

Hoeven outlines agenda in State of the State Address

Gov. John Hoeven's agenda for advancing North Dakota, which he discussed during his State of the State Address Jan. 14, is drawing praise from NDSU President Joseph A. Chapman.

"I was pleased with the governor's address," Chapman said. "He recognizes the vital role the university system plays in economic development."

Hoeven pointed to strong state revenue projections, job and wage growth, and a projected budget surplus as signs of the state's economic health. As reasons for the good fiscal news, he cited the state's competitive business climate and new way of pursuing economic development. The state is enlisting the university system to combine education and economic development to create more, higher paying jobs.

He also outlined initiatives to embody his vision for North Dakota's future. "It is a vision where a technology corridor drives growth in the east, where an energy corridor drives growth in the west and where value-added agriculture, advanced manufacturing and tourism enterprises flourish throughout our state," Hoeven said.

The plan includes a $50 million Centers of Excellence Fund, which will be leveraged with federal and state funds to reach $150 million, will be used to develop centers on state campuses. Hoeven said the funds will help accelerate the growth of targeted industries across the state by creating partnerships between higher education, industry and entrepreneurs.

"The governor has developed an aggressive framework where higher education and the private sector can work for the betterment of North Dakota," Chapman said. "At NDSU, we believe that our leading research and our many collaborations with the business community will contribute to a brighter future for all of us."

Cabinet names NDSU ConnectND implementation team steering committee

The President's Cabinet has named a steering committee to lead the NDSU ConnectND implementation team.

The six-member group will coordinate the overall development and implementation of project, communications, training and information technology plans and timelines. The committee also will appoint various sub-committees for the implementation of the project and will provide recommendations to the president and cabinet about the project.

James Kennedy, director of student financial services, will chair the steering committee. Other committee members include Bruce Bollinger, budget director for the College of Agriculture, Food Systems, and Natural Resources; Valrey Kettner, assistant vice president for sponsored programs administration in research administration; Broc Lietz, acting director of human resources; Tom Moberg, director of Information Technology Services and Jean Ostrom-Blonigen, director of internal audit and special projects.

Business Office closed Jan. 27

The Business Office will be closed Tuesday, Jan. 27, for financial aid disbursement. Departments are asked to hold their deposits until Wednesday, Jan. 28.

Troops send thanks for donations

Members of the 142nd in Bison caps

The commander of the 142nd Engineer Battalion serving in Iraq has sent an e-mail letter of appreciation to President Joseph A. Chapman for the recent Staff Senate campaign to send "care package" items to the troops.

The Staff Senate effort collected about 700 pounds of items, and President Chapman donated about 100 NDSU baseball caps. A total of 43 boxes of items were shipped on Dec. 22.

On Jan. 12, Lt. Col. Dave Anderson, BS '80, wrote, "Sir, I cannot adequately express how much we truly appreciate the support and generosity of those responsible for sending all these items over here to our soldiers. We had an NDSU Bison party last Saturday evening where we distributed the caps that were sent to us. They were not only a very popular item for our NDSU alumni and students, but some of our Mississippi National Guard comrades now are proud owners of NDSU caps."

Anderson wrote that everything that was sent has been shared with soldiers, and he noted that items such as soap, toothpaste and toothbrushes are particularly appreciated. He also attached a photograph of "what has to be the first meeting of and NDSU alumni and student group in Iraq. And with any luck, the next one will be back in Fargo."

NDSU receives CASE awards

NDSU representatives collected several awards, including three prestigious "Gold Awards," at the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) District VI conference Jan. 11-13 in Denver.

NDSU received "Gold Awards" for Excellence in Alumni Programming for clubs/chapters/branches programming; Excellence in Communications—Periodicals for the university magazine; and in Excellence in Advertising for a print ad series.

"The awards are quite an accomplishment, since it is very competitive among all higher education advancement departments within this eight-state district. They reinforce the strength of NDSU's advancement endeavors," said Sherri Schmidt, associate executive director of the Alumni Association.

NDSU also received a "Silver Award" for its Alumni Association Web site; and "Bronze Awards" in the community event, alumni event and television ads categories.

CASE District VI includes North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Colorado.

