Major Lathrop Will Transfer To Porto Rico Post

Head of State College Military Department Will Leave Here Next June

LATHROP TO BE RANKED LIEUTENANT COLONEL

Transfer Is Army Procedure After Fulfillment of Five Years As Instructor

Major E. A. Lathrop, for five years head of the North Dakota State college military department, will transfer to a position in Porto Rico next June, an official communication from the War department this week announces. Nothing definite was revealed of appointment of the college department head for the coming school year.

Having filled the maximum allotted time as an officer on duty as instructor in a land grant institution, Major Lathrop's transfer is part of regular military procedure. While this week's communication is not a formal order to go to the military post at San Juan, Porto Rico, it is understood that the War department has definitely decided that Major Lathrop will be sent there at the end of his term at North Dakota State college.

With completion of service requirements in 25 years in the army and necessary examinations, Major Lathrop is now in line for an appointment as a lieutenant colonel, which rank is to be extended to him by the close of the school year, it is announced. As a lieutenant colonel, he will take his new duties at the army post in San Juan.

Major Lathrop's term at this college has been marked with unusual success, the school having attained an excellent rating in several annual inspections by the officials of the 7th Corps Area and having maintained a high standing at annual R. O. T. C. encampments for junior officers, held at Ft. Snelling. Numerous improvements have been credited to the activity of Major Lathrop.

As a graduate student from the University of Minnesota, Maj. E. A. Lathrop joined the regular army in 1908, as a second lieutenant. He spent the two years preceding the World war on duty on the Mexican border with the 35th Infantry and during the American participation, he served in France, being attached to the French tank corps headquarters for more than eight months.

Following the war he was stationed in Middletown, Penn., with the headquarters of an air corps for a period of two years, attending the Command and General Staff school at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., during the following year. A year of duty at Ft. Snelling, near Minneapolis, preceded five years spent with the 7th Corps Area headquarters at Omaha, Neb. He came to Fargo to take charge of the department here, directly from the Area headquarters.

Recognition Is Given Solberg and Brinley For Scientific Work

African Jewel Fish Subject of Special Study By Two Instructors

Recognition of more than a year of investigation work and scientific study on a specialized subject by two members of the North Dakota State college department of zoology and physiology is made in the current issue (February) of The Aquarium, a leading publication in its scientific field.

The African Jewel fish, whose scientific name is Hemichromis bimaculatus, is the subject upon which the article was written by Archie N. Solberg and Dr. Floyd J. Brinley, both members of the teaching staff in the State college zoology department. The article is a comprehensive summary of life activities and characteristics of the brilliant colored member of the family of Cichlidae, as observed in the aquarium in the North Dakota State college zoological laboratories.

"Our most colorful cichlid has found its way into the biological laboratory," the Aquarium editor's introduction to the story reads. "This account of the breeding under scientific observation includes new and interesting notes on embryological development."

In the statement of the authors of the article, Hemichromis bimaculatus, commonly known as the jewel fish, is a fresh-water species native to the pools and streams of northern Africa; hence it is more specifically called the African jewel fish. The name of the fish comes from the brilliant "jeweled" spots which adorn both the bodies and fins, the article reveals.

Details of the laboratory care of the tiny fish such as the keeping of a constant temperature in the aquarium, selection of water plants for the home of the fish and feeding of them is explained in the Aquarium article, which was given first position of all the stories in February's issue. In the description of the jewel fish itself, space was devoted to an explanation of life habits, methods of selection of mates and breeding, laying of eggs, and development of the young fish to the adult. The story is illustrated by camera studies of the fish.

Further investigation of the jewel fish and other tropical fish, as being carried out by Mr. Solberg and Dr. Brinley in order to determine their adaptability as laboratory animals for embryological and physiological studies. Work in these fields is now in progress by the authors as well as by several advanced students.

These fish have been found, the zoological instructors say, to be very suitable for both laboratory and research material because eggs can be secured in large numbers throughout the year, whereas eggs can be secured from native fish only once a year, in the spring. Fish have been reared from eggs to mature adults in small aquaria in less than six months.

"You Never Can Tell" Is Title Of Play Directed By Alice Bender

Edwin Booth Dramatic club of the North Dakota State college will present its winter term production, "You Never Can Tell," a 'pleasant play' in four acts by George Bernard Shaw, in the Little Country theater Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 14 and 15, at eight o'clock under the direction of Alice McConnell Bender.

The fact that this play was written by George Bernard Shaw is of special significance at this time as the famous English playwright is about to make his first visit to the United States, Miss Bender stated today.

This comedy is a witty satire on the foibles and fancies of human nature and finds particular charm in the clever lines throughout the play. These scintillating bits of humor add to the lightness of the production, and the audience, as a whole, is pleasingly entertained as the author, Shaw, amuses himself at the expense of his fellow beings. All of the action in the play centers about a family relationship between various kin of a divorced family. Complications arising are in accordance to the light but effective treatment of the story.

It might be of some interest to mention that the Dakota Playmakers, the dramatic society at the University of North Dakota, produced this same Shaw comedy twice during the past season.

