

Rushing Chairmen Confer

Preference Teas Sunday End Fall Term Sorority Rushing

Formal preference teas Sunday will conclude sorority rushing for the fall term, with the Greeks playing host to an estimated 100 rushees.

Tea hours will be 2:30-3:15 and 3:30-4:15. Pledging ceremonies will be Monday evening.

Following a new plan of deferred rushing, the six sororities on the campus began a schedule of formal and informal parties Monday.

Formal rush week was ushered in Monday with the Kappa Delta carnival party with Mary Ellen Carstens, chairman; the Phi Mu personality parade with Alice Springer, chairman; and the Gamma Phi Beta formal progressive dinner.

Highlighting the schedule for Tuesday were the Kappa Kappa Gamma hard times party with Adelaide Dinwoodie, chairman; Beta Xi bar party with Dolores Martinson, chairman; and the Alpha Gamma Delta formal dinner in the Avenue room of the Graver hotel.

Informal and formal parties yesterday included the Gamma Phi Beta Gay 90's party with Gloria Aas, chairman; Kappa Delta night club party, Yvonne Christianson, chairman; and the Phi Mu formal dinner in the Avenue room, Graver hotel with Gloria Crews, chairman.

This afternoon there will be an Alpha Gamma Delta doll house party with Barbara Nelson, chairman; a Kappa Kappa Gamma Fleur-de-Lis tea, Judy Gessner, chairman; and a Beta Xi formal dinner at the Gardner hotel with Helen Beauchamp and Joyce Hudson, co-chairmen.

Plans for the Friday parties include a Phi Mu pirate party with Phyllis Westra, chairman; Gamma Phi Beta Mother Goose garden party with Lillian Larson, chairman; and a Kappa Delta formal Virginia dinner at the Graver hotel, with Marjorie Brandt, chairman.

Saturday there will be a Beta Xi Eskimo tea with Lois Hooper, chairman; an Alpha Gamma Delta Wizard of Oz party, Mavis Meyer, chairman; and a Kappa Kappa Gamma formal Pullman dinner at the Gardner hotel with Dolores Shanks and Jeanne Bjorklund, co-chairmen.

Funk Heads Sig Pledges

In the election Monday Sigma Chi pledges elected Robert Funk, president. Other officers include Mert Jones, vice president; Charles Bertel, secretary, and Kenneth Lawson, treasurer.

Skinner Talks With Chicago FPFA Office

Forrest H. Skinner, NDAC business manager, left Wednesday for a conference in Chicago with the regional director of the Federal Public Housing Administration in an effort to reinstate the college veteran housing project.

Mr. Skinner's trip is the direct result of cancellation of the NDAC project, now in the embryonic stage north of the field house.

"I would like to get some sort of assurance," Skinner said, "that the project will be finished before school starts next fall. If work continues at the rate it was progressing formerly, this cannot be accomplished."

The housing units were being constructed for occupation by 206 veterans with families and 176 bachelor veterans. Applicants for the family dwellings total 247.

Since stoppage of the construction, Charles Heintzelman, special investigator from Chicago, has met with Fargo and NDAC authorities to discuss reasons for the stoppage. Final consensus of opinion of the representatives was that an inaccurate estimate of material needed and a shortage of wiring, wallboard and fixtures were prime reasons for the work tie-up.

Road Cast Heads LCT Production Of Western Saga

Green Grow The Lilacs, a three-act western comedy by Lynn Riggs, will be presented as the second fall term offering of the Little Country theater Tuesday and Wednesday.

Riggs' play, a satire of western life, was the vehicle for the New York production of Oklahoma!, a road version of which was presented in Minneapolis last September.

Heading the cast will be Alice Walla, Mayo Kucera and Madelyn Forsyth, who were part of an LCT company presenting the Riggs show and another play, Distant Drums, throughout North Dakota last June. Other members of the new cast are Marvin Garske, Charles Dickens, Edith Gelder and Don Viets.

Journalism Fraternity Chooses Seven Pledges

Seven NDAC journalists will be honored by Alpha Zeta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, National journalistic fraternity, in a formal pledging ceremony this noon in the College Y.

