DICK OLSON

BETTY SUE ARMSTRONG

DONNA JEAN NELLERMOE

ALEX MacGIBBON

Group Names Olson To Edit '46-'47 Paper

Dick Olson, Alex MacGibbon, Betty Sue Armstrong and Donna Jean Nellermoe were named Wednesday by the Board of Publications Control to head editorial and business staffs of next year's Spectrum and Bison.

Announcement of the appointments was made by Doris Oliver, board president, at a luncheon in the Graver hotel given by the board for staff members of both publications in recognition of work done this year.

Olson will edit The Spectrum, campus student weekly; MacGibbon will head the editorial staff of the 1947 Bison yearbook; Miss Armstrong will take over as business manager of The Spectrum with Miss Nellermoe handling the same duties on the 1947 Bison.

Olson, a sophomore in arts and sciences, has been a reporter, photographer and proofreader for The Fargo Forum at intervals since 1940. He served as photographer for the University of North Dakota's yearbook while a student there in 1941-42 and was engaged in a similar capacity on the Bison yearbook staff the following year. In high school, he edited the Fargo Cynosure Bi-weekly in his senior year. A member of Sigma Chi and Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalism fraternity, Olson recently completed three and one half years in the navy as a photographer's mate.

Miss Armstrong is a freshman in arts and sciences. She was on the business staff of the Cynosure Bi-weekly while a Fargo high school student and this year has been a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She served on the Spectrum this year.

A junior in arts and sciences, MacGibbon has had previous experience on NDAC, high school and army publications. He is a member of Sigma Chi and Alpha Phi Gamma and other campus activities he has taken part in the Little Country Theatre and Bison Brevities publicity.

Phi Omega Pi's Miss Nellermoe is a home economics freshman. This year she has been assistant business manager of The Spectrum as well as a member of the YWCA freshman commission and the Art club. In high school, Miss Nellermoe had experience on business staffs of several publications.

Student Challenge

For the second time in the history of the NDAC groups of students have risen to meet the challenge offered North Dakota higher education by apparently non-thinking citizens. The first time the students rose the result of the uprising was a bill passed by the vote of North Dakota citizens relieving institutions of higher learning from political interference. It established a Board of Higher Education.

Now the students have risen again in order to secure the necessary funds to support and broaden education in the state. But it is not being confined to our own campus: an Intra-state Student Committee has been formed with representatives of North Dakota's nine schools of higher education. It meets on the AC campus June 18 and 19.

The tentative plans are laid; the representatives chosen. Now it is up to you, the student body, to make this a success and gain as glorious a victory as the predecessors.

What is to be gained? A new vista of education in the state — schools with up-to-date equipment and a large enough faculty to teach the subject matter adequately — money with which to broaden and enlarge the present curriculum.

What is to be lost? The integrity of a North Dakota degree which is already declining—an educational system comparable to that of the sub-marginal states of the South.

What must you do? Acquire an understanding of every movement or intended movement of the committee so that you may vote intelligently—back the decision after it is made—offer your time and talents for committee and publicity work. Then the campaign is bound to be a success.

Meal Planning Class To Honor Seniors

Members of home economics meal planning classes will honor senior home economics students at a tea on the Home Management house lawn this afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Guests from various other departments on the campus will also be present.

Inez Carlson and Ellen Johnson are co-chairmen of arrangements for the affair.

Campus Characters

Although metamorphosis generally is considered to be a manifestation of the lower animal world, here's a college man with a similar record. The caterpillar in time is transformed into a butterfly. Reverse the process, and you have a representation of the transition through which this war veteran has passed. In 1942, before his entry into the army, he was a good student and a perfect gentleman.

A feminine hearthrob whose features are barely recognizable without a pipe, this lad bears a name which has become synonymous with BMOC. To idle away his time he serves as president of the Board of Publications Control, vice president of Alpha Phi Gamma, a member of Blue Key, and during preparations for the Bison Brevities served as its cigar-chewing publicity chairman.

