Fifth Edition Of Bison Brevities Scores Success Monday Night

Packed House Greet's Evening's Performance Of Brevities In Festival Hall

CAST OF 150 STUDENTS REPEATS SHOW TONIGHT

Production Shows Co-operation On Part Of Director, Manager, Staff

Smashing to a grand finale to the tune of "Polychrome Rhapsody," the fifth edition of the Bison Brevities scored a success Monday night proving that competition is not necessary for a successful show. A packed house greeted the cast of more than 150 students in the first evening's presentation. A second evening performance will be given at 8 o'clock today.

Co-operation on the part of the director, Prof. Homer B. Huntoon, the production manager, James Konen, and the entire assisting staff was evidenced throughout the performance. Adding to the general effect of the players' work were the varied and elaborate stage settings and costumes worked out accurately in detail according to the nature of each particular act.

One of the decisive acts of the entire performance was "Taps Militaire" with Earl Grove as the drum major. "On the Wharf," featuring Don Brasseur, soloist, was one of the most versatile parts of the show.

The applause of the entire audience was received by Myrna Ottinger and Ronald Ostrander when they presented the Adagio dance as a part of "Salon Classique," outstanding among the acts in more ways than one but particularly for its marked beauty. Frances Kingsbury and Ev Hammer in "Pierre and Pierrot," did unusual work.

Outstanding comedians of the evening included Christ Bjornson and Cy Lonsbrough. An interesting contrast in the entertainment was the well-executed rope throwing act by Albert Buchli, Theodore Loy, John Hamlet and Otto Wolhowe. In another scene

Dr. John J. Becker Is Speaker At Convocation

Newman Club Sponsors Program In Festival Hall Next Friday Morning

Sponsored by the Newman club, a convocation featuring Dr. John J. Becker, head of the finance department and professor of music at St. Thomas college of St. Paul, Minn., in an address "Goethe, Man and Poet," will be given Friday morning at 9:40 in Festival hall.

Dr. Becker is a champion of the ultra-modern music and drama and was recently appointed by the Walt Whitman Foundation to prepare a bibliography to the poems of Walt Whitman. As a composer he has compositions in England, Germany, and Spain as well as in the United States. He is a member of the Pan-American Association of composers and contributes to the "Musical Quarterly" and the "Musical Observer."

Recently the St. Paul Chamber of Music society presented Dr. Becker in music of his own composition, "Concerto Arabesque," and he is now lecturing on tour.

Preceding his professorship at St. Thomas Dr. Becker was professor of music at Notre Dame university from 1917 to 1927 later instructing in other institutions until 1929 when he came to St. Thomas.

Not only an outstanding composer Dr. Becker is a student of German literature and gives much time to dramatic arts and letters. Speaking on Goethe he will give an introduction to the "Goethe Fest" being sponsored by schools of Fargo and Moorhead for presentation in the near future.

In Opera Role

As Don Basilio, a music master, Herbert Gould will play an important role in "The Barber of Seville" to be presented here by the Festival Opera company April 21 as the last number on this year's lyceum series.

Opera Artists Give "Barber Of Seville" At N.D.S.C. April 21

Company Presents Musical Drama In English; Entertainment Ends Series

Singing in English what is universally considered the greatest comic opera ever written, the Festival Opera company, Inc., will present Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" in Festival hall Thursday, April 21, as the concluding number on the twenty-first annual lyceum series at North Dakota State college for the 1932 season.

Selected for the 1932 tour, "Barber of Seville" contains seven of the most beautiful voices in America, authorities say. Professional scenery, stage settings and costuming make this one of the greatest productions visiting the college. With the dialogue spoken, it provides an evening of uproarious laughter, musical gems sung by some of the greatest voices of the day, heart appealing moments and a happy ending, according to critics.

Isador Berger, concertmaster of the Chicago Civic Opera company, is the general musical director, and the productions have been personally prepared by Clarence E. Cramer of Chicago.

General admission for the opera will be fifty cents. Reserved seats may be secured for one dollar. Students of the college will be admitted upon presentation of their registration cards.