Named were:
Jack Billing
Bob Butterwick
Jeanne Wallerius
Betty Sue Armstrong
Iona Jean Bolton
Donna Jean Nellermeoe
Grace Swigart

Ellsworth Moe, newly-elected president succeeding Richard C. Olson, will preside at the ceremony. Other new officers, elected last Thursday, are Alex MacGibbon, vice president, and Naomi Schuricht, secretary-treasurer.

A luncheon will follow the pledging service.

College Commission May Ask Constitution Change

Special Committee Drafting Proposed Revisions For Vote

Copies of the NDAC student constitution began appearing on the campus this week as the student commission went into a campaign aiming toward revision of the college governmental setup.

Appointed to a special constitution committee have been commission members Ellsworth Moe, acting as chairman, Edith Gelder and Norma Jean Steinmeyer. The committee this week is instituting a program to familiarize members of the student body with the existing constitution and the powers of the student commission.

During coming weeks members of Moe's committee will prepare a list of proposed revisions for presentation to the commission, which will in turn draft a referendum for a vote by the student body. The constitution as it now exists was ratified by student vote in April, 1942.

An increase in the student activity fee, set at five dollars in 1941, is one of the principal revisions contemplated, according to Moe. Among activities served by the fee are athletics, publications and the lyceum program.

Meanwhile, the commission has recommended to the college administration alterations in the present fee disbursement for the winter term. The Bison yearbook request from each ticket was increased from $1.20 to $1.35, while the student reserve fund was cut from 20 to 10 cents and the allocation to classes from 10 to five cents. The athletic and lyceum course remained the same at $2.00 and $1.00 respectively and the Spectrum at 50 cents.

Approximately 200 copies of the student constitution are available in the college dean of men's office.

AC Team Places Tenth In College Livestock Judging

Placing tenth in a field of 22, the NDAC livestock judging team will return this afternoon following the National Collegiate livestock judging contest held in Chicago last weekend.

Members of the NDAC squad included Donald Devaney, Russell Heine, Percy McLean, Chester Reiten and Orville Stanley. Burl Winchester, associate professor of animal husbandry, accompanied the group.

In the five-man judging events, won by Ohio State, the NDAC contingent placed sixth in sheep and sixth in cattle. Devaney was high individual among the local group, placing tenth in a field of over 200, and seventh in horse judging. Stanley tied for first in sheep judging with an Ohio representative, while Heine had a seventh in cattle judging.

Agriculture department spokesmen expressed satisfaction over the result, since the late start of school prevented much comprehensive practice. The squad left a week before the contests in order to get practice among farms in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Honor Rothrock

Cliff (Bony) Rothrock, Bison grid captain for 1946, Wednesday was selected for honorable mention on the Associated Press All-American team.

Rothrock is the first Bison player since Fritz Hanson, backfield star of the early 30's, to be accorded a similar honor. The WDAY sports staff said in a broadcast Wednesday evening that he "will probably be the Little All-American center."

If Rothrock is selected, he will be the first Bison player accorded Little A-A recognition since Ernie Wheeler made the team in 1938.

A senior, Rothrock returned from service this summer after serving overseas in Germany. He played on the Third infantry team there after having played on the Fort Benning Rifles, championship service outfit.

Action Booklet Goes To Press

The first Intra-State Student Action committee publicity pamphlet, which outlines inadequacies in North Dakota's higher educational system, will go to printers at the University in a few days.

Included in the pamphlet is an enrollment trend graph, an illustration of the growth of student bodies with no corresponding increase in campus buildings; statistics on teachers' salaries and retirement benefits, and a comparison of the costs of liquor and tobacco with the cost of higher education.

Research material for the pamphlet was organized at a meeting here of delegates from five eastern North Dakota schools last Saturday with Grace Swigart, NDAC, in charge of final assembly. Attending the meeting were Walter Birkelo, Mayville; Dave Johnson, Valley City; Bill Jones, Wahpeton; Joyce Lee, Grand Forks; and Ames Skolness, Elvin Foss, Grace Swigart and Fred Saefke, Fargo.

