Production Of Bison Brevities Is Postponed Until April 11-12

Executive Board Of Blue Key Decides To Change Dates For Annual Show

ABSENCES CAUSE DELAY

Practices Are Temporarily Discontinued; Ticket Sale Is Postponed

Following a mass meeting of the entire cast of the 1932 Bison Brevities Wednesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. gym it was decided by the executive board of Blue Key fraternity to postpone the production of the show until April 11 and 12. The prevalence of influenza on the State campus and the absences recorded in the office of the registrar are directly responsible for the shift in dates.

Between 25 and 40 percent absence is reported from the office of the registrar during the past week. The situation had grown so serious that at the suggestion of the dean of men, I. W. Smith, the mass meeting was called. It was decided that the contact of students at the practices might be harmful. During the last two weeks attendance at rehearsals has been very poor due to sickness, said James Konen, manager of the production.

The postponement, the announcement stated, will give an opportunity for those who have recently recovered from illness to make up their work instead of working on practice. Homer B. Huntoon, director of the production, announced that rehearsals will be suspended for the balance of this week but each act will practice once during the coming week. Strenuous practice will begin the Monday before the opening of the spring term according to present plans.

The sale of tickets which was supposed to have opened Tuesday has been postponed until April 1. The radio program broadcast Tuesday featured the Phi Omega Pi trio and Prudence Yeager, pianist.

Class Makes Plans For Entertainment

"Land Of The Midnight Sun" Program Is Planned By Students

Because of the success of a similar program staged last year in the Little Country theater, the advanced class in community programs instructed by A. G. Arvold has decided to again sponsor an evening's entertainment, "An Evening in the Land of the Midnight Sun" at 7 p. m. March 14 in the Little Country theater.

Hundreds of students and people in and about Fargo attended a program under the same title last year.

Iceland, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland are the countries to be featured in the program which will include talks illustrated by slides, folk dances, musical numbers, tableaux, exhibits and refreshments. Every feature of the program will be carried out according to the characteristics of the different countries.

Committees are working on plans for the program. Class members in charge of arrangements are: Ora Charbonneau and Grace South, Iceland and Greenland; Vivian Luther and Veronta Weppler, Norway; John Dahlquist and Glen Hoople, Sweden; Rhoda Marr, Denmark, and Viola Dixon and Elizabeth Kinney, Finland.

Dramatic Club Plans Meeting

A regular luncheon meeting of the Edwin Booth Dramatic club will be held in the Lincoln Log cabin next Tuesday noon, announces Dortha Olson, president. Ruth Barrett and Kenneth Wyard are in charge of general arrangements.

JOHNSON IS ELECTED CONVENTION DELEGATE

Hjalmer Johnson, captain of the local chapter of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, was chosen as chapter delegate to the national convention of the fraternity to be held in St. Louis, Missouri, this April, at a meeting of the group held Wednesday evening.

Selected as alternate to the national convention was Frank Seebart, lieutenant colonel of the North Dakota State college cadet corps.

Editor Of Spectrum Goes To University To Edit Newspaper

Marjory Archer Takes Charge Of Publication Of Today's Issue Of The Student

To edit today's issue of The Dakota Student, University of North Dakota newspaper, Marjory Archer, editor-in-chief of The Spectrum, left Fargo early Thursday for Grand Forks where she will assume the duties of editor of The Student in keeping with the policy of editors exchange put into effect by North Dakota State college and the University of North Dakota this year.

During her stay in Grand Forks, Miss Archer has complete charge of today's issue of The Student, conducting her work as acting editor. She will also attend the basketball games between the University and State college both Friday and Saturday nights.

The policy of editors exchange was begun this year at a suggestion of Donald Reineohl, editor-in-chief of The Student, who proposed the plan as a means of creating good will between the two institutions. The plan is to have an exchange of editors for one issue of each publication every year.

Two weeks ago Mr. Reineohl was a weekend guest at North Dakota State, editing the February 12 issue of The Spectrum. Miss Archer's visit to the University will complete the project for this year.

During her stay on the university campus, Miss Archer will be a guest at the Gamma Phi Beta chapter house.

