GREAT DAKOTA TEAMS VIE IN TITLE RACE TONIGHT

Lew Sarett Is Lyceum Talker Here Tuesday

Noted Woodsman Poet Engaged To Lecture March 7 In Festival Hall

STUDENTS ADMITTED FREE

Author Is Christened "Lone Caribou" By Chippewa Indian Tribe

Lew Sarett, woodsman, poet and lecturer, in the capacity of Lyceum course entertainer, will appear in Festival hall at the North Dakota State college next Tuesday evening, A. G. Arvold, public discussion department head, announced today.

Mr. Sarett has established a place for himself in American literature by the many fine poems he has written. A former professor at Northwestern university, he changed his life to one that would bring him in contact with out-of-doors. This contact was accomplished by extensive travelling through the wilderness of the north-west, both by water and land.

Mr. Sarett's knowledge of the wilderness dates back to the time that he lived with the Indians, and was made an honorary member of the tribe of Chippewas and christened by them "Lone Caribou". He has paddled with his canoe more than 12,000 miles over Lake Superior, the waters of Hudson's Bay and the Mississippi river. Such experience as this, gives this lecturer his authority to write magazine articles and poetry concerning nature.

Sarett is a contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, the Bookman, the Forum, Poetry Magazine, The North American Review, Sunset, and several other magazines. Among the books he has written are "Slow Smoke," a best seller, "Many, Many Moons," and "The Box of God." The title of his lecture here will be the same as that of the first named book.

Students may attend this lecture upon presentation of their registration cards. Any further information may be secured by writing or phoning the Little Country Theater.

Magician Entertains Convocation Crowd

Presents Delightful Program To Packed House Monday In Festival Hall

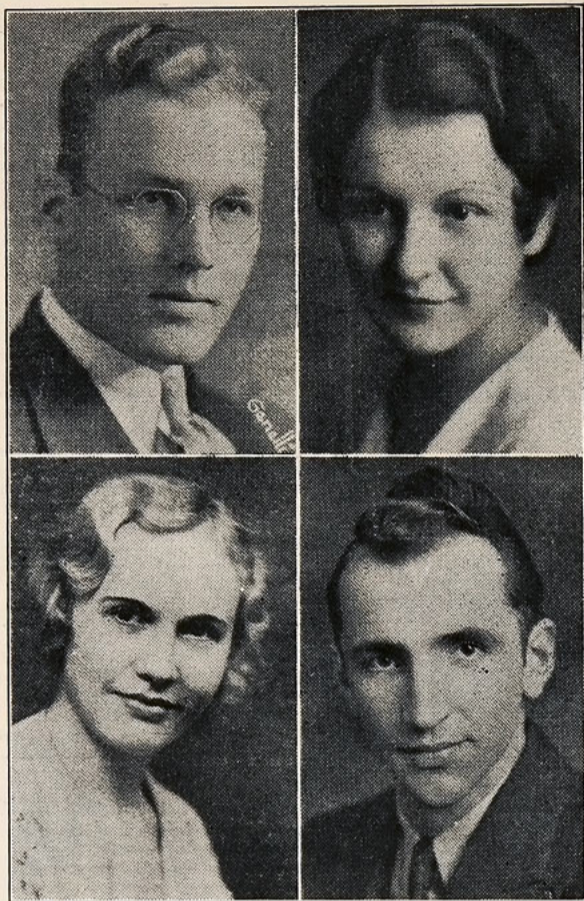

Marquis the Magician presented what proved to be a delightful and entertaining convocation program before a packed house, last Monday morning in Festival hall.

Marquis combined a wide variety of tricks and illusions with a perfect stage presence to give his audience an entertainment that kept its attention every minute. His stock of tricks was different from those usually given by so-called magicians, the one with the varied-colored sands being the only ordinary one. Among the others were two very fine handkerchief tricks; two or three "disappearing acts"; the levitation of a woman, that is raising a woman in the air without any visible means of support; and several rope tricks.