NDAC committee chairmen include Ted Barnick and Gloria Crews, membership; Arnold Bjorlie and Russell Heine, legislature contacts; Wallace Sweeney and Charles Mitchell, extension service speakers; Fred Saefke and Kirk Bellows, radio; Duane Torvig, photography; William Klubben, Alfred Dale and Leon Warner, general publicity research; Norman Selberg, pamphlet cartoons; Jeanne Wallerius, newspaper publicity.

New Swing Band Plays

The Statesmen, newly-organized all-college swing band, will be presented in a dance Friday evening at 9 in the college field house.

Proceeds from the dance will go to the NDAC Gold Star band.

A men's quartet to sing with the Statesmen will be selected by students in attendance from two groups chosen at an elimination contest Monday.

EDITORIAL OBSERVATIONS

Objective

Some Conjecture On Classicism

When that last class is out and you've settled down in a campus restaurant for a cup of coffee, there's nothing quite so pleasant as a good-natured controversy with friends on some issue of the day, be it politics, economics, ethics or the degeneracy of college journalism. One topic that gets attention now and then is the value of classical literature.

This last matter was brought up interestingly in the November 21 issue of The Christian Science Monitor in an editorial entitled "Ideas Before Atoms". The Monitor's editorial:

"What meaning have the great books of the past for a dizzily speeding atomic age? Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, who has often been charged with wanting to turn the clock back to the thirteenth century, is deserting his post as Chancellor of the University of Chicago for a year in order to make these books more readily available to the general reader in a series to be published by the Encyclopedia Britannica.

"This is not likely to cause a stir among John L. Lewis's miners or in brisk Wall Street circles, though it might conceivably strike Congressman Rankin's unpredictable Committee on Un-American Activities as a dangerous opening of America to "foreign" notions. But it is good to be reminded at this time of our heritage of great ideas transcending time and place, ideas which are the foundation of our civilization and which are in constant danger of being forgotten.

"It may seem of only faintest academic interest that Dr. Hutchins will make available, for instance, the Enneads of Plotinus. But people who care nothing about the traditions of Graeco-Alexandrian mysticism would do well to ponder Plotinus's conviction that matter is the absence of God as darkness is the absence of light.

"Surely, a cultural tradition that includes such reaches of thought has relevance to the atomic age. It even has something for a time of labor crisis which threatens a shortage of that stored-up-matter-energy known as coal."

It might be interesting to note that the Monitor's reference to "God" has a tendency to dogmatize, because of that word's popular connotation, Plotinus's conception of the universe. Plotinus, who was a middle-eastern philosopher of the third century, envisioned "God", not as an individual, but as a divinity from which all forms and phases of existence emanate and to which all strive to return.

Perhaps there aren't so many students, after all, who spend their leisure time discussing the value of classical literature or the writings of Plotinus. But for those who do there lies ahead a richer life, made so by the fact that they will know more clearly the stuff of which their existence is made.

Annual Holiday Program Set For Sunday In LCT Christmas Fete

The Little Country Theatre, under direction of A. G. Arvold, will hold its thirty-first annual Christmas festival Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m.

In charge of the program are Eleanor Juhlke, Dolores Martinson, Dorrine Smith and Mary Linda Rossau.

Feature presentation will be a pantomime of one of Charles Dickens' best-loved Christmas stories, The Cricket on the Hearth, under direction of Mrs. Jane Dobervich. Ed Kasner as the Story-Teller, Claude Lusk as John Peerybingle, Mary Niebles as Mrs. Peerybingle, Donna Evanson as Tilly Slowboy, Paul Dobervich, the baby, and Phyllis Holiday as the spirit of the cricket are included in the cast.

Story-telling in the Log Cabin will feature Jeanne Hendrickson for the adults and Donald Anderson, Virginia Fitch and Ambrose Netzer in tales especially suited for children.

A voice choir under the direction of Mrs. Lorraine Quarve will present "The Night Before Christmas" and Christmas carols under the direction of Ernst Van Vlis-singen.

