PHI KAPPA PHI NAMES TEN SENIOR STUDENTS MEMBERS OF SOCIETY

Students High In Scholarship Selected for Membership By Honorary Group

FEW STUDENTS CHOSEN

Local Chapter of Organization Receives Charter In 1913 From National Group

Ten senior students were named to membership in Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, at a meeting held on Oct. 19, in the seminar room of Old Main.

The students thus honored are Edward Comm, civil engineering, Fargo; Earl Grove, pharmacy, Morris, Minn.; Ora Hammerud, science and literature, Fargo; Madeline Kaiser, education, Fargo; Maurice Knudson, civil engineering, Jamestown; Agnes Mohr, education, Fargo; Robert Nettelund, electrical engineering, Fargo; Jeanette Panimon, science and literature, Fargo; Olvin Riveland, agriculture, Wellsburg; and Leo Schwehr, electrical engineering, Sanborn. The students will be initiated sometime during this month.

Phi Kappa Phi is a society formed with the object of emphasizing scholarship and character in the thoughts of students, and stimulating mental achievement by the prize of membership. According to the national constitution of the group, only a limited percentage of the graduating class may be chosen for membership, thus making election to Phi Kappa Phi a distinction. The national group was founded at the University of Maine in 1897, and the local group received its charter on May 12, 1913.

Present officers of the local chapter include; Dean L. L. Carrick, president; Mrs. H. L. Walster, vice president; Miss Mathilda Thompson, secretary, and Miss Harriet Pearson, corresponding secretary. Dr. C. I. Nelson is acting chairman of the social committee, while Prof. Rudolf Otterson heads the membership committee.

Three Delegates Back From Iowa Convention

North Dakota State Engineer May Become Member of Press Association

Practical certainty that the North Dakota State Engineer magazine will be admitted to the Engineering College Magazines associated within a year, was the opinion of Edward Comm, Erling Hedahl, and Paul Deal after returning Sunday from a convention of the association at Iowa City.

This association acts as a syndicate for engineering magazines by securing for them national advertising for their individual periodicals. Because the North Dakota State Engineer's magazine is not a member of this organization, these three delegates were sent in hopes that the magazine might be considered for membership.

The S. C. engineering magazine has been placed on probationary membership for a year. During this period a definite standard of finance, circulation and contents must be maintained before permanent membership is granted.

The convention, which was held at the University of Iowa, accomplished a two-fold purpose by discussing the business of the organization and the journalistic qualities of the various publications as seen from the engineer's viewpoint.

According to Edward Comm the delegation was a typical "shirt sleeve" convention because of its business-like informality and discussion. Mr. William V. Merrihue, who is affiliated with the General Electric Co., presided at the convention.

SENIOR STAFF GIVES FIRST COLLEGE PARTY

A good crowd is expected Friday evening at the Senior Staff fall term dance to be given in Festival hall, Margaret Dadey, chairman of the dance committee, announced today.

Being the only informal dance sponsored by Senior Staff during the fall term of school, Friday's affair will have added importance in the social calendar at State college.

Dancing will be held between 9 and 11:30, the hour when the college curfew rings for all social affairs. Chaperons are Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Kellogg. Senior Staff dances are given each and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sackett. Term to raise funds to carry on the service activities of this organization. Included among the activities of the group is the annual freshman award and a scholarship award presented to an outstanding sophomore girl each year.

Instructors' Group Opposes Amendment To Reduce Salaries

University Professors Fight Measure To Be Voted On November Eighth

A motion is being made by the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors in opposition to the initiative amendment to reduce and to fix the salaries of state officials, which will be placed before the voters of the state on Nov. 8.

"The local chapter of the University Professors' association believes that, since the proposed initiative measure to reduce and fix salaries of state officers and employees offers such dangers to higher education in the state, it is their duty to inform people of the situation," according to the executive committee of the local chapter of the association.

