

Over 100 Ready For Saddle and Sirloin Show

Plans Begin For Annual Charity Ball

By WALLACE ANDERSON
Once more the cash registers and other miscellaneous money receivers around town will sweetly jingle to the combined clink (or clunk of currency being dished out by gals taking their dates to the annual Panhellenic sponsored Charity Ball, to be held Feb. 13 from 9:30 to 12:30 in the Crystal Ballroom.

The ballroom will be dandily done up in red and white, said colors exemplifying the spirit of Valentine's Day, which is the theme of the affair. Musical fare will be furnished by NDAC's own Statesmen.

Committees for the skip are: Decoration, Jo Torson and Jo Anne Zimmerman; Chaperones and checking, Ellen Johnson and Shirley Prince; tickets, Helen Enlow and Betty Nelson; music, Helen Crews and Marlene Greenbeck; and publicity, Marilyn Collette and Gloria Aas.

Tickets are available at the bookstore or Dean Dinan's office for $2.40 per couple.

Chaperones for the dance will be Messrs. and Mesdams. W. W. Moberg, E. F. Ryan, R. W. Schickle, and R. D. White.

Attendees who desire to have pictures taken may contact either Les Wagner or Frank McKim, who will be available at the dance.

Dakota Hall Plans Sunday Opening

Barriers will be down and the forbidden may enter Sunday as Dakota hall girls dormitory serves open house to the public from 3 to 5 o'clock. The event is open to the general public and for two hours at least, the dorm no-man's land will be on bounds for everyone.

Refreshments will be served and a musical background is promised.

Heading the committees for the events and the committees they head are Ruby Anderson, publicity and invitations; Mary Jane Low, reception; Jeanette Haroldson, table service and decorations; Helen Grondale, refreshments; Lucille Manning, music; and Dottie Irvin, cleanup.

Third Open Forum Slated Wednesday

The third in a series of open forums sponsored by the College YMCA will be held in the "Y" auditorium at 8 o'clock on Wednesday.

The topic for discussion is, "It our foreign policy leading us toward war?" Speakers for the affirmative are: Very Reverend Barnhardt, Dean of Episcopal Church and Reverend Wilbee, Russian refugee who resides at Davenport, N. D.

Speakers for the negative are: Dr. Wouter Bosch of the paints and varnishes dept. and Claire Brickner. The moderator will be Dr. Ranier Schickele of the NDAC Ag. Econ. Department.

The discussion will be recorded and broadcast by radio station KVNJ-FM.

The next survey on the agenda is to be on "World Federalist Government," and is scheduled for Feb. 25.

PHI KAPPA PHI BISON PICTURES WILL BE TAKEN AT 4:30 WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON FEBRUARY 4 IN THE LOUNGE ATOLD MAIN.

Anderson Joins Teaching Staff

Specializing in thermodynamics and heat power engineering, Clifford O. Anderson has recently joined the NDAC staff as Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering.

Professor Anderson graduated in June 1932 from the University of Minnesota with a degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering, and later acquired his Master's degree from the same institution.

Anderson has had a variety of engineering and industrial experiences including employment with the U. S. Engineers, the Northern States Power Company, the University of Minnesota, the Diamond Iron Works of Minneapolis and the Northern Pump Company of Minneapolis. He has been employed for the past three years as assistant professor of engineering at Iowa State College where he resigned his position to take his appointment to the faculty of NDAC.

Post-Game Dance Set Tonight

College YMCA will sponsor a post-game dance to be held in Festival Hall from 10-12 tonight.

The affair will commence at the close of the NDAC-Augustana basketball game and the Statesmen will furnish the music.

Arrangements for the dance are being handled by Gunnar Fogg and Walter Matson.

Tickets will sell for $.50 per person or $1.00 a couple.

Brevities Acts Still Progress

"Acts for the 1948 Blue Key sponsored Bison Brevities are showing favorable progress," says Fred Bristol, publicity chairman for the Brevities.

Organizations planning to present acts should work out a budget of expenditures pertaining to costuming, properties, stage sets, etc., emphasized Bristol, who also said that eleven cups will be awarded to organizations whose acts are accepted. A cup each will be awarded to the best fifteen minute and five minute act, and smaller cups will be given to all groups participating in the Brevities.

Groups desiring to use Festival hall for rehearsal should contact Charles Dickens.

"Joyce Hudson" Wins Second Frog Derby

By WALLACE ANDERSON
For the second time in two weeks, the "Y" auditorium was hopping with frogs as a spotted hunk of green lightning bearing the name of Joyce Hudson, Kappa Alpha Theta representative, streaked through the finals to cop the second Presidential Candidate derby, main attraction in an Alpha Phi Gamma sponsored dance held from 3:30 to 5:30 last Wednesday.

Competing in the first primary race were frogs carrying the names of Yvonne Christianson, Kappa Delta; Iona Bolton, Kappa Kappa Gamma; and Marjorie Sebens, Gamma Phi Beta. Kappa Delta's frog named after Yvonne Christianson walked away with the race.

The second primary featured hoppers titled Ellen Johnson, Alpha Gamma Delta; Dolores Lamb. Phi Mu; and Joyce Hudson, Kappa Alpha Theta. Winner of the contest was Joyce Hudson.

Victors of the first and second primaries, Yvonne Christianson and Joyce Hudson (represented by frogs, naturally) squared off in the final clash and battled to a finish with the speedy entrant for Joyce Hudson emerging victorious.

A sidelight to the derby occurred when Trainer Chapman protested that he had been maliciously bitten by one of the entrants (a frog). While some quarters would have it that Chapman's finger was stepped on by one of the crowd, several (maybe 3 or 4) people believe that this will be graven on the pages of history as the "first example of a "frog bites man" situation.

This event was the second in a series of dances to be presented throughout the term by Alpha Phi Gamma.

Captain Fielding To Speak At Convocation Here Tuesday

Another of the Winter quarter convocations is scheduled for Tuesday morning presentation in Festival Hall at 9:30 featuring Captain Michael Fielding, former radio commentator and correspondent.

