

Faculty, staff survey shows higher levels of satisfaction than state, national peers

NDSU faculty and staff have similar expectations of what should be important on campus as their national colleagues, and are generally more satisfied than their peers. These are two findings of the Campus Quality Survey, conducted this fall at NDSU and other North Dakota University System campuses. The survey, administered at NDSU by the Office of Institutional Research and Analysis, was distributed to all on- and off-campus faculty and staff. There were 554 responses for a return rate of 26 percent.

Among the findings are that NDSU employee expectations are being met to a considerably greater degree (11 percent) than at the average national four-year institution. Also, NDSU and NDUS employees have lower expectations of their institutions but greater satisfaction with their institutions than their national peers.

The survey asked participants a series of questions in which they ranked characteristics related to campus climate, policies and practices as to how the campus is now and how it should be. The survey instrument had 95 items, including "This institution listens to its students" and "I know what is expected of me."

Top management leadership and support was rated of highest importance by NDSU respondents, and they placed this area second in satisfaction. The category of lowest satisfaction of NDSU employees was employee training and recognition, though satisfaction in this area was higher than both national and NDSU peers.

"Employees essentially have a good opinion of NDSU," said Bill Slanger, director of institutional research and analysis. "North Dakota University System employees are more satisfied than their national colleagues and NDSU employees tend to be more satisfied than their NDUS colleagues. Identifying areas where satisfaction is lower gives us areas to work on for improvement."

The survey was ordered by legislation approving recommendations of the North Dakota Higher Education Roundtable. Surveys of alumni and students also are being conducted.

For more information on the survey results, contact the NDSU Office of Institutional Research and Analysis at 1-8262.

Tax information available

NDSU Libraries offers free copies of basic federal and North Dakota income tax forms. The Library also has several tax guidebooks on reference and available for circulation. Federal and state tax forms and information also are available on the Web.

For a complete list of forms, consult the FAQ in the Research section on the NDSU Libraries Web site at www.lib.ndsu.nodak.edu. For more information, call the Reference Desk at 1-8886.

Input sought on wireless networking

Wireless networking is coming, and campus technology personnel are seeking ideas and input on how best to implement it.

Information Technology Services (ITS), Agriculture Communication and the Information Technologies Planning and Goals Committee (CITPG) held an open forum Jan. 29 to explain the emerging technology. About 50 people from many campus departments attended.

"Wireless networking is the big, hot topic right now," said Nem Schlecht, NDSU Libraries IT specialist and CITPG representative, who led the discussion at the forum. "Wireless is truly the next big wave that is going to hit us. A main problem for the university is justification. Wireless is a very convenient thing to have, but we are not going to be able to deploy wireless everywhere immediately."

Schlecht described the forum as a method to bring awareness to the campus about wireless issues such as security concerns and network deployment. He noted that ITS has already implemented wireless networks for the portable training cluster and the Group Decision Center.

He suggested that the networks may be seen across campus in the years ahead. "We'll eventually see wireless in classrooms, meeting rooms and student gathering areas. Not only is it convenient, but it's also cheaper to deploy than wiring up a connection," Schlecht said. "I'm hoping within six months the Main Library student lounge will have wireless access. Within a year, I'm hoping to see that expand to other areas of campus."

Other possible pilot projects were identified at the forum and several departments requested meetings with ITS staff to determine the projects' feasibility and to identify funding. The forum also was intended to encourage participants to think about research ideas and grant possibilities related to wireless systems. Departments that have applications that may benefit from wireless networking are asked to contact John Grosen, associate director of network services, at 1-1042 or john.grosen@ndsu.nodak.edu.

As a result of the forum, ITS and CITPG will begin working on wireless policies and standards for the campus. In the meantime, departments are reminded that they are not permitted to deploy their own wireless networks without authorization because of security issues and because wireless connectivity is functionally an extension of the wired network, which is the responsibility of ITS. For more information on the policy, contact Rosi Kloberdanz, ITS director, at 1-6396, or rosi.kloberdanz@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Questions or comments can be e-mailed to Schlecht at nem.schlecht@ndsu.nodak.edu. More information, including an outline of Schlecht's presentation, is available at www.lib.ndsu.edu/wirelessforum/.