Tryota Plans Dinner

Tryota members will pay honor to Ellen H. Richards, the late founder of the science of home economics, when they meet Wednesday for their annual Christmas dinner in the College Y auditorium from 5-8 p.m.

Tickets for the dinner will be available until 4 p.m. Monday, according to Inez Carlson, sales chairman.

Bettilou MacDonald and Mary McManus head food arrangements, while JoAnn Zimmerman is program chairman.

Preceding the dinner, initiation will be held at 4:15 in the Y for all those not yet members.

Bison pictures, which will include only paid members, will be taken immediately following the meeting.

GIOVANNA RIBET, ELLSWORTH MOE

Young Italian Student Criticizes U.S. For Apathy In World Affairs

By Ellsworth Moe

"The only criticism I have of American college students is their apparent unawareness, or at least disinterest, in world affairs," was the frank opinion voiced by 19-year-old Giovanna Ribet, Italian medical student interviewed by a Spectrum reporter, during her short visit to the NDAC campus Monday.

Miss Ribet is one of seven European and two Chinese students now touring the United States on behalf of the World Student Service fund to raise funds for their bombed-out and destitute compatriots at home.

When questioned further, Miss Ribet said she believed the reason for this apathy toward world politics was the American prosperity.

"In Italy," the young Roman continued, "it is much different. There starvation is a daily problem for all, and when you are faced with an economic problem on that scale, economics become politics and college students take part."

"Here I can't even find out what the differences are between the Republican and Democratic parties," she observed somewhat ruefully, "while in Europe all students are intensely interested in all political factions in every country. Every time I speak before a U. S. college group and try to turn the floor open to questions and discussion, nobody has any questions to ask. I have to do all the talking."

Active in the resistance movement at the age of 16, the comely little brunette is constantly amused at the amazement shown by American coeds when they learn she is conducting this trip alone.

"It is then," she laughed, "that I tell them about the time I was nearly caught sneaking hand grenades into Rome."

Speaking in a charmingly clipped British accent acquired from her high school English teacher, this modern Joan of Arc nonchalantly related a tale wherein she and a girl friend encountered a German sentry bent upon inspecting their market baskets containing grenades, cauliflower and cabbages.

"My quick thinking girl friend saved the situation," she went on. "She decided the only thing to do was to tell the truth, and when the guard questioned her, she said, 'You can see that I have cauliflower and cabbage here; but if you really want to know, I have hand grenades underneath.'" The German thought they were pulling his leg and let them pass.

Commenting on the problems continental colleges face, Miss Ribet revealed that she has studied medicine for three years and never used a microscope. "Yet we are fortunate," she said. "The University of Warsaw has only one building left standing, and most of its faculty is depleted. All the Jewish professors were killed, of course."

The YMCA under Vern Hathaway is planning a local drive on the campus sometime in February to assemble NDAC's contribution to aid this cause. The money will be sent to Geneva, Switzerland, and dispensed from there to the more needy countries of Europe. There it will be used for tuberculosis hospitals, rest homes, food, clothing and scholarships, as need dictates.

Socially Yours

By JEANNE

The gloomy prospect of approaching final exams will be offset somewhat in three campus social groups this week as those organizations hold term parties. Entertaining will be ATO, Theta Chi and SAE, all Friday evening. The SAE affair will be a semi-formal party in honor of its pledge class.

AGR Leslie Wilson said "I do" during Thanksgiving vacation, as did Beta Xi Loreen Leeb and Sig Bob Davenport. Also pledging his troth was Norris Fagarlund of AGR in a ceremony Wednesday. AGR Ralph Harmon is laying plans for a Christmas wedding.

SAE discloses the engagement of Philip Hess to Marilyn Hegland of Fargo. Pinned are Theta Chi Dick Carley and Maxine McMillan of KD. Minus pins are Roland Currie of Kappa Sigma Chi and Joe Maynes of Sigma Chi.

Kirk Bellows and Ralph Johnson will represent the Fargo chapter of AGR at the national convention in Chicago.