MONSIGNOR BAKER IS NEWMAN CLUB SPEAKER

Speaking on the subject "The Ideal College Student," Monsignor John Baker, Valley City, addressed the Newman club of North Dakota state college and members of the Newman club of Moorhead State Teachers college, guests of the North Dakota State club, Sunday evening in the Knights of Columbus hall.

Monsignor Baker is professor of modern languages and social science at Valley City State Teachers college. Included on the program were three selections by Lawrence Forman, violinist, accompanied by Ruth Clemens. After the meeting refreshments were served.

Mr. Leon Hartwell was a guest at the Alpha Tau Omega house Friday evening.

Co-eds Win Leap Year Rights

Leap year it is and apparently the women like it! When Senior Staff announced its final party of the year (and it wasn't to be a leap year affair), North Dakota State co-eds staged a riot. Demands from the fair sex for a leap year shindig came from every direction. And so a leap year party it will be, rules Virginia Davis, staff president. To the co-eds goes the responsibility of "forking up" the shiny half-dollar and of assuming the role of the gallant escort Friday night. Perhaps this is the joy of leap year.

McKay Will Be Third In Line At Annual Junior Formal Ball

Student Wins Honor As Most Representative Athlete Among Junior Men

Vivian McKay will be third in line at the annual Junior Prom April 29, as the most representative athlete of the junior class. McKay is a three letter man, having letters in football, basketball and track. He is a junior in the school of education and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Leading the line of march with Melvin Berdahl, prom manager and Alpha Sigma Tau, will be Miss Helen Fredrikson, junior in the school of education and a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Guidon, women's honorary military fraternity.

Miss Frances Plaggmeir will be second in line as the guest of Earl Grove, assistant manager and Kappa Psi. Miss Plaggmeir is a sophomore in the school of home economics and a pledge of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Donald Arthur, president of the junior class, enrolled in the school of education and member of Theta Chi fraternity, will be fourth in line.

Final negotiations are underway today to secure Al Bengston and his White Caps at Red Wing, Minn., to play for the dance, according to Theodore Loy who is securing the music. Bengston and his orchestra are well known in Minnesota and have played for several proms.

Decorations will follow a May Day theme in as far as possible, announced Frank Clark, chairman of the committee, yesterday. A color scheme of orange, blue and silver will be used in lighting and other effects. Programs and favors will carry out the same general motif.

Petitions Due Today Announces Seebart

Documents Must Have Twenty-Five Signatures Before Acceptance

Petitions of candidates for student officers to be elected Thursday must be in The Spectrum office by four o'clock this afternoon, announces Frank Seebart, commissioner of elections. Election will be held in the Main building with the polls open from 8 a. m. until noon, and from 1:15 p. m. to 4:15 p. m.

Each petition must contain at least twenty-five signatures. Petitions appearing later than the time limit set will not be considered, according to Seebart.

Students will vote at the election on an amendment change to the constitution of the Board of Publications, as outlined in the last issue of The Spectrum. New members of the student commission, three members of the Board of Publications, and a sophomore and junior members of the athletic board of control will be elected.

Edwin Booth Dramatic Club Host To Illustrious Player Wednesday Noon

ARVOLD RESPONSIBLE FOR APPEARANCE HERE

Hampden Takes Lead Role In "Cyrano de Bergerac," Rostand's Comedy

Through the extensive theatrical influence of A. G. Arvold, North Dakota State college will be honored as host to the illustrious Walter Hampden and 16 other members of the cast of "Cyrano de Bergerac" at a luncheon in the Lincoln Log cabin given by the Edwin Booth club Wednesday noon.

Brother members of The Players, Mr. Arvold and Mr. Hampden are intimate friends, a fact that bears influence upon the appearance of the Hampden party in Fargo.

The Players is a social club in New York city composed of men identified with American art, literature, painting, sculpture, architecture and the drama as well as prominent bankers and lawyers. Its creation was owing largely to the liberality and organization of the tragedian Edwin Booth.

Recognized as the present leader of the American stage, Mr. Hampden is the fourth man to be chosen president of The Players. Although an American by birth and a graduate of Harvard, his acting experiences began in England. He became a member of a famous Shakespearean company and began a career that is in its epitome today. His portrayal of the principal roles of Shakespeare's dramas is of international fame and he is one of the few who have won the privilege of aiding in the process of their preservation.