Frederick Anderson, Fargo, was formerly pledged to Kappa Tau Delta fraternity, honorary architectural organization, at a meeting of the active group in the engineering building at 7 p. m. last Thursday. A junior in the school of architecture, Anderson is a member of Delta Kappa Sigma social fraternity.

WOMEN STUDENTS VOTE FOR PROPOSED CHANGE IN SENATE DOCUMENT

Lorna Doone Jackson Presents Convocation Program On Tuesday

Address By Foster, Concert By Duncan Robertson Are Planned By Dean

Lorna Doone Jackson, prima donna contralto, is scheduled to appear in convocation at the college on Tuesday, March 1, according to Dean A. E. Minard, head of the committee in charge of convocations.

Miss Jackson is a well known artist, having appeared with the St. Louis Civic opera, the San Carlo opera, and the Chicago Civic opera. She has also appeared as soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

Miss Jackson has had the advantage of study with Emma Calve, the noted singer, having spent an entire summer at the latter's home in southern France, and having been on a concert tour with Mme. Calve in Europe.

At present Miss Jackson is making a concert tour of the United States, appearing under the management of Harry and Arthur Culbertson, Chicago. Miss Jackson's program at the college will consist of various operatic selections.

On the following Monday, March 7, Dr. W. T. Foster, former president of Reed college in Oregon, will address the student body in convocation on the subject of "Social Economics." The next morning, Duncan Robertson, baritone, will appear for the second time at a North Dakota State college convocation.

The engagement of Mme. Rita Orville, soprano, for a convocation in March has been cancelled, according to Dean Minard. Mme. Orville has found that it will be impossible to cover the western part of her circuit.

There will be a meeting of the Junior class in Room 5, chemistry building, next Tuesday at 4 p. m. Business will be the election of a Junior Prom manager.

Donald Arthur, President.

State Quint Has Clean Slate In Conference League For 1932 Season

SECOND GAME SATURDAY

Bison Floormen Are In Good Condition For Final Test, Reports Saaly

At 7:45 tonight the new North Central Conference champions will meet the Nodak floormen at the University armory in Grand Forks for the final conference game of the 1932 season, in an endeavor to maintain a clean slate in the already solved loop race.

A second game at the institution up the river Saturday night will mark the completion of the weekend series and also a most successful basketball year for State college.

New Record In Sight

The Bison squad is in first class condition for their final game meets and according to Coach Saalwaechter will employ every available strategy to overcome the Sioux contingent. A win will mean a record of one thousand percent standing in North Central Conference games, a feat not yet accomplished by any of the five teams since the league's installation.

Reserve material usually determines the final count in the second game with the U, and the Bison are handicapped by a smaller squad of understudies than that which the Nodaks possess. With only a state title of temporarily inflated importance at stake, the Saturday game will be of no great importance. However the Bison greatly desire as many victories over their ancient rivals as possible.

Bison May Lag

There are two angles to the probability of the Yellow and Green warriors copping the series at the Forks. Their desire to preserve a clean conference slate and incidentally establish a new record will be a stimulating asset in downing the Nodaks.

On the other hand the Bison may relax and let down their previous high schedule of the Bison quint, that of the conference title in the South Dakota State game last Saturday. Either circumstance will make promise of an exciting fray.

Squad Confident

No commendation is too high for the champion N. D. S. C. netmen of the past season. Only two defeats mar the schedule of the Bison quint, that of Minnesota U in the opening game of the year and an upset by Concordia. With the consolation that every game in which the entire first string have participated has been turned into a victory, the squad face the approaching tilts with a well merited confidence.

Annual Has Larger Classes Department

All Individual Pictures Must Be Taken By Wednesday, Says Vogel

With 500 students listed for pictures in the classes section of The 1933 Bison, the part of the yearbook devoted to class organizations will contain at least 200 more individual pictures than were included in the 1932 Bison, says Mart Vogel, editor-in-chief of the book.

All individual pictures for the classes section must be taken by Wednesday of next week, says Vogel, or the picture will necessarily be omitted from the yearbook. This ruling will be strictly enforced in order that attention may be devoted to other work in connection with the publication of the annual.