The roles taken are Sally Hunkins, Dolly Clandon; Robert Benton, Philip Clandon; Ruth Barrett, Mrs. Clandon; Elizabeth Olson, Gloria Clandon; Horace Spaulding, Mr. Valentine, a young dentist; Gerald Garlid, Mr. Crampton, an irascible old landlord; Frederick Anderson, Mr. McComas; Gerald Stevens, a waiter; Clifford Swanson, Mr. Bohun; and Evelyn Davis, maid.

Committees for the winter term play are composed of student members of the club. Frederick Anderson will have charge of the lighting effects, stage effects and properties. David Minard is handling the advance ticket sales.

Anyone desiring tickets for this play may secure them through any member of the Edwin Booth Dramatic club, any member of the cast, or at the public discussion office in Old Main.

Bison Sales Staff To Check In Today

Students Are Urged To Obtain Yearbook Photographs Immediately

All sales representatives of the business staff of The Bison, North Dakota State college yearbook, are requested to check in at The Bison office sometime today with their tickets, money, and signed slips, according to William Heller, business manager of the publication.

As today is the deadline set for getting individual cuts for The Bison made, all students who have not yet signed up for their pictures are urged to do so immediately. This will facilitate getting the book out on time, Mr. Heller said today.

Students do not necessarily have to have their photos taken at McCracken's. Abbie Porter, assistant editor, stated today. They may either use their last year's Bison cuts or they may bring photos taken at other studios to The Bison office.

The Bison will be made available to the student body during the spring term, the second week in May, Donald Fredrikson, editor-in-chief, announces.

Representatives of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Alpha Gamma Rho and Kappa Sigma Chi fraternities will be guests at a buffet supper given by Phi Mu sorority in the chapter house on Sunday evening, Feb. 12, from 7 to 10:30. Marion Miller is in charge, assisted by Doris Brimer, entertainment; and Alyce Connolly, refreshments.

Hildred Shelland spent last weekend at her home in Ada, Minn.

Seniors Receive National Honor Society Awards

Helen Miller, Kathryn Tharalson, Jeanette Greenshields And Schneider Honored

INITIATION AND BANQUET HELD EARLY IN MARCH

Members Selected Upon Basis Of Scholastic Attainment In College Work

Four members of the senior class were honored by the invitation for membership in Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, by unanimous choice of the organization at their recent meeting in the Seminar room of the administration building.

Each term, a limited number of the graduating class are chosen for membership. Helen Miller, Jeanette Greenshields, Kathryn Tharalson and Vance Schneider were awarded the privilege of membership this term.

"Phi Kappa Phi is a national honor society whose prime object is to emphasize scholarship and character in the thoughts of students, and to stimulate mental achievement by the prize of membership," according to Miss Matilda Thompson, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Miller is a student in the school of home economics, a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, professional home economics sorority. She completed freshman and sophomore work at St. Olaf college in Northfield, Minn., her home city. Jeanette Greenshields of Fargo is a senior in the school of education. She is a member of Sigma Tau Delta, honorary writer's society, and of Kappa Kappa Gamma, social fraternity. Kathryn Tharalson is also a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and is a student in home economics. The engineering department is represented by Vance Schneider, a senior student of electrical engineering. His home is also in Fargo.

The initiation services and banquet will be held some time early in March.

Students' Original One-Act Plays Will Be Given Feb. 20-21

Classes In Play Production Write Sixteen Playlets As Term Projects

Two classes in play production at the North Dakota State college will present two groups of original one act plays under the general supervision of A. G. Arvold in the Little Country theater on Feb. 20 and 21 at 7:30 and 7:00, respectively.

Eight plays will be presented each evening, representing the separate work of the two classes. The project is a part of the work outlined for students taking the course in play production, and the plays are produced and directed by the students. In this manner a group of original plays is given each term.

The entertainment for the first evening consists of the following plays: "Who Played the Violent", Beryl Roemer; "Looks Are Deceiving", Hildred Shelland; "Double Crossed", Curtis Remfrey; "Last In Action", Archie Anderson; "Dreams of a Trio", Evve Hamner; "The Awakening", Mildred Thorstad; "The Adolescent", William Stewart; and "Pals", George Jurgens.

The groups of plays to be presented the second evening are: "Chinese Jig-Saw", Adeline Rosendahl; "Lettuce Without Dressing", Walter Bartholemew; "The Painless Fall", Nellie Reed; "Free Keeping", Charles Challey; "Down With the Hoe", Clara Borden; "Not Only City Club", Corvin Salverson; "Shall We Call It Luck?", Grant McCullough; and "Not For A Million", Dorothy Halland.

Bud Turner, Phi Delta Theta; Wesley Booth and Bill Davis, Beta Theta Psi, were among the University of North Dakota students who were guests of the Theta Chi fraternity this week.

Jo Beste was a dinner guest at the Alpha Sigma Tau house Saturday.

GEORGE WASHINGTON IS AGAIN ATHLETIC RIVAL

George Washington university, who played the Bison in football last fall, seemingly persist in being rivals of the North Dakota State collegians, athletically speaking.

For the Bison figured that they had almost a record breaking basketball squad for plain altitude. Enumerating—there is Bob Weir, Bison center, whose height is just a mere 6 feet 7 inches; Bud Marquardt, sophomore forward, 6 feet 4; Acey Olson and Curt Denenny, sophomores, 6 feet 3 inches; and the squad tapers off with Don Arthur, Viv McKay and Grant Mickelson, speedsters ranging around 5 feet 11 inches.