In addition to Walter Hampden's presence at the banquet in his honor, the Edwin Booth club will entertain 16 other members of the "Cyrano de Bergerac" cast. Ten of this number are also affiliated with The Players. The guests will represent a choice group of leading dramatic artists of America.

Mr. Hampden, assisted by a large cast, will present Edmond Rostand's famous comedy, "Cyrano de Bergerac," Wednesday night at the Orpheum theater in Fargo. Mr. Hampden has played this comedy 561 times in his own theater in New York.

Sitting

Over twelve years ago the American colleges received the greatest impetus in their history. In the aftermath of the Great War they were thrown into a state of chaos. For a time men dared to say what they thought and felt, to shake off repressions, to be unconventional because it was fashionable.

Here, then, was the glorious opportunity—college—to which thousands of young men and women streamed to get the facts, a firmer grasp on life, an international outlook which would make for pacifism. Riding then on the crest of the wave were those collegians in the early part of the last decade. Life presented an endless variety of problems, of promise and of satisfaction.

And now today, scarcely twelve years later, all is changed. We still have our thousands of young men and women pouring into college, many of whom are not of collegiate caliber because college failed to meet the challenge left at the end of the war.

Today we are gradually settling, sitting on the reputations left us by our chaotic predecessors. Instead of trying to make something usable and fine out of that battered reputation we are trying to disregard it, to ignore it, to forget that it has ever been.

Our professors are still interested but not forcibly so. Science is still advancing, but not with the enthusiastic fervor and great strides it did a decade ago. We are still going to college, not because we have any burning desire to find something fine and lasting, but because it's the thing to do.

The pendulum swings back. Already we are beginning to stamp the more unconventional of the modern writers as shameless and sensational. Along with mid-Victorian clothes we assume mid-Victorian minds and we love them both. Women are losing interest in suffrage and are concentrating once more on being brainless, vine-clinging hypocrites and the men are egging them on.

We are not on the dawn of a new era—platform lecturers to the contrary—we are rapidly swinging back into an old one. Inertia and indifference are slowly gaining holds on our minds and our bodies. We sit and sit and sit, and what we need is a powerful shaking up!

Legitimate Fare

Clayton Hamilton, noted man of the theater, proved to be most charming in his appearance on this campus last week. We liked him for that, for his informality, his sincerity, and his evident knowledge of subject. Because of all these things we liked him immensely when he assured us that "Arnold was, literally, the only reason Walter Hampden is playing Fargo." We liked him, for by implication he reassured us that despite our cognomen of an agricultural college, we still have men on our faculty who are the raison d'être for attractions unagricultural and unmechanical.

Legitimate drama has almost entirely disappeared in the smaller cities since the appearance of the movies. For this reason the coming of Walter Hampden in "Cyrano de Bergerac" is an occasion for theatergoers as was the performance of Ethel Barrymore last fall.

Even though we have been forced away from legitimate fare those who appreciate it will see Walter Hampden tomorrow. The actor will probably be handicapped by lack of modern stage equipment but he may be assured of an appreciative and intelligent audience.

Student Opinion

In Friday's Spectrum J. M. L. touched upon a subject which has been a sore spot with me for many years. Unfortunately his pen outran his better judgment. Some improvements are highly desirable. Moreover with sufficient walks and parking spaces the problem of the grass will disappear for there will be no space left for it. The walks and drives are a real problem. But about the paths and rubbish, my conclusion is that the students are largely responsible. I am not sure that they are more at fault than the faculty but there are more of them. Such problems become acute only under congested conditions. Most of our people have never learned the pleasure which can be had from attractive surroundings and particularly their part in keeping things attractive. During my high school career I received a severe reprimand from a man who took pride in his lawn. I have been ever grateful to him for one of the best lessons of my life.