"The proposed law is so vaguely worded that it will have to be interpreted by the courts. If the courts rule that the measure applies to the faculties of the educational institutions it will mean that a $2400 maximum will be placed on the salaries of all professors and administrators of the various state educational institutions. This low maximum would cause the more capable men to leave the North Dakota institutions. As a result, it would be impossible for anyone in North Dakota to receive a first-class college education without leaving the state," the executive committee's statement ends.

Such a move on the part of the local group follows a similar one that was advanced by the University of North Dakota chapter last week. On the executive committee of the chapter are Dr. H. C. Hanson, president; Miss Delphina Rosa, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Glen Lindsey, Hjalmar Storlie, and Dean A. D. Weeks comprise the remainder of the officers.

Donald Scott, Fargo, was named as the recipient of the Alpha Zeta scholarship cup at a meeting held recently.

The cup is an award made once a year by Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural organization, to the freshman registered in the school of agriculture and carrying a regulation number of hours who attains the highest average during the three terms of his first year in college. Scott's average for the three terms was 89.2.

Prof. C. B. Waldron, assistant dean of agriculture, will present the cup to its winner during the convocation hour tomorrow.

MANY PEOPLE STUDY COLLEGE MAIL COURSES

More than 4,000 North Dakota people have enrolled in the practical home-study courses of the State college, according to T. W. Thordarson, director of correspondence and extension courses. Over 75 per cent of these people have taken more than one subject. Hundreds of them have written to the college telling of definite benefits derived from their study and recommending the courses to others.

Here is an opportunity to study at home and use leisure time for self-improvement, points out Mr. Thordarson. A diploma is awarded for courses completed.

Twenty-seven home courses are available by correspondence this year.

Performance Includes Barnum And Bailey, Peter Pan Characterizations

HOLDS MATINEE PROGRAM

Danseuse Studied Under Pavlowa, Bohm; Traveled and Performed Abroad

Miss Ruth Page, famous American danseuse, will open the twenty-second annual lyceum series here with a dance recital presented in Festival hall this evening at 8:15. A matinee performance with special child character interpretations will be given Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

In her program for this evening, Miss Page will include a number of characterizations which she has made famous, such as Peter Pan and Barnum and Bailey, and a special group of humoresques. Of her performance in Madison, Wis., a critic says, "As Peter Pan", Miss Page so captivated her audience that a demand for an encore had to be granted. In the part of the adorable boy, her pantomime was so deft and well shaded that it surpassed any seen in Madison within recent memory."

All Miss Page's dances are original except the religious dance and Pleasure dance of the Balinese Rhapsody. These she learned from the natives of the island of Bali in the Dutch East Indies.

Tonight's repertoire includes: Romantic Etude by Chopin; Barnum and Bailey, by Smetana; Humoresques, by Casella; Lament, by Tscherepnin; Tropic, by Scott; Expanding Universe, by Wolf; Possessed, by Villa-Lobos; May Night (piano solo) by Pelmgren; Vagabond, by Williams; Balinese Rhapsody, by Horst; Salome, by Djemal Rechid; Peter Pan and the Butterfly, by Poldini; Ronde des Lutins (piano solo) by Nerini; and Gypsy Dances of Southern Spain.

BELL GIVES STUDENTS PRIZE FOR ORIGINALITY IN CREATIVE THINKING

Explanation of Contest Is Topic Of Convocation Speaker Tomorrow Morning

DEAN DOLVE IN CHARGE

Winning Project One of Most Benefit To Mankind, Donor States

Mr. James F. Bell, Minneapolis, president of the $50,000,000 General Mills, Inc., offers a cash prize of $350 to a student of North Dakota State college who will produce the most constructive idea in any field during the present school year, according to Dean R. M. Dolve, head of the committee for promoting the project here.

The offer, designed to stimulate voluntary, original, and constructive thinking, was made to North Dakota State college students through Dr. A. H. Benton, economist of the experiment station at State college, who discovered Mr. Bell's intent to sponsor such a project at some school in a conversation with him and suggested this institution at once. After some correspondence and investigation Mr. Bell agreed to the choice.

