000 John Callenbach Memorial Phi Kappa Phi Scholarship. Davidson plans to pursue a master's degree and be an advocate for agriculture. She is the daughter of Michael and Holly Davidson, Tioga, N.D. Her adviser is Edward Deckard.

The awards are given annually to full-time students and members of Phi Kappa Phi who have exhibited leadership skills at NDSU or in the community.

Scholarship funding is provided by the late John Callenbach, professor emeritus, and his wife Lillian, and by their daughter, Carolyn Nelson, senior lecturer in mathematics, and Nelson's husband, Gil, professor emeritus of mathematics.

For further information, contact Carolyn Nelson at 1-8078 or carolyn.nelson@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Cooperative governance training program scheduled

The Quentin N. Burdick Center for Cooperatives at NDSU has scheduled a training session on cooperative governance March 12-14 at the Arrowwood Radisson, Alexandria, Minn.

According to the center, the program will include training in conflict avoidance and resolution, and in the process of performance evaluation of cooperative directors, boards and management. Other topics will include the roles and responsibilities of directors, functions of board committees, confidentiality and board organization.

Cost is $425 for the first representative from an organization, $800 for two, $1,150 for three, $1,450 for four and an additional $300 for each person five and beyond. The fee includes all materials, two breakfasts, three lunches, two dinners and coffee breaks, but does not include lodging.

Registrations should be sent to QBCC/NDSU, 301 Morrill Hall, Fargo ND 58105, before Feb. 28.

Global experts address penetration of foreign markets

"Global Business for North Dakota," the first in a series of spring Executive Education@NDSU seminars, is scheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 21, in the NDSU Alumni Center. The seminars are sponsored by the College of Business Administration.

The seminar will feature Richard Furness, Endress+Hauser Inc.; Henrik Wendelboe, Danfoss Analytical A/S; and Michael Howard, Export-Import Bank of the United States, discussing effective trading in domestic and international markets.

The seminars are designed for business owners, business development managers and directors and public sector economic development managers.

Endress+Hauser, with headquarters in Basel, Switzerland, is the world's largest private instrument company, offering process control devices and systems for all major parameters in industrial measurement and automation technology.

Furness holds a doctorate in chemical and mechanical engineering and is a Chartered Engineer. As municipal business director for Endress+Hauser's U.S. division in Indianapolis, he has launched two new enterprises and covers all aspects of running a multi-million dollar business, maintaining a special focus on marketing and business development.

Based in Sonderborg, Denmark, Danfoss Analytical A/S is a global leader in research, development and production of mechanical and electronic components. The company currently employs 17,000 people and lists annual sales of 2 billion EUR. Wendelboe, director of sales and marketing, received an MBA from the University of Southern Denmark.

Michael Howard, Midwest regional director of the business development division for the Export-Import Bank of the United States, holds a bachelor's degree in industrial management from Georgia Institute of Technology. His expertise is in international financing for small businesses.

The Export-Import Bank of the United States is the official export credit agency of the U.S. government. Created in 1934 to aid in financing and facilitating U.S. exports, the Export-Import Bank provides guarantees of working capital loans for exporters, guarantees the repayment of loans or makes loans to foreign purchasers of U.S. goods and services. It also provides credit insurance against non-payment by foreign buyers for political or commercial risk.

The seminar is expected to last approximately four hours and the cost is $195 per person. Participants may register online at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/conted/execed/ or by calling 1-5376.

For more information contact the College of Business Administration at 1-8805 or Roxann.Williams@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Women's Week events scheduled

Women's Week 2002 at NDSU is set for Feb. 25-March 1. This year's theme is "World Wise Women."

Daily

• Innovative Web writing projects by three Tri-College students will be available for interactive viewing 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25-Friday, March. 1. The projects also may be accessed online at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/instruct/cinichol/WomenWritingFuture.htm.