Ever on the go, this boy, whose first name could pass for Henry Longfellow's middle, has witnesses to prove that he has, on occasion, made classes on time. Those witnesses, however, do not include Dr. W. C. Hunter of the history department.

Some philosophers maintain people get what they deserve. Corroboration for that theory appears on page 3 of this issue.

Debs Describe Ideal Date

To prove that the campus female not only has a mind, but that she has a mind of her own, especially when it comes to the question of dates, a cross-section of the coeds have come forward with these last words on what they are looking for in the ideal date . . . man, that is.

Gloria Seidel: Not too fast and not too slow!

Donna Litherland: I haven't found one yet. I have no idea.

Gloria Crews: Anything in a sailor suit.

Jeanne Bjorklund: A man with a flexible personality. One who can show you a rollicking good time one night and sit down and talk intelligently the next evening without sounding and feeling like an encyclopedia.

Harriet Porter: A fellow who sends you flowers because he wants to, not because he has to.

Phi Mu sorority: Phi Mu Dream Man Frank Sweet.

Rae Wiig: A sober date and one who has read Emily Post.

Lilac queen Eunice Huso: He must be good looking, but not necessarily handsome. One who talks a lot, has a wonderful sense of humor, is a good dancer, is active in sports . . . and besides that he has to be a man. An ideal date, that is.

Arlis Jensen: One who doesn't get lit after the third bottle of beer.

Phyllis Knott: He doesn't need to be too good looking, but he must be interesting and a good, clever conversationalist.

Sigma Chi Sweetheart Alice Springer: One that is real attentive, exclusively yours for the night. He must be a good dancer and dressed neatly to fit the occasion so that you're proud to be with him.

Ruby Thom of the Hasty Tasty: A guy that's got a lot of common sense and also looks nice. I like 'em tall.

Loren Candor: I like 'em brainy, but I haven't been able to find any yet.

Dorothy Amundson: My husband.

Mary Iverson: Someone who doesn't drink. It makes you feel like a queen.

And then there are those who, fearing to bring the wrath of the mighty male upon them and consequently cobwebs about the telephone, add their two-bits . . .

anonymously:

Not smooch-happy . . . Fellow who doesn't carry his wedding ring in his pocket. . . One who sticks with his date. . . One who takes a girl home when she wants to go home. . . Fellow who lets you know more than 10 minutes before he picks you up that you are going out and what is planned, so you can dress accordingly . . . A man who recognizes real sincerity.

Ardyth Long: A tall, dark, intelligent talker who likes to do exciting things.

SAE Sweetheart Joyce Gundvaldsen: An SAE, of course!

Letter to the Editor

Former Student Takes Latin Cruise Aboard USS Fargo

Editor's note—This letter was received recently by Dean C. A. Sevrinson from Howard M. Olson, former NDAC student, now serving on the USS Fargo.

Inasmuch as you are a resident of Fargo I thought you might be interested in knowing something about the activities of the cruiser Fargo these days.

At present we are in Montevideo, Uruguay. We have been here since last Friday and will remain until this coming Friday. Our stay has been very pleasant. People of Uruguay are very hospitable. They are cordial, friendly and very sincere, much more so than the Brazilians were.

It is late fall in Uruguay; top-coats are a part of the uniform-of-the-day. The climate is fairly dry and considered as being very healthy. Residents of Buenos Aires, where it is often damp, often spend weekends and summer vacations here.

Montevideo is a very nice city. It isn't especially beautiful but it is clean and seemingly very progressive. After siesta time in the afternoon there is a hustle and bustle on the streets comparable to many U.S. cities. Ninety percent of Uruguay's population lives in Montevideo. The main industry of Uruguay is agriculture.

Here in Montevideo one finds the meat packing plants, woolen mills, and tanning factories. The stores are piled high with woolen and leather goods. Huge and very delicious steaks are available in all restaurants at very reasonable prices.

