North Dakota will be represented at the 14th annual national convention of the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, Oct. 18 to 25, by a delegation of between 15 and 20 state FFA members, reports Ernest L. DeAlton, state advisor located at NDAC.

Heading the delegation will be Kirk Bellows of Devils Lake, state FFA president, and Donald Bahl of Mohall, North Dakota candidate for the American Farmer degree. These two boys are the official delegates. Bellows is a freshman and Bahl is sophomore in the NDAC School of Agriculture. Bahl is past president of the state FFA association.

Earl Walter of Starkweather, national student secretary of the FFA elected last year, will also attend the convention.

Department of Agriculture in coordinating and advancing the work of the National Poultry Improvement plan. He has been engaged in these duties, with headquarters in Beltsville, Maryland, since July 1, having been granted a leave of absence to Oct. 1.

O. A. Barton of the poultry department is in charge of extension poultry improvement activities at the present time, until Moore's successor is named.

ROTC Enrollment Shows Percentage Increase This Year

Although the total number of students enrolled in the ROTC is below last year's figure, the percentage of the total male enrollment in the corps is much higher, Maj. Charles Hart, jr., professor of military science and tactics, announced.

This year there are 576 men in military, 102 less than last year's total of 678. There are 304 freshmen, 81 per cent of the total number of freshmen students, in the corps as compared with 70 per cent a year ago; 187 sophomores, 63 per cent of the total; 41 juniors and 44 seniors.

A year ago there were 367 freshmen, 70 per cent of the total; 181 sophomores, 61 per cent; 35 juniors and 45 seniors.

THANK YOU!

The student commission wishes to offer its sincere thanks to all the students who cooperated in making this year's homecoming successful.

Clark Heggeness, President.

Bison Seeking Second Straight NCI Victory

First Lyceum Will Feature 'Romance In Old Mexico'

A closer feeling of kinship with our neighbor to the south will be achieved when the Little Country Theater Lyceum series presents the first number, Romance in Old Mexico, Wednesday, Oct. 22, at 8:15 in Festival hall. The production is under the personal direction of Col. Ricardo de Escamilla, world traveler and adventurer, who at the age of fourteen was a member of Pancho Vila's "Dorados."

This unusual program stars Senorita Greta Rubio, mezzo-soprano, a direct descendant of the Royal Incas, and possessing a marvelous singing voice and stage personality, as well as an eye for beauty in costuming.

Another feature of the program is Velma Montoya, brilliant Spanish and Mexican dancer. The graceful and gifted Senorita Montoya is a wizard with the castanets, and her dancing is compared with that of the world famed Argentinita. The Charro Marimba orchestra accompanies the singing and dancing.

Col. de Escamilla tells hair-raising and often humorous adventure tales, the orchestra gives its rendition, the singer makes it vocal and the dancer interprets it. Brilliant and authentic Mexican and Indian costumes add to the color of the program. This is the premiere American tour of the troupe, following several years of successful European and South American engagements.

Cast Announced For Production Of Toby Tyler

Cast for James Otis' Toby Tyler, a three-act comedy-drama to be presented in the Little Country Theatre Wednesday evening, November 5, is announced by Jack Knapp, director.

Playing the leading role will be Del Colwell as Toby. Supporting him are Charles Brant as Hugo Weller, a sideshow Barker; Dorothy Jensen as Mabel, the ticket-seller; Robert Pile as Job Lord, the lemonade stand operator; Edward Kasner as John Martin, a hunter.

Circus personalities are Ben, the strong man, John Logan; Lilly Treat, the fattest woman in the world, Phyllis Carlson; her husband, Mr. Treat, John Emo; Ella, a young equestrienne, Beverly Nelson; a young personality in the troupe, Betty Ann Manley; Mr. Castle, the ringmaster, George Truesdale; Madame Zita, the bearded lady, Harriet Bartz; Mademoiselle Spelletti, a snake charmer, Genevieve Kennedy; the Cushing sisters, Siamese twins, Grace Colberg and Carolyn Thompson.

Assisting Mr. Knapp in production are Betty Lou Pannebaker, stage manager, and Howard Leikvold, properties.

Squad Faces Omaha Indians On Dacotah Field Tomorrow At 2

NDAC's Bison football team will seek its second straight North Central conference victory tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m. on Dacotah field when the Herd faces the Omaha university Indians in the final home game of the season.

Last week's 25-0 win over the Bunnies from South Dakota State has given the morale of the Bison team a decided uplift. Kostka's men have gone to work this week in practice with the desire to continue along the trail they attained last Saturday.