The levitation act is at the same time one of the oldest magicians' tricks and one of the least performed, on account of the difficulty of its performance. The trick itself dates back to the time of the old Romans. Several of the rope tricks shown were of Indian origin. Marquis tends to use the older and less frequently shown tricks, as indicated in the following paragraph, which appeared in a recent issue of The Linking Ring, official publication of the international Brotherhood of Magicians:

"In the past years, Marquis has done much to bring back to the stage the older types of illusions. These he has built up with a modern setting and presents them with the air of a modern magician."

Frank Sanders, Alpha Tau Omega, was a dinner guest at the Theta Chi fraternity Wednesday evening.

Ibsen's Drama "Peer Gynt" Is Presented As Main Feature Of Norwegian Program

"Land of the Midnight Sun" Name of Entertainment Given Monday

In presenting Peer Gynt, a play in five acts by Henrik Ibsen, on Monday evening March sixth, at seven-fifteen, as one of the most outstanding features in the program entitled "An Evening in The Land of The Midnight Sun", the Little Country theater of the North Dakota State college offers to the general public one of the world's great dramas.

That no pains have been spared to give the Ibsen classic an interesting and fascinating interpretation, was revealed today by A. G. Arvold. According to all present indications a large crowd is expected.

The Norwegian program, besides featuring "Peer Gynt", will consist of other Scandinavian entertainment. The Sons and Daughters of Norway will dance in their native costumes; the College Concert Orchestra will render the Peer Gynt Suite by Grieg; the Orpheus Male chorus will sing various Norwegian selections; The Green Room will be host to a Norse Museum; and a social hour with refreshments being served in the Lincoln Log Cabin will constitute the remainder of the program.

Leading parts in the dramatic portion of the entertainment have been given to Norin Johnson, Hillsboro, as Peer Gynt; Clare Schrag, Starkweather, Aase, Peer's mother; Rhoda Marr, Minneapolis, Minn., Solveig; Albert Buchli, Hebron, the Dovre King. Other students in the production are: Carol Cooper, June Fredeen, Beryl Rorem, Mildred Thorstad, Frederick Anderson, Gerald Stevens, Elva Eklund, Archie Anderson, William Stewart, Charles Challey, and Clifford Swanson, in addition to various others, making the cast total fifty.

The committee in charge of the presentation of the drama includes Eunice Conlon, Hazel Falley, Vera McCoullough, and Clare Schrag. Those in charge of the Norse Museum and the social hour are Carol Cooper, James Golseth, Eve Hammer, Mary Healy, Carol Ladwig, Alice Rasmussen, Helen Solow and Marian Weeks.

Edwin Booth Honors Three Collegians In Initiation Sunday

Sally Hunkins, Gerald Stevens, And Horace Spaulding Given Membership

The Edwin Booth Dramatic club of the North Dakota State college honored three students in formal initiatory exercise held Sunday afternoon, Feb. 26, in the Little Country theater.

Sally Hunkins, Gerald Stevens and Horace Spaulding are students honored by initiation to active membership. In charge of the initiation was Ruth Barret, president of the organization.

Horace Spaulding sophomore on the campus, took part in several one act plays during his freshman year, playing a secondary role in "Cock Robin", the mid term play of last year, and in the recent production of Shaw's play, "You Never Can Tell," playing the leading male character as Dr. Valentine.

Sally Hunkins, a junior in the school of science and literature, played a secondary character part in "You Never Can Tell," while her best work was perhaps in the characterization of Maggie in "Little Women."

As The Rat in the spring term play, "Seventh Heaven", Gerald Stevens showed considerable finish. Stevens has played in a number of one act plays in his freshman and sophomore years.

Following the initiation, members of the club and guests were entertained at a tea given in their honor by Miss Matilda Thompson, alumni member of the club. Mrs. A. G. Arvold presided at the tea table. Guests at the affair included A. G. Arvold, Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Hay, and Misses Alice Bender and Ethel Carey.

John Thompson, Oakes, North Dakota, visited his son, John, Jr., at the Kappa Sigma Chi house on Monday.

Added Working Faculties Aid Brevities Work

Blue Key, Production Sponsors, Utilize Barracks For Office, Workshop

KONEN'S OFFICE TYPICAL

Miniature Stage, Masks, Pictures Lend Show Atmosphere To Headquarters

One of the greatest factors in assuring the success of the current Brevities production is the increased working facilities which include the only complete theatrical office between Minneapolis and the west coast, adequate work-rooms, and rehearsal space, according to James Konen, manager and director of the 1933 production.

