

NDSU Athletics to seek reclassification to NCAA Division I

Saying it fits a universitywide challenge to advance to the next level, NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman said the university will seek reclassification of its athletic program to NCAA Division I. The announcement came during an Aug. 30 news conference after a recommendation by Athletic Director Gene Taylor.

The change will begin in the 2003-04 academic year and conclude with a full Division I schedule to be played in all sports during the 2004-05 academic year.

"In the last three years, we have made tremendous progress toward our goal of being more like our national land-grant peers," said Chapman. "Enrollment will exceed 11,000 students this fall and we have filled 23 new full-time faculty positions. Our research portfolio has risen to more than $80 million. Seven major construction projects totaling $70 million have recently been completed or are underway which have added 10 classrooms and significant residence hall space. University philanthropic efforts raised more than $11 million last year. And we've added 17 new doctoral programs. In many ways, we are not the same university that we were just a short time ago.

"I know full well that this effort will be a challenge," said Chapman. "It will cause us to reach far. It will cause us to take a calculated risk. But the North Dakota Higher Education Roundtable report encourages campuses to take reasoned risk to bring about positive change. I believe reclassification will prove to be a positive change for NDSU and North Dakota."

Taylor conducted months of research before making his recommendation to President Chapman, which included analysis from consultants Carr Sports Inc. on the program's current facilities and preparedness, and a market survey conducted by Convention Sports and Leisure that identified new sources of funding. Both reports supported reclassification, a move President Chapman directed be financed with new funding and no increase in university general fund disbursements. NDSU's athletic department will be responsible for raising external funding to increase its budget from its current $5.6 million to $7.8 million, a figure that would make NDSU's budget competitive with Division I peers.

During the news conference, Taylor thanked the NDSU Development Foundation, NDSU Alumni Association and the leadership team, which was made up of students, student athletes, faculty, staff, community members and program supporters, for their efforts during the process.

"We have had input from many, many people who care about this university a great deal. Hats off to everyone involved," Taylor said. "This is a big decision, there is no question about it. It's going to change the direction of this program for many years to come."

The NDSU reclassification plan is to begin a one-year exploratory period in 2003-04, during which time the Bison will schedule some Division I athletic programs but continue as a member of the Division II North Central Conference. In the 2004-05 academic year, NDSU will play a full Division I schedule.

"The two-year transition period will allow our student athletes, who will be most affected by this reclassification, to consider the options available to them," said Taylor. "While more North Dakota students will now have the opportunity to participate at the highest national intercollegiate level, our student athletes will not have the opportunity to participate in conference or national championships during the reclassification period. If a student athlete should decide they would like to transfer to another institution, this would give them more time to secure possible scholarship opportunities at other institutions and allow our coaches to assist them with this process."

Taylor added that the two-year transition period also gives other NCC schools a chance to consider their futures. "As a charter member of the conference and being involved since 1921, it's important for us to give every opportunity for our conference to be able to make decisions about scheduling and options about the conference itself," Taylor said.

He said the two-year time frame also allows NDSU coaches to put together a strategic plan for scheduling, recruiting and funding. "The process gives us a better window to make that happen in a smoother transition," Taylor said.

In scheduling matters, Taylor said the Bison plan to continue to play the University of North Dakota. He also said the football team will travel to the University of Montana on Sept. 6, 2003, to play the 2001 Division I-AA national champions. In addition, negotiations are ongoing with Montana State University and Western Illinois for football games in 2004 and 2005.

"We have some of our coaches already pursuing opportunities for Division I schedules in other sports," Taylor said. "Ultimately, once we get through the transitional period, there is no reason the Bison athletic program cannot compete for conference championships and go on to compete for NCAA championships."

Chapman explained the decision fits well with NDSU's peer group, as identified by the State Board of Higher Education. He said that except for the University of Alaska-Fairbanks, which does not have a football team, NDSU is the only school in the group that does not have a Division I athletic program.

"We've matured. This is an institution that has been understated in many ways. We are emerging on the national scene as a major research university. Bison Athletics needs to be a part of that, just like every part of the institution has to do that," Chapman said. "It fits with where we want to be as a university."

Letters announcing the university's intentions were sent to the NCAA and the NCC Aug. 30.

Work on Minard Hall addition begins

Pre-construction work has begun on the $3.4 million Minard Hall addition project. The two-story addition will be located on the west side of Minard Hall and to the east of the Music Education Building.

A construction fence has been built around the site, preventing pedestrian access through the area. In addition, contractor staging and storage will take up the parking lot at the west side of Askanase Hall and a portion of T parking lot's west end.