Appearing under the auspices of the University of Minnesota Concert and Lecture service, Captain Fielding is slated to speak on the "Powderkeg of the Middle East". Rated as one of the top authorities on Russia, India, and the Middle East, Captain Fielding will attempt to clear up some of the misinformation now rampant on Middle Eastern affairs.

In the past, Captain Fielding was a featured news commentator on such radio stations as WBBM, Chicago; WENR, key American Broadcasting Company station; and Chicago's powerful WNG, origination point for many Mutual broadcasts.

This is but one of Captain Fielding's twenty-five scheduled lectures in the Dakota's, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Dog Show Said Best In History Of Top Ag Event

By BILL STARK
"Oh Duz the soap that duz everything, where are thou?" is the theme of more than 100 members of the Saddle and Sirloin Club as they scrub and clean their animals for the Little International to be held February 7th in the NDAC Field House. Dairy cattle, beef cattle, horses, hogs, sheep, poultry, dogs, grain, and booth division will highlight the show with many novelty acts and entertainment between the show divisions.

Officials expect this year's show to be the largest in the event's history.

Of great interest to all students will be the coed milking contest and hog race. In the milking contest, the coeds choose a "milk factory" and in a prescribed time squeeze as much milk as possible. In the hog race, the coeds will drive a "porker" over a course of barriers and back into the pen with the fastest hog driver and milker wining handsome trophies.

As an added interest this year, faculty horse harnessing contest will be held.

The livestock is judged on the showmans ability rather than the qualities of the animal thereby giving each an equal chance to win. Judges will be many of the outstanding livestock men in the country.

Many outstanding horses of the light breeds have been entered and a parade will be held of 13 different light breeds of horses such as: Palmino, Arabian, Tennessee Walker, Quarterhorse, and Albino. Many of these horses are owned by horse lovers and fans of Fargo-Moorhead and the surrounding area.

Fred Grant, head of the dog division, says, more than 25 entries have been made in this division which is divided into pedigreed and "mutt". Some of the outstanding dogs in the northwest have been entered in the show so this is expected to be the largest dog show at any Little International.

Tickets for the show are being sold by the women's organizations on the campus with the group selling the most tickets to be the honor of picking the Mistress of Awards, who will preside at the show and will present the awards.

There will be a preliminary showing of the animals Saturday afternoon in the Field House with a broadcast over KVNJ directly from the floor of the Field House is also scheduled.

Music will furnished by the NDAC Gold Star band throughout the show with special numbers from the men's glee club and a German band.

On the Ball

Senator Ball's recent assertion that veteran's schooling expenses are sufficient now and not in need of an increase probably will go over like an atheist at Concordia. But the senior senator from our neighboring state must be given credit for uttering a truth that too many others have only wished to utter.

Veteran's aids have long been a touchy subject. Our governmental officials have feared to touch on the matter for fear of bringing down the wrath of 13 million veterans; veterans haven't been too eager to attack the issue for fear that it would only be a series of reflections upon the veteran's war record and common citizens have only dared upon the veteran's war record and common citizens have only dared breathe disapproval behind locked doors.

But not everybody thinks that the billions being delivered to our veterans need be upped any and even some wonder if it isn't upped too much already. Wherever your sympathies lie, the best that can be done for the matter is to give it at last a bit of sane thought.

We don't live in any sort of dream world that pictures veterans forever living in the sacred esteem in which they now live. Some of the effects have begun to wear off already and people are more and more realizing that an ex-GI is only someone who did make sacrifices to insure that others would not be molested. In nine cases out of ten, this sacrifice was involuntary and in most cases the actual sacrifice was many times magnified.

Certainly we don't profess to slight the service of the veterans of the past war. We know that war in its cruelest form is a living Hell to which man must never again be thrown.

But the ever-widening treasure chest which has been opened to veterans in the form of free schooling, loans, pensions etc. can only cause these veterans to suffer in the end. Perhaps now the benefits are real. And some aids are serving their purpose in repaying the veterans and yet contributing to the overall good of the country.

However, it is not to the benefits of the country for the congressional representatives to fall over themselves in seeking to deliver prizes to the veteran's doorstep when the purpose is so obviously to obtain 13 million votes and thus service themselves at the same time.

Inflation today is as real as the vet's aid. This is an unnatural condition and probably will be adjusted downward. If the downward movement comes too quickly, there will be a repeat of the 1929 depression. And though the fall would be quite some jolt with conditions as they are today, certainly the bump would be even harder if we give a boost to inflation by the use of more liberal outpourings of vet's aids.

Pro-Posin Peace

Frankly we wouldn't recognize an atom if we saw one face to face on the street. And as to how these little guys go to make up the stuff that goes into an atomic bomb, we're completely in the dark. But without having ever seen an atomic bomb, exploded or unexploded, we'll take the word of someone who does know and for future purposes assume that they make a very mean weapon of war.

Even before atomic bombs came into the science of warfare, we were pretty convinced that war is a bit out of date and must now forever yield to peace if the world is to continue to exist. However, when you add the potent horrors of atomic warfare to an already advanced art of slaughter, peace becomes even more of a necessity.

Despite the warnings of atomic scientists who say that there will be no victor in an atomic war, there are those who insist that our difference with Russia should be settled now and with force if necessary. And anyone who insists to the contrary is promptly suspected of seditious leanings. As it so happens we are very seditious.

Whatever are our troubles with Russia, war, with or without atomic weapons, is an impossible alternative. Civilization could not stand another such drain of manpower and resources and win or lose we would be rendered helpless as a civilization if not totally destroyed. We absolutely must reconcile our differences with Russia by means short of war.

Part of a group of scientists who are leading the fight for peace, Dr. Daniel Q. Posin, head of the NDAC physics department, delivered an appeal to NDAC students at a Tuesday morning convocation. Dr. Posin pointed out that a group of scientists headed by Dr. Albert Einstein is working on the possibility of a world charter. They work on a belief in the "Brotherhood of Man" and in the fact that war is not inevitable.