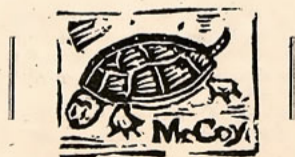

Plans have been made to have an enlarged athletic section devoted to men's and women's activities, says Vogel, with the section fully seven pages longer than last year.

The schedule for taking group pictures is expected to be entirely completed by the end of this week.

"Whither Goest Mankind?" Journalists Lure Reptiles To Editorial-Zoological Sanctuary

Do you know that The Spectrum office is a sanctuary for the lower forms of reptilian life? This we have suspected for some time but now we have evidence, in other words we got da facks.

It all started in an innocent enough way. It seems that in the men's dormitory (everything bad starts in dormitories) there lived in comparative peace and tranquility two young men (nice gents they were too). When I say peace and tranquility I mean it was like that until turtles named McCoy and Gandhi came into their lives. After that all was changed. Said gents quit caring and let their beards grow, dandruff was seen on their coat collars. In fact things went from worse to worse and eventually things became worse. They were weighted down with the responsibilities of turtle tending. But these dormitory dwellers (names withheld) conceived the plan of donating their bathtub aquarium to The Spectrum and restoring domestic harmony.

So now when you idly stroll into

The Spectrum office to gaze at the strange specimens you may look at an even lower form of life. Instead of writing student opinions and editorials the staff has turned to the harmless and equally useful pastime of watching the turtles. Their day consists of basking contentedly in the sun, blinking their eyes, and partaking of a bit of nourishment now and then. Owing to the remarkable abilities they have shown, Gamma Tau Sigma considers pledging them.

So when your Spectrum doesn't come out on time don't blame Archer, blame McCoy and Gandhi.

Social Amenities

Either we are becoming more meticulous or the students on this campus are becoming more mannerless. It is a source of constant amazement to us how any college man or woman can be subjected to the social environment of a college campus for four years and still display such atrocious manners in private life.

We are quite sure that it is only the young, the college man with the high school mind, that doesn't appreciate the importance of good manners. Such an individual still thinks he should still be a "wise guy" and give women their equal rights.

Perhaps it is unfortunate that we are so often judged by our own poise, our appearance, rather than by our I. Q.—unfortunate but at the same time a recognized fact. It is for this reason that we should give attention to those little social amenities that make for the niceties of living.

These same social amenities include the opening of doors for women, and all the other common courtesies that go into the making of a well-mannered individual. They may also well include consideration and judgment. Much national publicity has been given recently to a sorority at the University of Minnesota who inaugurated the fifteen cent date on that campus—a plan whereby no member of this particular organization orders more than fifteen cents worth of food when on a date with a University man. "Crude", said one individual on this campus: crude, but certainly considerate. Perhaps a desire for the publicity limelight prompted its adoption, but the popularity of this particular chapter ought to increase about fifty per cent—and on the whole it's a much better plan than "adult dating" and not as revolutionary.

We have been toying with the idea of course in social training as a regular part of the college curriculum—one for men and one for women and naturally elective. Such training really belongs in the elementary schools where children will learn unconsciously and make it a part of their personality. It would be unwise to make people of college age "manner conscious," but we believe that the greater share of the poorly mannered individuals on this campus are such because of lack of knowledge and lack of training rather than lack of judgment.

Fraternities and sororities do a great deal to improve a man's poise and appearance, but it usually is an assumed polish gracefully displayed in public and shed in private.

And so perhaps a course in social training might possibly have its place on this campus. Certainly it is unfortunate that colleges continue to graduate men and women without any of the earmarks of good breeding. We are convinced that this is one of the important things in life today and that you are somewhat of an ignoramus if you refuse to be bothered.

Fire Prevention

It is probable that carelessness on the part of some individuals has caused two fires of undetermined origin on the campus during the last week. The first was in the hall of the Agriculture building, the other in the physical education building.

Neither of the blazes did a great amount of damage because of the almost immediate attention they received. No official cause has been determined, but it is altogether likely that a carelessly thrown lighted cigarette started the blazes. If such is the case the experience would do well to serve as a warning to us to prevent further more disastrous experiences in the future.