Tomorrow's convocation will be devoted to the explanation of the contest by Dean R. M. Dolve and to a talk, "Why the Award and How to Win," by Dr. Benton. This lecture will acquaint students with the donor of the prize, indicate some of the factors in Mr. Bell's life that have made for a successful and productive career, and present phases of constructive thinking in the special field of economics.

"The proposal is open to students in any department and on any subject, whether it be music, art, science, medicine or sports, the purpose being that we want to make the award for the most constructive idea—and 'constructive idea' is here defined as one which contributes to the benefit of mankind," states Mr. Bell in a letter to Dean Dolve.

"The participants must develop their subject in such manner as to show clearly the process of thought through which they have erected their promise."

"The matter should be entirely voluntary. I want to ask that the college provide eight informal lectures on thinking and that the entrants for the prize must show that they have attended at least the majority of the lectures."

Deans Dolve, A. E. Minard and Alba Bales form the committee on the campus, any of whom may be consulted as to the project, and to whom entrants are to report.

The contest, details for which will be announced later, will close early next spring with the award to be made during Commencement.

PROF. NORDLIE SPEAKS TO LUTHERAN STUDENTS

A talk by Prof. H. C. Nordlie of the Concordia college faculty was the main feature of the second meeting of the newly formed club for Lutheran students on the North Dakota State college campus in the college Y. M. C. A. building Sunday afternoon. Professor Nordlie's talk centered about the Reformation.

Special piano music by Audrey Boe was also included on the program. It was also decided to meet at 4:30 p. m. on future Sundays. Renos Bonewell is president of the group.

There will be a meeting of Gamma Tau Sigma at noon today in Ceres hall.

THE INITIATED MEASURE

The passage of the initiated measure to reduce salaries of state officials and employees would reduce salaries 20% from those of January 1, 1932. This reduction would be a detriment to North Dakota State college. We need but to turn to the history of the college to see how other schools have lured instructors from North Dakota State by offers of from $500 to $1500 yearly more than they were paid here.

The initiated measure has the additional proviso that no state employee's compensation shall exceed that of his employer. With salaries of members of the state board of publication set at $2400 yearly in the measure it would seem that all of the professors, instructors, and even the president would be limited to $2400 by this provision. Needless to say, such salaries would scatter the better instructors and executives to the four winds, slash the enrollment and degrade the standards of North Dakota State college. It therefore behooves students on the campus to vote, if they are eligible, against the measure, and to exert every influence at their command to defeat its passage.

CONCERNING A DEPRESSION

These aren't hard times—these are normal times.

We're back to the normalcy where we call a spade a spade and a gold digger by another name. We're just hearing about the unemployment situation that our dads had for an excuse 20 years ago.

People have proven themselves not good enough for jobs since before the day our Lord decided Noah could build a better ark than his neighbor and let the world make a beaten path to his door.

We've just finished our buttered bread and the jam that we got with it and are hunting up a crust to throw back on the water—and we have yet to see the Psalmist who would make us cast it on light wines and bers to balance a Budget!

They're still putting pockets in suits—there's one of those new small dollar bills circulating around this country—and they're even going to have Christmas this year.

We've taken our hand from our wallets and are extending it as the long forgotten right hand of fellowship. We've stopped demanding a new deal—we've had the cut and all we need is a new shuffle.

There have always been long-faced people who have to relieve sore throat by wailing with foot-ease. We don't intend to be Gunga Dhins and better men than your are. BUT

These aren't hard times—these are normal times.

THOSE MID-TERMS

With the completion of the major portion of the fall festivities with Homecoming, this week's mid-term reports are bringing many of the student body sharply face to face with the thing that they have come to college for—an education.

While activities, social, athletic and otherwise characteristically American collegiate are accepted as the frosting on the cake of education, students are discovering that one must eat of food of stronger sustenance than mere frosting in order to exist and carry on. Mid-term examinations come at a proper time to warn the student of neglect of the rather more sustaining and more important phases of college, the studies.

