

'Slippery season' begins

With the arrival of winter and its snow and icy conditions, NDSU's Office of Safety and Environmental Health urges pedestrians to use caution.

According to Marilyn Koehlmoos, claims coordinator, the university does what it can to make things less slippery, but people can expect some ice and snow on the campus sidewalks and parking lots.

"Ice can be made somewhat less slippery with sand, but ice is not the only problem. Loose snow hides obstacles to trip over and other treacherous hazards. Snow packs down unevenly when it is trampled, producing slippery, angled surfaces," Koehlmoos said. "All these things conspire to make it a lot more likely that you will fall."

Koehlmoos' safety suggestions include:

- Use the right footwear: To avoid slipping, shoes and boots with the biggest surface area will give the most contact with the ice or snow, and a texture and material designed for gripping slippery surfaces is advised.
- Stay on the plowed path: Only official sidewalks are cleared and sanded. Shortcuts may be uneven and slippery, and may contain hidden hazards.
- Think about walking: Unfortunately, we often think twice about walking in icy conditions, only after a slip or a near fall gives us a "reminder."
- Report treacherous spots: If you find a slippery area, call Facilities Management at 1-7911.

Koehlmoos said that if you do slip or fall, fill out an incident report form that can be found at <http://facilities-mgmt.ndsu.nodak.edu/oseh> and send to the OSEH office. Employees who are injured and need medical attention should immediately notify their supervisor and call the OSEH office at 1-7759. Employee medical treatment should be received at the MeritCare Occupational Health Clinic on 12th Ave. N., Fargo.

Applications sought to teach in the Netherlands

Faculty applications are now being accepted to teach a three and a half week course at the Maastricht Center for Transatlantic Studies (MCTS) in Maastricht, the Netherlands. The program is divided into two semesters, with classes offered on a three and a half week basis. There are several courses offered in each block and students select one course from these options for a total of four courses per semester. The teaching schedule allows faculty to participate who otherwise could not due to departmental or family responsibilities.

Courses from the social sciences, humanities, fine arts and business are appropriate as long as the course includes a comparative, trans-Atlantic approach. In addition, faculty members are encouraged to include field trips and a variety of teaching techniques and styles whenever appropriate.

Applications are available at www.cmsu.edu/mcts. For more information on MCTS, visit www.ndsu.nodak.edu/International and click on Faculty and Scholars button or contact Kerri Spiering, director of international programs, at 1-7895 or kerri.spiering@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Nursing faculty publications, presentations listed

Faculty from the Department of Nursing recently published articles or made presentations.

Marjorie McCullagh, assistant professor of nursing, is a co-author of "Perceived and Measured Hearing Ability in Construction Laborers and Farmers," an article scheduled for publication in the American Journal of Industrial Medicine. She also wrote a chapter on "The Pender Health Promotion Model," for the soon to be published book, "Middle Range Theories: Applications to Nursing Research."

McCullagh is scheduled to present "Hearing Protector Use Among Farmers and Construction Laborers" at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association in San Francisco. She also recently received the Excellence in Nursing Research Award from the Xi Kappa chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, the international nursing honor society.

"Health Fairs: An Avenue for Colon Health Promotion" by Beverly Greenwald, assistant professor of nursing, was published in the October/November issue of Gastroenterological Nursing.

"Hog-housed" by Mary Margaret Mooney, professor of nursing, was published in the fourth quarter issue of Reflections on Nursing Leadership.

Norma Kiser-Larson, assistant professor of nursing, recently presented "Health Screening by Baccalaureate Nursing Students at an Urban Native American Center," at the national conference of the Native Alaskan and Native American Indian Nursing Association in Park City, Utah. She also presented "Signs, Symptoms and Treatment of Menopause" at a Fargo workshop.

In addition, Kiser-Larson was named to the board of directors for Hope International, a nondenominational, faith-based humanitarian organization helping to improve health care to underserved communities in Nigeria.