Tax information available

NDSU Libraries offers free copies of basic federal and North Dakota income tax forms. The Main Library has several tax guidebooks on reference and available for circulation. Federal and state tax forms and information also are available on the Web.

For a complete list of forms, consult the FAQ in the Research section on the NDSU Libraries Web site at www.lib.ndsu.nodak.edu. For more information, call the Reference Desk at 1-8886.

Cooperative Sponsorship Committee proposals requested

The Cooperative Sponsorship Committee has funds available for departments and colleges to submit funding requests for the 2003-04 academic year.

The committee was established to assist departments and colleges bring guest lecturers and artists to campus. It promotes joint sponsorship of a wide range of lectures and related public events on timely topics for NDSU and the Tri-College community.

All requests should be submitted electronically via the committee's Web site. Complete request guidelines and the request form can be found at www.ndsu.nodak.edu/ndsu/csc.

Drayson, Moberg receive new NDSU job titles

Craig Schnell, provost and vice president for academic affairs, has announced new job titles for Pamela Drayson, director of NDSU Libraries, and Thomas Moberg, director of information technology.

Effective Jan. 1, Schnell said Drayson's functional title became dean of NDSU Libraries. Moberg's functional title was changed to vice provost and he will be designated chief information officer.

"Each of these campus leaders has done exemplary work for the university," said Schnell. "The new titles are considered to better describe their work and their status within their units."

Drayson joined NDSU in June 2000. Before coming to campus, she was director of library services at Kansas City, Kan., Community College. She earned her bachelor's degree at Northwest Missouri State University, master's degree in library science at the University of Missouri-Columbia, master's degree in public administration management at Central Michigan University and a doctorate in adult and continuing education at Kansas State University.

Moberg, who came to NDSU in July 2003, is a former vice president and chief information officer at St. Louis University, St. Louis. He earned his bachelor's degree at Bemidji State University, Bemidji, Minn., his master's degree in mathematics from NDSU and his doctorate in statistics from the University of Iowa.

Weber to lead Grand Forks choral group

Weber

Michael Weber, associate professor of music, has been named conductor and artistic director of the Grand Forks Master Chorale, an auditioned choral group from the Greater Grand Forks area and surrounding communities.

Currently associate director of choral activities at NDSU, Weber directs the University Chorus and Madrigal Singers. He teaches choral conducting and music education.

Givers appointed EPSCoR interim director

David R. Givers has been named interim co-project director for North Dakota Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research (ND EPSCoR). Givers has served as the assistant project director for the past five years.

ND EPSCoR has been reorganized to support co-project directors at NDSU and the University of North Dakota. Richard Schultz is the UND co-project director.

The NDSU EPSCoR office is located in the Research 1 building of NDSU's Research and Technology Park. For more information, contact Givers at 1-8400.

Peterson, Yatskis receive Human Relations Commission honors

The City of Fargo Human Relations Commission has honored Larry Peterson, professor and chair of history, and student Paul Yatskis with Human Relations Awards. The annual awards were presented during a Martin Luther King Jr. Day event held Jan. 19 at the Fargo Theater.

Recipients are selected on the basis of commitment to human relations, leadership by example in the area of human rights and creative or non-traditional methods to improve human relations.

Dan Mahli, assistant city planner and coordinator of the awards program, said Peterson was recognized for "his lifetime of service to others and his peaceful nature."

Peterson, who has been actively involved with NDSU Women's Week and the Women's Studies program, is a faculty adviser for the Ten Percent Society. He also is an NDSU representative on the Training Our Campuses Against Racism collaborative and co-founder of Equality North Dakota.

Yatskis, an electrical engineering major, received the commission's youth award. The senior is an NDSU student senator from the College of Engineering and Architecture. He has been active in issues regarding discrimination and is co-chair of the advisory board for student affairs.

The commission's mission is to promote acceptance and respect for diversity and discourage discrimination. The commission annually honors an individual adult, an individual youth and an organization for efforts that reflect King's life, work and vision.

Wieser named to All-America squad

NDSU senior tight end Mike Weiser was named to the 2003 Daktronics All-American football second team, as selected by members of the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Wieser, from LaCrescent, Minn., also was a first team All-North Central Conference selection and a first team Daktronics All-Midwest Region choice.