There will be a wide difference in the midterm marks received by different individuals. Some few students who were fortunate enough to get a good start on their term's work will come through with good averages, while the majority, which finds it difficult to settle down to work after returning to school, will discover that his midterm marks are much too low.

People go to college, supposedly, to study and to try to obtain a good average. It is left to them, then, to live up to these summations if they are to make a success of college life. There are six weeks now left of the fall term representing an ample period of time in which to raise a low midterm average to a comparatively high one. Studying has been sadly neglected, and it takes a receipt of midterm marks to make students realize that to study is what they must do, whether they like to or not.

There are factors which assist college men and women in doing better work during the latter half of the term. They, especially the freshmen, have learned to budget their time to a considerable degree. They have also learned to concentrate more thoroughly on the tasks before them. They have become better acquainted with the methods of instructors and the procedure of laboratory work, and books are not quite so much of a puzzle.

Bettering a midterm average will furnish a thrill of satisfaction that will serve in large measure as an incentive to doing better next time; and surely nothing can be more commendable than such improvement.

Ruth Page Praises Theater Movement

Ruth Page was most eloquent in her praise of stage facilities and the emphasis given to the dramatic art at the North Dakota State college, in a personal interview granted Monday evening. "I was prepared for a barnlike armory with rows of rifles lining the walls. I am enchanted with its Grecian beauty!" Miss Page said, after her inspection of Festival hall, where she is to dance this evening. She remarked that it was very similar in plan and decoration to some of the famous German "festival halls" that she has performed in. "I find it to be true that the middle western schools are far in advance of the eastern schools in as far as stages and auditoriums go."

A warm interest in the Little Country Theater movement was evinced by the famous dancer. Her firm belief is that all great talent springs from the smaller centers of the country, out of just such movements at the Theater movement here.

"I expect to hear of an Eugene O'Neill or a Katherine Cornell rising from the ranks of the North Dakota State students."

When she was fifteen years old, Miss Page began her study under Pavlova. She traveled in her company and reminisced charmingly of her experiences while traveling with Pavlova. Of all the countries through which she has traveled, she loves Spain most of all, but finds the Russian to be an amazing people. Although their financial condition is in a state of turmoil, they have retained a vital and unflagging interest in the arts. She contrasts this attitude with that of the Americans in the larger cities, where theatrical companies are disbanded and opera companies stand idle.

Miss Page has long been familiar with the Southwestern Indians and was most eager to learn about the customs and culture of the Indians of this vicinity. She feels that North Dakota is rich in colorful background, and finds the attitude refreshing after the gloom of the east.

The diminutive dancer charmed the guests with her delightful mannerisms and her infinite grace. She very graciously promises a return engagement in the future.—R. M. B.

Student Opinion

Is he or she a good sport? How often we hear that question asked among campus sets, at parties, and in life in general.

Today, many of us in order to be called good sports, are required to drink our share of cocktails, smoke the right brand of cigarettes, take out another fellow's girl, and spend all our money.

But that is not the kind of sport that we look for and desire in our colleges of today. What we need in our colleges are sportsmen, not sports.

The sportsman plays for the game, but the sport plays for victory. It is the action of the man when he is in the test that determines to which class he belongs.

Let us take football for example. Today good sportsmanship in football is coming toward the front all the time; the players of today refrain from trying to knock out the star of the opposing team, savage taunts have ceased to be flaunted at the victors. We've heard the old timers say that in the days when they played football and a player had an injured left leg, he'd handaxe the right one, for he knew that his opponent would kick the tar out of the leg that was handaxed.

The good sportsman today plays football as a team game, and every man who received the plaudits of the crowd knows how little he really deserves them. Red Grange was as brilliant a runner as ever crossed a goal line. He was fast, elusive, but he knew that without a big fullback in front of him to bowl over the tacklers he would probably have never traveled five yards, except on rare occasions.

Some players take defeat terribly to heart, they lack sportsmanship, they regard the game as being a feud rather than a sport. If the joy of the game lies only in winning, the game hasn't much to offer.