Dean Gross, assistant professor of nursing, received the Outstanding Alumnus Award by University of Kentucky College of Nursing Alumni Association. The award, presented during the university's homecoming, was in recognition of the contributions Gross has made to clinical practice and management in primary care.

Gross and Mooney were elected to serve on the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE). CCNE is the national accrediting agency for baccalaureate and higher degree programs in nursing.

Jana Stenson has joined the department as lecturer in maternal child health. Stenson has a master's degree in nursing from University of North Dakota and previously taught at Northwest Technical College.

Gupte articles published

"Local to Global: Transnational Networks and Indian Women's Grassroots Organizing," an article co-authored by Manjusha Gupte, assistant professor of political science, recently was published in Mobilization: An International Journal.

The article examines ways in which the Indian women's movement engaged in self-transformation in order to provide energy and impetus to help women face issues in their daily lives.

Another of Gupte's articles, "Participation in a Gendered Environment: Community Forestry in India," has been accepted for publication in Human Ecology sometime in 2004. The article examines the application of participatory policy-making in the context of rural women in developing countries and attempts to explain the affect of gender stratification on women's participation in environmental policy circles.

Musiba featured in Science magazine

Charles Musiba, assistant professor of sociology, was featured in an article in the Aug. 29 edition of Science. The article, "Africans Begin to Make Their Mark in Human-Origins Research," highlights Musiba's summer paleoanthropology field school on northern Tanzania's Serengeti Plains. Musiba is a co-founder and co-director of the field school, a collaboration between NDSU, Southern Connecticut State University and the Hubert Kairuki Memorial University in Tanzania.

Musiba presented his research paper "Laetoli Pliocene Environments Revisited: Stratigraphic and Taphonomic Context of Upper Laetoli Fauna" at the annual meeting of the American Association of Physical held recently in Tempe, Ariz. The paper re-examines the ancient landscape of the Serengeti Plains using paleontological and geological evidence. The paper is scheduled for publication in conference proceedings.

Musiba's paper "Politics, Cattle, and Conservation: Ngorongoro Crater at a Crossroads," also was published in, "East African Archaeology: Foragers, Potters, Smiths, and Traders." The paper addresses the impact of mass tourism on northern Tanzania's Ngorongoro Crater Conservation Area's ecosystem, affect on the area's Maasai people and the area's archeological sites. The book was published in September by the University of Pennsylvania Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology Press.

Musiba and seven students also attended centennial conference honoring the birth of anthropologist Louis Leakey held recently at Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History.

Mahalingam presents paper, serves as design juror

Ganapathy Mahalingam, associate professor of architecture and landscape architecture, presented the paper, "Representing Architectural Design Using a Connections-based Paradigm," at the Association for Computer-aided Design In Architecture's (ACADIA) annual conference held in October in Indianapolis. He also co-chaired a session on "Digital Tools: Research and Development" and completed duties for his second term as association president.

Mahalingam also recently served as a juror for the first stage of competition for the FEIDAD Award, the international digital architectural design competition instituted by the Far Eastern Memorial Foundation, Taiwan.

He also has been invited to serve on the Computer-Aided Architectural Design (CAAD) Futures conference technical committee in 2005.

Family nutrition program receives USDA grant; HD&E presentations listed

The USDA's Food and Nutrition Service has awarded the North Dakota Family Nutrition Program a grant for more than $2.6 million for the 2003-04 academic year.

Nutrition education agents and assistants of the NDSU Extension Service conduct nutrition education for limited resource audiences in each North Dakota county and reservation. The program will celebrate its 10th anniversary in North Dakota in 2004. Barbara Holes-Dickson, food and nutrition extension specialist, is the program coordinator.

Ardith Brunt, assistant professor of health, nutrition and exercise science, presented the poster session "The Ability of the 'Determine Your Nutritional Health Checklist' to Predict Continued Independence in Community-Dwelling Rural Older White Women," at the American Dietetic Association's food and nutrition conference and exhibition.