"There is going to be a lot of equipment moving in and out of there. It will be problematic because it is a confined, tight construction area," said Bruce Frantz, director of Physical Plant, noting efforts will be made not to infringe on access to Festival Concert Hall events or deliveries to Askanase Hall. "Our biggest challenge is that it will definitely be a crowded space."

He said there will be two access points for the construction workers, including from the north between Minard Hall and the heating plant, and from the south along the west side of Askanase Hall.

"There's going to be a lot of activity and many things to see out of the west windows of Minard," Frantz said. "They'll make great observation windows."

The 23,000-square foot addition, which will feature a mezzanine, will be primarily a classroom building and will accommodate two Problem Based Learning laboratories. Its exterior will have a brick veneer that plays off forms and motifs of the existing Minard Hall. The addition will have connections to the lobby of Festival Concert Hall and the first and third floors of Minard Hall.

Thomas Riley, dean of arts, humanities and social sciences, said the construction may be an inconvenience for faculty and students during the academic year, but the project is necessary.

"I hope people in our college can all remember during these trying times that the new building was of our design, and that it will provide more classrooms and offices for faculty and students in our programs," Riley said. "Thanks for patience and forbearance during the upcoming building year. It will be worth it."

Work is scheduled to be completed by July 1, 2003.

Fraternity holds charitable fund-raiser

NDSU's Theta Chi Fraternity raised about $5,000 for the YWCA of Fargo-Moorhead during its annual Fall Kick-off Dance, featuring the Johnny Holm Band.

The dance, held Aug. 27 at the Bison Sports Arena, was attended by approximately 4,000 area college students.

"The event was a huge success. Everyone enjoyed themselves during this annual kick-off of the school year," said junior Jason Cossette, Theta Chi public relations coordinator. "The proceeds go to the YWCA, as they have in years past, and it represents the fraternity's year-round support of that organization."

The event was planned, organized and coordinated by members of the Theta Chi Fraternity, which is a social fraternity that encourages scholarship, leadership, brotherhood, community service and diversity. The NDSU chapter has approximately 60 members.

Mooney named nursing program chair

Mooney

Mary Margaret Mooney has been named chair of NDSU's nursing program, effective Aug. 1. Mooney replaces Lois Nelson who retired July 1 after 17 years in the position.

Prior to her appointment at NDSU, Mooney was professor and chair of the nursing and health program at Clarke College, Dubuque, Iowa.

She earned a bachelor's degree in nursing from the College of St. Scholastica, Duluth, Minn., a master's degree in nursing from Case Western University, Cleveland, and a doctorate in nursing science from the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. She also completed post-graduate study in advanced management from the Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley, Calif.

An American Academy of Nursing fellow, Mooney has received the Sigma Theta Tau Excellence in Nursing Leadership Award, and has served as an accreditation site visitor for both the National League of Nursing (NLN) and the Collegiate Commission on Nursing Education (CCNE).

"We are very excited to have Dr. Mooney join our administrative leadership team in the college," said Charles Peterson, dean of pharmacy. "She has an outstanding background in developing undergraduate and graduate programs in nursing and is nationally renowned in her field. She will help our nursing program develop to the next level of excellence."

NDSU's nursing program is part of the Tri-College Nursing Consortium that includes Minnesota State University Moorhead and Concordia College. Enrollment in the NDSU program has recently grown from 25 to 50 students. A master's graduate program also has been added.

O'Neill participates in Discovery Health Channel documentary

H. Katherine "Kit" O'Neill, assistant professor of psychology, is one of three psychologists who provide commentary for the documentary "Aftermath: The Road to Resilience" produced for the Discovery Health Channel.

O'Neill's assistance to the documentary is part of a public education campaign sponsored by the Discovery Health Channel and the American Psychological Association. The campaign is intended to help Americans work through personal tragedies by learning strategies for resilience. The documentary includes personal, first-hand accounts from people who have lived through life-altering losses and how they became resilient as a result.

The documentary was scheduled to air Aug. 29 and is scheduled to be shown again at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Other components of the public education campaign are a brochure, to which O'Neill contributed, and community discussion forums led by local psychologists.

Theeler named top scholar-athlete

Theeler

May graduate Jill Theeler was named the NCAA Division II Female Scholar-Athlete of the Year by the NCAA Division II Commissioners Association. The award is sponsored by Disney's Wide World of Sports Complex.

The native of Mitchell, S.D., maintained a 4.0 grade point average as an undergraduate, while earning 19 All-American honors during her track career. She currently is working in the North Central Conference office in Sioux Falls, S.D., and has been accepted to Ohio University to begin work on her master's degree in sports administration.