A few months ago everything was very cheap here as compared to prices in the States. At present a wave of inflation is sweeping South America and everything is going sky high. In Brazil prices are the highest.

Before arriving in Montevideo we paid visits to Bermuda, Cuba, Trinidad, Recife and Rio de Janeiro in Brazil. The next stop on our cruise is Capetown. From Capetown we steam up the west coast of Africa to Lagos, Freetown, Dakar, Cape Verdi Is., Casablanca and the Azores.

I almost forgot to mention that we will spend the '4th' in Monrovia which is located between the Gold and Ivory coasts of Southwest Africa. Monrovia is the capital of Liberia. As you probably know Liberians are former U.S. negroes who were returned to Africa and their people.

Campus Homicide Case Baffles Experts

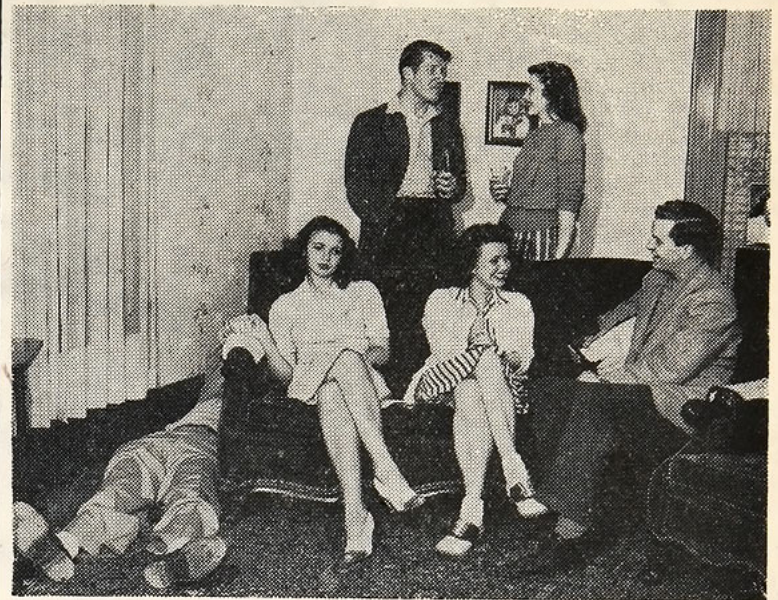

Crime came to the NDAC campus last week. On a balmy, spring-like afternoon in mid-week when one of the prominent campus sororities, Tri Lambda Man, was entertaining, disaster struck. Cruel homicide snuffed out the life of dapper young Wordsworth Mole, prominent veteran Big Man on the Campus, whose forceful personality had penetrated many college activities and feminine social circles. The means of death was obscure, and any of the young people in attendance at the party might conceivably have been responsible. Fortunately, the Spectrum photographer had been photographing the party, and valuable clues possibly may be contained in his pictures. Although Inspector Charles Pickles of West Fargo Yards has been called into the investigation, no solution to the crime has yet been forthcoming. The following pictures are printed in the hope that Spectrum readers may be able to detect some clue which will reveal the killer.

Early in the party Mole, right, became involved in a violent argument with George Falsedell, left. Falsedell, a souvenir collector, had come to the party with part of the collection he had brought back from the Pacific. The two men finally were parted.

As the party progressed, the girls and their guests strolled about the house, some dancing, some playing cards, some settling down in the living room for conversation over refreshments. Mole cast his attentions upon dreamy, brown-eyed Janet Sketchez, shown seated on the left, who none too reluctantly gave Wordsworth her hand to hold. As most of the males at the party did, a small group of men concentrated their attentions upon glamorous Betty Sue Headstrong, party hostess. Above, sporty Tom Calendar offers her a drink.

