

NDSU veterans memorial dedicated

Air Force and Army ROTC honor guard unveil monument

A granite memorial to honor NDSU alumni and friends who have served in the Armed Forces was dedicated Aug. 14. The “We Will Never Forget” memorial is located near the entrance to the NDSU Alumni Center.

The dedication ceremony, which included a drum corps procession from the Memorial Union to the Alumni Center and fly-overs by the Happy Hooligans and vintage aircraft, was part of a special two-day World War II reunion of veterans that attracted about 175 alumni and spouses.

“We dedicate this memorial as a physical reminder of the sacrifices America’s veterans have made,” said President Joseph A. Chapman during the ceremony. “These sacrifices include precious time away from family and friends, physical injury and, for many, the ultimate sacrifice of life itself.

“We need memorials like this to remind us that the freedom we enjoy today came at a terrible cost. And we need physical reminders that the struggle to remain free is never over,” Chapman said. “I want to say thank you to all who have defended our way of life. The struggle will continue, to be certain, but we have your lives as our beacon.”

Gov. John Hoeven said the veterans’ generation “had a rendezvous with destiny” and he praised their service to the United States. “It is truly an honor to be with you today. This is a wonderful occasion,” he said.

Hoeven urged the alumni to reminisce about their college years, and to take pride in both their military service and their efforts during the years following the war.

“You are the generation of men and women that built the economic powerhouse that America is today,” Hoeven said. “We have a standard of living and a degree of freedom matched by no other nation in the world.”

The memorial has engraved stones for each of the branches of the military—Army, Air Force, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard. A larger stone is engraved with the message, “This place is dedicated to those who have served and are currently serving in the Armed Forces. Through their spirit, sacrifice and commitment, they have preserved our rights of life and liberty. These granite stones serve as a symbol of our appreciation for their efforts to maintain our freedom and also as a reminder of the moral strength and awesome power that can flow whenever a free people are united together for a common cause.”

Master of ceremonies Jim Miller, NDSU Development Foundation executive director, said, “This tribute is placed at the Alumni Center to remind all visitors of the importance of our military personnel and the role that North Dakota State University alumni and students have had in the defense of our freedoms. We trust this message will have an impact on the lives of our present and future students, reminding them of the sacrifices that were endured so they may avail themselves of an opportunity for a higher education.”

The reunion was a resounding success with participants. Merle Erickson, BS ‘49, said he enjoyed the camaraderie of seeing longtime friends and listening to the many stories told by fellow veterans. Erickson served as an Army combat engineer in Europe when Germany surrendered and was on a troop ship headed for the Philippines when the war in the Pacific ended. continued

"This reunion has been absolutely great," Erickson said. "It has brought together a lot of people who I was acquainted with in school, and I think it has been a very meaningful gathering because the World War II guys are fading pretty fast."

"It's been a long time since I've been on the campus," said Erickson, a retired 3M employee who lives in Minneapolis. "I really have enjoyed coming back."

Other reunion events included a "Hats Off to Our Veterans" luncheon featuring comments by Sen. Byron Dorgan, "A Swell Evening" social and dinner, a reception with President Chapman and tours of the campus, the city, the Fargo Air Museum and the Armed Forces Reserve Center.

In addition, veterans were encouraged to participate in the Veterans History Project, which is collecting interviews and written accounts of Americans who served during wartime. Approved by Congress in 2000, the Library of Congress project intends to develop a national repository of oral histories and memorabilia. Dorgan's field offices spearheaded North Dakota's participation in the project, and the senator promoted and assisted in the local effort.

Redmer, Reynolds receive NRI grant

Redmer

Dale A. Redmer and Lawrence P. Reynolds, both professors of animal and range sciences, have received a $230,000 grant from the National Research Initiative (NRI) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service.

The three-year grant will be used to study angiogenesis—the formation of new blood vessels—in the ovaries of livestock. The research will determine the major angiogenic factors that are critical for follicular and luteal development and function.

Reynolds

"The studies we conducted during our previously funded NRI grant periods have enabled us to elucidate the major angiogenic factors in the ovary," said Reynolds. "During this grant period, we will fine-tune our understanding of ovarian angiogenesis and its role in ovarian function."

Reynolds added that the research is relevant for livestock producers because the ovaries produce the ova as well as the hormones that regulate fertility. "The USDA is interested in this research because the results of these studies will enable us to develop methods to improve fertility and thus reproductive efficiency in livestock," he said.

Landscape architecture students win national competition

Two teams of NDSU landscape architecture students recently captured top prizes in the annual Student Competition in Landscape Architecture sponsored by the National Stone, Sand and Gravel Association in cooperation with the American Society of Landscape Architects. The teams are led by Alison Krohn, assistant professor of architecture.