But this week the news comes around from George Washington that the smallest fellow in their first quartet of offensive stars stands 6 feet, 4 inches and weighs 180. The other three are an inch taller and many pounds heavier. Teamed with this gang of potential champion wrestlers is a little fellow of 5 feet, 10 inches. What a game the Bison-Colonials would have.

Bison Brevities Dates Are Shifted To Second Week Of Spring Term

Conflict With Athletic Contests Causes Delayed Production Of College Show

Due to conflicting engagements with the athletic department, the dates for the presentation of the fifth edition of the Bison Brevities, annual all-college show, have been changed to sometime during the second week of the spring term. This postponement will assist the show to a large extent, according to directors, as it will enable the cast to rehearse much longer and consequently bring about a much smoother show.

This year's presentation is to be a musical comedy, "Sky High," adapted by Morris Olson from a short story by Richard Hackenberg, former North Dakota State college student. Henry Olson has written the musical score, and is directing the singing chorus and the orchestra. Frank Saunders is assisting Olson with the music.

Rehearsals have been conducted since the beginning of the winter term, and the work is progressing very satisfactorily, according to James Konen, production manager of the show. Richard Randlett is directing the speaking parts, and Ben Boyden is in charge of the dancing choruses.

A general rehearsal has been called for Sunday at two thirty o'clock. It is imperative that all members of the production be present, as several important points are to be practiced. No other rehearsals have been definitely scheduled for the remainder of the week, but members of the cast are instructed to watch the bulletin boards for further announcements.

With members of the Blue Key fraternity assisting with the construction, Chet Comeau, stage designer for the production, announces that work on the setting is nearing completion. Margaret Dadey is in charge of the costumes for the show, and she reports satisfactory progress is being made in this line. John Gabe and Lyle Phillips are in charge of the lighting effects for this edition. The remainder of the business staff are: Ray Greenwood, business manager; David Minard, ticket sales; Charles Christensen, publicity manager; Celeste Sowka and Betty Kibbee, office assistants.

Byron and Lloyd Spielman, members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at the North Dakota university, were guests at the Alpha Sigma Tau house Tuesday and Wednesday.

Frank "Cap" Chaney, Alpha Tau Omega alumnus, will give a chalk talk at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house Sunday night on a program sponsored by the alumni.

There will be a meeting of actives and pledges of Sigma Tau Delta at 8 p. m. Sunday at the home of Eloise Waldron, 1126 Twelfth St. N. Gerald Garlid, pres.

Reverend Stanton Is Speaker On Newman Club Assembly Friday

Subject of Missionary's Talk Is "Impressions From Thirty Years"

Rev. M. J. Stanton, veteran Catholic missionary and lecturer, will address a convocation sponsored by the college Newman club next Friday, Feb. 17, on the subject of "Impressions from Thirty Years."

In his tours extending over a period of thirty years, Reverend Stanton has lectured from Maine to California and has conducted missions and lectures in large and small cities in most parts of the United States. Numerous adventures and unusual experiences in his extensive travels in America will form a great deal of the basis for Father Stanton's talk, it is announced.

Rev. Stanton, a resident of North Dakota when not lecturing or doing missionary work, is one of the most prominent of Catholic priests in the northwest. He is well known by hundreds of thousands through missionary work. He appeared at the University of North Dakota on a similar program last December.

"I have been more edified by the good I have met with in people than disedified by the evil," the Dakota Student quotes him as saying in introducing his talk at the University. "Lending proof to his belief that more and more, the modern world is seeking religion, by citing his own experiences, Father Stanton stressed the point that thoughtful people do not believe that religion is dead or even that science has dealt it a staggering blow," the Student continues.

Phyto meeting next Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the botany department rooms. New members be there. Lars Jensen, pres.

AN APPRECIATION

Too often we are all prone to be silent of praises of our fellow-workers until they are gone, either to other fields of endeavor or to that life, where the problems of the day are of no import.

This week comes the formal announcement of an expected thing, the transference next June of Major E. A. Lathrop, who has spent five eventful years in guiding the destinies of the North Dakota State college military department. There is no time better than the present to commend Major Lathrop on his excellent supervision of the local college unit, which has brought much distinction to the college through his efforts.

High standards have been set by the local military department and they have been maintained in an enviable and efficient manner. North Dakota State college has been consistently rated as excellent in every annual military inspection carried on in recent years by government officials. Bison military men have consistently surpassed in many fields of endeavor the college cadets from many neighboring institutions in annual camps, reflecting careful and well planned training. For these achievements, Major Lathrop has been undeniably largely responsible.

To Major Lathrop has gone the task of choosing and supervising the personnel of both his teaching staff and the rank and file of the student officers. His knowledge of men and their abilities have insured the progress of the department here. Numerous details and large responsibilities have found him equal to the tasks of his office. He has ever been an asset to the college.

In the Army there is little time taken for praise of men, even for those who fulfill their duties and obligations. Stern rules dictate the destinies of the officers and little sympathy is displayed—results are the demands that must be met. It may be that Major Lathrop will receive but little thanks from the Army for his accomplishments here at North Dakota State college—but the college and the student body is appreciative for his work in advancing the welfare of the school.

EINSTEIN ANALYSES US

We get too excited over words and orators and not enough excited over ideas and intelligence.