Later, the party broke up, leaving Tom Calendar and Maxine McWatermelon, shown here behind the davenport, rehashing social gossip. Bawdy Jack Fauna's eyes took on a peculiar glint as he tried enticing cherubic Patty Beakstrom to come up to read some of his short essays. Janet gently caressed Wordsworth's bejeweled hand as she gazed wistfully off into the distance, dreaming of the day when she and Wordsworth could eat soup together in the Hasty Tasty. Once Fauna queried, "I wonder what became of Wordsworth?"

At 8:15 p. m., after the party, industrious Edith Geldersleeve went about cleaning the house. Starry-eyed Miss Sketchez, oblivious to all but the thrill of Mole's manual embrace, suddenly was startled by a scream from Miss Geldersleeve, who had discovered Mole's cold body.

Inspector Pickles was called, examined the body, removed the knife, and warned curiosity seekers away. The only person he permitted near the body was Falsedell, who returned to the scene to remove a sharp object from the corpse which he said belonged to him.

Reviewing the case with Falsedell, Pickles remarked, "This is the most baffling crime of my career. There doesn't seem to be a single clue." Previously he had interviewed all possible suspects. Falsedell subsequently led the conversation away from the crime, jumped on Pickles for the laxity of local law enforcement. Here he tells the inspector, "Look at this bill I picked up today. The infernal thing is counterfeit. There ought to be a law!" Pickles appeared worried, dismissed the suspects until further notice.

Since the fatal afternoon every effort has been made by Inspector Pickles to solve the murder, which he fears may prove to be "the perfect crime." Meanwhile, a wave of panic has spread throughout the campus. Dr. Jensen Heads Campus Dairy Setup

Dr. Chris Jensen, associate professor of dairy technology and associate dairy technologist at the NDAC agricultural experiment station, has been named professor of dairy technology in the school of agriculture, dairy technologist to the station and chairman of the department of dairy husbandry.

This action places the dairy husbandry department in charge of an active head, succeeding the late Prof. James R. Dice, and was taken by the Board of Higher Education upon the recommendation of Dr. H. L. Walster, dean of the school of agriculture and director of the experimental station.

The board has also authorized the appointment of a teacher and research worker in the field of dairy cattle production to take charge of dairy cattle production and management.