Monday visitors were Harvey Hudson and Ray Quenel at the Kappa Sigma Chi house, Lou Alm and Mrs. Patrick Callanan at the Alpha Gam rooms and Don Fischer at the Theta Chi domain.

Kappa Sigs initiated Clayton Kingston recently.

Give Pharmacy Awards

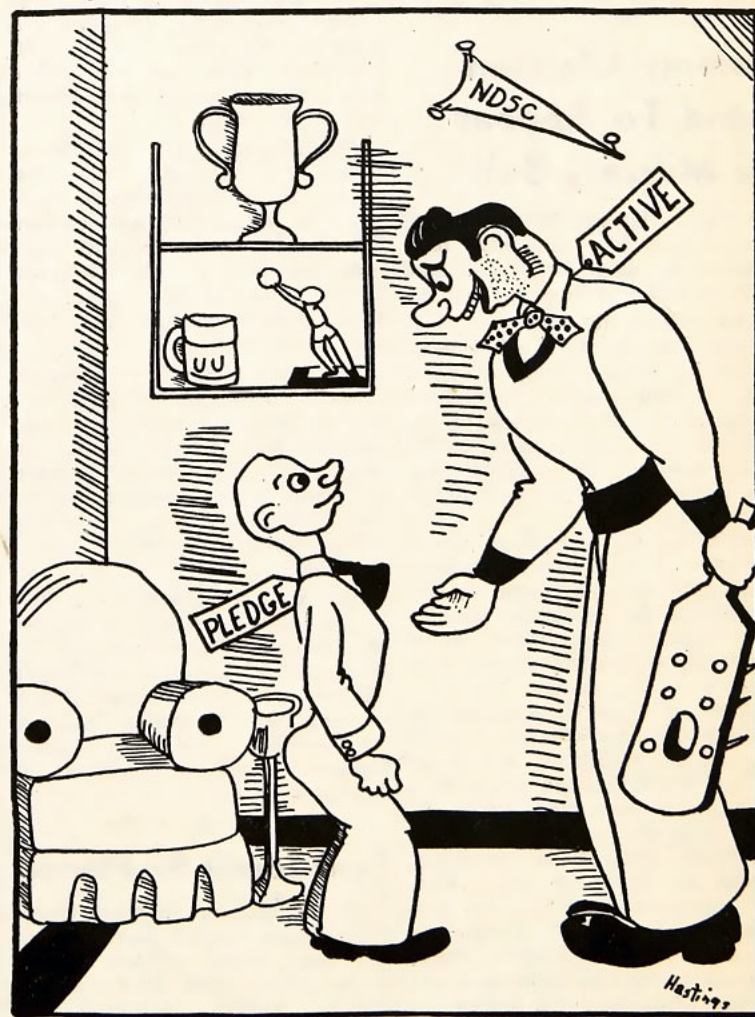

The American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education, a non-profit organization, has notified NDAC that the school of pharmacy has been granted two fellowships.

One of these fellowships, amounting to $1,200 has been granted to Clark Andreson who was graduated from the school of pharmacy at the end of the past summer session.

The other fellowship, which provides a grant of $900, with an additional $500 for college expense, has been given to Miss Marian Lien, a school of pharmacy graduate in the class of 1946.

Herd Opens With MSTC Wednesday

Coach Chalky Reed's NDAC basketball squad opens a four-game pre-holiday schedule against a veteran MSTC club Wednesday on the Moorhead school's floor.

The following Friday will see the Herd in Bismarck to play the independent Bismarck Phantoms and the next day in Minot against Minot Teachers. Concordia at Moorhead on December 17 completes the Herd's December schedule.

Reed has been working with a number of combinations in practice sessions this week in an effort to find a starting squad and expects to go into Wednesday's game ready to shuffle his group thoroughly.

Added to the Bison mentor's obstacles is the game experience the Dragons will have garnered before giving the Herd its 1946-47 baptism. MSTC opened with a 2-point loss to NDU last week and coasted to a 40-30 decision over Northern Montana Tuesday. The Dragons meet Mayville Teachers and Manitoba Friday and Saturday.