Monday

• The first in a series of three topics on "Women Writing the Future: Visit with Three Web Authors," is scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Memorial Union Alumni Lounge. Dayna Del Val, graduate student, will discuss her creation of an online MyStory, an autobiographical Web essay exploring Shakespeare and his work.

• "Body Theory and Gender: Tattooing and Piercing," a brown bag seminar sponsored by the YMCA of NDSU, is scheduled for noon in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose room. The session will address the role body art has taken with regard to gender, safety and the artists as professionals.

• A seminar on grief and caregiving entitled, "Caring for the Caregiver," is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Memorial Union University Chambers. Presented by Hospice of the Red River Valley, and the director and cast of Little Country Theater's "Marvin's Room," the event will include discussions on caregiving, grief and communicating with a loved one who is ill.

Tuesday

• The second in a series of topics on "Women Writing the Future: Visit with Three Web Authors," is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. in the Alumni Lounge. Minnesota State University Moorhead student Caity Birmingham will discuss her independent study creative writing project on her work as a poet and film artist.

• A brown bag seminar, "Twenty Years in Struggle: Women's Activism in Perspective," is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose room. Panelists including Red River Women's Health Clinic administrator Jane Bovard; Lynn Dorn, women's athletic director; Sandra Holbrook, equal opportunity director; and Elaine Lindgren, professor of sociology, will discuss increased opportunities for women and the last 20 years of women's rights activities.

• Authors Jennifer Baumgardner and Amy Richards are scheduled to present, "Brainless Barbies vs. Braless Banshees," at 7 p.m. in the Memorial Union Ballroom. Baumgardner and Richards are the co-authors of "Manifesta: Young Women, Feminism, and the Future," which explores the legacy of feminism into which their generation was born. The women, both born in 1970, argue that the political goals of their generation don't differ from those of the preceding feminist generation. The goals are still political, social and economic quality. A reception with the authors will be held in the Alumni Lounge following the presentation.

Wednesday

"Young Women and Activism," a brown bag seminar with authors Jennifer Baumgardner and Amy Richards is scheduled for noon in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose room. Baumgardner and Richards will discuss the political activism of today's feminists.

• The film "Girl, Interrupted" is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Memorial Union Century Theater. Starring Winona Ryder and Angelina Jolie, the film explores the boundaries between confinement and freedom, friendship and betrayal and madness and sanity at a time when the it seems the whole world is going crazy. The film will be repeated at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday, March 1.

Thursday

• A brown bag seminar, "Labels, Categories and Stereotypes: Who Are These Women in America, Anyway?" is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose room. A panel of women representing a wide range of ages, professions, ethnic backgrounds and personal histories will share their experiences and community diversity.

• Robyne Williams, assistant professor of apparel, textiles and interior design, and Cindy Nichols, lecturer in English, will facilitate a discussion of the film "Girl Interrupted," scheduled for 2 p.m. in the Memorial Union University Chambers.

• Kathleen Laughlin, associate professor of history and women's studies at Metropolitan State University, Minneapolis, is scheduled to present the symposium, "Citizen-Homemakers: Women's Clubs and Public Activism in the 1950s," at 3:30 p.m. in Loftsgard 380. Laughlin will explain how club women sustained women's rights activism during the 1950s, and formed the organizational core of the modern women's movement.

• The film "Daughters of the Dust" is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Century Theater. Written and directed by Julie Dash, this turn-of-the-century story depicts a West African Gullah family's migration from the Sea Island to the mainland, their struggle for survival and their escape from poverty.

Friday

• The third in a series of topics on "Women Writing the Future: Visit with Three Web Authors," is scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Alumni Lounge. Mirim Kim, graduate student in English, examines her life as a Korean-American adoptee. Her mixed-genre project reveals the effects on identity of being both the "same" and "other" in countries still ambivalent about their acceptance of different.

• "Women and the Military," an interactive brown bag seminar, is scheduled for noon in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose room. A panel including officers and cadets from NDSU's Reserve Officer Training Corps program and officers from the Army and Air Force will provide a historical background of women's contributions to military efforts.