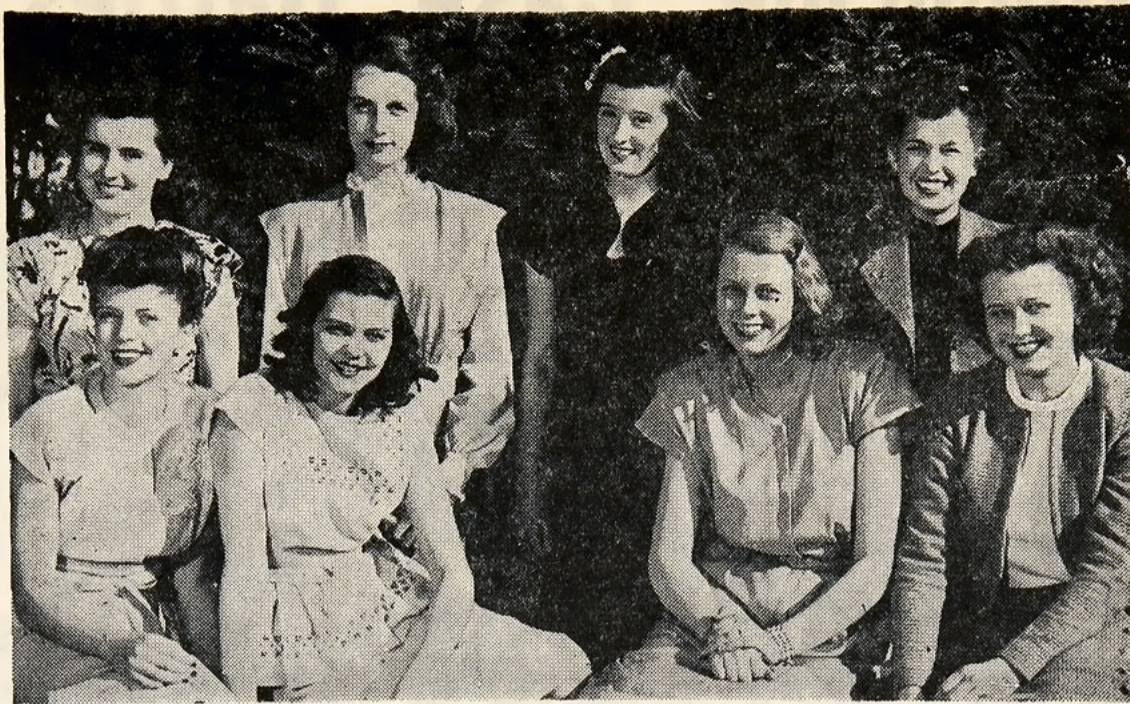

Dr. Jensen has had 20 years experience in charge of dairy manufacturing, teaching and research on the campus. Born at Kenmare, he received his college education at Iowa State college.

His research activities have included factors influencing the quality of butter, such as butter cultures, methods of neutralizing cream in their relation to the quality of butter, influence of pasteurization exposure to the quality of butter, etc. In connection with his Ph. D. training he worked upon the use of certain penicillia molds in the ripening of certain Roquefort type "blue mold" cheeses, which studies were followed up by developing methods for the successful manufacture of such type of cheese in North Dakota.

In recent years Dr. Jensen has given particular attention to the effect which the quality of water used by North Dakota creameries in washing butter may have upon the keeping qualities of butter.

Dr. Jensen heads up a statewide program on the standardization of the composition and quality of North Dakota butter which program was begun by the dairy husbandry department of the experiment station in co-operation with the North Dakota research foundation.

She is a graduate of Sacred Heart Academy.

Irene Gunvaldsen Diedrich won the bracelet for the most outstanding active last year.

Late Bulletin

As The Spectrum was going to press, word was received from Inspector Charles Pickles of West Fargo Yards, investigating authority in the death of Wordsworth Mole (see illustrated story, page 3), campus leader slain during an afternoon sorority function last week, that the crime has been solved.

A warrant charging first degree murder has been filed for the arrest of Miss Betty Sue Headstrong, popular Tri Lambda coed, Pickles revealed.

The inspector had indicated previously his fear that Mole's murder might prove to be "the perfect crime."

All persons, save one, who attended the party were examined by Pickles for possible implication. George Falsedell, prominent campus souvenir collector, was exonerated immediately, Pickles added, because of prima facie evidence of his innocence. "George," Pickles said, "is a brother S. A. P."

"The pictures provided the real evidence," Pickles pointed out. He referred to the pictures printed on page 3 of this issue. "Right there in the second picture you could see how that Headstrong girl was demanding the attention of all those men. Only Mole, of all the men at the party, failed to compliment her on her gown. Her recourse was ghastly but to be expected of one of her character. She made him eat a piece of Tri Lambda pastry. It was a horrible death."

"What about the knife, gun, noose and other murder weapons?" a reporter asked.

"I am a practicing criminologist," Pickles retorted. "That sort of thing is for amateurs. What weapons?"

Home Ec Group Selects Nydahl As Vice-Chairman

Lillian Nydahl, NDAC home economics junior of Fargo, is the successful candidate for the second vice-chairman of the college club department of the American Home Economics Association, according to a letter from Miss Gladys Wyckoff, field secretary, Washington, D. C.

Heard About The Herd

By Kenneth Sachs

on the campus reaches a climax today when the Theta Chi and ATO teams meet at 4:30 for the Intramural D-ball title. Although Theta Chi is a slight favorite the game promises to be very close. Jake Stappler, ATO hurler, has proved to be very stingy with hits at times and if he is in top form there could very well be an upset. Everything points to a high-scoring affair, however, for both clubs are loaded with power. In the semifinals these two teams banged out a total of 33 hits with nineteen of them going for extra bases.