Recently I walked behind a young lady who tossed the wrappings of her candy bar to the winds of the campus. Still more recently I observed another to scatter hers over the street car floor. I have seen a faculty member receive a handbill and release it to the care of the winds and the campus custodian. Daily I see people saving one or two steps by annihilating a corner of lawn, in rainy seasons becoming mired trying to cross the ditch. When the path is muddy they court wet feet and pneumonia to widen the path. The benefits of a little more outdoor exercise via the walk seem an unwanted myth.

Soon I suppose we shall have open house. On a former year an enthusiastic young visitor was heard to remark: "Why, it's just like a carnival!" The campus next morning bore witness to her conclusion. Shall we again deluge our young visitors with printed matter and samples to decorate the landscape? How about this as a time to try to do what we think we are doing in instructing the young?

Annually the students "clean up the campus." Has J. M. L. ever noticed that the custodians' forces have removed most of the winter's rubbish a month before? Is it any wonder that all governments from city to nation, must be continually on guard to save the appearance of public places? It would seem that either our educational institutions fail in one important respect or that it is not worth while to attempt to preserve appearances. If the majority of the people prefer to live in litter 365 days of the year, why bother to clean up on the 366th? The custodian would require a small army to take care of a situation which can be handled without any expense if each one will do his own small part.
O. A. Stevens.

Dear Miss Archer:

I have been disappointed in seeing your correspondents who sign with initials discuss matters concerning the appointments and arrangements at the college without securing the available facts regarding the things that they discuss.

Many of them do not seem to realize the fundamental fact that there are three distinct organizations located here, each working under a different branch of the Federal Government with funds and equipment that can not be transferred. I refer to the College (teaching work), the Experiment station, and the Extension Division. They are not located in the same city in some states.

It is a simple matter to say: "Why don't the authorities build a walk here, plant shrubbery there, and construct a flower bed yonder!" But when the funds are appropriated it is specified what they can be used for and officials who deviate from those orders get into trouble promptly. Last summer the $2,000 appropriated for walks for the biennial period was all used for that purpose, where the need seemed most imperative.

It would be well for the person who thinks there are people on the ground who are not fully employed, to learn the duties of such a one or possibly take his place for a time before becoming critical and indulging in remarks which imply that the employee is lazy.

I wonder if the students realize that janitors must do most of their work after the school exercises close at night and before the class rooms are opened in the morning? Observations of the janitors during the hours when students are about is looking them over during their slack time. Much of their work is done by electric light.

The attitude of the public generally towards janitors recalls the saying:

"It is easy to tell the toiler
How best to carry his pack
But no one can rate
A burden's weight
'Til he feels the load
On his back."

I heard the janitors and laboring men say—when I was one of them—that high school and college students and their teachers were not working but were having one continuous round of uninterrupted pleasure. I argued the point with them but failed to convince the majority. Couldn't they see that the school folks were better dressed and sat at their work while they stood, walked and struggled? The proposition of mental labor and fatigue was scoffed at by those men.

Yesterday a reputable nursery man offered the college a bargain on nursery stock, flowers and shrubs for beautifying the grounds, in which I would very much like to have the institution invest, but, knowing the condition of the state's finances and the attitude of those who are paying the bills for carrying on the work of this institution, I realize that it would be folly to propose such a purchase to the Board of Administration.

No one on this campus wants to see beautiful grounds, convenient walks, nice apparatus and goodly appointments more than I do, but on the other hand when it is a question of sacrificing courses of study and reducing students' chances by curtailing laboratory supplies, I choose to urge opportunity for student work amidst plain surroundings by allowing the campus and walks to wait.

Let me suggest that students will be given the facts about these campus matters, which they wish to discuss, if they will but ask for them. It is good experience to look up the facts and get the different viewpoints before attempting to discuss them.

You will find college officials ready to supply the required information.

Yours very truly,
J. H. Shepperd.

Misses Date Mistrs

Just leap year and another leap year party. If there isn't a big turn out, it won't be the fault of the female sex. Personally I think every year has been leap year as far as getting "your man" has been concerned.

It used to be a story of "He Who Gets Slapped", but now it's "She Who Gets Slapped". It's gotten to where the boys say, "Oh, yes, she had a date with me last night, a fair time but pretty rough. Now there's a catch in every 'good night'." The only difference this year is that the girls have an excuse to offer for their actions—it helps, at that, for we poor benighted girls who otherwise would have to warm our own davenport. Not so hot!