Dr. Posin, however points out the possibility of disbandment of the Einstein committee. Such disbandment would directly affect every citizen in the world and to help dissuade Einstein from discontinuing his work, Posin suggested that each NDAC student write a letter to Einstein at Princeton, New Jersey.

We expect that the U. S. mail service men are fitted to handle the letters of all those who wish to comply and if we may add our small bit, it isn't such a bad idea.

New ix teh tume fpr all giid nem ot coem to teh aid of thoeer country—Now ix the tume for all giid men to come ot the aid fo their countrh. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country. Now that I've got me ole typewriter defrosted, I'll do my bestest best to give you the newest news.

Something new has been added!! Two little pink bundles fell with the stork's bill. These little joys arrived at the homes of ATO Harold Helferich and Sigma Chi Phil Swanson. They aren't legacies but we're mighty proud of these two little girls.

Now for a dive into the old routine of who's pinned and who's toting diamonds this week.

Two doubletons and a singleton for pins this week. In the doubleton for KAT we find Shirley Bang who received a SAE pin from Arnie Strome and Barbara Woodward who is now wearing Don MacDowell's white cross of Sigma Chi.

And two from AGR—Milton Resvick left our fair prairies and traveled to Middle River, Minnesota where he left his AGR pin for safe keeping with Betty Reier-son. Lester DeKrey had his pin polished and shined before giving it to June Stotler.

The he and she of our singeton are Jack Lunde of Theta Chi and Bimmie Arneson of Gamma Phi pledge class.

Engagements of the week are Kappa Psi's Roman Timbruell to Peg Hanley and William Davnie to Marion Thompson, and Jack Bjornby of Theta Chi to Donna L. Gubrud of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

From way down in San Antonio, Texas comes the echo of wedding bells. Kirk Bellows and Jean Henderson were married. Kirk is back at old NDAC with a sun tan and a position as coach of the AC Boxing Team.

Passing candy by proxy to the KD's was Elizabeth Grosz. Loretta Swisher did the honors in the absence of Liz.

HATS OFF to ATO Pucos.

Pucos made a speedy recovery and was dismissed from Hawn's Hospital sooner than expected. Upon his return he insisted that the money that had been collected to buy flowers for him be contributed to a much worthier cause—THE MARCH OF DIMES.

Nice gesture, Pucie.

Lots of gals and guys have taken or will take that last step and be initiated this week.

Falling into step with the Alpha Gams will be Eleanor Schoen, Pat Brockmeier, Ollie Findberg, Darlene Thompson and Marion Sarsten. Joining in the activities of KEX are Larry Haverlick, Eldon Seelig, Al Zimmerman and Dick Moun.

A cozy fire place at the home of Betty L. Schmierer will be the setting for the Kappa Kappa Gamma initiation for Blanche Codding and Mary Willming.

Back home for keeps is Roy Schnell of Alpha Gamma Rho. Roy has just returned from being in the Marines and is going to give school work a try.

Displaying a bit of hospitality are the AGR's who have two house guests, Hollis Omdt and Gorden Weber of Lisbon, North Dakota.

Parties, parties, parties—The Alpha Gamma Delta gals will have their termly shindig at the Moorhead Country Club this Friday.

Phi Mu Alums had a Tutoring Party. All those who wanted to—big ole low down on "How to play bridge and not trump your partners aces" learned all about it then and there.

Kappa Alpha Theta girl's party came in the form of a Founder's Day Banquet. Mary Beth Strand and Susan Basset were in charge of last minute details.

Traveling a-way down or should I say over to Chicago during Christmas vacation were Marty Trett and Norbert Zweber. They went as representatives to the Kappa Psi convention.

This should be back away with the initiation news but I don't want to type it all over so I'll tell you now Start reading from the beginning and when you've finished the news of initiation skip down to here because this is about pledging. Pledging Kappa Epsilon on January 21 were Rosamond Raush of West Fargo, Carol Weber of Underwood and Jane Sand of Langdon.

Mixed up again—back to the party section. FLASH—Results of the Theta Chi party: Jerry Bolmeier and Marilyn Collette were elected King and Queen of the "Hardtimes Party". Donnie Byrne displayed his he-manishness and took home an assortment of prizes for the best and longest beard.

Tasting tidbits this week at the various sorority houses were—with the KD's were Dean Davy, Laura Kristjanson and Beatrice Nygaard—with the Theta's were Dean Dinan and Miss Matilda Thompson—Gamma Phi's were Barbara Hoffman and Barbara Hawkins—Dr. Stoneberg of the Pharmacy Department honored the Kappa Psi's, not only with his presence at dinner but also with piano selections as an after dinner entertainment—with the Alpha Gams were Kathrine Sherik, Virginia O'Hearn and Elaine Gast—and with Phi Mu's were Gloria Larson, Helen Naumann, Marilyn Lyman, Margie Sommerdorf, Marilyn Larson, Norine Jahnke, alums Irene Olson, Star Haker and Melzer Davis, Buster Fankhanel, Sterling Ingwalsen and Kenny Sorvick.

Being dined and danced this week are the Kappas by the AGR's.

Giving Pucos of ATO a bit of competition is Marcia Erickson KD pledge, who is now minus an appendix.

Well—'nuff Said.

With cold weather setting in, pin hangers will probably begin to take on serious proportions. They simply have to have some place to hibernate during the cold evenings. And did you know fraternity pins are rented to unattractive coeds at the University of Washington for a reasonable sum, through the efforts of a female aid society. No wonder an investigation carried on at the University of Iowa reveals that but one out of eleven college engagements lead to matrimony—No insinuations meant, NDAC coeds—we know you'll marry the fellow.

Latest reports are that scientists have discovered a group of natives in the central part of Africa, that are able to consistently jump seven feet in the air. According to that, if the athletic department is ambitious, we should have a couple of those fellows on our varsity teams next year.