MATHEWS STAR

Big gun in the visitor's attack will be Bob Matthews. This shifty quarterback has been the 'whole show' so far this year for Coach Sed Hartman's crew which has two victories to its credit—one of them over the same team that lost to the Bison last week. His fine running on a treacherous field in the Jackrabbit game was the margin of victory for the Indians and marked him as the man to watch in tomorrow's tussle.

All members of the Bison squad are expected to be ready for the final home contest.

LARAWAY READY

Don Laraway, sophomore guard, didn't see action in the homecoming game but the shoulder injury he has been nursing has responded to treatment and he did some work in scrimmage Wednesday. Charlie Scott twisted an ankle early in the week but is expected to be ready to go at kickoff time tomorrow.

Master Of Artisans

Knows Both Iron And Poetry Within

Colorful, yet typical, are the fourscore years and ten which add up to make Haile Chisholm's life worthy of tribute. When a man reaches the ninety mark, there is just cause for celebration. And Haile Chisholm, college blacksmith, attains that venerable age next Wednesday at which time he will be honored by the Little Country Theater and friends at a banquet.

Possessor of a unique degree is Mr. Chisholm. He was awarded the degree "Master of Artisans" by the late John Shepperd and Lorado Taft, noted American sculptor. In addition Mr. Chisholm has been acclaimed by the State Supreme court, the state legislature and the state board of education as a man "who not only knows iron, but also knows the art and poetry hidden in it."

Packed into his ninety years of experience are a wealth and variety of experiences. Born October 22, 1851 in Chazy, 14 miles from Plattsburg, New York, Mr.

Chisholm has lived through the Civil war, first World war, and now the present World war and still maintains the delightful sense of humor and human understanding which is evident in his autobiography, recently completed.

Of Scotch ancestry, our venerable "old man of iron" followed in the footsteps of his father who was the village smithy in Chazy. Because his parents considered him rather weak, young Haile attended school only when and if he chose, supplementing his education by apprenticing in his father's shop. Probably a bit of curiosity and a desire for learning led him to read, unknown to his family and after chores, the "Lady of the Lake" which still holds a great fascination for him. "Doubtless some of the tasks got but a lick and a promise, but how I feasted on the contents of that book, lived with Fair Ellen, Malcolm, Fitz-James and Doderick Dhu" he explained.

One of eight children, Haile loves to recount his experiences with early "rod and rule" masters.

Because the milder pupils attended school during the summer, lady teachers were employed. However, during the winter the advanced students (really advanced thugs) took possession, necessitating a change in faculty. A teacher lasted only as long and as strong as his muscle. When he proved unequal to the thugs, some young Atlas replaced him who was able to quell the "advanced pupils."

In the fall of 1902 Haile Chisholm came to NDAC. From then on until 1937 when he retired he served the college as instructor in forging and metal work. Finally deafness due to the din and clatter of hammer and machine led to his retirement in 1937 at the sprightly age of 85.

So to a man who has reached the ninety mark, who has attained worldly wisdom through long years of real living and who to the students and faculty of NDAC remains the "grand old man of the campus" we pay tribute. Hats off to Haile Chisholm!

An Editorial

The Board of Publications control to most of us represents our voice in the control of campus publications. Long known as one of the most democratic, fair-dealing, and efficient boards on the campus, it is popular with the student body not only for its merits but because students have a representation on it.

Concerning the Spectre incident, students are aroused—not because they refuse to admit that certain of their members were in the wrong and merited punishment, but rather because they feel that the offense did not warrant the punishment prescribed.

It is a fact that upon request from the administration, the Board of Publications, under whose jurisdiction the matter naturally fell, made a recommendation to the administration as to how the matter might be handled. Apparently, the advisory council felt that the punishment recommended by this board, consisting of both faculty and student representatives, was not severe enough.

Naturally quick to assume that their rights were being impinged, the students were bound to resent an edict that overruled the recommendations of the board upon which they were represented.

We commend the administration for realizing that student dissent is to some extent justified and for reopening consideration on the question with the hope that a more satisfactory settlement may be affected.

A Job Well Done

Thanks are due members of the student commission for one of the finest homecomings seen on this campus for many years. After getting off to a bad start with the queen election, commissioners pulled the iron out of the fire and came through with a real celebration. The precedent they set by bringing a big-name band for the closing event, the homecoming dance, is one which should be followed annually.

There Goes My Date Again

"Here comes Friday night again, and still no date!" hollers Gertie Gab, who really should have a date, as she was elected "Miss Agriculture of 1941." Is this your tune as the weekend approaches? If it is, what are you going to do about it?