Blue Key Fraternity Selects James Konen As Brevities Manager

Chemistry Senior Is Named For Second Time As Head of All-College Show

James Konen, Fargo, a senior in the school of chemistry, has been named by Blue Key, national honorary men's service fraternity, as the manager of the 1933 Bison Brevities. This will be Konen's second year as manager, he being manager of last year's Brevities.

It has been decided at a meeting of representatives from various campus groups with Blue Key representatives to continue the policy of staging the Brevities as a non-competitive show. According to plans formulated at the meeting, the show this year will take the nature of a musical comedy.

No director for the Brevities has been chosen as yet.

We have Jack Oakie and Marion Nixon with us this week at the Fargo theater in the picture medium, "Madison Square Garden."

Jack Oakie plays a somewhat different role in this picture, his usual beaming personality taking on a more serious mein. He takes the part of an ambitious young boxer, trying to break into Madison Square Garden, the supposed Utopia of the sports world. For unselfish reasons he leaves his old manager in order that he might obtain ed gamblers. He stages a losing fight, crowd and is used as a dupe for crooked gamblers. He loses a winning fight, but wins the girl he loves and discloses some of the flaws and the unclean sportsmanship that is prevalent in the sporting world today. The remainder of the cast are all leading stars of the film world, including Thomas Meighan, Zazu Pitts, William Collier, William Boyd and Lew Cody.

SPECTRUM CRITIC

"Pack Up Your Troubles In Your Old Kit Bag," and do they pack them—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy at the State.

Filling every minute with riotous merriment, these "Kings of Comedy" keep the audience in a continual uproar.

The story takes place in 1917. The war breaks out. Unable to conceal their "lost arms" underneath their coats and to hold down a bench in the park, they are drafted and sent over to France. Unable to get the manual of arms and its meaning into their thick skulls, they do kitchen police duty; the soldiers laugh at them, the cook chases them, they even puzzle the German soldiers and make the war a comedy of errors.

With the war over, they return to New York, taking with them a little girl, whose name is Smith, the daughter of one of their buddies, who was killed in the war. With no clues in their possession, they look for the "right" Smith—think of finding the right Smith in New York without knowing the initials—but they do it, and how they do it—they turn the city upside-down, they break up a marriage

BAD WEATHER PROHIBITS COMPLETION OF TOURNEY

The girls' soccer tournament has been progressing slowly the past week, due to poor weather conditions. However, before the recent snowfall made the field unfit for play, one game was staged. This was the second of the contests between the sophomores and the freshmen, and ended as before, in a 1-0 victory for the freshmen, the score being made during overtime play.

Neither the upperclass nor the sophomore team has been able to score against the freshmen. There are three games of the tournament as yet unplayed; the freshmen have yet to play the upperclassmen, and the sophomores have two games with the upperclassmen before them, according to schedule. It is hoped that weather conditions will permit the completion of the tournament.

RULER OF THE PRAIRIES HEADS EASTWARD

Bison Beat Moorhead Teachers College In Game On Muddy Field

North Dakota State Team Wins Sixth Consecutive Victory On Saturday

The North Dakota State college football team added another victory to its unblemished season's record Saturday afternoon, when they defeated the Moorhead State Teachers aggregation 24-0. The game was played in a veritable sea of mud caused by several days of rain and snow previous to the encounter.

Both teams were handicapped by the inclement weather conditions, and numerous slips and fumbles were in evidence throughout the contest. The Bison started the contest with an almost complete sophomore lineup, which did a good job in holding the Dragons scoreless during the major portion of the first half. Substitutions were frequent and injuries prominent.

The Bison suffered the most from injuries as Wendell Schollander, the plunging sophomore halfback, was forced from the game with a dislocated shoulder that will keep him out of uniform during the remainder of the season. Earl Thomas, the Bison reserve center, received a broken femur, and will have to carry his leg in a cast for six weeks or longer as a result. Fritz Hanson was also removed from the game because of injury but this was not serious in nature, turning out to be only a bruise which was temporary in nature.

