

TELEPHONE ASSISTANT GIVES DEMONSTRATION OF SOUND PROGRESS

Committee Requests Students To Use Bleachers At Program

THREE DAYS REQUIRED TO SET UP EXHIBITION

Major Part of Demonstration Concerns Methods of Transmission

Sergius P. Grace, assistant vice president of the Bell Telephone laboratories, will appear before an audience of about three thousand people in the physical education building tonight at 8 o'clock in a demonstration and explanation of recent developments in the scientific world.

The apparatus needed to make the demonstration has been set up, after three days work and testing. According to E. E. Greeling, chairman of the committee in charge of Mr. Grace's appearance, most of the tickets reserved have been issued, but a small number are still left so that students who have not yet obtained tickets may get them at the ticket booth in the physical education building tonight. The doors will open at 7 p. m., with the demonstration beginning promptly at 8.

All students attending the demonstration are asked to take seats in the bleachers which have been set up, according to Mr. Greeling.

Among the groups invited to attend the demonstration are the faculty members of the college, students in the school of engineering, members of service clubs and the chambers of commerce in Fargo and Moorhead, professional men of the two cities, and members of the North Dakota Telephone association, the latter group being in session here today and tomorrow. Invitations have also been mailed to county, city and state officials.

The major part of Mr. Grace's demonstration will be occupied with methods of sound transmission, according to Mr. Greeling. By means of the machines installed, Mr. Grace will enable those in the audience to hear conversations between dispatching operators at airports and airplane pilots in the sky; to hear a conversation between himself and Colonel Shreeve in London, England; to hear speech scrambled and unscrambled; to see a picture played on a Victrola; to hear things without a sound being uttered; to see speech creep along a wire; to hear the normal movement of the muscles in the human jaw; to hear a man's heart-beat thunder thru the building; and other demonstrations of a like nature.

The lecture is to be presented under the auspices of the Fargo Engineer's club, and the chambers of commerce of Fargo and Moorhead, and was made possible through the courtesy of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company.

Players Commemorate Carroll With Drama

Story Telling Classes Repeat Dramatization Today, Tuesday Night

Fitting commemoration was given Lewis Carroll, famous author of children's stories, Thursday afternoon when the Little Country theater players dramatized "Alice in Wonderland." Sponsored by two classes in story telling, directed by Alice McConnell Bender, the play will be repeated at 4 p.m. today in the Little Country theater, with a performance especially for adults at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

More than 300 Fargo school children greeted the cast for the initial presentation. The classes were more than successful in making costumes and scenery in keeping with the fantastic nature of the story and the liking of the child. The problem of costuming more than a score of characters was capably overcome.

The major role was interpreted by Erlys Hill, who throughout the performance lived the part of the imaginative seven year old Alice. Almost 30 other players comprised the supporting cast.—G. G.

Swan Song

A year ago we had confidently expected to be content and happy as our last issue went to press. That we think should be the normal order of things. Unfortunately this issue is our most difficult and most unhappy one.

Although we end the year in an unhappy mood we are grateful and appreciative for the efforts and accomplishments of a most cooperative and dependable staff. Whatever The Spectrum has accomplished is due to their willingness to do the detailed and fundamental work and their interest in journalism itself. We feel that it is unfortunate that the journalism department cannot offer more courses to these interested individuals.

One of the most satisfying parts of our experience this year has been the contacts we have made with the faculty and student body both here and at the University of North Dakota. We feel that the inauguration of the editor's exchange was a step forward in promoting good feeling which is so badly needed and for this reason we believe that the exchange should become one of our few traditions.

During the last year we have seen the political situation reach its height. We have now a new Student Commission elected on a platform of golden promise—we are promised a first rate publication, a cooperative bookstore, and less book switching, the fulfillment of which would represent Utopia to us and we feel to all other students on the campus. We are now merely waiting for them to be placed into effect.

And so, perhaps, once again we shall laugh. Meanwhile we present our last issue.—M. H. A.

The New 12:30 Curfew

It is with much approval that we greet the recent action of the social committee in extending the time for the Senior Ball until 12:30.