This year the Barracks have been turned over to Blue Key, national service fraternity, sponsor of the show, as headquarters for business management, rehearsals, costuming and scenery designing. In detail the headquarters include a suite of offices for business and dictorial staffs, work shops for scenery, properties and wardrobe, store rooms, and a large rehearsal hall.

Lending a grotesque aspect to the rehearsal room are the various masks to be used in one of the choruses of the Brevities edition. Of the offices proper, the directors' office has the most theatrical atmosphere, and according to Richard Randlett, formerly connected with eastern theatrical troupes, is comparable to that of many large professional companies. Various theatrical magazines and books are to be found about the room, and several spotlights are stored in one corner. A desk and several chairs complete the furnishings of this office.

In the business office a miniature stage is the center of attention on which the experimental stage settings are tried with different lighting effects. This office also houses the departments of stage manager, ticket sales and publicity. Here too are found pictures autographed especially to the Brevities.

In the music and costume room are costumes, and original musical scores, books of particular interest to the show directors, and the customary furnishings.

Entirely self-supporting, the Bison Brevities is one of the few theatrical organizations in the country which has maintained itself on a paying basis within recent years, according to those in charge. March 27 and 28 are the dates for the production this year which is written, directed and produced entirely by members of North Dakota State's student body.

JOURNALISM BODY MEETS WITH MOORHEAD GROUP

Gamma Tau Sigma, honorary journalism fraternity at the North Dakota State college, held a joint meeting with the Moorhead State Teachers' college Press council last Tuesday evening in the Specialty Shops.

Journalistic work at the two schools, with particular reference to organizations, were discussed. The Moorhead State Teachers' college group included Cecil Vieth, editor of the Pracaepor, MSTC yearbook, and state editor of the Mistic, college newspaper; Clarence Glasrud and Don McCoy, former editors of the Mistic; Gorman Thompson, business manager of the Mistic; Axel Taflin, editor-in-chief of the Mistic; Donald Bird, circulation manager of the Mistic; and Byron D. Murray, faculty advisor of publications.

STUDENT ARE WARNED OF REGISTRATION FEE

"Students should register for the spring term before examinations in order to avoid the usual last minute rush," says A. H. Parrott, registrar.

The usual late registration penalty will be levied if payment is not in the hands of the secretary by Monday noon, March 20 or if class cards are not filed in the registrar's office by Saturday noon, March 18. The penalty is one dollar Monday, and one dollar per additional day thereafter.

The election of prom manager for the 1933 Junior Prom will be the business of a special meeting of the junior class, which will be held in the Little Country theater, next Tuesday at 12:40, Paula Verne, class president, said today.

While no announcements of candidates of the two major campus political parties, the "Hog-it-alls" and the "Holier-than-thou" frames, nominating meetings are to be held this weekend, it is said.

Bison To Clash With Sioux In Deciding Game

Arthur, Weir, Marquardt, McKay, Grant Mickelson On Bison Lineup

STATE RACE IS NOW TIE

Sioux Mentor Brings Strong Team To Block Bison Title Hopes

Two of the greatest basketball teams that have ever been developed in this section of the Northwest in view of season performances will oppose each other tonight in the physical education building at eight o'clock, when the North Dakota State college Bison meet a strong Sioux quintet from the University of North Dakota. This game will be the third of a series of four and will decide the winner of the North Central conference championship.

At present the teams are tied in the race for the state title and the Bison are leading the conference race. Last week at Grand Forks the series was split, each team winning one of the starts, and this week, Friday night's contest will apply on the conference title, and both that and Saturday's game on the state championship.

Brings Strong Team

Coach Clem Letich, the Sioux mentor, is bringing one of the strongest teams in the history of the upstate school to Fargo and his charges will meet a team that holds a similar reputation at this school. The groups are the most evenly matched that they have been in years, and the outcome of the games are more than likely not to be decided until the final whistle has been blown.

