How does architecture link disconnected communities through the medium of architecture. Architecture links isolated urban environments by designing for communities in growing urban neighborhoods, and establishes an environment for healthy well-being. The architecture should enhance the mission and underlying mission of faith which united them. This comnunications within the community center and church.

The site is a key location for a community center within a well-being. The architecture should enhance this con-functions in respect to physical, emotional and spiritual needs for a variety of clients, was discovered in the un-our potential to perform well is limited. Buildings should provide an environment for these three basic needs,