BOB HAAS

former Fargo Junior Legion star, is sailing along with 5 straight wins for the Fargo-Moorhead Twins. His last two came on successive days at Grand Forks over the weekend. Saturday night, Haas entered the game as a relief pitcher and gained the decision when the Twins went on to win in extra innings. Sunday he started and finished his fourth complete game for his fifth win.

Bob Hunt, who also came up from the Fargo Legion ranks was the hero of Saturday's game, lashing out a homerun in the tenth inning with two out. Hunt, who used to do some pitching for The Legion team may be given a chance to try out his old mound skill in the near future unless the Twin pitching staff is bolstered.

Two other Fargo - Moorhead products are also playing starring roles for the F-M nine. Chuck Rhode, another Fargo Legion standout, has been pitching great relief ball and Tuesday evening batted and pitched his club to a 5-4 win over the league-leading Superior Blues. Don Corcoran of Moorhead and MSTC is patrolling the center garden for the Twins and has thrilled fans numerous times with his outstanding fielding.

athletic year at NDAC has ended with fairly successful seasons in all sports although the coaching staff has had to carry on with reduced squads due to the war. Now fans are looking ahead to the 1946-47 season with hopes that the Bison will be back in the scramble for the various North Central conference titles. Regardless of how the Herd fares one thing is certain, the brand of ball displayed for fans here next year will be much better than that shown during the past 3 or 4 years and may easily exceed that of pre-war years. Bison competition will get under way next fall when the gridders travel to Iowa City Sept. 21, for the opener with Iowa university.

Herd Golfers Edge Cobbers For Trophy

The Georgia Tainter golf trophy remained in the hands of NDAC last week when the Bison swingers scored a surprising win over Concordia. The Cobbers had previously beaten MSTC.

Playing on a low-ball, low-total basis Cecil Sturgeon and John Dady combined to win their match 5 up over Don Hanson and Vern Grinaker while Bob Heer and Robert Grorud finished 8 up over M. Freng and O. Vangen for a 13 point margin.

The matches were last played in 1942 when the Herd also took the trophy.

In the finals of the all-campus tourney Sturgeon and Grorud battled for 17 holes all even with Grorud winning on the 18th by one stroke.

Both clubs hammered out decisive wins in the semifinals, the Theta Chi's dusting off the SAES 18-12, and the ATOs bumping the Dorm, 15-9.

Today's game will bring together the two most powerful clubs in the league. Theta Chi, with more all-round power rules a slight favorite. However, they will have to muzzle the bats of Bob Cook, Dennis Drews and Marvel Deike, who so far this season have been unstoppable.

The ATO-Dorm game looked like a toss-up for three and a half innings but the ATO bats boomed in the last half of the fourth to push across six runs on a walk, a single and four doubles.

Theta Chi had a comparatively easy time with the SAES as they jumped into an 8-0 lead in the first two innings and then coasted to victory. Larry Cullen, John Deutsch and Ed Leach each slammed out two homers for the Theta Chi ten.

The Dorm reached the semifinals by virtue of an 8-1 win over Kappa Sigma Chi in a playoff in the upper bracket.

Dragons Share Baseball Flag With St. Cloud

MSTC and St. Cloud reign as co-champions of the Minnesota college conference baseball league. The playoff game scheduled last week at St. Cloud was rained out and finally cancelled. The end of the school term prevented the two clubs from deciding the title.

The Dragons, sparked by pitcher Buzz Gray of no-hit fame and Don Corcoran, brilliant outfielder, closed their season with a 10-1 victory over Mayville State Teachers. Gray hurled five-hit ball for the winners.

Six Bison Trackmen Receive Letters