During the past year we have written a great deal about the provinciality and unfairness of the 11:30 curfew. We are glad for this reason that the committee has taken action at least as regards one formal of this year.

The final decision rests with the students. It is only by their wholehearted approval of this action, their support and their attendance at the Senior Ball that we can show student appreciation and cooperation to the committee and be assured of further action next year.

Faculty-Student Mixers

Perhaps, one of the most worthwhile activities on the campus this year has been the inauguration of Faculty-Student mixers for all the schools on the campus by the Y. M. C. A.

Surely nothing is needed quite so badly here as closer, more friendly contact between instructor and student. The Y. M. C. A. has taken cognizance of this fact and by the end of the term will have sponsored four mixers which should do much to promote harmony and good feeling on the campus for once we become acquainted we shall understand both viewpoints.

Grace Demonstration

Tonight in the physical education building the Bell Telephone system is sponsoring a demonstration of recent scientific developments.

Perhaps this is one of the most significant exhibitions ever to appear on the campus and should be of interest to all.

The demonstration is varied and three days have been required to install the machinery. Students are requested by the committee in charge to use the bleachers as a matter of courtesy to townspeople. We hope that they will cooperate in this respect and that as many as possible will attend.

Student Opinion

Virtue Goes Unrewarded

Worried faces, hurried consultations, and much under-the-breath swearing have been the prevalent features in journalistic circles of late. We, on the outside, observe these indications of strife and hear the loud rumbling of political machinery at work. We were always under the impression that the rumblings of political machinery were muffled. However, much to our enlightenment, we learn that even the most clever operators of these machines must sometimes get out, put their shoulders to the wheel, and with much straining push the contraption over a tough spot in the road to the accompaniment of sundry grunts, and loud clashing of gears, shifted by the less skillful operators in the cab.

When the political machine which has purred along so silently, so efficiently operated, for such a long period had to be pushed over the last obstacle, it was not without casualties. Even we on the outside became interested in the operations which had such drastic results to one individual, not a part of the personnel of the machine, but vitally interested in its progress. This individual labored on the road at a point yearly passed by the machine, its operator and group of would-be operators. A very capable young man, this fellow. He never hooked rides on the machine as it passed, nor asked favors of any one of its occupants. He was content to do his work, do it exceptionally well, and to take his reward when he had earned it. In his spare time, this fellow worked on a nearby larger road. His work here was very satisfactory and he was recognized as being most capable.

Well, to get to the point of the story, the young man in question, at the last annual passage of the political machine, was waiting near a rough spot in the road to pick up his hard earned ride. When the machine struck the rough spot and its little operator got out to push, the fellow became apprehensive less he miss his well-deserved ride. The machine came on, bouncing over the rough spot piloted by a campus Red, crashed into the young man, ran him down, and passed on without pausing to look back; urged on by the little operator, who now no longer rode in the cab, but hung to the hand rail in the rear, shouting instructions to the driver.

And what of the rest of the occupants of the political machine? Some of them were aghast at the spectacle, some sat chuckling in self satisfaction, and some knew so little about what was happening that they sat in smug complacency looking at the landscape. They had listened to the instructions shouted to them from the handrail passenger, acted accordingly, and were sure of the wisdom of their action.

The injustice of the situation is evident. When a man has worked long and diligently, is recognized by all his associates as exceptional in his field, and is well deserving of reward, can there be any greater injustice than to sacrifice him to the political machine? Politics there will be, as long as people are human, but when people stoop to unprincipled actions, refusing a man a position for which he has worked hard, when he is recognized by his associates, by his fellow students, and by more capable judges than we have on our campus as being most outstanding and deserving, it is evident that they are more interested in their petty intrigues and selfish interests than we would call permissible even under the head of "dirty politics."—Frank Seebart.

Politics may come and politics may go—but I think that there is a limit to everything. The election of The Spectrum editor for next year which has been hanging fire for many weeks has finally come to an end. And by what I hear there should have been less fire in the speeches and more of the speeches in the fire. A deserving person should be rewarded and everyone knows Gerry Garlid has worked long enough and hard enough on the paper to get the best that could be given him.