The two year feud between the giant centers of the squads will come to an end this week when one ends his career of college court competition. Bob Weir, graduating Bison pivot man, carried off the honors in last week's first game playing a stellar role, while Meinhover annexed the laurels for the second performance of the week. While the six foot seven inch University giant has one more year of athletic competition left, Weir graduates in June.

Besides Meinhover, the Sioux mentor rests his hopes on a strong pair of forwards in the personages of "Pinkey" Mullen and Ben Jacobson. These two men have held regular posts during the entire season and have turned in consistently creditable performances. Mullen was one of the scoring stars of the early Bison-Sioux contests. Gordon Dablow, the Nodak captain, and Bernard Smith, all-conference selection last year, will fill the back-court positions in the University lineup.

Witasek Is Accurate

In the reserve section, Letich has Herman Witasek, a sophomore who can play at either the center position or one of the forward posts. Besides being able to play these positions Witasek is the possessor of an uncanny ability to make shots from any close range post, and from almost unbelievable stances. The Sioux mentor has lots of potential power in the remainder of his reserve section which includes R. Dablow, Olson, Tait and Booth.

Don Arthur and Bud Marquardt will probably occupy the forward posts for the Bison, while Viv McKay and Grant Mickelson are slated to their regular places as guards. In Acey Olson, Curt Denenny, Arnold Mickelson and Lyle Stinson, Saalwaechter has ample reserve material for both forward and guard positions.

The probable lineups for tonight's game are:

N. D. State	pos.	N. D. U.
Arthur	f	Mullen
Marquardt	f	Jacobson
Weir	c	Meinhover
McKay	g	Dablow
G. Mickelson	g	Smith

Bruce Barnes, Austin, Texas, Hans Nusslein, Berlin, Germany, and Emmet Pare, Chicago, Ill. were dinner guests of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity Monday evening.

University Debate Team Defeats State College Squad Twice

Upstate Students Gain Decision In Second Encounter Of Series Last Friday

Maintaining that the use of the war debts as an effective weapon for bringing about disarmament among the Allied debtors and the United States would promote the interest of world peace, the University of North Dakota debate team won the unanimous decision of three judges over a team from North Dakota State last Friday at the U. in the second contest of the annual series between these two schools.

The U. team composed of Charles Leng, Farnham Dudgeon, and Phil Vogel, arguing the negative of the question "Resolved: That the United States should agree to the cancellation of the inter-allied war debts," against Frieda Panimon, David Sallume, and Howard Kilbourne, pointed out that it did not wish to injure any debtor nation through forcing payment and would even go so far in deciding the case of each country on its own merits as "to cancel revise, reduce, or declare a moratorium at some future date."

The affirmative case rested upon the single issue, that continued collection of the debts would partially destroy the domestic market in the United States, resulting in increased unemployment, thus retarding business recovery.

In refutation of the negative case, the argument was advanced by the affirmative that any such discrimination between the various debtor nations in the ultimate settlement of the debts as the negative advocated would result not in world peace, but in greater hostility and ill-feeling in the world.

Miss Panimon, a freshman in science and literature, was a member of the freshman team which won the inter-class debate contest last fall. Sallume and Kilbourne have participated in several community debates this season and composed the team which met Concordia college in a non-decision debate a few weeks ago on this same question. All are from Fargo.

THE COURAGEOUS THING

It was with mingled feelings that North Dakota State college bowed its head this week at the passing of a well-liked, conscientious student. There was sorrow that a worthy classmate should be taken from the student body and a young citizen sacrificed just as he was entering the period of useful life. There was anger that the driver of the death car, with every selfish instinct, did no pause to aid or help his innocent victim but speeded down the road with only thoughts for his own welfare.

"While there is life there is hope," is an old adage that, with modern applications, carries much meaning. Modern medical science can do much to restore life even after a person has been under water for a long period of time or smashed badly in an accident or collision. To refuse to give the chance of living to a person is a high crime, condemned by all the high tribunals of justice and by the commandments as recorded by Moses.

The hit-and-run driver who killed John Carstens last week did not stop to see if there was a spark of life in the body of the young man, hit and dragged for a long distance by the car. He did not consider the chances for living that the young man had. Instead he stepped on the gas pedal and left the young student smashed and bleeding, on a pile of snow by the roadside.