The competition is designed to encourage an exchange of information and ideas on reclamation and beautification between aggregate company operators and students in landscape architecture.

The winning entry, submitted by NDSU students Dollie Becklund, Cynthia Sondreal and Dustin Stuber, transformed the quartzite mine in Sioux Falls, S.D., into a community space featuring recreation areas, an amphitheater, church, funeral home and mausoleum.

The second-place prize went to students Kathryn Kahle and Sara Obermoller for a design project turning a Minnesota mine into a series of constructed wetlands, an education and research center and a recreational area.

"This year's winning entries demonstrated the positive outcomes that reclamation projects can have on local communities," said NSSGA president Joy Wilson. "Through their creativity, vision and innovation, the students have shown some of the endless reclamation possibilities."

Fine arts announces new faculty, office staff

The NDSU Division of Fine Arts has announced the addition of three new faculty members to the music department and two new office staff members.

Amy Schneider has been appointed assistant professor of voice and vocal performance. Schneider has a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, a master's degree in music from the Cleveland Institute of Music and a doctorate in musical arts from Boston University. Prior to her appointment at NDSU, Schneider served on the faculty at Boston University as voice department coordinator.

Michael J. Weber has been appointed associate professor of choral studies. He comes to NDSU from the vocal division at Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Md., where he conducted the choral ensembles and taught diction, vocal technique, methods and studio voice. He has extensive experience as a music director and conductor for numerous musical theatre productions in Texas, California and North Dakota, and recently has published choral pieces. He holds degrees from the University of North Dakota, California State University, Fullerton, and the University of Arizona.

Michael Thrasher joins the department as assistant professor of woodwinds. Thrasher was on the faculty of North Central Texas College, and also taught at Dallas Baptist University and in public school band programs in Texas and Louisiana. He has presented research papers and lectures at conventions of the International Clarinet Association in Stockholm, Sweden; Lubbock, Texas; and Columbus, Ohio, and has had articles published in several woodwind trade publications. Thrasher holds a bachelor's degree from Northwestern State University, Natchitoches, La.; a master's degree in clarinet music from the University of North Texas, Denton; and a doctorate in musical arts/clarinet from the University of North Texas.

Sarah Weiler as been appointed promotion and scheduling coordinator and Ana Rusness-Petersen will serve as the office coordinator and box office manager.

Weiler previously served as administrative assistant for the Lake Agassiz Arts Council and film programmer at the Fargo Theater. She is active in area arts as an artist and administrator. She holds a degree in arts administration from Minnesota State University Moorhead.

Prior to her appointment at NDSU, Rusness-Petersen worked as an administrator, stage manager and box office manager for several theater groups in the Chicago area. She holds a degree in speech communication and theatre arts from Concordia College, Moorhead.

Business administration announces new advisory board members

The College of Business Administration has appointed two new members to its advisory board. They are T. J. Russell, president and chief executive officer of Cloverdale Foods, Mandan, N.D., and Kirk Dean, regional president of Wells Fargo Bank North Dakota, Fargo.

Recipients of the college's 2002 business awards also will serve a one-year term as honorary board members. They are Michael Chambers, 2002 Young Entrepreneur and co-founder of Aldevron LLC, Fargo, and Lance Gaebe, 2002 Outstanding MBA Alumnus and staff member in the North Dakota Office of the Governor.

The advisory board assists the college with strategic planning of programs and curricula, while providing input to the college on regional business issues and needs.

Miller to address United Kingdom university advancement conference

James Miller, executive director of the NDSU Alumni Association and Development Foundation, is one of five featured speakers from the United States invited to speak at the HEERA/CASE conference, "New Agenda/New Voice," scheduled for Sept. 11-13 at the University of Nottingham, Nottingham, England.

Miller

The event is designed for professionals at all levels in the areas of alumni relations, communication and public relations, fundraising and marketing. More than 500 advancement practitioners are expected to participate.

The Higher Education External Relations Association (HEERA) was formed in 1991 for institutions in the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland. The Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) is an international network of professionals leading the advancement of education. Founded in 1974, CASE includes more than 3,000 member institutions in 47 countries.

Miller has spoken about fundraising and institutional advancement at numerous regional and national seminars. He also has served on the teaching faculty at the Summer Institute in Educational Fundraising at Dartmouth College for nine years.

ASAE student branch takes first runner-up honors in national competition

The North Dakota student engineering branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) was first runner-up in the annual Association of Equipment Manufacturers (AEM) Student Engineering and Mechanization Awards for branches of fewer than 33 members. ASAE is a society for engineering in agricultural, food and biological systems. The AEM awards are presented to the student branches that compile the most outstanding record of activities and achievements in the previous year.