• The film "Girl Interrupted" is scheduled for 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in the Century Theater.

Additional related events and a complete schedule of Women's Week events can be found at www.ndsu.edu/equal_opportunity/brochure.html. For more information, contact Holbrook at 1-7703 or Kara Stack, assistant director of campus programs, at 1-8566.

Biomedical supercomputing virtual workshop

The National Center for Supercomputing Applications (NCSA) and the Theoretical Biophysics Group, NIH Resource for Macro Molecular Modeling and Bioinformatics, Beckman Institute, University of Illinois, have scheduled the NCSA NAMD virtual workshop 2002, "Biomedical Applications of Molecular Dynamics on the TeraGrid" for April 17-18.

A minimum of four confirmed registrations is required to offer the workshop in North Dakota via NDSU's Access Grid. Registration deadline is March 7.

More information on the workshop and a link to the registration page is available at <http://training.ncsa.uiuc.edu/NAMD>.

Support staff conference scheduled

The Support Staff Professional Conference is scheduled for April 15-17 at the Fargo Holiday Inn.

The bi-annual conference provides an opportunity for support staff members from the College of Agriculture, College of Human Development and Education, Equal Opportunity office, Extension Service, Institute of Business and Industry Development, North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station and Northern Crops Institute to connect and share their professional experience and participate in a series of informative sessions.

This year's conference will offer sessions on subjects such as internal office communication; ergonomics; diversity and civil rights; web graphic design; creating brochures and newsletters; archiving documents; and penalty mail.

Online registration will be available in March.

For additional information contact Teresa Luck, Stutsman County Extension, at tluck@ndsuxext.nodak.edu or (701) 252-9030, or Lesa Wilm, Richland County Extension, at lwilm@ndsuxext.nodak.edu or (701) 642-7793.

Student honor society to host tours

Phi Upsilon Omicron, a student honor society in the College of Human Development and Education, will host campus tours for approximately 20 elementary school students on Tuesday, Feb. 26.

The students will tour various departments within the college, go bowling in the Memorial Union and have a pizza party.

"It's fun to see the younger kids get excited about campus," said Nancy Kaler, faculty adviser and lecturer in child development and family services. "They love learning about different jobs and what college life is like."

The students are participants in the Charism Community Center's after school program, which receives assistance from the honor society twice each month. Members plan after school activities, plan meals to teach the children about table manners and nutrition and help with homework. "It's a great program for both the students and the kids," said Stefnee Truzpuc, Phi Upsilon Omicron vice president. "We get a lot out of it, and it's fun."

For more information contact Kaler at 1-7843 or Nancy.Kaler@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Concert choir spring tour scheduled

The NDSU Concert Choir has scheduled their annual spring tour in March visiting locations in North Dakota and Minnesota. NDSU's Madrigal Singers and Men's Ensemble also are scheduled to perform on the program.

Scheduled stops on the tour include Grand Forks; Fergus Falls, Minn.; Detroit Lakes, Minn.; Park River; Langdon; St. Louis Park, Minn.; St. Paul; Sartell, Minn.; and Albany, Minn. The tour will conclude with a home concert scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 22, in Festival Concert Hall.

The choir tours every spring and has performed in 30 states in the continental United States and several provinces in Canada. They tour Europe every four years, most recently touring Italy in the spring of 1998. They are scheduled to appear in Spain and Portugal for two weeks this May.

Under the direction of Jo Ann Miller, associate professor of music, the choir has performed at state, regional and national music conventions, and with regional orchestras. They are the featured choir of the NDSU Baroque Festival each November.

Miller joined the faculty as director of choral activities in 1989. She conducts the Concert Choir and Madrigal Singers and teaches choral conducting, choral arranging and choral music education. Miller also is the musical director of the NDSU Baroque Festival and the F-M Chamber Chorale.
