THOSE RESOLUTIONS

Now that Christmas is over (even though the scent of lilac perfume, price 10c, still prevails) before us stretches 1934, a clean page of an unexplored region, untasted and unknown!

Even though resolutions simply aren't being made in this day and age (so says the Freshman), I find that there are a great many who still keep up this pleasant little custom, and especially prepared lists of resolutions for the average student may be had at most any service station.

One of our makers-of-whoopie has presented this list: I do hereby swear to: (1) read not more than one humor, one true story, and one western magazine a week; (2) swipe only the best hair-oil from my frat. brothers; (3) study with actual text books and cut no classes; (4) forget about resolution number (3).

Montana State, Bison Clash Last Evening In Forensic Contest

Howard Kilbourne And Adeline Naftalin Form Team For Season's First Meet

The first intercollegiate debate of the season for North Dakota State college was held last night, Jan. 4, in the Little Country theater with representatives of Montana State college, Bozeman. It was a non-decision debate on the question: "Resolved: That the powers of the president of the United States should be substantially increased as a matter of settled policy."

This was the fourteenth annual debate between the two colleges. Last year the North Dakota State team journeyed to Bozeman, while this year the Montana team, consisting of Ben Law and Sam Eagle, came to Fargo.

The personnel of the North Dakota State team consisted of Adeline Naftalin and Howard Kilbourne. This was the first time either of them had debated against Montana State. Miss Naftalin, a freshman in science and literature, has had considerable declamation and debating experience in high school. This fall she was a member of the freshman class debate team. Kilbourne is a junior in science and literature and has taken active part in forensic and journalistic work at North Dakota State college, and has also taken part in a number of college and community debates, including the debate with the University of North Dakota last year.

Clifford Maloney, commissioner of public speaking, acted as chairman. A vocal solo was presented by Eunice Conlon, accompanied by Grace South.

Pi Gamma Mu Meeting Discusses Economics

"Trends in Economic Organization" will be the topic for discussion when Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science group, meets in the faculty alumni rooms in Old Main, Thursday, Jan. 11, 1934, at 7:30.

Milton Holtmeier will be chairman of the meeting with Paul Zerby as adviser. The committee in charge is composed of E. W. Pettee, William Heller, Jack Vincent, Clifford Maloney, and Don Fredrickson.

The organization has invited as special guests or the evening the following groups: Blue Key, engineering clubs, faculties of chemistry, mechanic arts and pharmacy schools, Alpha Phi Omega, and Lincoln Forensic club.

Irwin Dietrich and George Kafton are visiting at the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity.

Yearbook Staff Sponsors Dance And Program

Hank And Morrie Olson Entertain With Skit At Assembly Next Wednesday

AFTERNOON HOP FOLLOWS

Staff Of College Annual Is Originator Of Program For Students

A convocation featuring Hank and Morrie Olson in a skit, and a dance in Festival hall from four to six p. m. is being sponsored for next Wednesday January 10, by the staff of The Bison, North Dakota State college yearbook.

The skit will be a student talent skit, according to those in charge. Several of the numbers in the skit will be original songs by the Olson brothers, well-known Fargo entertainers and former State college students. A program will also be presented at the dance.

According to Jane Nichols, editor of The Bison, and Ken Hamry, business manager, "The purpose of the convocation and dance is to create an interest in The Bison and to stimulate cut sales for the yearbook, as well as to increase cooperation between the staff of The Bison and the remainder of the student body."

"We hope the students will recognize our attempt at promoting an interest in their yearbook and that the result will be a hundred per cent turnout for both the convocation and the dance."

Morocco To Be Locale Of Beaux Art Masquerade On January 13

Festival Hall Is Transformed Into Oriental Market For Party Next Saturday

Guests at the Beaux Art Masquerade to be staged on Saturday, Jan. 13, by Atelier Chat Noir, architects' club, and the Art club, women's honorary art organization, will find themselves in old Morocco for the evening.