We seem to have the boys where we want them—all worrying if "she will ask me." Maybe they're experiencing just a few of the exotic thrills and anticipations of wondering and finding good times in solitaire.

Of course there is such a thing as liking your own room better than the parlor—ask John Rooney to expound his theories on this. They will be full of absorbing interest. However it may put you in the dark.

Well, here's to you boys! May you make the best of leap year and enjoy doing it.

FIFTH EDITION OF BISON BREVITIES SUCCESSFUL

Among the most entertaining take-offs was "Burlesk Classic." "The Birth of a Nation," a take-off on Washington crossing the Delaware, also ranked among the most humorous parts of the production.

A fitting climax to the entire show was the grand finale containing a wealth of entertainment. The skating dance by Ellen Kelly and Earl Grove was especially well received and was indeed unusual. Catherine Samuels and Ben Boyden displayed remarkable technique as tap dancers. For general effectiveness it would be difficult to excel Audrey Houghlum as the "Pink Lady" and the men's chorus presented with her.

Contributing considerably to the general success of the show was the 25 piece orchestra directed by William Euren. Its presentation of "Polychrome Rhapsody," arranged especially for the Brevities by Henry Olson and William Euren, was one of the musical highlights of the evening. The singing choruses were also effective throughout.—M. A.

Between Halves

By EVERETT WALLUM

The Bison Brevities has an intermission, so we contend the title of this column still holds good.

AND IF YOU DON'T THINK THE SHOW, BY LITTLE STRETCH OF THE IMAGINATION, COULD BE CLASSIFIED UNDER ATHLETICS, JUST ASK THE CAST, HOMER HUNTOON OR JAMES KONEN.

As this is written Mr. Huntoon has not fractured an ankle or a wrist, but the director of the production went through more exercise at the rehearsal Saturday than an All-American half-back on any given gridiron.

Jimmy Konen has done so much running around that he is thinking of installing one of those kitchen contrivances that saves 1,000 steps a day.

All this exercise is not physical. We haven't seen any of the Brevities participants holding back on their larynx.

WALT SCHOENFELDER ONE OF THE WAMPUS STARS OF THE PRODUCTION, IS GLAD SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE IS IN THE OFFING SO HE CAN REST.

He thinks the Brevities makes a fellow less emotional than motional.

Mandan folk would be surprised to see Christian "Fat" Bjornson, God's gift to the stage, apply himself as he does in the show. "I don't have to smoke to puff," says Fat, between breaths, as the final curtain descended.

They don't give any physical education for the show, but, then, lady bridge players don't get elocution credit, either.

In fact, it's hard for anyone to get credit these days. Rockefeller is still getting it, we hear, but even he is under suspicion.

WE'RE GLAD THEY'RE RINGING IN A FEW ALUMNI INTO THE PRODUCTION. SOME OF THEM HAVE BEEN GETTING OUT OF CONDITION AND WE'RE SURE INDEBTED TO THE BREVITIES MANAGER.

It's a good thing "Rain On the Roof" is the last number on the program. If they had rain on the roof of the armory two years ago it would stop any show.

WALT SHAMP TAKES THE PART OF "MAN" IN A SKIT, "STREET SCENE." WHAT, JUST ONE MAN?

Adrian Fox, another alumnus, is cast in his favorite role of strong man. Not being married, Adrian can rest assured no one will contest his laurels.

Well, if they only had Lt. Mercade Cramer here for "Taps Militaire," the show would be complete.

But as for us, we'd rather run the 100-yard dash.

Ho hum, period.

THETA CHI INITIATES SEVEN PLEDGES SUNDAY

Seven pledges became active members of Theta Chi national fraternity at services held in the chapter house Sunday, according to Max Hughes, president, who was in charge of the ceremonies.

The new members of the fraternity are: Harry Hanson, Albert Garvik, John Fisher, James Slattery, Lee Gress, John McCormick, Jr., and Keith Jones. Delmore Smith was pledge master for the group.