Most people avoid admitting that it makes any difference to them, by remarking sarcastically, "Do you think I go to college to have fun or to learn something?" Quit bluffin', sisters or brothers (as the case may be),—I know what you come here for.

As the man told the turtle in his soup, "It would be advisable for you to emerge from your calcareous exterior covering" or "You better come out of your shell." It's not so hard, according to various glittering glamor-pantses, to develop the kind of personality that is good company. We might begin with a topic near to everyone's heart—his stomach. Remember the saying, "Man cannot live by bread alone, he must also have steaks, potatoes, gravy and pie." Well, this can be practiced with excellent results by both boys and girls.

Joe, don't climax your so-far nice evening by inviting Gertie to 'have a coke.' Chances are you only go out about once a week, so be a wee bit generous. And, Gertie, you too can loosen up a little. Have him over to your house once in a while—maybe for dinner or at least an evening lunch.

Don't go out if you're tired, either of you! There is nothing that spoils an evening quicker than the yawning person who "doesn't want to dance, doesn't want to go to the game, doesn't want to bowl." Fatigue may be your reason, but "dead-pan" will be his deduction.

Supposing you do want to ask Gertie for a date next weekend, Joe. Don't wait until Friday morning in trig class like you usually do. Call her up Monday or Tuesday—even if it does cause a riot in the dorm. Otherwise she'll think that she's your last resort. Knowing women, you surely realize that that would never do.

One last word to you, Gertie. When "Romeo" is with a bunch of the fellows, pleeeez don't run up to him and play gog-goo. He doesn't like it, they don't like it, nobody likes it—that is, in public.

Snyder's Side-Kicks

Well, homecoming is over again. But I still have some fond memories of all the fine things such as the game, the dance, and the skit contest. I think the really big thing this year was that dance. It was the first time that a big name band played here for a homecoming dance and did Herbie Kay draw a crowd. Boy, I've never seen such a mob at a school function!

When I walked into the Field house for the dance I ran into the mob in the lobby. I got in the line moving toward the ticket window and before I got to the box-office I had to wash my hands three times.

At the dance itself I got kicked in the shins so many times that Sunday I felt like a bridge tournament champion.

The biggest traffic jam of the night was on the stairway going up the check-room. One boy forgot to get out his coat-check till he got halfway up the stairs, so he kept reaching down into his pocket trying to get it. Incidentally, he came out about 200 dollars to the good.

The students that went to the skit contest last Friday will always remember Ann Murphy standing out on the stage holding a candle and telling jokes. It was the first time in history that a comedienne ever laid candled eggs.

The boys building that new lab for the engineers are really working like beavers. On second thought they should have hired beavers for the job. They would have finished the job in two years.

Sorority Pledges Elect New Officers

New Phi Mu pledge officers are Dorothy Nelson, president; Myrtle Dale, vice president; Charlotte Kent, secretary, and Louella Nystul, treasurer.

Kappa Deltas elected Lois Johnson, president; Betty Dickson, vice president; Betty Loomis, secretary; Mary Jean Fehr, treasurer.

Dorothy Myhra heads the Kappa pledge group for the year assisted by vice president Mary Bristol, secretary Joan Klinsmann, and treasurer Margaret Johnson.

College students over the country are estimated to earn more than $32,000,000 a year.

After The Orphan

By WILDER WYLIE

Well, homecoming was really quite a success. The team won a game, the governor got the crown on right side up, and Jim Ford had a date. I don't know what more we could ask for without getting it censored.

We really do think that Herbie Kay might have smiled just once, but then we must remember that he did attend the Queen's banquet. I had the same kind of trouble afterwards and can sympathize with him.

I hate to be the type to gripe about crowds, but I traded dances on the second number and didn't see my date again until Wednesday afternoon. She still claims she didn't get out of the Field house until that morning. I don't know whether to believe her or not. I got out late Sunday afternoon and I'm going back tomorrow and look for my other shoe.

By the way, Boney Rothrock tells us that the guy that took the battery out of his car last Saturday night wasn't so smart after all. He says the car goes five miles an hour faster without that added weight. More power to you, Boney, and don't let anyone tell you that eight miles an hour isn't plenty fast enough. At least in that car you don't have to take the long way home.

The Pops had their first open house last Wednesday, and all the guests reported they had a swell time. (At least I enjoyed myself and the other fellow said he had a good time. The girls offered to finish delivering papers for the Forum boy if he'd stay, but he couldn't on account of regulations, so the two of us just played rummy. It was fun though and they were only one short on the coffee and cake.

Not Cricket

Bull By The Bucketful

By Crockett

After a storm there comes either a lull or another storm. This week we get both and if you don't think there are weeks in which nothing makes headline material, then you should be in the business.