Festival hall, scene of the party, will be decorated to give the effect of a Moroccan market place at night. Bazaars and shops are to be constructed around the sides of the hall, and on the stage, where the orchestra will play. Guests dressed as Oriental traders will through the floor, the result to be a distinctly Oriental atmosphere, according to those in charge of the Masquerade.

A false ceiling will represent an evening sky and lighting will be furnished by the street lights and lights from the shop windows. All guests will appear in costume and masked, to unmask after the grand march. Prizes will be awarded to the most appropriately and artistically costumed couple.

William Akeley and Amy Glaser, representing Atelier Chat Noir and the Art club respectively, are in charge of the affair, and their assistants include Sally Hunkins, Cathryn Marcks, Harold Sorenson, Dallas Rudrud, Walter McGrath, Jeanette McComb, Prudence Yager, Marion Van Vorst, Betty Russell, Lois Rudrud, Virginia Schonberg, Courtney Cannon, Kaare Rosenberg, Alyce Connolly, Erlis Hill, and Imogene Ward.

Student bachelors, taking advantage of the "baching" service offered last fall in the Men's dormitory at the North Dakota State college, have secured board at $1.62 per week per man, according to a check-up on the expenditures of the "baching" students.

NOTICE

There will be a Gamma Tau Sigma meeting Tuesday noon in the little dining room at Ceres hall.

Jack Mills Will Furnish Music At Military Ball

South Dakota Musicians Play At Annual Affair In Field House January 26

BRING AMPLIFYING SYSTEM

Military Suits Proper Wear At Function For Basic Course Students

Students of North Dakota State college will dance to the music of Jack Mills and his fourteen-piece orchestra at the Military ball, annual social function sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, honorary military organization, Jan. 26 at the Field house, announces Hartley Eckstrom, ball manager.

This Sioux Falls, South Dakota orchestra has in its possession a fifteen hundred dollar amplification system which will be effective in producing the proper sound effects in the Field house.

The prices for the event are the lowest ever, it was announced by Maitland Wyard today. All the cadet officers are to wear their military uniforms and it is urged that members of the basic courses do likewise, although they may wear tuxedos as will the rest of the guests.

Dancing will continue until one o'clock under a new ruling recently made, it is announced.

Vincent Buck is assistant manager of the affair, while the various committee heads are John Gabe, Maitland Wyard, Robert Thompson, Boniface Horgan, Harry Hanson, Otto Woodward, William Thies, and Jordan Engberg.

Frieda Panimon Makes All-time State College Scholastic Record

RESOLVED: COLD WEATHER IS DETRIMENTAL

Don't be discouraged because the water main is frozen. There are sadder cases than yours, and just to prove that there is nothing Pollyannaish about us, here are some of them. (Names omitted on request.)

Morbid incidents, the most common being to fall in the snow, have brought tears to the eyes of many sympathetic onlookers. The saddest sight is to see our most up and coming debutantes patiently awaiting a ride home.

Frost bitten ears are reported to be the cause of much tardiness among the freshmen. More ingenious people attribute this fault to frozen alarm clocks, while one senior was late because his fingers were so stiff that he couldn't open the door (to the lecture room—by the way.)

In short there is only one bright spot in the whole gloomy affair. There is an opening for some business man who could sell asbestos covers to radiator lovers.

Hartley Eckstrom Places Second On List With 95.9 Mark For Fall Term Work

COLLEGE AVERAGE IS 80

Women Students Outrank Men In Scholarship Last Term, 82.1 to 79.1

With an average of 97.7, the highest ever made at North Dakota State college, Frieda Panimon, sophomore in science and literature, heads the honor roll for the fall term, according to a report issued by the registrar. The previous high average was 97.5. Hartley Eckstrom, senior in chemistry and engineering, was second with 95.9. Arvin Hoge, freshman in science and literature, placed third with 95.6.

Others in the first ten in the order in which they ranked are: Roy Simonson, senior in agriculture, 95.5; William Johnson, sophomore in agriculture, 94.8; Donald Scott, junior in agriculture, 94.6; Bjorne Dahl, sophomore in pharmacy, 93.9; Harlan Winn, junior in civil engineering, 93.9; William Clark, junior in science and literature, 93.6; Adeline Naftalin, freshman in science and literature, 93.3.