We understand that sorority pledges are forbidden to chew gum in public. We know a few that have the art down to a perfection.

May we nominate for oblivion the idiot who breaks out with such bright philosophy as "It looks like we are going to have a little winter."

There hangs in the clock room of the college YMCA a girl's blue wool suit jacket. One button is missing. It has remained there since last December. If the girl who owns it has not left school, we would advise her to pick it up before it is donated to the IRC for European relief.

SAGA OF FEARLESS JOE

By WALLACE ANDERSON

Breathes there a man with brain so daft,
 Who'd sit by his radio on Sunday aft.

There's bandits, thugs, and spirits ghostly.

There's robbings, beatings, but murder mostly.

Percy Pierpont, rich and crusty,
 Stabbed with dagger, sharp and rusty.

Cops are running to and fro.
 They want private dick named Joe.

But Joe knows man who pushed the dagger,
 He's Edgar "Bugsy" J. von Fagger.

Meanwhile Bugsy and his dame,
 Are trying hard, poor Joe to frame.

Bugsy's dame is Mable Floogle,
 Got a voice like ailing bugle.

Joe, no shmoe, is now on rugsy,
 Owned by snarling Edgar Bugsy.

Gat in hand, Joe is cursey,
 Wants to know who punctured Percy.

Wait a minute—where's Mabel at?
 She's behind Joey with a baseball bat.

Door bursts open, cops arrive.
 Beat poor Joe till he's scarce alive.

Bugsy gets acclaim and rewards.
 He and Mabel send Joe regards.

Joe's in jail, his fate a-cursing,
 And a knobby head a-nursing.

This is where crime shouldn't pay,
 But Hark! I've got a word to say.

From radio on, it's been the "chair,"
 That's always been the villain's fare.

Thugs have been thus seated, so—
 It's time it claimed a shmoe like Joe.

Tuesday Convo Interesting

By SHIRLEY BRUA

(ed. note) The following is the opinion of a Spectrum writer who attended last Tuesday's Dr. No Yong Park convocation.

It all goes to prove that we do go to convos.

Dr. No-Yong Park displayed a fine ability to hold the attention of his audience when he lectured Tuesday on the subject "East Meets West". He began by telling a little of his background to contrast Eastern and Western cultures.

Dr. Park was raised in a small town in Manchuria where the only school was a simple frame building. There was one teacher who was paid five dollars a year, but this teacher with his low salary was far happier than any of Dr. Park's American professors whose salaries were much greater. Scholars were the heroes of the Chinese society. Male children were the only persons allowed to attend school, and to them it was a privilege and not a duty. It is relatively simple to note the contrast in cultures.

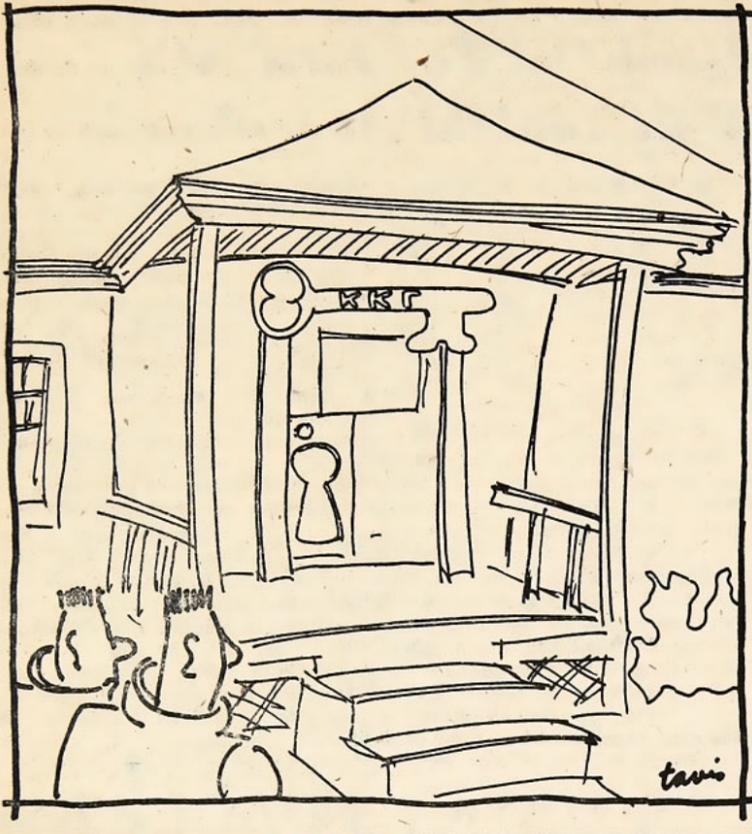

Dr. Park believes that superficially the Eastern and Western cultures are the same. To mold these cultures, we must take the good from each and eliminate the bad.

Dime Campaign Ends

The "Yards of Silver" campaign sponsored by the Alpha Phi Omega, national fraternity, came to an end last night with over $7 collected for the March of Dimes campaign.

The drive, which was centered in the YMCA building, began Sunday at 7 and continued to 10 last night. Students were invited to lay dimes along a yard stick and at last compilation about a yard of dimes had been obtained.

The Tavis Touch

Werre Upon Naturalism - -

By JACK WERRE

Growing out of a class in the American novel, an increasing interest in the average man has manifested itself of late. Since Norris Steinback, et al. have taken over the field of modern fiction, an average person is not average if he is not a downtrodden blob of protoplasm with a sister complex. Therefore, the weeks work for this department consist of an outline for a novel in three parts, done in the modern manner. The subject could be you. (Anyone interested in the publishing rights to this piece ought to make a pretty fascinating case study, himself, and I'd be very happy to meet him—I think.)

Fazenda flexed her heavy biceps and threw her shoulder against the Science Hall door. Her hair hung in dank, sappy shreds halfway down her back. It was lavender, but she didn't care.