Theeler was earlier honored with the NCC's Stan Marshall Award, which is based on academic performance, athletic ability and community activities. She is a three-time Verizon College Academic All-American, a three-time member of the United States Track Coaches Association All-Academic team and a three-time member of the NCC Academic At-Large first team.

Thrasher participates in international music conference

Michael Thrasher, assistant professor of music, participated in the International Clarinet Association (ICA) Conference held in July in Stockholm, Sweden.

Thrasher was invited by the ICA research committee to present a lecture on his paper, "Ignaz Joseph Pleyel: An Examination of his 'Original' Works for Clarinet." He was awarded the second place, $250 cash prize for the presentation.

Thrasher joined the NDSU faculty in August.

Matchie article published

"Ahab's Wife, or the Star-Gazer: a Wider/Deeper View of Melville's Tragic Hero and His Times," an article by Thomas Matchie, professor of English, appears in the current issue of "Journal of American Comparative Cultures."

Matchie's article evaluates the feminist perspective of Sena Jeter Naslund, whose 1999 novel, "Ahab's Wife, or the Star-Gazer," fills in the mid-19th century world of "Moby Dick" from the point of view of Ahab's wife, who is mentioned only briefly in Melville's classic novel.

Naslund writes as though her protagonist were living in 1850 as she "brings the era of whaling ships and seafarers alive" before, during and after Ahab's death.

Events

Customer service seminar to be offered

A seminar on improving customer service, sponsored by the Hospitality and Tourism Management Program, is scheduled for Friday-Saturday, Oct. 4-5. The seminar will be held on the NDSU campus, with video-conference links to locations across the state.

The seminar is designed for executives, managers, sales personnel, customer service representatives, restaurant and hotel employees.

"Participants will learn some tools they can use to train their employees to provide excellent customer service," said Vern Markey, assistant professor of apparel, design facility and hospitality management. "As competitive as things are, customer service can make the difference between a customer going to one operation or another one down the street.

"Customer service is important, and we want to make North Dakota organizations the best they can be, especially with providing service to tourists and people passing through the area," Markey said. "We want them to come back again."

Ann Dolence, a certified recreation therapist and owner of Leisure Connection, a professional speaking and training business, will address "Customer Service Leadership" during the 6:30-9:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 4, session.

The 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, session will feature comments by Cole Carley, executive director of the Fargo-Moorhead Convention and Visitors Bureau, who will speak on "Customer Service Excellence."

The keynote speaker is Bill Morrissey, chair of Hospitality Minnesota, an umbrella organization for the state's resort, hotel and restaurant industries. Morrissey will discuss "Creative Customer Service—How Far Will You Go to Wow a Customer?" He is founder and president of Morrissey Hospitality Co., a hospitality management and consulting firm.

The NDSU-based seminar also will be shown across North Dakota through the Interactive Video Network (IVN) at sites at the University of North Dakota, Minot State University, Williston State College, Dickinson State University and Bismarck State College.

The cost is $25 for students, who can take the seminar for one continuing education unit. For business representatives who do not wish to earn a unit, the cost is $10 per person. The fee includes a workbook.

For more information or to register by Sept. 15, contact Markey at 1-8220 or vern.markey@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Family Fun Night is scheduled for 4:30-7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 17, at Playmaker's Pavilion, Fargo. A picnic meal will be served, and a variety of games, music and prizes for all ages will be available. Ticket prices are $3 for singles and $9 for families of four or more.

To register for the golf scramble or to purchase Family Fun Night tickets, contact Sharon Morgan at 1-7739.

Crosses documentary to premiere on Prairie Public Television

A traditional ethnic art form is the focus of "Prairie Crosses, Prairie Voices: Iron Crosses of the Great Plains," a new video documentary that will debut on Prairie Public Television at 8 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 12. The program is co-produced by Prairie Public Broadcasting and the NDSU Libraries.

The documentary follows the history of the traditional iron cemetery grave marker as the art form migrated from Germany to the Russian Ukraine and eventually to the Great Plains of North Dakota and Canada.

The program is the third in a series of collaborations between executive co-producers Bob Dambach, PPTV, and Michael Miller, NDSU Libraries bibliographer. Timothy J. Kloberdanz, associate professor of sociology/anthropology, is the writer and narrator of "Prairie Crosses."

Major funding for the documentary was provided by the North Dakota Humanities Council, NDSU Libraries, the North Dakota Council on the Arts, which receives funding from the state legislature and the National Endowment for the Arts, and the members of Prairie Public Broadcasting.

The NDSU Libraries Web site, www.lib.ndsu.nodak.edu/grhc, offers information about the history and culture of the Germans from Russia including publications, oral interviews, folklore and an events calendar. Prairie Public Broadcasting's Web site, at www.prairiepublic.org, offers teaching materials, links and historical information.