Margaret Fitzgerald, assistant professor of child development and family science; Gregory Sanders, professor, acting chair and associate dean of child development and family science; and graduate students Candace Philbrick and Bill Metcalfe presented the paper "Senior Business Leaders on Family Business" at the Family Business Network Academic and Research Forum held recently in Lausanne, Switzerland. Fitzgerald also was a presenter of the paper "Female Business Owners and their Orientations Toward Business and Family."

Kara Wolfe, assistant professor of apparel, design, facility and hospitality management, presented "Measuring Rural Tourism Potential and Training Needs" at the International Society of Travel and Tourism Educators conference held recently in Providence, R.I.

"A study of a volunteer caregiver program," an article by Sanders and former student Tara Jorgenson recently was published in the journal Activities, Adaptations and Aging.

Julie Garden-Robinson, assistant professor in Extension food and nutrition, recently received an award from the National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences for her work in food safety for limited income consumers.

Carol A. Sommer, assistant professor in the School of Education, presented three workshops at the North Central Association for Counselor Education and Supervision conference held recently in Cincinnati. She also participated in a panel discussion at the recent Red River Women's Studies conference in Fargo.

The interior design program has received six-year reaccreditation by the FIDER Accreditation Commission.

Bromley exhibit shown in Bismarck gallery

"North Dakota Landscapes," an exhibit by Kimble Bromley, associate professor of art, is scheduled to be on display through Nov. 28 at the Bismarck Art Gallery Association, Bismarck, N.D. The exhibit showcases Bromley's North Dakota landscape paintings completed during summer 2002.

Bromley joined the NDSU faculty in 1996 after teaching at Kentucky Wesleyan College, Owensboro Community College, DePaul University, Prairie State College and Southern Illinois University. A certified hypnotherapist, Bromley uses hypnosis in his creativity enhancement workshops.

Saxophone Quartet wins North Dakota competition

The NDSU Saxophone Quartet took top honors at the Music Teacher National Association (MTNA) North Dakota Collegiate Chamber competition held recently in Bismarck, N.D. This is the third consecutive year the group has won the title.

Quartet members are juniors Rena Kuch, Hannover, N.D., and Jessy Klimpel, Minot, N.D.; and sophomores Emily Bair, Mandan, N.D., and Brian Wittkop, Fargo.

The quartet advances to the West Central Division Collegiate Chamber competition scheduled for January in Boulder, Colo. The quartet also is scheduled to perform as part of the NDSU Woodwind Chamber night Wednesday, Nov. 19.

Matthew Patnode, assistant professor of music, is the group's coach and adviser.

Events

Chapmans to host Thanksgiving dinner for international students

NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman and his wife, Gale, plan to host a traditional American Thanksgiving dinner for NDSU international students from 5-6:30 p.m. and 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 25, in the NDSU Alumni Center, 1241 N. University Drive.

Students from more than 50 countries and their spouses will be invited. They will be treated to dinner featuring turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, cranberries and pumpkin pie.

"This annual event introduces our international students to an important American holiday," said President Chapman, noting that the meal will be the first Thanksgiving dinner for many of them. "At NDSU, we want to share our American heritage with our students from other lands. Hopefully, the dinner will help provide a greater understanding of who we are as a people."

Kerri Spiering, director of international programs, said the dinner is special for the students. "They not only get to experience the food that we traditionally eat, but they also hear a little about the history of Thanksgiving and why it took place. They get some insight into United States culture," she said.

Brown bag seminar scheduled

"Protein, Weigh-Ins, Carbs and the South Beach-You Decide!" presented by nutritionist Abby Gold is scheduled for noon Wednesday, Nov. 12 in the Memorial Union Peace Garden Room. The seminar will examine the pros and cons of various popular diet plans.