"What's the difference, anyway?" she asked, running her hand, crusty fingers over the hideous cleft that might have been a nose on anyone else. Listening with a fierce pleasure she popped the knuckles of her left hand, hard. Her eyes snapped with delight as the tiny waves of pain crept up her arm. She needed pain. She had to have pain to be happy. And she wanted to be happy. She was just a kid.

A huge hatred welled up inside her as she thought of her husband. Many were the time she had lain awake, nights, wishing for a bow-string to tighten around his fat neck. She longed to see his piggish eyes distend with horror as she massaged his palate with a wire. A hot wire.

Little did he know that, for two years she had also been married to a banana peddler named Raoul. She had kept it a secret. She giggled softly as she thought how, for two years, she had kept Raoul hidden in an empty oil drum under her bed. Actually, she loathed Raoul too, with his oily ringlets, honeyed phrases, and cloven hooves. She hated everybody. But most of all she hated Ma. Ma, with her dirty red hands, faded overalls and army shoes. Ma had been a Jukes and she was proud of it. Always lorded it over plain folks, Ma did. Well, she'd fix Ma. The last time she'd set fire to Ma's bed they'd cut off her foot. But she'd get her this time. That trunk ought to be just about the right size.

Home, what a world of meaning there was in the word. Over there on the dirty ticking in the corner behind the sow was grandma, breathing in and out and making a loud sucking noise like water going down a drain. It was too terrible.

The pile of flies by the pump marked Grandpa. Hed been dead for weeks, but he had had a mortal fear of being buried alive, and they had to be sure.....

Grandma raised her withered, scaly, old hand. "Come here, child," she called.

Fazenda went to her, wishing for a bit of plaster to cram down her throat.

"I hope you rot in hell" Grandma whispered, and dropped dead.

That squeaking in the next room was Aunt Nettie's rocking. Aunt Nettie hadn't been out of her rocking chair for thirty years. She had just sat there, rocking, with a dirty piece of calico over her head and face. In thirty years she hadn't said a word or taken the calico off her face. There were some who said it wasn't Aunt Nettie.

They were all gone now. All gone except Pa and she. Her two husbands had shot each other over the affections of an East side tassel dancer. Ruby had culminated a five-year suicide pact by monoxidizing herself with the 1927 Essex Pa had bought for their migration to California.

She remembered Ma as she had had been sitting there, fanning herself with relief checks and stirring the stew with her foot. Yes, Ma had got hers, the old bat. She wished she could relive the moment when the heavy stove lid fell on her head.

Fazendas eyes, already aglint with marijuana, fairly danced as she remembered how she had eased Ma's moments by filling her teeth with a huge rasp.

Just then, Pa came in. He nudged his daughter. "Let's go to California". He gurgled. It was then that they set fire to the house.

As the Essex pulled out (if you listened carefully) over the crackling flames you could hear the squeaking of Aunt Nettie's rocking chair.

Poisonalities IN THE NOOSE

By PAT O'LEARY

No one will ever know why its called the reserve library. There are few books in the room, and none of the occupants are very reserved. In fact, it is apparently the AC AP room, as more news seems to be traded back and forth between horn rims there than in the Dugout. Sometimes more than news is swapped; anyway, a new craze has started in which the Kappas pass around notes which make everyone smile. There's even a telephone in one corner, but that becomes obsolete when there is a faster means of communication being used—word of month.

* * * * *

There has been much gumming over the telephone situation in the Men's Residence Hall lately. It seems that there is only one phone per few hundred telephoners over there, and a much different ratio is desired. The big catch, though, is that it would cost about six thousand and semoleons to wire said structure for phones, for individual rooms, all of which is a lot of money when you don't have it. Therefore, until some kind benefactor comes along, it will continue to be just as easy to contact that dorm as northern Siberia. Well, there're always carrier pigeons...

* * * * *

If worse come to worse, the college Y could also add one more function to its already long list of useful purpose—it could make a good flophouse. As a matter of fact, it had a trial in that field on the night it was thirty seven below. No names will be mentioned, but a certain individual was thus kept reaching his home out in the wilderness of central Minnesota on that night due to a deficiency in the anti freeze.

Thus when the alternative of sleeping there or standing on his head in the snow reared its ugly head, the former decided upon and the least lumpy of the leather covered heaps was selected for the night's slumber. After the springs were tucked into place and the lights turned down, a good sleep was really in order. However, there proved to be one last fly in the ointment—that alley cat that some sorority has been rumored to have pledged. It, too, liked to sleep on the least lumpy of the davenport, a situation that involved an all night struggle. Finally the sleepless one muttered something about what happens to those cats in the zoology department and was suddenly left in peace for the rest of the night.

The worst after effect was a very common comment about clothes looking slept in.

Spaulding, Hesse, Walla Save LCT Barrett's Production

By JOYCE TINDALL

A comedy in three acts was the intention of Wednesday's production, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street". Just where the comedy took an exit line and the burlesque crept in, I am at a loss to explain. . . but beyond a certain point, No. 50 Wimpole Street began sounding more and more like No 10 Downing Street. If the play was billed as a comedy, it fell far short of the mark. If, however, the play was supposed to have had my depth at all, Howard Spaulding contributed that quality. Beyond the first act which was primarily introduction, the play moved on leaden feet with each exchange of words more pompous than the last. In maintaining his share of this Victorian melodrama, Mr. Spaulding by emphasizing this longwinded characteristic made his role the strongest in the whole performance.

Alice Walla and John Hess are

certainly to be congratulated. To expect mature, adult responses from college actors is basically as futile as trying to wring blood from a turnip; but in spite of this accepted truth, their work was a well-trained balance of "sense and sensibility". In many of Mr. Hess' more "purple speeches" to Miss Walla, the audience paid a true tribute, to his acting. Thier restlessness ceased and a definite listening quality was felt in the theatre. And it is for these moments that an actor goes on trying and working.