That is a brief summary of what Professor Albert Einstein told the world about Americans through the radio waves last week, in a broadcast sent out from California, where he is now engaged in revealing some of his mathematical knowledge to specialized students. It is evident that the noted Relativity theorist has stepped out of his special fields to expose a few revelations of the current American attitude.

Einstein is far from being alone in his belief that Americans are "word conscious," that they lay too powerful stress on the importance of words and slogans. A glance at the names and slogans of the advertising world show their importance in the national viewpoint. Certain words and names have the faculty of connoting certain definite impressions to people without any consideration of ideas being necessary.

Take Technocracy, for instance. To some people, mere mention of the word symbolizes salvation; to others it recalls a picture of chaos and instability. Few indeed take the trouble to probe the ideas, new or old, which are to be expounded under the above heading by varied writers and orators.

As soon as the word Socialism is mentioned, many people are prone to shout "red!" and "communist!" without stopping to realize that good clothes are not the only criterions of good thinking. The title is snatched up immediately to brand the entire subject as good or false depending on the attitude of the individual, and no research or study of the subject matter is made.

A more pleasant aspect of the situation is the prevailing tendency of college students to stop and probe the ideas and subjects rather than brand the oration or writing without consideration. Many college students get an immense pleasure from taking apart the various proposals, seeing just what makes them operate, on what basis they are developed, and the results of their trial.

If and when new developments are made to meet changing conditions, it is this college attitude which is going to put them over.

That is why much of the hopes for the future is being placed in our college developed men and women, many of whom have deeper research ability than the "Americans" who Professor Einstein feels worthy of criticism.

ROWDY REMARKS

Delta Sigs would lead you to believe that the reasons behind the Wilson-Brainard Military date are sorta queer—unknown telephone calls and all that.

A Dean has jerked his daughter outa the upstate institution and sentences her charms to be wasted on us agriculturists—all of which is causing a lot of thought on the part of Theta Chi's "Pride and Joy" (with apologies to Doris and Marian, those "those as knows" gals.)

What English professor has become so interested in farming that he forgets the closing time of the Cafeteria?

Speaking of the "Under Your Millinery" column—the authors offered us apologies—but what the'll, we don't need 'em—after the debut of their stuff, what we need is sympathy. And the only grudge we hold is that one dark night we were rather rudely and roughly assaulted for something they'd written—where is this thing called justice?

And then there's the designing Phi Mu who is attempting to chisel a frosh athlete loose from his numeral sweater—must be the weather.

It is said that ticklish Pops reveal doubly sworn secrets—what havoc would be caused if that ever got out!

Depression is causing numerous collegians to swear off—again. Speaking of "swear-er off-ers" we heard that, "Abstinence makes the heart frow fonder."—that last isn't original, goldurnit.

They say that worried fraternity brothers are going to present one of the more important "Bison" staff-ers with camp belt and canteen—to sustain him during those long stays down on 7th avenue.

Reports have it that since D. (Wha-A-Phisique) Arthur was recognized by the Kappa and her Pal in their column that he's been careful to pull the shades down at nights—it's the only way he can figure the remark out!

May we nominate for oblivion the idiot who breaks out with such bright philosophy as: "It looks like we're going to have a little winter."

SPECTRUM CRITIC

Popular request brings back to the Roxy theater patrons the honest picturization of Sinclair Lewis's novel, "Arrowsmith". Ronald Colman as a small town doctor falls in love with Helen Hays. The scientific mind of the doctor helped him find a serum to cure a ravishing plague. A perilous trip follows. See what happens when Miss Hays follows her husband into the midst of danger. Miss Hays' ability as an actress needs no introduction since her appearance in a couple of recent pictures at local theaters.

An animal picture is the presentation at the Roxy next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. This picture, "Trailing the Killer", has been branded by the newspapers in the east as one of the most genuinely interesting pictures of the wilds of North America. It is recorded par to any Amazon or African thriller. Caesar, the wolf dog, is the animal star of the production. This is a first run picture.

Kate Smith, queen of radioland, makes her debut as a movie star in "Hello Everybody", a story written especially for her by Fanny Hurst. The picture comes to the Fargo theater Saturday.

It is as a full-fledged actress rather than as a radio star on parade that Miss Smith makes her screen debut. She is the central figure in a touching drama of a woman's fight for justice.

However, the voice that sings to a nightly audience estimated at twenty millions is heard to full advantage in the film. Besides old favorites she sings four new songs—"Moon Song", "Pickinities' Heaven", "Out in Great Open Spaces" and "Twenty Million People".

Miss Smith is supported in the picture by a cast headed by Randolph Scott and Sally Blaine. She appears in the role of a farm girl who leads her fellow farmers in a battle against a power company development. In her struggle for funds to fight the case through the courts, she accepts a radio contract, and is soon an outstanding star.

What happens when a pair of devil dogs become speakeasy hounds and constantly bark at each other? The answer is revealed in Fox Film's "Hot Pepper", a rip-roaring comedy drama that brings Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe to the Fargo theater's screen next week, Feb. 15, 16, and 17, in the roles of Flagg and Quirt.

Lupe Velez in the title role is the chief of their affections and this turbulent triangular romance results in one laughing complication after another.

El Brendel, whose comedy has brightened two previous Flagg and Quirt campaigns plays a side splitting role. Others in the cast are: Lillian Bond, Rooth Howard and Gloria Roy.