Presidential search committee policy changed

The State Board of Higher Education has changed the language of its policy regarding presidential search and screening committees.

Section 601.1 now reads, "To assist in filling any presidential vacancy, the board president in consultation with the chancellor shall recommend the membership of an institutional presidential search and screening committee and a committee chairperson to the Board. The committee shall include representatives of students, faculty and staff. The Board may also act as the search and screening committee."

In 2001, the board removed language from the policy that specified faculty, staff, and student representatives be included. The new version changes the word "may" to "shall" in regard to those representatives.

"After working with the Council of College Faculties and the North Dakota Student Association, we are so pleased that the State Board of Higher Education has agreed to include faculty, students and staff in the presidential search process," said Ann Burnett, CCF NDSU representative and associate professor of communication. "While the current board might have included us regardless of how the policy is worded, we can now rest assured that future boards will follow the same procedure."

Johnson briefs deployed soldiers

Rick Johnson, NDSU general counsel, on Jan. 24 briefed soldiers of North Dakota Army National Guard's 142nd Battalion about the Employer Support for the Guard and Reserve (ESGR). Approximately 700 soldiers deployed from Fargo Jan. 27.

Johnson is a volunteer ombudsman for the ESGR, helping inform employers and soldiers of their rights under the Uniformed Services Employment and Re-employment Rights Act (USERRA). He also works to create employer support for the Guard and Reserve members.

"There were more than NDSU 30 students who were called up with the 142nd, and they need to know that while the employment laws don't cover student status, the State Board of Higher Education has passed a policy allowing tuition and fee refunds," Johnson said. "The Vice President for Student Affairs Office at NDSU has a great Web site giving students important information to help them through mobilization and their student status."

"We also have employees who were called up. As part of the ESGR, we work with employers to get support for the Guard and Reserve and explain what rights the employer has under the law as well." In the past, NDSU has signed a Statement of Support for the Guard and Reserve. More information on ESGR is available at www.esgr.org.

Paulson designated Master Certified Flight Instructor

Michael Paulson, aviation lecturer in mechanical engineering, recently received renewal of his designation as a Master Certified Flight Instructor by the National Association of Flight Instructors. Paulson also is chief flight instructor for the Fargo Jet Center and serves as a pilot examiner and safety counselor for the Fargo Flight Standards District Office.

The master instructor designation is a national accreditation recognized by the FAA that is earned by candidates through a rigorous process of continuing education and peer review, and must be renewed biennially. It identifies those educators who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to excellence, professional growth and service to the aviation community.

Of the approximately 81,000 certified flight instructors nationwide, less than 300 have received the Master CFI designation. Paulson is one of five North Dakota aviation educators to earn the master designation.

NAFI is dedicated to providing support and recognition for America's aviation educators while helping them raise and maintain their level of professionalism. It is also committed to providing a safe and effective learning environment for student pilots. The association was founded in 1967.

For more information, visit NAFI's Web site at www.NAFI.net.org.

Chabora serves as festival judge, theater department wins awards

Pamela D. Chabora, assistant professor of theater arts, served as a preliminary judge for musical theatre entries at the Region V American College Theatre Festival held Jan. 21-26 at the University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls. Members of the NDSU theater department received both individual and ensemble awards at the festival.

Chabora also presented the workshops "Brechtian Acting Techniques" and "Introducing Alba Emoting: a New Emotion Training Tool for Actors."

Director Chabora and the cast and crew of "The Good Person of Sezuani" won the award for ensemble work, and senior Mark Hurni received an individual award for stage management of the same play. Hurni and junior Michelle Roth also received an award for lighting in "The Glass Menagerie."

Senior Amber Krenzel participated in the Irene Ryan acting competition, advancing to the semi-finals. Her partner, senior Jason Lord, received the award for best partner.