Annette Martin as Bella Hedley combined all the emotional traits of a mid-Victorian flirt, with the net result being a thoroughly enjoyable character. Her lisping voice, her coy treatment of Uncle Howie, and her appreciation of her own "distractingly lovely" self were all well done.

My basic criticism of the play was the deplorably slow pace of the action. Stage pauses, and drawn-out movement in complete silence are screamingly wearing on an audience nerves. However, the fault lies in the play, not the actors. Lighter and more completely entertaining dramas would be enjoyed by everyone if they were presented with more frequency.

Bison Face Augustana Vikings Tonight

Paulsen's Pencil---

men had another successful trip last weekend. The Bison have now played in sixteen games—winning five and losing eleven for a roaring .313 percentage. Of those sixteen, ten have been played on foreign court and six on home territory. At home, in six contests, the Bison have won four and lost two. Away from home, out of ten attempts, the Bison have won one and lost nine. So, the Herd's home percentage is .667 and their mark on the road a loud .100.

I was sure, when the Herd went on the road last weekend, that they would beat Augustana. However, it was the same old story. The Bison led throughout the first half, thanks to a twenty-two point scoring effort by Paul Brostrom, but faltered in the final periods.

The Bison needed a victory over Augustana. Tonight, need appears to be a weak adjective.

The Bison have eight games left to play. Six of them are on their home court. Of five opponents left to face, the Herd has played only three of them before. South Dakota State and Augustana both have beaten the Herd on their home courts. Moorhead Teachers college has trounced the Herd at Moorhead, and lost to Reed's crew in a return match at Fargo by a fairly substantial count.

With eight tilts left to play, Reed must win all eight games in order to end the season above the .500 mark. Eight wins would enable the Bison to end the season with a 13-11 record—one better than last year when the Bison closed shop with a 12-12 won-lost record.

The Bison May be bolstered for tonight's game. In one way, the team is sure to be aided. They'll be back on home grounds. Then too, they'll be facing Augustana — and South Dakota State, also—on night's after they've played North Dakota University and NCI coaches will attest to the fact that the combination of environments which greet visiting teams at Grand Forks has taken the fire out of more than one loop outfit.

Most coaches usually figure it this way: At home a team has almost got to win because it's a well known fact if athletic teams which lose at home are bad for coaches nerves what with all the students, faculty, home town newspapers, and old grads on hand to take in the proceedings. On the road, the coach who can get his club past the .400 to .500 mark is usually in no danger of drowning.

Well, how do the Bison stand up to the acid test? The Herd has won four out of six at home. Nobody expected them to beat the Bismarck Phantoms, and despite the loss of a handsome halftime lead against South Dakota University, the Bison did almost manage to grab that game.

It's on the road that Reed's outfit has fallen down. Nobody expects the team to win all it's games away from home. In fact, Reed wouldn't even have to produce wins in half his road encounters to get by. It seems to me, though, that Bison rooters have a right to expect more than one victory out of ten road games.

Now, however, the Bison have eight games left. Six of them are at home and two constitute the first two games of the 1948 NDU-NDAC classic. What's done is done, and there'll be time to worry about that later. Right now, Reed and his team have a job to do. They've got to win as many of their remaining games as possible—all six at home if they can, and one out of two at Grand Forks.

The chips are on the table as far as Reed's 1947-48 campaign is concerned. No matter what happens the Bison can barely creep above an even won-lost record. But even that's important now. It's a matter of bad or worse from now on, and—good or bad—three wins from the University would offset more than three losses earlier as Reed jollywell knows.

of the kind of hands the Bison coach has been dealt in the past—regardless of the way he's played them—he, and his team, and the Spectrum, and the school have got a job to do: Salvage as much of the current basketball campaign as possible, and close it as successfully as possible against North Dakota University. The task begins tonight.

The Downtown

Quarterback Club, which comes up with about as many hits at Ted Williams, has scored again with its acquisition of the Minneapolis Lakers to play the Bismarck Phantoms in an exhibition game on the Fieldhouse floor February 26th.

N. O. Churchill, sponsor of the Bismarck club, has been making some additions to the Phantoms in an effort to bolster the club for the game which will pit the Phantoms against one of the greatest basketball teams in the United States, and some of the finest performers in the nation.

Local basketball rooters will have to wait a long time before seeing as fine an aggregation as the Lakers boast. Some Bison performers, who saw the team in action at Minneapolis during the Christmas holidays report the team near perfection.

Sparking Coach Johnny Kundla's quintet will be George Mikan, bespectacled former all-American from DePaul University, and Jim Pollard, former Stanford star who is rated the greatest west coast basketball player since Hank Luisetti played for the Indians.

The game will be played on the Thursday evening preceding the final two games of the UND-Bison series and will not conflict with other local cage games.

Ralph Rothrock, president of the Quarterback Club, who is making arrangements announced that student tickets will go on sale on the NDAC campus, February 9th. The tickets will sell for seventy-five cents, a seventy-five cent reduction from the dollar-fifty price of reserved seats. An extensive block of student seats is being reserved.

It Seems To me that a significant thing is happening in local sports. For several years now there has been a dearth of athletic activities outside of basketball during the winter months.

However, this year a change seems to be taking place. For instance NDAC boxers — among others from this locality — have been making favorable impressions in the Golden Glove tournament at Wahpeton this week — perhaps foreshadowing even more pronounced activity in the sport in the future.

Last week at Bemidji before 2,000 fans Don Bredell's Bison hockey team did more to bolster NDAC athletic prestige—which has been so disastrously torn down this year by the poor showings of the football and basketball teams—than perhaps anyone else.

At North Dakota University, hockey has literally supplanted basketball as the number one attraction on the campus. With Coach Don Norman's Sioux making a hobby of beating such teams as Michigan University and the University of Minnesota, the school has gone wild in support of the team.

Skiing,

strangely neglected locally in recent years, is also in a process of rebuilding. Arne Lochen, Norwegian native now attending NDAC, has been instructing local ski enthusiasts in the finer points of the art.