The winning report was prepared by agricultural and biosystems engineering sophomores John Simenson, Glenfield, N.D., and Andy Steinberger, Hillsboro, N.D. Dallas Hager, a senior from Karlsruhe, N.D., served as president of the NDSU branch. The group is advised by Les Backer, associate professor of agricultural and biosystems engineering, and Tom Bon, senior lecturer of agricultural and biosystems engineering.

The NDSU branch has taken first place nine times and five runner-up honors.

The competition is sponsored by AEM, the international trade association for companies that manufacture equipment, products and services used worldwide in agricultural, construction, forestry, industrial, materials handling, mining and utility fields.

CATTT to hold technology transfer workshop

NDSU's Office of Research, Creative Activities and Technology Transfer through its Center for Advanced Technology Transfer and Traineeships (CATTT) has scheduled its second technology transfer workshop for graduate students and their faculty advisers. The workshop is planned for 7:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 23, in the NDSU Alumni Center.

"We have assembled a great team of experts on patenting, commercialization and entrepreneurship. These folks will help our select group of graduate student trainees from the sciences, engineering and agriculture envision how their research could benefit the university, state and country," said Gregory McCarthy, associate vice president for interdisciplinary research and CATTT director. "The workshop leaders have all been NDSU students or faculty themselves and are delighted for the opportunity to share their wisdom on the challenges and rewards of seeing their research put to work."

Scheduled facilitators for the workshop include:

- Clinton Kopp, consultant and investor, Bismarck, N.D.;
- Mary Ann Tucker, Tucker Law Offices and The Tucker Group, Brownsburg, Ind.;
- Robert Tucker, The Tucker Group, Brownsburg, Ind., and adjunct professor of chemistry;
- Gregory D. Gillispie, president, Dakota Technologies Inc., Fargo, and former professor of chemistry;
- Michael Chambers, president, Aldevron LLC, Fargo;
- Dale Zetocha, NDSU Research Foundation executive director and director of technology transfer; and
- Michael Mohr, technology transfer assistant, CATTT and technology transfer office.

In addition, Kirk Hartel, graduate student in plant sciences, will discuss his explorations into starting a company during his year as a CATTT/Technology Transfer Graduate Traineeships (TTGT) program fellow.

Established in 2000, CATTT has a mission to provide co-funded advanced technology traineeships linking companies with students, faculty and staff, and facilitate education in technology transfer. The CATTT is funded by grants from the U.S. Department of Education.

The traineeships are awarded to graduate students who are doing technology-based research on campus. Trainees take the CATTT workshop, conduct technology transfer training activities and establish links with one or more companies that could have an interest in their thesis research.

A total of 33 technology transfer graduate trainees will receive $2,400 per year stipends during the current year. More than half of the student trainees are working at the NDSU Research and Technology Park or with the new Department of Defense programs headquartered at the park.

Little Country Theatre announces season schedule

The Little Country Theatre has announced its production schedule for the 2002-03 academic year.

"The Glass Menagerie"

by Tennessee Williams

7:30 p.m. Oct. 25-27 and Nov. 1-2; 2 p.m. Oct. 27

Askanase Auditorium

Tom Wingfield takes us back in time to his tenement home in St. Louis. Recalling his monotonous warehouse job, his meddling southern belle mother, Amanda, and his shy, slightly crippled sister, Laura, Tom describes the manner in which each of them escapes from their dreary lives through fantasy. Held in conjunction with Disability Awareness Month.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream"

by William Shakespeare

7:30 p.m. Feb. 28-March 2 and March 6-8; 2 p.m. March 2

Askanase Auditorium

Shakespeare's perennially popular comedy is about love, magic and moonlight madness when nature and the supernatural collide.

"SubURbia"

by Eric Bogosian

7:30 p.m. April 30-May 3

Askanase Auditorium

From the playwright and bestselling author of "Notes from the Underground" comes a story of high school friends, lingering in Burnfield long after graduation. While some see Burnfield as the suburban ideal of quiet comfort, the suffocating safe world only feeds their frustrations, and a night of drinking and partying careens recklessly toward violence, despair and death.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the Division of Fine Arts Box Office at 1-9442. Single performance tickets are $10 for adults, $8 for seniors and students and $4 for NDSU students. Season tickets are $24 for adults, $18 for seniors and students and $8 for NDSU students.

New Student Bash scheduled

The New Student Bash, a welcome picnic for new students and their parents, is scheduled for 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Alumni Center.

The gathering will take place during residence hall move-in and is intended to welcome new students to NDSU. More than 1,000 parents and new students, including freshmen and transfer students are expected to attend the picnic. Representatives from the academic colleges and Bison athletics also will be in attendance.

The gathering, sponsored by the NDSU Alumni Association, includes lunch and a gift to all who attend. There is no charge.

For more information, contact Liz Christianson, assistant alumni director, at 1-6811.