George O'Brien, popular movie hero, has the principal role in "Robber's Roost," current cinema at the State theater, in an adaptation of Zane Grey's novel of the same name. The show is a fast-moving, red-blooded picture with a plot centering about the activities of horse thieves and horse wranglers. Maureen O'Sullivan has the feminine lead.

1932 IN FRANCE

French Etiquette

Is the French variety of social etiquette superior to that of the Anglo-Saxons? Frankly, I have been unable to decide the question definitely but have nevertheless made a few observations in the pension and in public in this regard. At the table the French diners pass the dishes of food in saying Monsieur, Mademoiselle, Madame, as the case may be, to the person receiving the dish. A French lady to whom the American on her left neglected to repeat this formula, remarked to a second French lady on her right: "That's American courtesy". This same person ate her pie with her fingers and did not hesitate to exercise her splendid boarding house reach to obtain a dish on the other side of her neighbor. If the pie is firm, the French eat their pie with their fingers, otherwise it is eaten with a spoon. The noiseless consumption of soup is apparently a lost art here, or perhaps it hasn't been introduced yet. Between courses the Frenchman reads a newspaper at the table. Anything wrong about that? Peculiarly enough cantaloupe is eaten with sugar instead of pepper and salt.

A Frenchman, especially of middle age or older, lifts his hat to all ladies and men with whom he is acquainted or to whom he speaks. Here the handshake has become an almost subconscious act. On meeting friends and on bidding them adieu, all the French, men and women alike, shake hands, the men always with the head bare. At the pension on entering the dining room one says: "Mesdames, messieurs!" The men always shake hands, either making the round of the table or effecting the handclasp across the table. One does not excuse one's self on leaving the table, but on passing out of the room, one repeats the entry formula. The French shopkeepers and clerks are effusively polite. When the client enters the store, Bonjours are exchanged. As the customer leaves the store, a four-fold leave taking is in order: Customer: Thank you very much, sir.

Clerk: At your service, sir.
Customer: Good-bye, sir.
Clerk, and all clerks nearby: Good-bye, sir.

The Frenchman in general is very industrious, extremely thrifty, and remarkably conservative. Napoleon once said: "Monsieur, le Francais ne con-nait pas le mot 'impossible'." He isn't any better acquainted with the word "hurry". If a dry cleaning establishment requires at least a week to dry clean and press a suit, it is because they are delayed by the work on hand which has accumulated for the past several days. If a cobbler can't promise to have your shoes half-sole'd inside of six days, it's because he's too busy repairing the shoes brought to him five days before. To be sure, for a surcharge 2 or 3 francs, he will gladly have the shoes ready in three days. From personal experience I can cite such statistics as a wait of seven days to have a suit dry cleaned and pressed, 19 days to get a current text through a local bookstore from a publisher in Paris (four hours distant by train), nine days to get a suit mended, a ten day wait for the laundry, and a delay of a month to get an identification card from the local police station. The French only shrug their shoulders and ask: "Why the rush?" In summer when half the employees are away on vacation trips, only a speed maniac would expect the business to move any faster.

THE DOUBLE

Once Overs on Personalities and Things Collegiate Through the "Specs" of The Spectrum Spectator

It's harder to pick a varsity basketball team than you might think. Members of the North Dakota State college mathematics department have informed us this week that if Coach Saal-waechter had 15 candidates for the varsity team, there are 3003 possible combinations which can be made from that group to use as a basketball team. Thus far it looks as though Saaly made a pretty good choice of his combinations.

Along with Mah Jongg, cross-word puzzles and Technocracy, a new and growing craze seems to have struck a certain few on the campus this term in the making of cord belts, constructed entirely with minute knots and worked out in special designs. More than sixteen students are spending time in making the belts, which process one student learned last year from handy seamen on an ocean steamer.

Tragedy has stalked in the wake of the cold wave, which struck this vicinity during the past week. North Dakota State college zoological department was among the hardest hit when nearly 30 small fish, on which Dr. F. J. Brinley and Instructor Archie Solberg were conducting investigations decided it was just too cold to live.

Herbert Bolton, retiring president of the American Historical association, in his final speech emphasized the necessity for placing new bases for the understanding of American history. His plan embraces the western hemisphere and therefore outlaws the traditional unique basis of New England and the 13 colonies. Instead of the boast of ancestors who came across the pond on the Mayflower there will eventually be those Americans who will insist their ancestors came across the Mexican border on a barrow or up the St. Lawrence in a birch canoe.

"The sergeant's typewriter misspells occasionally," Capt. J. B. Conmy explained to senior military class recently. "That is really a 'written order' instead of a 'written odor'."

Realization of a hope of many years standing at South Dakota State college, our sister school to the south, is becoming more and more a reality as plans are going forward for the introduction of the "Rabbit Rarities", a production which will be similar in presentation to our Bison Brevitates. April 10 and 11 are set as production dates for the show at the Brookings school. The South Dakota show got much of the impetus necessary to start the production actively, when five students from the Southern school witnessed the Bison Brevities here as the climax of the 1931 Central Press convention.

The only North Dakotan to get much publicity in late months in "Time" is the veteran Senator Martin, who recently proposed that the state secede from the union. Besides generous space written in the sardonic "Time" style, a picture of the Morton county senator was displayed to complete the impression that North Dakota is anxious to follow the example of South Carolina back in the middle of the nineteenth century.