Lochen's group, which numbers from five to twenty-five, has been meeting regularly Wednesday's in the college Y to map plans for the regular week-end ski treks they have been making.

The group report that all members are noices, that Lochen been limiting early instruction to the rudist fundamentals with the idea of slow progression, and that new members are welcome.

Nothing, in my opinion, is more worthy of praise, than activities such as these. It's been a shame in the past that basketball has so monopolized the winter sports scene.

Finnegan Issues 1948 Herd Grid Schedule

Casey Finnegan, Athletic Director at NDAC this week released the NDAC Bison 1948 Football schedule. Ten game are slated for the season with five to be played at home and five out of town. The Bison Homecoming game, October 16th, will find the Herd facing the South Dakota Coyotes from Brookings. Some of the teams not on last years schedule are Bemidji State Teachers, Montana State College, and the University of Manitoba.

By EARL W. ANDERSON

NDAC Coach (Chalky) Reeds' cagers, who have yet to win their first NCI conference game will meet the Augustana Vikings on the Bison home floor tonight at 8:00 in the NDAC Fieldhouse. This will be the second meeting of the two teams this season, Augustana having defeated the Bison, 53-47, in a scrap played at Sioux Falls, S. D. last Saturday. Coach (Lefty) Olsons' Vikings have three out of five conference games to their credit while the Herd has been downed by South Dakota University. Morningside, Iowa State Tc., Augustana and South Dakota State. Reeds' men have six conference games remaining to be played off: Augustana, South Dakota State and four games with the University of North Dakota.

Tonights tussle will give the Bison an opportunity to even up their duo with the Vikings and should also aid in detecting just how much difference a game on the home floor can make. Should they fail tonight their chances of hitting even a halfway decent final tally will be slim. A failure would also indicate that this home floor business is not quite what it's put up to be. At any rate, tonights' game is of prime importance. Next Tuesday the Herd will face the Jamestown College quintet in the NDAC Fieldhouse at 8.

Corrigan

TOMMY CORRIGAN will be in the starting lineup when the Herd runs into the charges from Augustana college.

NDAC Ice Team Tramples Bemidji Tc Sextet 9-3

St. Cloud—The St. Cloud Teachers college hockey squad edged out the NDAC puck-wielders, 6-4, in a game played here Wednesday night. The St. Cloud squad was forced into an overtime period to gain the win.

The recently organized NDAC Hockey team achieved their first win of the season by defeating Bemidji State Teachers quintet, 9-3, in a hard fought tussle at Bemidji last Sunday afternoon. The Bison took the lead early in the first period when Ken Larson, assisted by Don Bredell, captain, found the mark and racked up the first counter for the green and yellow. From then on the Bison ice-men led all the way. Point-makers for NADC were Don Bredell with 3 goals, Ken Larson 2, Shanks, Goehl, Porter and Forness each with one. Scoring for Bemidji were Ed Johnson, Bob Simms and L. Burhans. Bison Goalee Bob Zehren made 25 successful stops at the net. Paul Jones and Rodger Meintzer played a stellar defensive game for the AC, and Ken Larson showed plenty of promise as he scored 2 goals and assisted on another.

The game was played before 2000 fans at Bemidji, Minnesota. The Bison quintet is scheduled to meet Bemidji again Saturday, 2:30 at the Island Park hockey rink in Fargo.

Bison Drop Fifth Loop Fray 76-55

The SDSC Coyotes, led by (Sunny) Jim Schmidt with 27 points, trampled the NDAC Bison cagers with the formidable score of 76-55 in an NCI tussle played off on the Coyotes home floor at Brookings, S. D. last Monday night. The Herd managed to eke out a 4-1 lead early in the opening minutes of the game but the sharp-shooting Coyotes from South of the border soon rallied and gained a lead they were not to surrender the remainder of the tilt.

In a duel for top scoring honors, which lasted until the final minutes of the game, SDSC's pride and joy, (Sunny) Jim Schmidt came out on top with 27 markers. Close on his heels, and with no mean total, was Paul (Red) Brostrom, NDAC all conference center, who led in field goals with 10 of same to his credit plus 5 pointers from the free throw line. The officials called a total of 41 personal fouls.

The Coyotes are slated to meet the Bison again, February 14, 8:00 p. m. in the NDAC Field House.

Elks Foundation Sponsors Contest

The attention of all students is called to the scholarship contest sponsored by the Elks National foundation. This contest is open to all students of the North Dakota Agricultural college and full particulars may be obtained by inquiry at the office of the Chairman of the Scholarship Committee located in Room 108, Francis Hall. Applications must be filed by March 1, 1948.

History Of Cereal Tech School Dates Back To First Part Of Century

North Dakota was the first state in the Union to provide facilities for the experimental milling of wheat. The suitability of the state's soil and climate to the production of high quality spring wheats soon led to a demand for increased knowledge regarding the milling characteristics of North Dakota wheat, and it was in 1907 that Dr. E. F. Ladd obtained an appropriation from the state legislature for the construction of an experimental flour mill on the campus of the Agricultural College. This building was erected and milling machinery installed during that summer.

The small size experimental mills now common to all cereal laboratories had not been developed then. A 25-barrel capacity unit modeled on commercial milling lines was installed. This equipment did not prove entirely satisfactory for experimental work and some remodeling was necessary.

This mill was satisfactory for milling two-bushel or larger lots of wheat, but could not be used for smaller samples. The use of these comparatively large samples raised the cost and also limited the scope of the work, as in many cases two-bushel lots of the desired wheats could not be obtained.

This was especially true of the wheats grown on the experimental farm plots. In 1910, therefore, a much smaller new laboratory type of experimental mill developed by the Allis Chalmers Company was purchased. This mill required only about four pounds of wheat for a test.

For a few years this small unit was checked against results from the larger 25-barrel mills in North Dakota. The results showed this small mill to be quite satisfactory for experimental work, but because the farmer preferred to have a larger sample of his wheat milled by methods and equipment resembling those of a commercial mill, much of the work during the next ten years was done with the larger unit. Since 1921, however, this small mill has been used almost exclusively.