College women made an average of 82.1 as compared with an average of 79.1 by college men. The general average for all regular undergraduates was 80.0. The school of agriculture, with an average of 81.6, topped the averages for the various schools of the college.

In the college training high school the highest average was Clifford Forkert's of 92.6, followed by Henry Zeien, 91.7, Margareth Holmquist, 90.5; Earl Hansen, 90.3; Evelyn Beaton, 89.6; Verdine Rice, 88.7; Katherine McCamy, 88.5; Wallace Beaton, 86.8; Emily Meyer, 86.2; and Helen Dahly, 85.5.

Spectrum Reporters Led For Fall Term By Genevieve Lind

Jack Spalding, Gladys Stevenson Second And Third In Amount Of Work Turned In

The following Cubs were in the highest scoring positions for the fall term (they are not the Chicago variety nor are they the playful sons and daughters of Bruin, but The Spectrum gatherers of news): Genevieve Lind in first place, with the highest number of column inches printed, and Jack Spalding a close second. Gladys Stevenson holds third place, followed by Harry Graves, fourth, and Adeline Naftalin, Marjorie Laliberte, Orville Gopen, William Murphy, William Kneeland, and Lennea Frisk.

These ten contributed the most column inches of copy published in The Spectrum for the fall term among the reporters. Because of the necessity for more efficiency, states Editor Monson, the staff will be cut to ten, whereas fifteen official reporters now cover campus events.

The editor will start all reporters on a new and dead level this term to determine who will stand in first place at the end of the winter term. As an added inducement, he further states, enterprising "cubs" are slated for promotion in the spring term. So, "cubs", let's see the fire in your eye.

Kidder County Boy New 4H President

Elected to head the 4-H clubs of the state of North Dakota for the coming year was Marvin Rothi of Braddock, Kidder County, when 396 members from 31 counties met for their annual Achievement Institute at the North Dakota State college last month.

Jeanella McCormick, Tioga, Williams county, was elected vice-president; Harriet Morris, Clyde, Cavalier county, secretary; and Victor Anderson, Penn, Ramsey county, treasurer.

The healthiest North Dakota 4-H club boy and girl were Hartley Walker, Bowbells, Burke county, and Marion Carlton, Hebron, Morton county. Williams county songbirds captured first position in the county song contest, with Stutsman and Ward counties second and third place winners.

Five girls received blue ribbons in the good grooming contest at the Institute. They were Elizabeth Gunderson, Hoople, Walsh county; Marjorie DeVany, Devils Lake, Ramsey county; Lucille Bryson, Grand Forks, Grand Forks county; Sylvia Hanson, Arnegard, McKenzie county; and Emily Overlander, Montpelier, Stutsman county.

Men To Entertain At Senior Staff Party

Girls Do The Date-Asking For "Spinster Skip" Dance This Evening

Male entertainment at the expense of the women is the highlight of the traditional "Spinster Skip" women's date dance sponsored by Senior Staff, senior women's honorary society, tonight in Festival hall.

Each fraternity and the male section of the Cosmopolitan club will compete for honors in presenting three-minute skits. They will be judged on cleverness, originality, and degree of entertainment.

The Senior Staff, senior women's service organization, stages one dance each term, the proceeds being used for a scholarship awarded in the spring term. Characterized by the women's choosing their boy friends and making the dates, these dances have proven very popular in the past. Tickets for this term's dance are priced at 50 cents a couple, and the hours are from 9:00 to 11:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sackett, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kuhn will be faculty guests, according to the committee in charge of arrangements, including Virginia Garberg, Margaret Olson, and Olive Ringen.

Material Due Feb. 1 For First Collegian

Material for The Collegian, Fargo-Moorhead student publication, must be in by Thursday, Feb. 1, for the initial issue of the magazine, to appear Feb. 12, states Ruth Clausen, associate editor on the North Dakota State college campus.