To have stopped and to have examined the young man or to have carried him to the closest medical aid would have been the courageous thing to do. To run away from the scene is by far the greater crime and the more damning to the driver, who will be forever tortured with the thought that he did not play fair with himself or the young college student, whose life he took

GENTLEMEN AND "BROOKLYNS"

We all know that North Dakota State college students are to be considered ladies and gentlemen. But, we will all have to prove it tonight.

When the two great basketball teams, which represent the highest development of basketball prowess in many years at North Dakota State college and the University, meet on the big floor of the physical education building to settle or unsettle the title in the North Central conference race, there will naturally be much rabid boosting and demonstrations of strong emotion by partisans of both teams. This is as it should be.

A result of this strong feeling—they say that Bison-Sioux games are the times when students of both schools really discover how much they really appreciate their college—will be loud applause and organized yelling for each side.

There is nothing wrong with strong yelling and sturdy boosting for the home team. By such demonstrations, some get greater enjoyment from the play and, as all cheer leaders and some players tell us, there is a certain definite psychological stimulus and aid to the players to hear the deep throated roar of a crowd in applause or commendation of their good playing.

Ladies and gentlemen may cheer loudly at an athletic contest and aid rather than lower their social status. But ladies and gentlemen do not indulge in the vicious type of yelling common to back street and stock yard districts, the heaping of insults and boos on certain individuals of the opposing team or the referee of the games. "Brooklyns," plentifully applied, have no place in a representative college audience.

Thus, the North Dakota State collegians go under a test tonight as to their status as ladies and gentlemen and as good hosts to the numerous North Dakota university and Grand Forks people who have come to Fargo to boost for their team against their traditional rivals. The more loudly you yell the better it will be for the Bison, if the yelling is carried out in the sportsmanlike way.

Russia's recent newspaper development has been phenomenal. In 1914 it had only 162 papers, printed in one language, with a combined circulation of 2,700,000. Today it has 1,409 papers, printed in 49 languages and with a combined circulation of 30,800,000.—Collier's.

Once Overs on Personalities and Things Colleague Through the "Specs" of The Spectrum Spectator

Fraternity pins are rented to unattractive coeds at the University of Washington for a very reasonable sum through the efforts of a "Female Aid Society" an exchange tells us this week. No wonder, we say, that an investigation carried on at the University of Iowa reveals that but one out of eleven college engagements lead to matrimony. No insinuations meant, State coeds—we know you'll marry the fellow.

Following much of the example of the North Dakota State college board of publications, Tulane university adopted that form of publications control recently. Selection of members, however, is not by direct popular vote. The manager of student activities, Student Council president, editors and business managers of both campus publications, faculty committee chairman and a member of the journalism faculty make up the board.

When The Spectrum carried a short item last week to the effect that some of the music written by Henry Olson, who is also doing the music for the 1933 Bison Brevities, we were told by some students that we were a little ahead of our incidents. However, the truth was the truth; Henry sold the pieces; and our social standing was saved.

Our friend, "Dobby" Dobson of the Morningside Collegian, just seems to invite comment on his ream of columns, which appear week after week. Some time ago he insinuated that at times a certain Morningside lineman could play almost as good football as the North Dakota State college All-American selection, Roman Meyers. Later he made the statement that Jack West, grid mentor of the North Dakota Sioux, made the complaint that although he "offered some athlete ten dollars a week plus board, room and tuition, nevertheless they went to some other conference school." This week Howard calls a local sports writer "Bunny Ears" and nominated him as tackle on his all-press, all-conference team. What storm comes next, Dob?

While Temple college in the Quaker State lays claim on the original "Keep Kissing" girl, we understand that two North Dakota femmes are listed among the dainty ladies whose pictures are used to incite Americans to buy nationally advertised things.

We couldn't get their names—sorry.

Making a burlesque of last year's leading musical comedy, McGill university players are now presenting the show "Off Key I Sing", using musical scores written by a student at the Montreal university.

