Cooperation between students, faculty and committee have made Tryota's share in the National Clothing Drive a successful part of this great undertaking. The committee, Janice Bergeson, chairman, made collections from April 1 to 30. Final results of the campaign were summarized on Thursday evening, April 26, when the clothing was packed in Ceres Hall.

Heading the list according to quantity were dresses, of which there were fifty-eight. As contributions were mostly from students, the number of dresses would seem to indicate a continued style trend toward the favorite sweater and skirt combination. But, surprisingly enough, thirty-nine sweaters and twenty-one skirts took second and third places respectively on the list. Could it be that sweaters and skirts are really on their way out? Well, could be. But on the other hand, perhaps the girls are purposely creating a gap in their wardrobes to make room for some new additions. Time will tell.

Twenty headscarfs and caps found their way into the total

Apparently spring is really here, and those long cold winter walks in an ear-freezing wind are now far away and forgotten, at least to twenty people. Seventeen coats also seem to indicate the optimism spring carries with it.

Seventeen pairs of socks, twelve pieces of underclothing, and fifteen infants' and children's garments formed a part of the collection which will undoubtedly be appreciated by some poor unfortunate war victims. The innocent little children are usually the ones who suffer most, and we want to help them most, although the things that we can do to help them seem inadequate. Ten blouses and nine pairs of shoes made their appearance

If whoever receives the shoes has craved them as much as the girl in the current movie, "Hotel Berlin", this part of the collection alone was worth the effort spent on the drive. Nine men's shirts, trousers, etc., and eight pairs of gloves and mittens were also present on the clothing pile, along with five jackets, two two-piece suits, two bathrobes, two pairs of girls' slacks, and hine miscellaneous items. In addition several more contributions, not included in this list, came in on Friday and Saturday, the last two days of the drive on which the committee

At this time the members of the committee wish to thank, in behalf of the needy peoples in this wartorn world, everyone who contributed a piece of clothing to the drive. Your contributions, together with those of your neighbors all over the United States, will help to save life and to restore the hope of many a distant neighbor who is much less fortunate than we .- N. Opportunity you on the head last week when I said that this column would be yours this week. But the doors of your minute brains, wits, what have you, remained shut. Let me never hear again gripes about the same people making copy week after week, now this column stinks.

&: No wonder John Slingsby has top honors on campus. He at least devoted five minutes trying to think of something to print. As Marvin Alberts said, "Cooperation is THE thing."

END: Bob Shirley is, in my opinion, a second George Truesdell. That is the highest complement I can pay any one who "trods the boards."

ODD: June's C card evidently ran out. Ottie is certainly having himself a time. Every night of every week-end he has a different female out. Someone said that Elna Moe has the inside track, however. &: Kathy Coleman is evidently trying to prove to every one why she is a member of Edwin Booth. Last Friday she performed for the Sig Chis. Last Saturday she performed for the SAEs. Popular opinion has it that she is making quite a name for herself.

don't please my folks too much; don't laugh at my jokes too much. People will say we're insane! And how right they would be no one but myself knows. But doesn't the spring affect everyone like this? I just want to jump on my magic carpet and fly away into the sky-blue pink atmosphere, leaving a trail of beautiful days to look back upon as I soar lazily along. Only I've had a little accident with that magic carpet. I snagged it while hedge-hopping over Old Main one day; and now I find Old Main has a Gaily festooned tower, and I haven't a rug to stand on.

Gaze back upon that sentence immediately preceding the final one in the last paragraph. It is indeed a passage of ethereal beauty, think ye not? I'm just a poet and don't know it. (But I've got two long fellows that show it.) All right, put away that shotgun. So it was corny; so what? After all, we're so surrounded by corn, either implied or stated, that we can hardly resist forever. Why, even Ceres Hall, our lovely girls' dormitoy, has derived its nomenclature from that of the goddess tell you! GLAD! (Time out to collect myself and the pennies my that poor girl's subconscious mind approving audience has thrown. Also the tomatoes. It's lucky I bread today.)

Whenever I get into one of these emotional moods, Uncle Louie's blood pressure rises, and he shouts disgustedly, "Oh, you make me boil"! Whereupon I answer, sweetly but firmly, "Oh, no, YOU make ME boil. You've got the pan for it!" Uncle Louie and I understand each other perfectly, even though we're not quite on the same mental level. You see, my parents were both half-wits, which makes me quite normal. But after all, Uncle

Don't throw bouquets at me; Louie can't help it, his parents were quarter-wits.

Speaking of wits, there are several kinds, as you probably know. They are, including those already mentioned, as follows: half, quarter, dim, and nit. There is also just a plain wit, but nobody pays much attention to him. The other types prove much more interestong as a rule. The nit type is a natural. Need more be said? He is happy and worries about nothing. In this respect (only, of course) he is like Uncle Louie. A good example of this type is the girl in Freshman Foods who tried to strain her custard through a meat grinder. The dim type is a close to a natural as can be created by outside forces. One of the girls in a certain clothing class seems to present to be well on the road toward dimwitticism. She is making a plaid dress, which, as you may or may not know, means matching plaids. The other night she had a dream and walked in her sleep. (Did you ever have a dream walking? Well, she did!)

I don't know if this is true—I don't want to believe it-but I hear that when members of this of grain—and isn't corn one of girl's family awoke and tried to the most common grains? There, get her back to bed, she said, I've said it! And I'm glad. Glad, "First plaids, and now YOU!" in her sleep, must be going through! Dim and nit types sometimes bought bacon and lettuce and get along much better than individuals with aspirations to just plain witdom. I have learned the hard way. When someone says to you, "I have a cold or something in my head, don't say, "A cold, undoubtedly." It pays to be ignorant.

Theta Chi made it two victories Monday night by downing a stubborn Sigma Alpha Epsilon team 14-9. The game was marked by an extremely high number of errors by both teams, with the losers outhitting their rivals 10 to 6.

SAE held the lead for the first two innings by 3-1 and 5-3 counts, respectively, but a six-run Theta Chi outburst, greatly aided by a series of walks in the third, was too much for them to overcome.

Warner started on the mound for the winners, but was relieved by Grove in the third, who finished. "Bus" Torgeson connected with a home run in the fourth for Theta Chi, while Nelson was the power of SAE, getting three for three.

This afternoon SAE will play Sigma Chi and next Monday Theta Chi again meets Sigma Chi.