BISON CONTINUE POWER SHOWING TO MAINTAIN LEAD IN TITLE RUNNING

N. D. University Spends Week-end In Three Game Series With Loop Teams

SOUTH DAKOTA IS STRONG

Outcome of Sioux Invasion Will Be Important Factor In Standings

By virtue of their victory over Morningside last Saturday night, the North Dakota State Bison are definitely placed in the championship running for the North Central conference basketball title. They have come through the season with six wins to their credit and not a single loss, and they are now lying in wait for their annual encounters with the University of North Dakota, which seems to be the team to decide who the 1933 champion will be.

The Sioux are at present tied with the Bison for first place, having won their three encounters with other conference teams. However, this week they are taking their trip into the southern end of the loop, and beginning tonight, they will play a three game schedule. North Dakota U. has defeated all three of these teams in earlier games, but since that time there has been a marked improvement in the two South Dakota teams, and when they are playing on their own floors, anything may happen.

That this improvement is present, may be noticed in the results of the past weekend, when South Dakota university took the Jackrabbits into camp to the tune of a 48-22 score. The earlier contests of these two teams indicated that they were fairly evenly matched in ability, and if there had not been any changes, the scores would have been much closer.

The South Dakota courts have always been a proverbial stumbling block for both the Bison and the Sioux in previous years and while the Herd pulled through on top this season, there are more pitfalls for the Nodaks to fall into and the breaks of the game may be the deciding factor as to who will be the winner in any of the games.

Morningside turned the tables last week when they held the University to a ten point victory, after they had been defeated by large scores by the South Dakota schools in early season games. With this factor and the improvement in the Coyote team, the Sioux may have plenty to worry about during the weekend.

If North Dakota university comes through their trip on the long end of the score in all three contests the battle for the championship will be between them and the North Dakota State college Bison.

Frosh Drop Contest To Firestone Quint

Service Team Outplays Yearling Squad In Preliminary Game Saturday

Saturday night the Fargo Firestones tripped the Baby Bison by the score of 27 to 19. The Firestone quintet outplayed the Baby Bison the first half leaving the floor with a 19 to 11 lead. The scrappy freshman aggregation played on even terms with the Firestones the second half but they were not able to overcome the lead established by the Firestone sharp shooters in the first half.

Anderson, rangy Bison center, was the high scorer of the contest, scoring 10 points. Reiners, freshman guard, played a bang up floor game for the Baby Bison. Kvenmooen and Olson were outstanding for the Firestones on the offense, while Blakeslee was the main cog in the defense. Box score:

Between Halves

By EVERETT WALLUM

With the event nearing, interest in the annual Bison-Sioux basketball series has reached heights unprecedented in recent years, and if the Nodaks succeed in capturing all three games from southern opponents, sports fans have a perfect setting for four torrid battles.

If these games fail to draw, basketball is a fading sport in North Dakota and shortly will be relegated to the status of bicycle riding, whist and knee length skirts.

FOR IF FANS IN THIS VICINITY LIKE GOOD BASKETBALL, WHAT, OH WHAT, CAN BE THE CRITICISM OF A SERIES BETWEEN THESE TWO GREAT TEAMS?

We are convinced that these two North Dakota collegiate teams, located as they are only 90 miles apart, constitute the best organizations of their class in an ever widening area. We feel sure they are better than any college outfit in North or South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana or Iowa.

The Bison neatly trimmed Iowa, generally conceded the best team in that state. Iowa overwhelmed Carleton and Carleton handed the Gophers a very conclusive shellacking. This will take care of those two states and as for South Dakota, well, that has been demonstrated.

The Nodaks defeated the Bobcats, Montana's perennial champions in two games on the Cats' own floor. The Bobcats, once one of the greatest organizations in the country, have gone the way of all flesh as the Bison proved last year when they won over them handily.

Perhaps you already have guessed what we are driving at (you mind readers), and that is, why not bill the coming Bison-Sioux series as being for the championship of the Northwest? What a chance for some enterprising publicity man! "Yes, suh, ladies and gentlemen, positively the sports spectacle of the century. Here grouped in the same arena, the two best disciples of 'hoops m'dear' in this vast Louisiana territory. Come one, come all. Don't sprain your larynx shouting for tickets."

WELL, WHY NOT? DON'T LOOK AT ME LIKE THAT.

Faculty-Men's Volley Ball League Starts Third Tournament

Six Teams Competing In Round-Robin Schedule of Contests

The second round of the faculty volleyball contest ended Feb. 6 with D. S. Dedrick's team winning with a total of 393 points.

The teams in the second round were well matched as there was only 40 points difference between the first and last places, and there were six competing teams.

Teams are chosen for each round so that nearly always there will be different men playing on the teams in the following round. In choosing the teams in this manner there is no possibility that any one team will have at all times better players on it than the others.

The first round was captured by G. N. Lawritson's team, winning with a total of 489 points, but between the winning and losing teams there was a difference of 172 points, and as in the second round there were six competing teams.

The third round started Feb. 9 and will be completed on April 3.