However, a few didn't believe in this, and consequently, Gerry was cheated out of one of those things which come once in a lifetime. Needless to say, much antagonistic feeling has been aroused. There should have been no argument or great debating over the question. I'm afraid that personal feelings and a few strong wires rather dominated fair judgment.—Sally Hunkins.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to express one's self upon a delicate problem it seems expedient to think twice lest we clump around where angels dare not even peek. To be explicit, the Board of Publications has finally come to a decision, and there are a few of us who are still wondering what this "second-rate (I believe it was called) newspaper is going to become. I hope for the sake of the "Holier Than Thou" frame—the opposite of the Hog It All—that the new editor makes a second New York Times out of this publication, because if he doesn't do all the things the present Student Commission promised us there might be a few more hair-raising upsets around this institution.

But it really is queer—we have two applicants for the position of editor of the college paper, one of the two now holding the office of assistant editor, and the other the position of sports editor. The assistant editor has edited several issues of the paper alone and has been responsible for one issue each each week for the last term and a half; there is no doubt about his qualifications. And then the Board elects to the editorship a sports editor. It would seem that the assistant editor should, as a matter of course, be advanced to the position. And especially so if his work and qualifications are satisfactory. Sometimes this college reminds me of a Democratic and Republican convention.

Apparently ability has no weight around here—get in on the right frame, or be generous in slinging around two-pound boxes of candy (I really should know nothing about that, but I do—it's a secret. And I can't imagine who I'm talking about)—and you'll be editor by and by. That is—you will unless somebody develops a severe case of party consciousness.

I feel sorry for the new editor. He's in "the fell clutch of circumstance" and I don't imagine he's enjoying the clinch. But I'll bet that the Theta Chi chapter is beaming and sizzling and patting each other's backs—and the Great Mogul, second cousin of God, has probably got blisters on his hand by this time. He always was a great hand-shaker. Well, politics has scored once again—but this was about the dirtiest deal I've seen yet.—Abbie Porter.

Olympia defiled! Topped by a garland of Greek letters that has fallen askew across their brow placing them in a daze and obscuring their vision, a board of publications has squinted through the Greek letter garland—discovered a molehill and made it a mountain.

If the Board of Publications was working on a sentiment of "small town boy makes good" or "needy lad given help" or "he's my second cousin," there might be some excuse for their choice of Spectrum editor. The reason for the board's choice is not known, but it certainly is not based on merit. The most experienced, best equipped journalist on the campus is cast aside to satisfy the vanity attending a string of Greek letters. It isn't fair that a really deserving and adequate person should not get a job that is rightly his. I, personally, want to express my opinion against such rotten action—and offer my condolences to the new editor.
Leonard Gilles.

Concert Band Plays To Appreciative Group

Musical Organization Presents Well Balanced Program In Festival Hall

Playing to an appreciative audience, the Gold Star concert band directed by Dr. C. S. Putnam presented their spring concert last Wednesday evening in Festival hall.

The full program was well balanced being made up of a pleasing variety of pieces. These were rendered with a skill and precision characteristic of the band. "In Bohemia," an overture by Hadley was played with understanding for the composition. The same was true of other pieces played by the band.

Paul Deal played a delightful baritone solo entitled Theme and Variation on "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" by Rollinson. Another featured number was the trombone quartet playing a composition of Doctor Putnam's "Two Pair of Slippers." Both of these were well received by the audience.

The Girls Glee club assisted the band by singing two numbers, which added variety to the concert. Miss Adda M. Blakeslee is the director of the glee club.

As a fitting climax to the program Dr. Putnam presented his complete band made up of the Concert band, R. O. T. C. band, and Bugle and Drum Corps playing the march, "The Cavalry Soldier" by Brockinshire.

Covers were laid for forty-five at a luncheon given by Alpha Xi Beta sorority in the Gardner hotel dining room Wednesday noon, May 25, in honor of Mrs. Clifford E.