The event is sponsored by the YMCA of NDSU. For more information, call 1-5225.

Lively Arts Series presents American Brass Quintet

A concert by the American Brass Quintet is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17, in Festival Concert Hall.

Since their debut in 1960, the American Brass Quintet has performed major concert series in all 50 states and around the world. Called the "high priests of brass" by Newsweek, the group has appeared in Europe, Central America, South America, the Middle East, Asia and Australia. According to their Web site, the group's goal is "to promote brass chamber music as a serious chamber music medium, and to continue to enlarge the repertoire for brass quintet by commissioning, performing and recording new works for brass quintet; and unearthing earlier music and forming collections into viable suites."

Tickets are $13 for adults, $10 for seniors and NDSU employees, $7 for non-NDSU students and children, and $6 for NDSU students. Tickets are available at the Memorial Union Ticket Office.

NIH proposal writing, grant management workshop scheduled

The National Institutes of Health (NIH) has scheduled a proposal writing and grant management workshop for 1 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 20, in the Memorial Union University Chamber. The event is sponsored by the NDSU Center for Protease Research (NIH-NCRR-COBRE) and the Office of the Vice President for Research, Creative Activities and Technology Transfer.

Scheduled presentations include "Proposal Writing" by Mukund Sibi, professor of chemistry; "Budgets and Electronic Submission" by Amy Scott, budget and program officer in research administration; "Using COS to Find NIH Grants and Expertise" by Kay Sizer, manager of public relations and special projects in research administration; "Center for High Performance Computing: A New Resource for NDSU Researchers" by Rebecca Ackley, CHPC business manager in research administration; "New Grant Writer for Health Improvement Projects in the Red River Valley" by Sharon Query, health project grant writer in research administration; and "NIH IDEA Grants" by Donald Schwert, professor of geology and director of the Center for Science and Mathematics Education.

Registration is free and refreshments will be served. For more information or to R.S.V.P., contact Libby.Wasserbeck@ndsu.nodak.edu.

Student art exhibit scheduled

A juried student art exhibit will be on display Wednesday, Nov. 19-Friday, Dec. 19, in the Memorial Union Gallery.

Students from all academic disciplines are featured. Exhibit juror is Jessica Gondek, associate professor at Loyola University, Chicago.

Gallery hours are 9:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and 9:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Friday. A reception is scheduled for 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19. For more information call 1-7900.

International Education Week events set

International Education Week is set for Nov. 17-21, and several activities are planned on the NDSU campus during the week.

There will be an informational table in the Memorial Union during the entire week providing information on the 62 countries represented at NDSU. The table will be available from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. daily.

An international potluck meal is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17, in the E. Morrow Lebedeff Hall Founders Room. Attendees should bring a favorite dish such as a bread, salad, main dish, appetizer or desert to share that will feed at least six people. The event is open to the public.

A study abroad update is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18 in the Memorial Union. Faculty and staff are invited to attend to learn issues and news about study abroad programs at NDSU.

Study Abroad World I Views are planned for 1-3 p.m. Wednesday, Nov 19, in the Memorial Union Peace Garden Room. Attendees will have the opportunity to learn about study abroad destinations and opportunities.

International Destinations World I Views regarding study abroad opportunities also are scheduled for 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 20, in the Memorial Union Prairie Rose Room.

Students, scholars, faculty and family members are invited to speak about issues and topics from their native country in a World I View presentation spring semester. Presentations should be 40-50 minutes in length on the speakers chosen topic. Presentations on Central America, South America, China and Russia are especially encouraged. Those interested in giving presentations should contact the Office of International Programs by Monday, Dec. 1.

Responsibility review workshops planned

Responsibility review workshops for supervisors and employees have been planned for November at the Alumni Center.

Workshops scheduled for supervisors who administer responsibility reviews include:

- "The Responsibility Review as a Performance Tool," 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18
- "How to Complete the Responsibility Review Form and Conduct the Process," 3 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18
- "Effective Leadership Skills," 1 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19

Employees who receive responsibility reviews may attend "Participating in the Responsibility Review Process," set for 3 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19.

