In the heart of Red Rock Country, carved into the valley of Oak Creek Canyon, the Sedona Baths offer an escape from the hustle and bustle of everyday life. The Baths will not 'contain' an exhibition in the traditional sense, as in a museum where moving and seeing are distinct. The images and sounds that emerge throughout the experience are dependent on the activities of the visitors. Visitors are like water molecules, sometimes moving singularly, some in small packs, or in excited rows and sometimes in large crowds.