Bison-Sioux Freshmen Meet Here Saturday In Deciding Contest

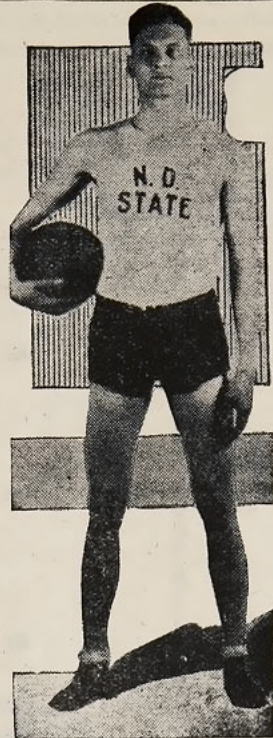

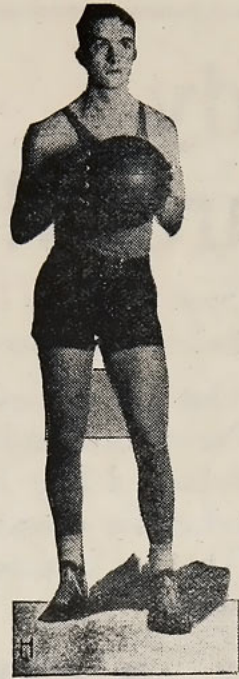

University Frosh Seek Revenge For Defeat Handed To Them Last Week

Saturday afternoon at 2:30 the freshmen teams of the North Dakota State college and the University of North Dakota will meet in the physical education building in the second meeting of the two teams. This game will decide the winner of the annual competition between the teams.

Last week the Baby Bison humbled their Sioux friends in the first setto, when they played at Grand Forks in a part of the Founder's Day program at the University. Bernard and Anderson were the high scorers for the State Yearlings and proved to be invaluable in the lineup. These men have shown up in a very creditable manner during the entire season and it is expected that they will continue their performances Saturday.

Besides these two men, Coach Gergen has some capable ball-handlers and shooters in Reiners, Casselman, Noecker, Sloan, Maynard and Bettchen and all of them will more than likely see action.

The University mentor has a lot of potential power in the performances of Weaver and Dahl. These men were the big cogs in the Papoose lineup last week, and will be there again to cause plenty of trouble. Charbonneau, Spielman, Aamoth, Dyke, and McDonald will be included in the remainder of the squad.

Saturday evening's game will ring down the final curtain for the basketball careers of three of the members of the 1933 squad. These three men have completed their four years of college competition at

North Dakota State, and are to be congratulated upon the exceptional performances that they have presented during the time that they have carried the Yellow and the Green. They have been all-con-

Bison Rifle Squad Fires Fourth Stage

Victorious In Thirteen of Fifteen Postal Matches During Week

The Bison rifle squad completed the fourth and last stage of the corps area inter-collegiate match last Saturday with a 20 point margin above the score made by last year's rifle team in this stage.

In the postal matches fired during the week ending Feb. 25, the Bison riflemen defeated 13 teams and lost to two colleges, the University of Alabama and the Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

The Bison rifle team defeated the University of Maryland, Connecticut A. C., and the University of Iowa, in the ten man, three position, five man, four position, and the five man, three position matches, respectively.

Bison Are Leaders In North Central Loop

South Dakota University Takes Southern Part of Conference

Tonight's game between the North Dakota State and the North Dakota university will close another season's basketball competition for the teams in the North Central conference. As these teams start the contest, the Bison are in the lead with seven consecutive conference wins to their credit, and the University follows second with six victories, losing but one tilt to the State-men.

South Dakota university has definitely annexed third place by virtue of their double wins over South Dakota State and Morningside. The Coyotes dropped all four of their contests to the northern schools but came out on top in the southern end of the loop. Fourth place goes to the South Dakota State Jackrabbits who dropped all of their contests but the two played with Morningside, which they won by wide margins.

Morningside was unable to get its bearings throughout the season and lost eight conference games in a row, two to each school in the conference, annexing the cellar position. The standings as they are at present are:

Team	W	L	Pct.
N. D. State	7	0	1.000
N. D. U.	6	1	.857
S. D. U.	4	4	.500
S. D. State	2	6	.250
Morningside	0	8	.000