For more information or to reserve a spot, contact Brittnee Steckler at 1-5922.

5:01 Entrepreneur Society meeting scheduled

A meeting of the 5:01 Entrepreneur Society is scheduled for 5:01 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, at Vogel Law Firm, 218 NP Ave., Fargo. Attorney Steven A. Johnson is the scheduled speaker.

The planned topic of Johnson's presentation is "Forms of Business Organization." A partner in the Vogel firm, Johnson practices commercial litigation, commercial transactions and debtor/creditor law. A graduate of the University of North Dakota School of Law, he is licensed to practice in North Dakota and Minnesota state and federal court as well as in the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. Johnson also is a certified public accountant and chair of Vogel Law Firm's business practice group.

The event is sponsored by the Vogel Law Firm. For more information or to R.S.V.P., contact Jan Sobolik at 1-6698 or jan@ndsuresearchpark.com.

Novell and GroupWise migration update

Novell file and print services and GroupWise are being migrated to new hardware and updated software. ITS has completed an internal pilot project to test the migration process for users. To insure as smooth a transition as possible, ITS will conduct additional pilots with select departments on campus. After completion of the pilot tests, departments will be contacted to arrange for the migration of files to the new systems.

Due to the Novell file system's complexity, the migration process may take several months. In the meantime, users are asked to delete old or unused files from the Novell server in order to reduce the amount of unneeded data to be transferred.

When the full migration is completed, Novell users can expect more reliable file storage and printing services as well as improved desktop support services. Groupwise users will have access to the latest versions, including an improved Web interface for easy access to email from off campus

Web accessibility learning lab scheduled

A Web accessibility learning lab for anyone wishing to make their site accessible to people with disabilities is scheduled for 9-11 a.m. Friday, Nov. 14 in IACC 246. There is no charge for the lab.

ITS staff will be available to help site managers download a copy of their site into Dreamweaver, learn techniques for site accessibility and transfer their work to the Web server. Prior knowledge of Dreamweaver or HTML is preferred, but not required. Monthly learning labs are planned.

There is no charge for the session, but registration is required. Participants may arrive between 9-11 a.m., and should plan to work for approximately two hours. To register, visit the ITS Web page at <http://its.ndsu.nodak.edu>, click on the "Faculty/Staff Training" link, and then the "Register for a session" link.

ITS 2002-03 annual report online

The ITS annual report for fiscal year ending June 30 is available online at http://its.ndsu.nodak.edu/about/pubs\_policies/index.shtml.

Kornkven receives top honors in poster presentation

Sheree Kornkven, ITS specialist and trainer, received first place for her poster presentation "The Technology Learning Center (TLC): A Comprehensive Learning Environment for Students" at the attended the Special Interest Group on University and College Computing Services (SIGUCCS) fall conference held Sept. 21-24 in San Antonio, Texas. Kornkven is the Technology Learning Center Coordinator.

The center provides students with individual assistance on computer-related course work and projects, and allows students to attend technology-related classes. Staff members also assist instructors who assign technology-intensive projects to their students. For more information, contact Kornkven at Sheree.Kornkven@ndsu.nodak.edu, visit the center's Web site at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/tlc or call 1-6327.

Microsoft Office 2003 problems reported

Due to the number of fixes, errors and other issues with Microsoft Office 2003 listed on Microsoft support pages, ITS recommends that those products not be installed until ITS is able to conduct thorough testing of the products. ITS will notify the campus when the testing is complete and ConnectND compatibility is confirmed.

ITS and computer science raise funds for the United Way

ITS and computer science raised more than $1,000 during its annual silent auction and bake sale to benefit the United Way of Cass Clay held Friday, Oct. 31. A total of 89 items were available on the auction.