In 1908 the United States Department of Agriculture began a study of grain grading systems which ultimately led to the establishment of the Federal Grain Standards. Having no milling equipment, the department made arrangements with Dr. Ladd to use the milling equipment and laboratory at Fargo.

The Office of Grain Standardization remained at Fargo until 1918 when facilities were established in Washington, D. C. During the ten-year sojourn at Fargo the United States Department of Agriculture collected data on milling and baking qualities of wheat upon which the Federal grades promulgated in 1918 were largely based.

Since 1921, the department of milling has studied fundamental problems related to wheat quality, and has given attention to problems of vital interest to North Dakota wheat farmers. The work of the past decade has been of particular value in aiding in the development of new, high quality wheat varieties, and the experimental mill has given much greater service than in the previous years. The character of the work has changed considerably during the 40 years the experimental mill has been in existence. At first most of the work consisted of milling and baking tests on wheat, but now more time is given to strictly chemical investigations.

During the past few years several new varieties of rust resistant spring wheats have been tested and released to the farmers of the state. These wheats, as for instance Rival and Mida, are quite resistant to the forms of rust now prevalent in North Dakota, and are of high milling and baking quality.

Work has also been done in connection with improving the quality of the durum wheats being grown in the state. These wheats are tested for milling and macaroni processing quality with equipment modeled after commercial apparatus. Several new durum varieties have been released for farm growth during the past few years. Two of these, Carleton and Stewart, are superior to Mindum, the variety which has been grown for some time in North Dakota. Researches are also in progress in connection with the properties of cereal starches and proteins.

This department is now known as the Department of Cereal Technology, and is under the general direction of Dr. R. H. Harris. It is housed in the somewhat unusual building between Festival Hall and the Music Dept. and contains much modern equipment needed in determining the milling and baking qualities of bread wheats as well as special macaroni processing apparatus. A project for testing barley quality has recently been started.

Fashions for Frost

By the Fashion Editor of Esquire Magazine

Here comes Christmas—here comes the biggest thrill of the year: home-coming! Now's when a college man's fancy turns to thoughts of formal dances and a general round of sparkling get-togethers. Now's when ye truly clothes-conscious undergrad starts tuning up his wardrobe for dress-up dates, and his voice for Auld Lang Syne.

Major keynote for this year's yuletide affairs will be the double-breasted dinner jacket—outstanding favorite with men who know their formal fashions best. Medium-width shoulders give it an easy-going fit. The long-roll grosgrain lapel descends in a gradual, tapering line to the lower of the two side buttons. Men about home-town will be wearing this un-self-conscious jacket in midnight blue unfinished worsted. A single gleaming braid at the trouser sides adds the right touch.

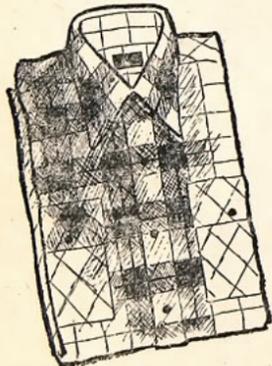

Harmony

Accessories? Remember to keep them in harmony. Compatibility is the test. Check the haberdashers in campus-town for a plain or pleated dress shirt, with fold collar conveniently attached. Links and studs of dignified black pearl lend a sophisticated touch. If you're more conventionally inclined, team up with midnight blue or gold, those good-as-gold jewelry standbys. Semi-butterfly is the right casual touch for your black or midnight blue bow tie. Point ends have been seen in evening neckwear, an attractive touch we think. Black socks and plain toe, patent leather shoes put both feet solidly on the traditional ground of good taste. Now step out with your Holiday Eve.

A Play for Plaid

This season ushers in a more pleasing array of colorful knockabout plaid-shirts, designed for the carefree dresser. They come in several weights and feature hide-soothing rayon wool blends and all-wools. The color combinations have a ruggedly masculine effect. There are bold interlocking plaids of blackest black and solid red. More sophisticated effects are achieved with soft blues and greys. They team up well with gray flannel slacks and are practically designed—with deep-down chest pockets for your tobacco and campus gear.

Conquer the Cold

College men are honoring many of the innovations in the warm-without-weight field of topcoats. Latest of these, and a real men's wear milestone, is the lined cotton coat. It's styled in the sensible double-breasted military cut. The outer fabric is a processed cotton, wind and weather defying, while the inner lining may be alpaca pile, a thick, light-weight, fur-like fabric. So neither rain, sleet, snow nor wind shall deter you in your faithful rounds of frat, class, library and stadium. Some collars are alpaca trimmed too, good for your ears, you know. Another of the new inner-warmth linings is fabricated of miraculous spun glass, encased in quilting. The trick is to insulate you with air trapped between the glass fibres, a naturally lightweight layer of protection against the cold. A good trick and a good laugh on Jack Frost. Don these and you're a man of casual distinction!

METHODISTS

The Methodist student foundation will feature the week's activities with a shower Saturday in the YMCA MSF rooms. The group is attempting to complete furnishing of the rooms.

Already the group has secured large furnishings with smaller contributions expected Saturday. A list of the items desired is posted at the MSF rooms. On the program Saturday will be folk games, other recreations and refreshment.

L. S. A.

Rev. Otto M. Bratlie, acting head of the dept. of religion at Concordia, will be the guest speaker on, "The Christian Philosophy of Life" for the Sunday evening program at 5. After the program and supper, the group will go to Central High to hear the Oratorio, "The Messiah"; which will be presented by the Fargo Lyric Chorus, The Fargo Anthem Chorus. The Fargo-Moorhead Womans Chorus, and the Fargo-Moorhead Civic orchestra.

Also regular Sunday morning breakfast and Bible study at 9 a.m., Wednesday Bible study at 4 p.m., and Thursday "Chow Chats" at noon will be held.