We don't feel that smoking should be prohibited in the buildings, but it is each individual's personal responsibility to see that all precaution is taken that we may prevent these disastrous experiences from occurring again in any of the college buildings.

Turtle Oil

By Gripping Gerty

Well, SPRING, is with us once more, but remember, my dears, that although April showers bring May flowers, they bring Poison Ivy, too.

It was so touching yesterday morning—all the loving couples on the dear old State campus plodding through mud puddles gazing adoringly into one another's eyes—when they should have been at convocation. But then, who doesn't prefer mud puddles to rally convocations?

Rumor has it that old Walz (you know, Frank) has weakened at last. We wonder if he had a pin to hang or if he broke down completely and indulged in diamonds—a dollar down and one a week for the rest of your life. Just bring an honest face. That's all he could bring. The girl is supposed to be in Minneapolis. The price of stamps will probably go up because of the increased demand. (Note: H. Fredrickson and Berdahl, chief distributors of Sigma Tau propaganda).

Oh, by the by, we all are hoping (praying, too) that Grand Forks is as nice to Archer as Fargo was to Reinoehl. But, again we wonder if that is possible.

And isn't it delightful—the breezy, nonchalant attitudes assumed by some of the males and females prancing around on this campus—coming with the breath of spring as it were? The fellows are complaining about the girls jilting them at the last minutes because of colds or over-worked thyroids—but, maybe their thyroids were bothering them. As for the jilting—we love to watch the independence of some of our big, bold football players striding around with a look of I came, I saw, I conquered—and then I jilted when I got darned good and ready. Of course, we don't like to mention names, but Dolly has been acting so queerly.

It took women's suffrage a long time to get here—but everything comes to them who wait—that is, to those who smoke on fire escapes while they wait. For, we are told the fair co-eds of Ceres Hall have at last achieved their hearts' desire—a smoking room. More power to you, gals!

And the funny combinations one sees floating around. There is one that I've been puzzling and puzzling about—Gracie Putney and Frankie Saunders. How do they do it? Must be Spring again.

The Theta Chis are planning on adopting a campaign for purifying the youth of this campus. One of their lads is to get a new gasoline buggy this spring for promising to neither smoke nor drink for three years. I wonder if the Theta Chis would pledge me if I'd promise to do the same?

I'm still wondering what this Stokke philosophy is that everyone is talking about. Frank Callinan is always to be found around Old Main. Maybe he's a student of said philosophy. Guess we'll have to investigate.

Spring certainly has many queer effects upon people, but she certainly is doing more than her usual bit this year. With which subtle remark we close.

STUDENTS STAGE RALLY PREPARATORY TO GAME

A "Pep Rally" to inspire the Bison basketball in the last two games of the season, held yesterday morning at 9:40, featured a talk by Coach Leonard T. Saalwaechter.

Speaking of the team, Coach Saalwaechter pointed out three games in which the Bison proved their superiority. The games he referred to were the South Dakota university game at Vermillion, the North Dakota university game, and the South Dakota State game here.

Dr. C. S. Putnam, director of the Gold Star band, introduced a new group of words to be used at the university to the tune of the "Team" song. Everett Wallum, alumni secretary, spoke on days of former Pep.

Team Wins Eight Consecutive Games In Fraternity League Contest

SIGMA TAUS ARE CLOSE

Jacobson Leads In Individual Scoring; Hill Is Second; Brakke, Third

Delta Tau Epsilon fraternity will remain in undisputed possession of first place in the race for the inter-fraternity basketball championship of the college. They have won eight consecutive games without a setback to hold a perfect percentage rating.

Alpha Sigma Tau fraternity is still very much in the running for the championship. By winning nine starts out of eleven, they are a serious contender for the title.

Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Kappa Sigma, and Theta Chi follow in the order named and all have a mathematical chance to displace the leaders.

Milton Jacobson, high scoring Sigma Tau center, has been setting a fast scoring pace and is easily leading the league in individual scoring with 83 points. Dolson Hill, Theta Chi center, is runnerup with a total of 57 counters. Nels Brakke is in third position having scored 53 points.