North Dakota State college material, which all students are encouraged to furnish, is being collected by Miss Clausen. Other associate editors are Wilson Dokken, from the Moorhead State Teachers' college and Robert Korstad from Concordia. Editor-in-chief is Leonard Eid and business manager is Reuben Reiersgard, Concordia.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

This is a trite subject for college editorials, and perhaps students are tired of reading about it; but the problem of extra-curricular activities on most campuses is so acute that we deem it necessary to take the journalistic pen in hand once more and present our views, such as they are, on the subject.

The more ambitious and, as a rule, talented students on the campus are fairly swamped with outside activities. For almost any curriculum there is one or more club or fraternity; for each type of extracurricular work there is likewise a club or fraternity. Then, there are such activities as the school paper, the annual, the YMCA and YWCA, the military and class balls, and a host of other social events, to further harrass and bother the activity-crowded student.

The average student, if he finds it at all possible to do so, will join as many clubs and honoraries and partake in as many outside activities as he can, with no accomplishment as far as he is concerned except a string of activities after his name in the annual, or his name or picture in the newspaper.

Each campus organization, each form of extra-class activity, has a noble and honorable and apparently necessary cause behind its inception. Read the constitutions and listen to what is said at various meetings if you don't think so.

No one can hope to keep up with any more than one or two outside activities and do them justice. That is the reason why so many clubs and fraternities, originally founded with the best intentions, has failed or reached the stagnant point. None of their members have the time to spend on them to carry out these intentions. We can think of several students on this campus who, seemingly blest with numerous extra-curricular activities, at the expense of their class work and the expenditure of their time, fail to shine in any activity or to do themselves honor scholastically. However, they do take refuge by pointing with pride to the number of their activities.

With every organization, there is a certain amount of expense connected. To a student belonging to several clubs and fraternities, this is bound to amount to a considerable drain on the pocket-book. Furthermore, this same expense means that some groups, in order to take in revenue, will ask students to join who really are neither fitted to join nor deserving of membership.

The number of activities a student can take part in certainly should be limited in number. Getting a certain number of credits, whether it should or should not be, is the prime reason for attending college, not getting an almost equal number of extra-curriculum units. Cutting down in this way would serve to increase the selectivity as well as the serviceability of each type of outside work, and at the same time would enable the average student to spend more time on his studies.

A NEW POLICY

There is one thing, we think, that journalists should shy away from, and that's clumsiness. As far as The Spectrum is concerned, material is meant to be kept from being cumbersome, and the staff is constantly laboring toward that end.

We have on this campus a building constructed recently known in campus parlance as the "new gym", more recently the "gym". Its official title is the "physical education building," a title exactly twenty-nine spaces long on the typewriter and requiring about three or more seconds to be rolled off the tongue. Perhaps it may be accurate to the extreme, and even important-sounding; but every time we use it we feel like there has been a vast and unnecessary expenditure of time and energy. To make it less of a strain on our feelings, we think that a new name, as far as journalism goes at least, must be adopted.

"Field house" is the cognomen we have decided on and from now on it is to be used in the columns of The Spectrum. We think it has a fairly accurate meaning, is in common use throughout the country, and lends itself beautifully to journalistic use. And, when we need to be more specific, we can say "North Dakota State college field house" rather than "North Dakota State college physical education building."

Student Opinion....

THE BISON

The students on this campus do not become actively aware of the college annual, The Bison, until the day it is issued in the spring. Yet it is now in the process of being made up, the editor and her assistants working nearly every day during the Christmas holidays.

Just as sure as the fact that it will come out a few days before the summer vacation, is the fact that many students will feel disgruntled because their pictures will not be in the individual cut section. Gripses are heard every year on this account, The Bison staff, it would seem, being always to blame. Nevertheless, it is the individual student's fault and not The Bison editor's.

The business staff is now pushing sales with an eye on the approaching deadline set by the printer. Don't put the salesmen off until the last minute, forget the matter entirely, and then blame those same salesmen next spring. Give the affair serious consideration, and decide to be represented in the class section, YOUR section!—F.N.