NDSU also participated in the festival's costume parade, displaying selected costumes from Little Country Theatre's recent production of "The Good Person of Sezuani."

Chabora joined NDSU in 2001 with 16 years of experience in actor training. She has been master teacher of acting at the University of New Hampshire, and head of performance at Susquehanna University, the University of Toledo and the University of Maine at Fort Kent. She also has maintained a career in professional theater as an actress, singer and director/choreographer.

Retired history professor dies

Yur-Bok Lee, retired professor of history, died Oct. 4, in Naples, Fla. He retired from the NDSU faculty in 1996 after 29 years of service.

Lee joined the NDSU history department in 1967, after being on the faculty of the University of Arkansas, Little Rock, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.

He was the author of "West Goes East: Paul Georg von Mollendorf and Great Power Imperialism in Late Yi Korea," and "Diplomatic Relations between the United States and Korea, 1866-1887," and the senior editor for "One Hundred Years of Korean-American Relations, 1882-1982."

Lee attended Yonsei University, Seoul, Korea, and received his bachelor's degree from LaGrange College, LaGrange, Ga. He earned his master's degree in political science and doctorate in history from the University of Georgia, Athens. He is survived by his wife, Ann, and their two children.

According to Larry Peterson, professor and chair of history, members of the history department will be making contributions to the History and Religion Faculty Endowed Scholarship in Lee's honor. Other NDSU faculty or friends are invited to also make a donation.

Sandland novel published

"MOSAIC," a novel by Julie Sandland, lecturer in English, recently was published by RFI West Inc. publishers.

"MOSAIC" is the second installment in Sandland's family saga series. The novel retraces the steps to Wounded Knee, S.D., in 1890, the last stand of the Sioux nation, through the eyes of two young people on the frontier, and the choices they are forced to make along the way.

The novel is available for purchase online in various downloadable formats at www.rfiwest.com.

Kaplinger artwork to appear in Midwest exhibits

Works by Kent Kaplinger, assistant professor of art, are scheduled to be show in several Midwest exhibitions in February.

Exhibitions include the 24th annual Southeastern Montana Juried Exhibition Feb. 2-March 16 at the Custer County Art Center, Miles City; "The Amorous Art" invitational Feb. 2-March 30 at the Rourke Art Gallery and Museum, Moorhead, Minn.; and "Eclectic Vision," a traveling exhibition, scheduled for Feb. 5-March 5 at Dickinson State University, Dickinson, N.D.

Kaplinger also is scheduled to present a one-day print workshop called "Collaborative Collagraph" at Dickinson State University Saturday, Feb. 15 .

Kaplinger is the master printer for the Printmaking, Education and Research Studio (PEARS) at NDSU. He serves on the advisory committee for Fargo's Plains Art Museum's Hannaher's Inc. print studio.

Thrasher to give California recital

Michael Thrasher, assistant professor of music, is scheduled to present a recital Friday, Feb. 7, at Simpson College, Redding, Calif. Thrasher's appearance is part of the Simpson College Fine Arts Series. Thrasher also is scheduled to lecture about his past research.

Prior to his position at NDSU, Thrasher served on the faculty at North Central Texas College, Dallas Baptist University and public schools in Texas and Louisiana. He has performed with several symphony orchestras and on various recordings.

Basketball player named 'Co-Player of the Week'

NDSU guard Angie Froehlich was named North Central Conference Co-Player of the Week for Jan. 27-Feb. 2. Froehlich, a junior from Algona, Iowa, earned the honor for the second time in her career. She shared the award with South Dakota State University's Shannon Schlagel.

Froehlich averaged 15.5 points and 3.5 rebounds in NDSU road wins during the week. She connected on 12 of 17 attempts from the field, made all five free throw attempts and added six assists, six steals and a pair of blocked shots.

Livestock judging team competes in Denver

The NDSU livestock judging team took ninth place honors at the National Western Livestock Show, Rodeo and Horse Show held Jan. 17-18 in Denver. A total of 25 teams competed.