There will be no playoff for the title at the close of the second round, and the team with the highest percentage for the two rounds will be declared winners.

The standings:

PI GAMMA MU PLANS MEETINGS FOR MARCH

Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity, will hold its regular meeting Thursday evening, March 11, in the faculty-alumni club rooms.

The program will feature a continuation of the discussion on organized charities. Speeches will be "The Florence Crittenden Home," Ruby DeOtte; "House of Mercy," Dorothea Olson; "Children's Home," Claire Newell; and "The Negro in Fargo and North Dakota," Dr. A. F. Hunsaker. Donald McKechnie will lead the discussion on "Considerations for Perma-State college cadet corps."

REPRESENTATIVES HAVE DISCUSSION OF FORMALS

Urging representatives of the social fraternities and sororities on the campus to keep from making unnecessary expenditures in arranging their spring formals, Dean S. F. Sudro, North Dakota State college social chairman, addressed the meeting held Tuesday afternoon in Francis hall.

Since most of the organizations have social funds built up, no financial difficulty is apparent. However, the purpose of the meeting was to curb unnecessary expenses, such as elaborate programs or costly favors, says Dean Sudro.

Warren Naegli, Kappa Psi, spent last weekend at Grafton.

James O'Connor, alumnus of the University of Wisconsin, was a guest at the Delta Kappa Sigma house Tuesday evening.

Between Halves

By EVERETT WALLUM

It's a mighty surprising bunch of seniors ending their collegiate cage career against their ancient Sioux rivals tonight and tomorrow. Why surprising? Well, three years ago, as freshmen, few critics thought they had varsity ability. Now any one of the five could step right in there and hold his own against the best of 'em.

Blair Seitz hails from Mandan where he cut some pretty capers for the high school there. He has a lot of natural ability, is well able to go on where the regular guards leave off in the championship drive. His best game: against Marquette university when he was a sophomore.

George Fairhead's speed and uncanny shooting ability has made him a valuable addition to the Bison staff. George is one of the few cagers who also plays football. If he had a little more weight he would have been a most formidable halfback. As it was injuries handicapped him. George's best basketball year was in '31 when he was second high scorer in the conference and his best basketball exhibition was against South Dakota State here last year when he garnered eight field goals and three fouls. It will be a long time before his field goal in the overtime game with the Coyotes this year will be forgotten.

MANY BELIEVE GEORGE'S CRITICAL BASKET IN THAT SOUTH DAKOTA ENCOUNTER WAS THE TURNING POINT IN THE BISON'S DRIVE FOR A CHAMPIONSHIP. IT GAVE THE BISON THE NEEDED CONFIDENCE TO CARRY ON.

Few thought Walt Olson, Fargo, would be a star performer when he was a sophomore. He played only a few minutes that year against the Sioux. In his junior year Saaly made a guard out of him, this year shifting him to forward where his left-handed basket shooting combined with guard experience stood him in good stead. He will be back next year to complete his studies but not to play. Walt received his prep experience at Fargo high school. Walt's best game: In the first "U" game this year.

Eric "Ikky" Nordstrom, the second Rockford, Ill., athlete to graduate this year, had had a varied and interesting cage experience. Handicapped by lack of height, Ikky made up for all that by speed and deception. He looked pretty good in his freshman year, played commendably his sophomore year, but was an "in and out" last season. Determined to make good, "Ikky" went into cage practice in all seriousness. From the outset it was easy to see he was going to enjoy a good year.

If any member of the squad is deserving of honors it is Leo Thomason, Gardar, N. D., who reached his peak of form this year. Tommy is big and fast, being a star sprinter in track. A keen student of the game, Tommy worked perhaps harder than any other member of the squad. He is excellent for squad morale, hates to lose and imparts confidence into his teammates.

Tommy's pet grief happened in his high school days when he was playing for the Park River Aggies. The Aggies had a strong team, had beaten Grand Forks, favorites for the state crown, in a game at Park River. In the district tournament his team played Grand Forks in the finals. The Aggies had a good lead, lost out in the last few seconds by one point. He wouldn't be so mad about it but later the Forks quint reached the quarter-finals in the national meet at Chicago. And Tommy wanted to go to Chicago.