MONTANA CONGRESSWOMAN SPEAKS AT CONVOCATION

Jeanette Rankin, Missoula, former congresswoman from Montana and the first woman ever elected to Congress, addressed students of North Dakota State college at convocation Thursday. At present Miss Rankin is associate secretary for the National Council for the Prevention of War and in her talk complimented the stand of Senator Frazier of North Dakota, who has introduced an amendment to the constitution to make it impossible for Congress to declare war.

College students of today are superior physically to student generation of the past, a Harvard University survey announces.

Bison Briefs

Just dropped in as a pinch-hitter until the editor finds someone fool enough to volunteer as the Spectrum's nasty man. Now, brethren and sistern, here's a swell chance for you to become obnoxious overnight. No experience necessary. Just bring an honest face—and a sneer. A columnist must never smile, with one exception: When the editor says, "Now that's a little shady—better go easy on the Kappas"; then you subdue your angry passion, smile sweetly and say, "My dear, thank you much for your kind words," and proceed with introductory remarks which might be similar to these:

Had coffee with so and so over at the College cafe—'Tis rumored on Bison Boulevards that they will middle-aise it soon—Some of the fraternities had women at their houses over the holidays—real live women, mind you. (And while you're trying to concentrate, this is what you hear: "Hello, yeh, yeh . . . this is Monson. Now lissen, I gotta good yarn here. Big stuff. I'll give you the dope on it, and you slap it into a front page gag, see? Ya, that's right. A little broad from Ceres—yeh, blonde. Get a cut of her legs. Yeh, we'll scoop the town on this one—O. K., yeh, see you later.")—In England on 'New Year's eve, when the clock strikes 12, the doors—especially the front and back—are opened, that the bad spirits may pass out and the good ones pass in. At the Knickerbocker club, the rejuvenation of the Weasel Willies, it is different. All the spirits are allowed and the guests pass out. There is wine that maketh the heart glad, and there is bug-juice, phlegm-cutter, tangle-foot, red-eye, corn-juice, hot toddy, corpse reviver and stagger juice. There is huggin', hoofin' and hilarity. There is kissing of the bartender and standing on heads in the various spittoons. Some go kerflummox and gesplash, just like the Katzenjammers. Over in a corner a little group of first-nighters, who have just come thru the rye, sing Xmas carols. Add to all this an excited who comes in the door and says to the bouncer, "Et Tu, Brute? You great big handsome palooka, you." Then they "lip to lip in eager frenzy cleave." But enough of this: it is "a foule byrd that fyleth his owne neste." (Now for a little editorializing; and it is not necessary for the writer to attend these boisterous affairs. Just ask a friend. He'll stretch the proceedings for you.) What a pity that having led lives of rectitude, they should go astray.

Then add an imaginary interview: "I promise that I will not fatten myself upon the hard-wrung taxes of my fellow citizens and gorge myself at the public crib. I make my money honestly, selling peanuts with Jack Knight." —J. Golseth, president of the Young Democrats.

Plus a few little goofy verses like:
No one ever felt
Kneecap of a Kappa Delta.

Last Line: Goodbye forever. I'll see you later.

SPECTRUM SPORT SPECULATIONS

By FRANKLIN ANDERS

What about the recent invasion by the Nebraska Cornhuskers of the prairies of Dakota? A decided defeat at the hands of Coach Letich's Nodaks; a hard-earned margin over the Bison herd. Looks like Letich has things kind of his own way this season!

Hunk Anderson, formerly of Notre Dame, signs with North Carolina State. May we wonder about the future of both the Irish and Hunk?

Coach Lowe's herd crowded the Dragons for a leading margin of ten points Dec. 12, while Concordia recently trimmed the Dragons by a nine-point lead. Comparisons are rotten but allow us to predict a close game next week between the Bison and the Cobbers.

Frank Cleve's Cobbers tramped the Dragon quint New Year's Day to the tune of 35-26 with Pat Hilde, forward, earning the scoring honors. Though crippled by arm injuries, Hilde is proving effective on both offense and defense.