Bison Down Maroons In Sixth Conference Tilt With 48-12 Count

Bob Weir, Bud Marquardt Lead Scoring With Eleven And Ten Points Apiece

The North Dakota State college basketball team conclusively proved their superiority last Saturday night when they overwhelmed Morningside college of Sioux City, Iowa, 48-12, in the second meeting of the two teams in their 1933 schedules. The Bison had the situation under control at all times and were not in danger at any period of the contest.

Morningside was unable to count from the field in any manner until eight minutes of the game had elapsed when they dropped their first field goal through the net. During the remainder of the period, the Herd allowed their opponents only three points, while they had very little trouble in accounting for 28 counters, the half time ending 28-5 in their favor.

Bob Weir led the scoring with a total of 11 points, and was closely followed by Bud Marquardt who garnered 10 of his teams final score. However, even though these two men led the individual scoring for the Bison, the other members of the squad turned in excellent performances for their periods of play. Viv McKay and Grant Mickelson did fine work at the guard positions registering three field goals apiece and McKay made one of his tries from the gift line good. During the second half of the game, Arnold Mickelson came into the fray and also accounted for a trio of shots from the field, and Lyle Stinson showed his ability to handle a ball under fire, playing nicely in a defensive fashion.

In the Bison forward positions, Don Arthur proved a good running mate for Marquardt, and while he only dropped the ball through the hoop twice, his passing on the offense and close guarding on the defense were greatly felt. At the center post, Bob Weir had the advantage in height over Van Dyke, Maroon pivotman, and besides leading the scoring columns he held his opponent scoreless.

Dennis and Sherwood were the mainstays for the Maroon group, accounting for all except one of the dozen points registered by Morningside.

ROSENBERG PLACES IN ANNUAL KATHRYN MEET

Capturing highest honors in the young men's class, Kaare Rosenberg, Fargo, sophomore student enrolled in the school of architecture at the North Dakota State college, returned from the annual Kathryn ski meet in victory last Sunday. Kaare is already well known in skiing circles having once seized the national boy's championship.

Bison And Sioux Are Tied For Loop Lead

S. D. University Annexes Second Place By Defeating Bunnies Friday

The basketball race in the North Central conference has narrowed down to the point where it looks as though the two North Dakota schools will be battling it out for the first place in their games Feb. 22 at Grand Forks, and March 3 on the Bison court.

The results of the past weekend kept Morningside in the basement of the loop standings, and broke the tie between South Dakota university and South Dakota State for second place. "Rube" Hoy's Coyotes of South Dakota U defeated the State boys by a score of 48-22 in a hotly contested battle Friday night. This definitely placed S. D. U. in second place.

Morningside dropped two contests in this sector Friday and Saturday nights when they met North Dakota U and North Dakota State. Their showing at Grand Forks was much stronger than here as they held the Sioux to a 36-26 win, but the following night fell badly before the onslaught of the Bison, scoring only 12 points to their opponents 48.

This leaves the Bison in first place with six conference victories to their credit. North Dakota university is also in first place being tied with the Herd, but have only three wins on their side. However, this weekend will be a big determining factor in who will be pitted against who in the title match, because North Dakota U will be on its annual jaunt into the southern end of the conference. Friday night they meet the Coyotes at South Dakota U. in the initial encounter, and on Saturday Morningside will offer the opposition for the Sioux.

After a day's rest the Nodaks will play probably the toughest game on the trip, when they stop at Brookings for their third game of the weekend. The South Dakota mentor has revamped his team and has found a new combination that is working more effectively than any one previously tried. The standings:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
N. D. State	6	0	1.000
N. D. U.	3	0	1.000
S. D. U.	2	3	.666
S. D. State	1	4	.250
Morningside	0	5	.000

Three Are Selected On Fraternity Team

The Rattle Honors Players From Local Chapter In Recent Grid Selection

Three members of the local chapter of Theta Chi fraternity were recently honored with selection on the all-fraternity team as picked by The Rattle, regular monthly magazine of the national fraternity.

One lineman and two backs, who played the past season with the North Central conference champions, the Bison, were given the placement. Roman Meyers, end, and Fritz Hanson and Johnny Fisher, backs, all of whom were given prominent mention in all-conference selections the past two seasons, were given regular positions on the honorary team. Meyers had been distinguished this fall by several honorable mentions for All-American placement for his consistent play during the 1932 season.

Three other players from the local chapter were given mention by the fraternity magazine. They were Kenneth Pirnie, tackle; George May, back, and Earl Thomas, center.

Bison Play Strauss Independents Feb. 18

To break the monotony of a two and a half weeks rest for his charges, Coach Leonard Saalwaechter, Bison cage mentor, has scheduled a game with the Strauss Clothing Co., independent team of Valley City. The game is to be played at Valley City Feb. 18. The Strauss team is made up of former college stars and has had an extremely successful season this year, and last year the same group won the North Dakota Independent league championship in the state tournament held in the spring.

State Rifle Team Goes Into Second Round Of Intercollegiate Match

New Men Show Much Promise In Firing On First Round Of Postal Tournament

Under the expert coaching of Capt. J. B. Conny, the North Dakota State riflemen are swinging into the second stage of the Corps Area Intercollegiate match.

Information from the corps area headquarters at Omaha, Neb., show that the Bison team completed the first stage of the match with a score of 1,933 points. This score is only eight points lower than last year's veteran team, and as this year's rifle team is composed of practically all new men the score is quite encouraging.