THESE FIVE SENIORS ARE DESERVING OF A CHAMPIONSHIP, DESERVING TOO OF A CLEAN SWEEP, A FEAT WHICH WE HOPE THEY ACCOMPLISH TONIGHT.

MILES FORMO RETURNS TO HOME AT LANGDON

Miles Formo, a former student at North Dakota State college, returned to his home at Langdon, North Dakota, late last week after spending the last few months at Los Angeles, Cal.

Leaving Fargo last term, Formo went to California and enrolled at the University of Southern California for the second semester, returning to Langdon because of the sudden death of his father. He was enrolled at this college as a sophomore in mechanical engineering and is a member of Phi chapter of Theta Chi fraternity.

The old thought that college presidents are always held aloof from the students and their activities was thrown into the discard recently at the University of Detroit. Four students were struggling vainly to start their car in the lowering dusk of the campus when one of them hailed a passing motorist with the salutation, "Hey, Buddy, how about a push?" The student turned sickly white when a closeup showed that the man he hailed was the president of the university. However, the prexy cheerfully gave them a push and sent them on their weary way homeward.

The following paragraph, taken from the Milwaukee State Teachers college paper, might well be written under the head of "Milestones on the Path to Progress." It is as follows: "Students who lent their athletic tickets to friends for the game Dec. 10, may redeem them by paying $1 to Mr. Uber."

University of Pittsburgh students have been asked to contribute to a Miner's Relief Fund to aid unemployed and destitute miners in the coaling district around Pittsburgh.

At Wake Forest college a survey among the students to see what determined a professor's popularity showed that the ones who render the most service and those who are considerate are the most popular with the student body.

Sidney Landon Gives "Great Literary Men" As Lyceum Program

Character Impersonator Brings Out Peculiarities Of Men In Portrayals

Sidney Landon's character impersonations of famous literary men at Festival hall Wednesday night as a lyceum number, were delightful and graphic.

In the giving of his "Great Literary Men" Mr. Landon endeavored to bring out the peculiarities of the men he portrayed, believing that poets, novelists and humorists have their peculiarities as well as the average person.

Mr. Landon's character reproductions were very vivid, his makeups appearing so like the pictures by which the authors are known that there was no need of calling upon the imagination for completion of the identity.

Included in the impersonations given by Mr. Landon were those of Victor Hugo, the French novelist; Mark Twain, the American humorist, whom Landon represented as making his famous birthday speech; Edgar Allan Poe, whom he portrayed as speaking the poem "Annabel Lee"; Bill Nye, in which role Mr. Landon especially brought out Nye's mannerisms in delivering a talk; and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, with whose portrayal Mr. Landon closed his program.

Mr. Landon talked all the while that he made up, giving to the audience a general review of the lives and characters of the authors he revived, with frequent allusions to other famous literary men. He applied the grease paint he used in making up while facing the audience, but put on the wigs with his back turned, so that when he turned to the audience with the make-up completed, his own identity had been lost in that of the one he impersonated.—G. W. M.

Production Students Use Drapery As Stage Backgrounds In Play

Class Members Have Experiments In Settings For Term Play, "Richelieu"

The possibilities of drapery as a background for different settings in dramatic productions will be determined by the class in advanced play production instructed by A. G. Arvold when "Richelieu," the five act drama centering about the life of the famed French statesman is staged in the Little Country theater March 15 and 16.

After experimental work as producers of the drama, class members have decided to only employ drapes for the stage settings which will be varied by the use of lighting effects of various sorts. A variety of scenes offers the possibility for experiment in the use of drapes in stage settings. "Richelieu" requires such scenes as a study room, a French room of 1641, a French garden, a room from the palace of Louis XIII and a cell in the Bastille.

Heading the stage committee is Lyle Phillips while Mary Healy is in direct charge of lighting effects. Mary M. Clarke is general director of the production.

The leading role of Richelieu will be played by Lyle Phillips who has had several leading roles in previous student productions. The part of Louis XIII will be taken by James Konen. Celeste Sowka, who took part in collegiate dramatic productions last term, has the leading feminine role.