The Dragon ranks were also depleted on account of injuries received during the contest. Julius Burnness, left guard and tackle, broke a small bone in his elbow, which made it necessary to put it in a cast, and will probably keep him out of further competition for this season. Wilbur Bailey, right guard, was taken out of the game because of the recurrence of an old ankle injury.

While there wasn't much chance for a display of brilliant football because of the field conditions, the Bison showed a superior team and were constantly making long gains through the Teachers' forward wall and around the ends. Billy Gove repeated his performance of the week before and ripped off several yards on each attempt through the line. Gove's backfield confederates, May, Fisher, Ellingson and Selliken, all teamed with him to give the Moorhead group plenty to worry about.

It is physically impossible to pick an outstanding performer in the Bison forward wall, because all men played as strongly as was possible for them to under the handicap with which they had to work.

Punting was resorted to by both teams frequently in order to pull them out of the more dangerous zones. Twice the Dragons were downed behind their own goal line, which netted four points for the Bison. Johnny Fisher, shifty Bison halfback, successfully eluded all tacklers and accounted for the first touchdown, after running the ball from the 10-yard line.

The second touchdown was made by Billy Gove on a plunge through the line. The try for extra point was unsuccessful, when the Dragons downed the ball-carrier ahead of the goal line.

After the second safety was made, the Teachers punted from their 20-yard line and George May returned the ball for the third touchdown of the contest after a thrilling 70-yard run.

Pictures Are Taken Of Bison Homecoming

Movies of College Celebration Shown At State Theater November 4 and 5

For the first time in the history of the school, students at the North Dakota State college will be offered a chance to see actual moving pictures of their Homecoming.

The pictures were taken by E. Anderson, official college photographer, in conjunction with the management of the State theater. Pictures were taken of the Homecoming parade, of the Homecoming Queen, of the crowd and Dacotah field, and actual shots of the highlights of the football game between the Bison and the University Sioux. Included in the latter group are pictures of Wendell Schollander making the Bison touchdown, of Milton Jacobson making the kick for point after touchdown that cost the University the game, and individual shots of the local team in action.

These pictures will be displayed on the screen at the State Theater Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4 and 5, and will then be returned to the custody of Mr. Anderson to be preserved in the photographic archives of the college.

S. C. Alumni In East Have Planned Details For Bison Welcome

Photograph of Herbert Hoover And Bison Squad Are Among Plans

Washington, D. C., besides being the rendezvous for the George Washington university-North Dakota State college game, will have many social attractions for the Bison team when they arrive there on Thursday.

With details for the entertainment in the hands of the North Dakota Society of Washington, the trip is sure to be a pleasant one, according to a letter written by Edward T. Burke, president of this organization, to C. C. Finnegan.

Probably the most outstanding among the proposed plans is the arrangement for the squad to have its picture taken with President Hoover during the stay in Washington. Lawrence Richey, secretary to the president in a letter to a Fargoan, has asked that Casey Finnegan get in touch with the White House as soon as the team arrives. A thorough tour of the city has also been arranged.

Bison Football Men Are Injured In Final Home Game Saturday

Wendell Schollander and Earl Thomas Are Seriously Hurt In Clash

Lady Luck frowned on several football players Saturday, while the Bison were trouncing the Moorhead Dragons on the slippery ooze which, the week before, was a college gridiron.

Frequent snow flurries and subsequent meltings had placed Dacotah field in a boggy condition Saturday, slowing the players on both teams. Collisions were frequent as runners slipped and slid through the various plays.

After a season of expectancy for the Army trip of the Bison, the last home game, a non-conference affair, proved unfortunate for "Wendy" Schollander, sophomore ball carrier and passer. Schollander, whose touchdown against the University Sioux the week before had helped break a long-standing Homecoming football jinx, had his right shoulder dislocated badly when caught between several tacklers. He perhaps will not be able to play at all during the remainder of the season.