Ed Comm and Oscar Gilbertson turned in a score of 197 points each, and Anton Welker, one of the newer men firing on the squad, placed second with a total of 195 points. All team members fired a score of 190 or better. Anton Welker was the only team member to make a "possible" and this was made firing in the prone position. The men are facing some of their toughest opponents in the postal matches that are being fired this week, according to Captain Conny, team coach, which include the University of Washington, Oregon State, and Oregon university.

Leo Anderson, president of the college YMCA and a member of Kappa Sigma Chi fraternity, returned Tuesday evening from a trip to Chicago, Ill., where he represented the student YMCA's of North and South Dakota at a meeting to determine the program for next summer's Geneva conference.

Bison Hockey Teams Break Even In Two Contests Last Week

Freshmen Win, Varsity Lose In Encounters Played On Local Rink

The North Dakota State college hockey teams broke even in two games played during the last week and the Island Park rink, the freshmen scoring a victory over the Detroit Lakes, Minn., High school team, while the Varsity took a drubbing from the Falcons of the Fargo-Moorhead hockey league.

The freshman team emerged from its hockey depression by winning a 2-0 contest from its opponents, but experienced a great deal of difficulty in securing the victory. For two sessions there was not a counter registered, most of the play being in center ice. In the opening minutes of the final period, McGrath, with a hard shot, dented the upper corner of the net for the first goal. The red and white clad team of Detroit Lakes then became interested in the game, storming the frosh goal with a barrage of shots, but every thrust was checked by the frosh goalie. Toward the close of the game, the final goal was scored by Hilber on a pass from McGrath.

McGrath and Hanson played well for the frosh, while Detroit Lakes did not flash any individual stars.

The Varsity took a severe beating from the Falcon team. As if to atone for a previous 4-3 defeat by the Bison, the Falcons outskated and outscored their opponents to the tune of 6-1. The Bison team was off color in its standard of play and operated as a listless unit. The only time that the Varsity made things interesting for on-lookers was when Baldwin scored the Bison's lone goal on a pass from O'Neill. This score made the count 2-1, but the Falcons soon added to their advantage.

Norman, with three goals, starred for the Falcons, but was closely pressed for honors by Fillmore, who counted thrice. Woody Nelson was the only Bison player capable of doing anything of real merit, his play as goalie being very commendable.

College Credit Given Students For Participation In Journey

A unique opportunity is being offered State college students who make the cruise with Prof. Paul Jones of the architectural department on the European trip sponsored by the American Institution of Education Travel this summer. Six hours credit to be applied toward graduation will be awarded them, through a recent decision by the college faculty.

Professor Jones, it is announced, will again travel with the student group making the educational tour of Europe and South Africa and will lecture this year on the "History of Art and Architecture," while the group visits the scenes mentioned in the material. Six weeks will be spent in direct study of the history, art, literature and the life of Europe with the lectures to be given whenever and wherever it is convenient and actual examples and illustrations may be had for emphasis. This is the first time in history that North Dakota State college has given credit for this type of work to students participating in the tours.

Leave on June 21

The educational cruise leaves New York on June 21 of this year on the S. S. Roma of the Italian lines. On the itinerary for the various students are stops at the Azores, Gibraltar, Malaga in the Sierra Nevada mountains in Spain; Genoa, Naples, Rome, Venice, Florence and Milan in Italy; Lucerne Heidelberg and Cologne in Germany; Brussels in Belgium; Paris in France; and London in England.

Cannes on the Riviera, one of the world's most aristocratic resorts, will come as a prelude to Monte Carlo, where the various members of the student group may "woo Dame Fortune." Three days will be spent in historic Rome. Lovers of art may enjoy the treasures in the art galleries of Florence. The Rialto of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," Venetian palaces, and the Bridge of Sighs are points of interest in Venice. At Milan, they will see Leonardo Di Vinci's "Last Supper."

Heidelberg on Tour

Mingling with the German students at Heidelberg, they will visit the "Dueling house," the prison where it is considered an honor to be jailed, and the garden of the "Student Prince." In Paris they will hear the opera, see the galleries and view the historical landmarks of the city. The Shakespeare country will be their host in England where the works of the famous playwright, those of Sir Walter Scott, and also of the American, Washington Irving, will be studied in their original environment.

The value of such a trip can hardly be overestimated. Professor Jones says in quoting the old Dutch proverb which says "homekeeping lads have ever homely wits." The direction provided besides the traveling opportunities offered makes it doubly valuable. Frederick E. Emmons, director of the Travel association, says "We may walk the streets of Florence and gaze at its stately palaces that have changed so little since the days of Leonardo and Lorenzo the Magnificent, or drift lazily in a gondola on the shadowy canals of Venice with the satisfying pleasures of a long-wished-for dream come true and yet miss the durable satisfactions that could have been ours had we but made our journey far from the present into the past with one who knows their romance, legends and art and is able to interpret them to the traveler intent upon getting the most from his summer's journey. For one to travel without guidance of those who can point out the beacon lights of history, art, literature and music and interpret their meaning in the life of today, is to lose a part of travel."

Guests of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity last week include Craig Montgomery and George Landsvek of Fosston, Minn., James Kennedy of Watford City, Howard Hoyum of Thief River Falls, Minn., George Fait of Fingal and Leon Johnson of Grand Rapids, Minn.
