Letter To The Editor Writer Asks Quick Action

In my opinion the demands of the students on the campus of NDAC are clearcut and eminently justified. We as students of the college want an administration that will provide personnel and facilities adequate to give us a high standard of training. We can not get that high standard of training in overcrowded class-rooms with underpaid and over worked instructors.

We demand an administration that will recognize the inadaquacies of NDAC and will do something about it NOW.

We want an administration that will make known the needs of the institution to the people of the state in so forceful a manner that the coming legislature will promise to build buildings, provide facilities and personnel that will give adequate training to the veterans who are returning from the service and the high school students who will enroll at the college in the years ahead.

We feel that it is not our responsibility to fix the blame for the present inadequacies on any individual or group of individuals. We believe in the function of the constituted authorities to fix that responsibility and to bring about such changes as are necessary to correct the situation.

Before the war students at our own institutions who were not satisfied could enroll in a college outside our state. That is not possible now. Most colleges are so crowded that they refuse to accept non-resident students or have raised the non-resident fees to a point where it is prohibitive to enter.

We are entirely dependent on the colleges of our own state for our education. When it appears that the facilities and personnel are not adequate to give us the training that we feel we are enitled to and the present administration seems not disposed to correct the situation we have but one course-to take our case to the people of the state who have the power to act.

Ibsen's 'Wild Duck' Convincingly Portrayed

The Little Country Theater's rives its powerful satiric quanti- charming bewilderment at this presentation of Henrik Ibsen's The Wild Duck Tuesday was a success in spite of the audience. Playing to a meager house whose reactions were definitely unpredictable, the play production was portrayed convincingly and well.

The Wild Duck is an outstanding example of Ibsen's famous series on realistic social dramas setting forth his doctrine of human values and his view of the individual in conflict with society.

The main snag was Alex Mac-Gibbon's tendency to play to his audience. An almost melodramatic strain showed up in his work of the second act.

Ibsen, in translation from its original Norwegian, loses a good their conversation in which Gregdeal of the naturalness and of expression found in the true version and the resulting lines become stilted and awkward to the listener.

With this in mind, it is not difficult to understand MacGibbon's struggle to remain in character and at the same time give any degree of naturalness to the role of Hjalmer.

But at the same time, the Senator Flaghorn tone to some of his more serious speeches, was the near ruin of the symbolic purpose of Hjalmer's role. Ibsen's theater technique de- with which she defined Gina's ties from emotions too basic and | maze of conflicting emotions and demanding for humor in all but very isolated instances where a touch of comedy relief is added.

As a newcomer to the boards of LCT, Kenneth Mick gave an exceptionally mature performance in the role of Old Ekdal, the grandfather. His even portrayal of this character remained consistant throughout the entire five acts.

More laurals go to the George Truesdell-Richard Olson team whose crisp enunciation and restraint gave added strength to the first and third acts. They immediately relieved the slight tension of the opening scene through ers confronts and defies his father. Truesdell's handling of the thinlyvailed sarcasm offered nice contrast to Olson's protesting indignation.

In the role of Hedvig, June Carlson maintained a good balance between over emotional adolescence and the bewildered grief of a young wo-

Salute to the outstanding performance of the production goes to Ruth Wilhan in the role of Gina Ekdal. This casting choice seemed to exemplify what directors term a "natural." The ease

Gregor's impassioned arguments for "the claim of the ideal," required definite insight as to the aim of Ibsen's doctrine.

Congratulations go also to the property and costuming committees who did an excellent job on the settings for the final play produced this season by LCT.

A play of this nature is rather a departure from those preceeding it this season, and if audience reaction can be accurately diagnosed, it would appear to be high time more of these productions were scheduled.-J. T.

eard About The Herd

By Kenneth Sachs

RIGHT NOW

it looks as if MSTC and Jamestown College will fight it out for top honors in the six-team track meet at MSTC this afternoon but its entirely possible that one of the other teams will slip into first while the Dragons and Jimmies are busy cutting each other's

Both teams have been winning their meets easily this year with well-rounded squads. However, today's affair will be the first meeting between the two and its entirely possible that they will split up enough points to allow one of the other teams to edge both of them out.

The Herd is in a very good position to do just that. Strong in field events but short on runners, Coach Ernie Kaiser's crew may make a battle for it. Ellendale, with its one-man whirlwind, Les Lacher, can't be counted out of the race either. If he continues his high-scoring pace, Lacher could mean the difference for El-

Two mainstays of the Bison track squad this year, Dick Hilden and Jerry Mulready will be out to keep their undefeated records at MSTC today. Hilden has soared to three successive first places in the pole vault while Mulready has been copping the discus and shot regularly.

Hilden is playing next to one of his old Moorhead high school mates, Wally Solien, on the Detroit Lakes baseball team. Both played their first game Sunday with Solien at short and Hilden at the hot-corner.

THETA CHI

has jumped into the favorite's role in the intramural softball league. Behind the effective pitching of Stephenson, the Theta Chi ten has rolled up two victories and right now they look like the class of the league.

Golf Tournament In Second Round

The Intramural golf tournament goes into the second round today with all contestants given until next Wednesday to complete these matches.

Teichman, Hare, Dady and Sturgeon have advanced on firstround forfeits and this week's matches find Teichman playing Hare and Dady playing Sturgeon. Other results were turned in too late to be printed but may be obtained by calling at the Field-

University Alumni Campaigning For New Fieldhouse

Alumni of the University of North Dakota are working hard this spring in an effort to gain a legislative sanction for a new fieldhouse on the campus. Although other buildings are also being asked for at the same time, the group feels that a fieldhouse is more urgent than any of the other Officials and the athletic board of control want to reorganize the entire athletic setup with the idea of offering work in physical education leading to degrees.

The armory, now used as the athletic building, has proved extremely inadequate. Only a limited number of sports fans have been able to attend home games because of the limited seating accommodations.

Girls Rifle Classes Begin This Afternoon

Beginning today rifle classes for girls trying out for the girls' rifle team will be held every Tuesday and Thursday. Two classes will meet each day, one at 4:15 and the second at 5:15.

There will be about 10 girls in each of the four classes which are under the direction of Sgt. Allebach of the military department on the campus.

Herd Closes 1946 Track Season In Six-Team Meet At MSTC Today

Bison Place Third At Jamestown

Jamestown college, competing on its home track, had too much all-around strength last Friday, rolling up 67 1-3 points to win the pentangular meet held at the college as a highlight of Senior day.

Ellendale Normal, led by its star Leo Lacher, gave the Jimmies a fight all the way, but finished second with 50 points. NDAC was third with 30 followed by Aberdeen Northern Teachers with 8 1-3 and Concordia with 5 1-3.

Lacher was the top scorer of the meet amassing 26 points on firsts in the 100, 220, high and low hurdles; a tie for second in the high jump; a third in the discus and a fourth in the shot. Erwin Johnson of Jamestown came in second in the individual scoring race with 16% markers. Jerry Mulready of the Bison and Don Hendrickson of Jamestown tied for third with 10 counters.

A strong wind hampered the athletes no little and as a result the marks were poorer than usual.