Schollander

Earl Thomas, who has been doing dependable work at center for the Bison, received the toughest ordeal of the day and will not be able to make the eastern trip because of a cracked femur, received in the last quarter of the game. Thomas' leg will be inclosed in a plaster cast for nearly six weeks because of the injury.

Football fans were much concerned to see Fritz Hanson leaving the field nursing his hand, many believing it was the old injury that Fritz received earlier in the season. In the second quarter, after having been in only a short time, Fritz had his hand stepped on, but it has developed that the injury was more painful than serious.

Coach "Casey" Finnegan gave the information Monday that James Thompson would be worked in at center to take the place of Thomas. Johnny Fisher and Viv McKay will alternate at left half, and William Gove and Maurice Ellingson at fullback in the Bison backfield under the new conditions.

The Spectrum was honored last week when three suggestions for college newspapers were taken from this paper and credited to it by the National College press association in its form letter to member newspapers. The president of the association is the Tulane Hullabaloo, which paper is host to the national convention of the press group, which is to be held at New Orleans this year.

Tuesday, arriving in West Point in time to work out that afternoon. Practice will be held daily on the Army field.

Production of "Faust" Stimulates Inquiries

Scheduled Presentation of Opera Brings Letters From Wide Radius

The scheduled presentation of the opera "Faust" on the North Dakota State college campus on Nov. 17 in conjunction with the Festival Opera company of Chicago, is bringing in many inquiries from as wide a radius as 90 miles, with occasional inquiries coming from as far as points in eastern Minnesota, according to Dr. C. S. Putnam, in charge of arrangements for the production.

The production includes a thirty-piece orchestra of State college students as well as women's and men's choruses, in both of which there are a few vacancies, with time remaining for them still to be filled.

A test rehearsal will be held about ten days previous to the staging of the opera by a stage director from the opera company who will make the necessary corrections to get it in readiness for the performance here.

Scouters Club Is New Campus Project

Boy Scout Supervision And Boy Training Stressed by Group at Meeting

With a second meeting scheduled tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the "Y" building, the Scouters club is rapidly completing organization, according to Edward McArdle, who has been assisting in the organization of the club.

The Scouters club is an organization sponsored to give advanced training in supervision of boy scout movements and is especially provided for former Boy Scouts, who wish to continue their interests in the work of training boys. It is to work in conjunction with a course to be offered during the winter term through the school of education in training of younger boys in constructive fields of endeavor.

R. A. Trubey, a Fargo businessman, was one of the speakers at the first meeting of the Scouters club, held last week. E. H. Bakken and A. Mattioli of the Fargo Boy Scout headquarters were present at the meeting to assist in organization.

Ability in leading and supervising Boy Scout movements is becoming a requirement in a number of grade and high schools throughout the state, according to Edward McArdle. The activity of the Scouters club is to do advanced work in training prospective instructors and to learn of newer trends in the field of supervision of youth.

is so arranged that it will be of special interest to school children, although the matinee is open to students and adults also. Special character interpretations in dance will be the feature.

Miss Page is an American, born in Indianapolis and educated there and in New York. She had no dancing lessons until she was twelve when she was stirred with ambition at seeing the famous Pavlova dance. Securing an introduction, Miss Page "tried out" before the artist with a toe dance of her own composition and immediately began her career. She has studied under Pavlova and Bohm.

She has traveled extensively abroad, touring South and Central America, the Orient and Europe. In Buenos Aires she appeared in a special performance before the Prince of Wales. She danced at the enthronement of Emperor Hirochita in the Imperial theater of Tokio. She has the distinction of being the only American who has been invited to become a member of Diaghileff's Russian bullatin, Moscow.

Besides her tours of America, she has appeared with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York, the Chicago Opera company, and Irving Berlin's Revue as premiere danseuse and ballet mistress. "Dance Macarbe" is her only film production.

Students of the college are admitted to tonight's performance upon presentation of their registration cards, but an admission of 25 and 35 cents will be charged for Wednesday's matinee. Adult admission is fifty cents, with reserved seats at seventy-five cents and one dollar.