'Power lunch' with volleyball team, soccer kick-off meeting slated for Aug. 21

A "power lunch" with head volleyball coach Zaundra Bina and the Bison volleyball team is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 21, at the Bentson Bunker Fieldhouse.

The event will include an introduction of Bina and team members, a skill demonstration and an intra-squad scrimmage. Fans can bring their own brown bag lunch or purchase lunch for $6 at the Bentson Bunker Fieldhouse.

The volleyball team opens the season at Friday, Aug. 30, against Southern Indiana in the University of North Alabama/ Ricatoni's Invitational. The Bison return 11 letter winners including three starters from last year's team that compiled a 30-4 record and advanced to the NCAA Division tournament for the seventh straight season.

Fans will have the opportunity to visit with NDSU head soccer coach Matt Townsend and the Bison soccer team in a kick-off meeting scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 21, at the Ellig Sports Complex.

The event will include an introduction of Townsend and team members. The team will end the session with a brief skill demonstration and an intra-squad scrimmage.

The soccer team opens the season at home at noon Saturday, Aug. 31, against Rockhurst University. The Bison return 15 letter winners including nine starters from last year's team that compiled a 10-9 record.

Pierce Pettis to perform at MU Gallery

Singer/songwriter Pierce Pettis is scheduled to perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6, in the Memorial Union Gallery.

An Alabama native with an international following, Pettis has more than 20 years of songwriting and performing experience. He has recorded numerous compact discs including his latest, "State of Grace." He received the ASCAP's 1999 Country Music Award for the song "You Move Me," co-written with Gordon Kennedy, and recorded by Garth Brooks.

Tickets are $10 general admission, $7 for NDSU students, and are available at the Memorial Union Ticket Office. For more information, call 1-8583 or 1-7900.

World War II posters on display at NDSU Library

The traveling exhibit "World War II Posters" is on display on first floor at the NDSU Library through Nov. 24.

Posters were a dominant form of mass communication during World War II. Both the Allied and Axis powers used posters to persuade and unite their people. The appeal to patriotism was the posters' theme.

The posters are from the collections of the State Archives and Research Library, State Historical Society of North Dakota.

For more information about the exhibit, contact Shawn F. Holz, curator of exhibits, SHSND, Bismarck, at (701) 328-2666 or sholz@state.nd.us, or Michael M. Miller at 1-8416 or Michael.Miller@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Meat processing class scheduled

The Department of Animal and Range Sciences will offer "Fundamentals of Meat Processing" from 5:30-9:20 p.m. Tuesday evenings Aug. 27-Dec. 10.

The course is taught by Martin Marchello, professor of animal and range sciences. It will provide background in the science of sausage making and hands-on lab experience in making pork sausage, Polish sausage, summer sausage, jerky, and other products.

The course is open to the public. The cost is $242 for anyone wishing to take the course for two credits, or $121 for all others. Pre-registration is suggested and can be done by calling Holly Erdmann at 1-7513.

Meditation group to meet

"Meditation for Stress Management," presented by NDSU Counseling and Disability Services for students, faculty and staff, will again be offered during the fall semester.

The Meditation Group is an opportunity to get together with others to meditate for stress reduction and increased peacefulness and well-being. Beginners learn and practice meditation basics, while persons more experienced with meditation can maintain their meditation practice in an informal group environment.

The group is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Mondays in Ceres Hall 201 beginning Monday, Aug. 26. There will be no meeting Monday, Sept. 2, due to the Labor Day holiday.

The group is free for NDSU students, faculty and staff. For more information, call Ronni at 1-7671.

Distance and continuing education sponsors stepfamilies conference

The Office of Distance and Continuing Education, together with Tri-College University, Minnesota State University Moorhead Continuing Studies, NDSU Extension Service, the Cass County Extension Parenting Resource Center, the Clay County Extension Service and the University of Minnesota Extension Service, will sponsor a stepfamilies conference scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 9-10.

"The Stepfamily Journey" is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 9, in the Roland Dille Center for the Arts Thrust Theater on the campus of Minnesota State University Moorhead. The presentation is designed for families, professionals and students focusing on challenges faced by stepfamilies. The program is free and open to the public.

A "Strengthening Stepfamilies" workshop is scheduled for 8:45 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 10, at the Doublewood Inn, Fargo. The workshop is intended for professionals who work with stepfamilies, focusing on understanding the family systems developmental framework. Cost of the seminar is $75, which includes lunch and workshop materials. Registration information is found online at www.ndsu.edu/DCE or by calling Cindy in distance and continuing education at 1-5376.

Both workshops will be presented by marriage and family therapist Elizabeth Einstein. She is the author of "The Stepfamily: Living, Loving and Learning," and a leading educator and lecturer in the dynamics of stepfamily relationships.