Jared Bullinger received individual honors for having the eighth highest overall individual score. He also received high individual score in swine judging.

Team members are Grant Andersen, Belgrade, Minn.; Justin Benz, Beulah, N.D.; Jared Bullinger, Dickinson, N.D.; Zac Hall, Berthold, N.D.; Jory Hansen, Berthold, N.D.; Ben Hawkins, Inver Grove Heights, Minn; and Steven Zenker, Carson, N.D. The team is coached by Bert Moore, associate professor of animal and range sciences, and graduate student Travis Maddock.

Events

World literature conference scheduled

The sixth annual Red River International Conference on World Literature is scheduled for April 25-27 in the NDSU Memorial Union. The conference theme is "World Literature/World Film: Intersections and Challenges."

A screening of the film keynote speaker Renee Tajima-Penã's Sundance Award-winning film, "My America...or Honk If You Love Buddha," is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday, April 26, at the Fargo Theatre. The screening is free and open to the public.

For more information, visit the conference Web site at www.ndsu.edu/RRCWL.

N.D. APUC grant-writing workshop scheduled

John Schneider, director of the North Dakota Agricultural Products Utilization Commission (APUC), is scheduled to present a workshop on the commission's grant application process at 10 a.m. Monday, March 3, in room 148 of the Research 1 building at NDSU's Research and Technology Park.

Through the administration of a grant program, APUC's mission is "to create new wealth and jobs through the development of new and expanded uses of North Dakota agricultural products."

Schneider will provide specific tips on how to prepare a proposal for improved chances on winning an APUC grant. Faculty, staff and students who may become involved in potential APUC projects are encouraged to attend. APUC's next grant application deadline is April 1.

More information is available online at www.growingnd.com/services/commission/?sectionID=10&subSectionID=36&pageID=130.

To register for the workshop, contact Kay Sizer at kay.sizer@ndsu.nodak.edu or 1-7035, by Thursday, Feb. 27.

Exhibitors sought for health fair

Organizations and departments are invited to participate in the NDSU Health Fair scheduled for 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Tuesday, April 8, in the Memorial Union Ballroom.

The event, sponsored by the NDSU Wellness Center, will feature interactive, wellness-oriented informational booths, displays and exhibits.

To reserve space, visit www.ndsu.edu/wellness/education/health_fair.shtm and click on "Registration Form." Registration is due by Monday, Feb. 17.

For more information, contact Holly Bergo at 1-8560 or holly.bergo@ndsu.nodak.edu.

NDSU Women's Club to host Valentine's Day party

The NDSU Women's Club has scheduled a Valentine's Day party for 6:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14, at Messiah Lutheran Church, 2010 N. Elm St., Fargo. Club members are invited to bring their spouse or friend.

Planned activities include square dancing, NDSU trivia game and refreshments. Guests are asked to bring an appetizer or desert to share.

The NDSU Women's Club is a nonprofit organization designed to enhance relationships within the university, home communities and North Dakota. Started by Mrs. E.F. Ladd in 1920, the club was originally made up of faculty wives and a few female members of the college. Today, all women with a connection to or interest in NDSU are welcome to participate.

The club's next scheduled event is its annual spring brunch, scheduled for April 26. For more information, contact Lynn Grant at Linda.Grant@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Brown bag seminars scheduled

The YMCA of NDSU and Multicultural Student Services are co-sponsors of two brown bag seminars scheduled in conjunction with Black History Month.

“African American Heroes” is scheduled for noon Wednesday, Feb. 12, in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose Room.

A panel will share insights about individuals whom they have considered role models, mentors and sources of inspiration. Their heroes might be from literature, entertainment, politics or sports, and they may be everyday heroes such as family members and local community members. Audience participation will be welcomed.

“Defending Diversity” is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, in the Memorial Rose Room. A panel of quest speakers will explain why diversity is valued.

For more information, contact Sue Andrews at 1-5225.