On such weeks you shy away from a phone like a Concordian passing the Crystal. If it isn't the printer howling copy, it's some reporter who's had his nose to the ground ever since Monday and is so sensitive about all he's done for nothing that he'll go berserk if he hears you yawn over the wire.

The Last One

Tomorrow the Bison play their last home game and while to many of us the event holds no special significance, five seniors will be out there doing a lot of reflecting on the four years they've spent in attempting to make a crowd of thrill hungry students happy by producing a win.

Whether they win, lose, or draw this one, it will be their day and they deserve all the recognition we can give them.

Dear Bud:

You never in your life saw such a place as this college. You thought that Tuttle was a dead hole to lead an existence in, but you just haven't lived until you see the antics some of these coke slurping, convo skipping clothes-horses go through to get amused and stay that way.

Start counting your dough, kid, so you can get down here and attend a presentation tea. Real nonchalant like one of the fellas tells me I am supposed to ankle on down to one of the sororities and meet their pledges. I argue a little but since I can't see any harm in shaking hands I finally agree to make a showing.

Do I find a nice informal atmosphere to make me feel at ease when I get there? I do not! There is so much starch in the air I can hardly breath. So many girls in long skirts I never did see before. I float down the line hanging on my flaming ears and forget the names faster than they stumble through them. About the time I am ready to scream for air, they hand me a cup of varnish remover and show me a plate of something that looks like a fairly decent-sized cookie that got broken up into too many small pieces.

By the time we got around to the guest register and they asked me to sign, I was so flustered I had to look at my draft card to make sure. They are really cultural though, kid, and if you are ever in doubt, don't ever buy a 14 1/2 shirt when you need a 15.

Love, Elmer.

Omaha Team Seeks To Repeat Last Year's Win Over Bison

This week the Bison squad will entertain the University of Omaha on Dacotah field. The Indians have always been a hard-hitting eleven and they plan to make no exceptions this season. Last season they defeated the Herd in a thrill-packed game by the score of 14-7, and Mr. Kostka's men certainly don't intend to let that become a habit.

SQUAD IMPROVED

Although many of the Redmen are a bit green and inexperienced this year, they have improved mightily since their opening game with the powerful Marshall college team at Huntington, West Virginia, where they were crushed, 62-6.

Coached by wily Sed Hartman, a veteran of eleven years at Omaha, the Indians played Idaho Southern to a scoreless tie in their second game and then went on to defeat South Dakota State, 12-0. Incidentally, both of these games were played in blinding rain storms. Last week the Indians beat Simpson college, 20-0.

OUTSTANDING MEN

Some of the outstanding men on the squad are Frank Catania, a stellar blocking back and slippery ball carrier; at left end there is Jerry Dutcher, six foot two and born with glue on his fingers; senior Frank Hodak fills the positions of left guard and alternate captain very capably.

Francis Hernandez, of Mexican descent and glad of it, fills the position of left tackle and he really fills it. This veritable giant stands six-foot three and is reputedly the toughest man on the club.

Omaha has a tall rangy team this year, seven of the starting eleven being six-foot or over.

A VETERAN of three seasons' play on the Bison football team, Joel Nelson, quarterback, is one of five seniors who will wear the Yellow and Green for the last time before a home crowd in the game against Omaha tomorrow afternoon.

Five Seniors To Appear In Final Home Game

Trotting out on Dacotah field for the last time, five seniors wearing the Yellow and the Green, play their final home game against Omaha tomorrow afternoon.

ONE BACK

Of the five, Nelson is the only backfield man and he served in forward wall when he first came to NDAC.

Snowberg, a civil engineer from Fergus Falls, Minn., has been playing at the end post for the last three seasons and has done a mighty nice job of it.

Coming all the way from Gliden, Wis., to play with the Bison and enjoying every minute of actual game time, Pat Twomey has seen action at three different positions. Twomey spent his first two campaigns on the varsity as a center but this year was shifted to tackle and now is stationed at end.

Nelson, the lone backfield man, hails from Grafton and likes the feel of a good hard block. 'Zip' as he's known by his teammates is not only a brainy field general but carries his ability right into the classroom.

Fulks from Warren, Minn., is capable of taking and giving a lot of punishment. Johnson is another big husky lineman that does his chores at the all-important tackle position. The big boy, who hails from Milnor, served his sophomore year as a reserve and last season was hindered by injuries. However, this season, Johnson has proven valuable as a first line reserve.

FULKS FROM WARREN

Handicapped during spring practice by an arm broken last season, Fulks has taken up where he left off before the injury and now holds first call on the right guard position in the Bison line.