The Minot Teachers-Concordia setto tonight on the Cobber court should give the Bison squad a view of what to expect from two of the pre-holiday foes.

The Bismarck Phantom roster includes a number of former NDU stars under the direction of Manager Eddie Agre.

Six NDAC Gridders Named To Forum Honor Eleven

Rothrock

Basch

Mulready

S. Vujovich

Six NDAC football stalwarts climbed into all-conference berths on the Fargo Forum conducted poll of North Central Conference coaches, three on the first line squad and three gaining honorable mention.

Bison players on the first string eleven were Cliff Rothrock, Herd center who was given honorable mention Thursday on the Associated Press All-America team, Jerry Mulready, hard-driving full-back, and Bill Dietz, rough and ready freshman tackle.

Mulready and Rothrock, NDAC seniors, coasted onto the mythical eleven with five votes apiece, only one vote being cast against Mulready, that going for him as an end, putting him on both first and honorable mention teams, and but one vote against Rothrock in the center post.

Dietz, Bison tackle, gained a first string post, being beaten only by Jason Loving, Iowa Teacher's tackle, in number of positive votes.

NDAC players gaining honorable mention were backs, Charlie Basch and Dennis Drews, and lineman Steve Vujovich along with Mulready's lone vote at end position.

Complete first string lineup includes Nick Avelchas and Cy Bellock, ISTC, ends; Dietz, NDAC, Loving, ISTC, tackles; Will Riordan and Dick Bowen, ISTC, guards; Rothrock, NDAC, center, in the line. Backfield chosen consists of Mulready, NDAC; Connie Callahan, Morningside; Pudge Camarata and Bob Williams, ISTC.

Appoint Burke Exec. Officer

Recently appointed professor of air science and tactics, Major Sylvester V. Burke has been named executive officer of the NDAC Reserve Officer's Training Corps detachment.

Major Burke, a native of Dumont, Minn., served in the European theatre of war, flying 92 missions as a fighter pilot during his 20 months tour of duty in the area. He holds the distinguished flying cross with three clusters and the air medal with three clusters.

Sixteen advanced students are enrolled in the college air reserve officers training unit, studying for administrative posts in the AAF reserve. The first year of training is wholly classroom work, while during the second year the students will take orientation flights at Hector airport and get practical experience on air force bases.

Physics Head Gets Publishing Offer

Dr. D. Q. Posin, head of the college department of physics has received word that Whittlesey House of the McGraw-Hill book company of New York would like to publish a book he has completed on the life of a great European scientist.

The book company is sponsoring a contest for manuscripts on a popular science or a biography of a scientist. Dr. Posin entered several chapters of his book and since has received word from the company offering a contract for publication regardless of his outcome in the contest.

Dr. Posin arrived at NDAC in August from the Radiation laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he did research work in radar and physics.

Y Groups Schedule Annual Xmas Party For Fargo Children

NDAC's annual Christmas Kids' party for underprivileged children will be presented Thursday from five to seven p.m. in the college Y under co-sponsorship of the YMCA and YWCA.

Made possible through the co-operation of the Fargo Union mission, the party will provide approximately 75 Fargo children between the ages of 5 and 12 years with dinner, presents and candy. Tickets are on sale at the YMCA for 75 NDAC students who may attend. The ticket price will cover the cost of meals for both the student and a child guest.

Party chairmen for the YMCA and YWCA respectively are Lawrence Rotvold and Loretta Swisher. In charge of tickets are Avis Salisbury and Ottis Gryde. Joyce Hudson is liaison with the Fargo Union mission, while George Keena has charge of decorations.

Farm Bureau Head Advises Research

New fields of research for NDAC and improvements in existing agricultural education departments were suggestions offered by W. A. Plath, state Farm Bureau chairman, for college betterment during a meeting of the North Dakota Agricultural conference held here November 25.

Plath's suggestions included long range soils study, soils and water conservation research, plant disease research, and improvements in the NDAC veterinary department.

The conference was presided over by Dr. John H. Longwell, NDAC president.