A wet, muddy Rose bowl competition upset the predictions of sport critics. A 7-0 victory sent the Columbia eleven sailing back east in a cloud of rosy halos and high expectations for the '34-'35 season.

North Dakota State hasn't enjoyed a great season so far. There are reasons, and there are more reasons for this, but your writer is convinced he's hit on one of the big ones. What is needed around this joint is just this: to-wit, A lot of these Greek letter blond Venuses and Apollos have got to forget some of their almighty Greek spirit and help revive this ailing sentiment of loyalty to this, our Alma Mater.

Beryl Newman Directs Intramural Basketball

Beryl Newman has been placed in charge of intramural basketball this year according to a report by C. C. Finnegan, director of athletics. As in former years the teams will be composed of representative groups from each fraternity alongside of several independent teams.

Theta Chi captured the basketball laurels last year in a series of interesting and closely contested games with the YMCA. This year should find a good band of players coming from all teams to play at the Field house.

Pictures must be handed in with themes at Northwestern University so that the professor will know whose work he is grading.

MSTC Dragons Meet State College Squad Here Tomorrow Night

Concordia Foe Of Local Team In Field House Next Wednesday Evening

In the second inter-city game of the season, Coach Bob Lowe's Bison basketballers clash with the Moorhead State Teachers' college Dragons tomorrow evening at 8 in the State college Field house. In a preliminary game the Baby Bison will meet the Mayville State Teachers' college Comets.

The Bison will meet another Moorhead team next Wednesday when they play the Concordia college Cobbers, also on the home floor.

The Bison and the Dragons have already met, playing a game Dec. 12 on the Moorhead court that resulted in a decisive 44-34 win for Bob Lowe's outfit. Since then, however, the Dragon team has improved greatly, while the Bison, as far as judging recent contests go, have shown little progress. Reports from the practise floor during the week indicate, however, that the Bison have been going through their paces in better-than-acustomed manner.

From present indications the probable Bison starting lineup will be Russ Anderson, center; Bud Marquardt and Arnold Bernard, forwards; Acey Olson and Pretz Reiners, guards.

Coach Pete Gergen's frosh hope to avenge a 32-26 setback handed to them by Mayville last month.

Of the two games that the Bison play with Moorhead teams, the one with Concordia next Wednesday will perhaps be the toughest. The Cobbers decisively defeated the Dragons New Year's night, and will be certain to give the Bison plenty of trouble, especially Pat Hilde, an especially high-scoring forward.

WOMEN'S RIFLE SQUAD ORGANIZES WEDNESDAY

The first meeting of the women's rifle squad will be held next Wednesday, Jan. 10, at seven o'clock. All women students on the campus interested are requested to file their names immediately at the YWCA, according to Phyllis Tritchler, manager. Col. E. A. Lathrop will advise the group.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the past and it is hoped that a greater interest will be shown this year, especially by freshmen students.

Bison Drop Contest To Nebraska, 32-29

Cornhuskers Win From North Dakota State In Close Battle Saturday

In a hotly-contested varsity basketball game the Bison dropped a 32-29 decision to the University of Nebraska last Saturday night in the Field house. The sturdy quintet of Cornhuskers played as in mid-season—something they failed to show in their defeat at the hands of the University of N. D. the preceding evening.

The Bison performed well on the floor and it was due only to their failure to hit the hoop which brought about their downfall. Both teams gave a good exhibition of ball-handling on the floor but the Cornhuskers, led by Harold Boswell, whose excellent shooting accounted for six field goals and a pair of free throws, forged ahead early in the game. This lead was relinquished only once to the Bison when shortly before the half they stepped ahead 10-9.

Bud Marquardt, lone Bison veteran, again showed his wares, giving an excellent floor performance alongside of being the Bison high-point man. Arnold Bernard and Russ Anderson were close on his heels for scoring honors. The absence of Neville Reiners found "Acey" Olson and Arnold Mickelson posted at guards.
