Commencement Speaker Talks About "Adventure And Life"

Captain Robinson Will Deliver Service Fraternity Talk To 230 Seniors At Commencement

"Adventure and Life" is the subject chosen by Capt. L. R. C. Robinson, Chicago, who will deliver the main address at the thirty-seventh annual commencement program on June 15. At this time 230 men and women will receive diplomas presented by Dr. J. H. Shepperd, president of the college.

lege.

Mr. Robinson is a graduate of St.
Catherine's college, Cambridge, England, is a noted writer, scholar, soldier, traveler, adventurer, student of world affairs ,and a famous British athlete.

Starting on June 12 the program will get under way with the senior class play, "Laff That Off" by Don Mullally. A comedy in three acts the scene is laid in the bachelor apartment of three young men during the time of the World War. The cast of characters includes Robert Olsen, Morris Erickson, Constance West, Leonard Luther, Mary Ricker, Emily Samuelson, and Clark Fredrikson.
On Saturday afternoon the regular class day program will be given by Leonard Luther, Mary Ricker, Emily Samuelson, and Clark Fredrikson.

On Saturday afternoon the regular class day program will be given by the seniors in the Little Country Theatre. On the program are musical selections, a president's address by Neil Baldwin, class history, Gertrude Almos; presentation of the hatchet to Orville Isley, president of the junior class; class room, Morris Erickson; and class prophecy, Harold Peterson. Following this the Saturday's program will be completed with the alumni ceremonial and banquet with Harold "Blackie" Bachman, alumni, as the speaker. In the evening the president's reception will be held in the armory, followed by the senior swing out and alumni ball. A pipe of peace ceremony at midnight will conclude the day's activities.

On Sunday afternoon at 3:30 the baccalaureate exercises will be held in the armory. John H. Worst, president emeritus, will give the main address. The invocation will be given by Dr. Walter Lee Airheart and music will be furnished by the Gold Star band, under the direction of Dr. C. S. Putnam. On Sunday evening a commencement concert will be held in the armory at 8:15.

Beginning with the procession of alumni, graduates, faculty, deans, directors, board of administration, president and speaker of the day from the Main building at 10 a. m. to the college armory the commencement exercises will begin at 10:30 a. in. Following the invocation by Dr. Airheart, music by the college concert orchestra, and the address by Captain Robinson, the graduates will be presented by the deans of the several schools and awarded diplomas by President Shepperd.

With a motto of "not evening—but dawn" and with colors of red and white the class is headed by Neil Baldwin, president; Arthur Knight, vice-president; Katherine Knerr, secretary; and Emily Samuelson, treasurer.

Child Training Is Offered In Summer

Three courses in child training and nursery school work will be offered at the regular summer session of North Dakota State college, according to Miss Alba Bales, dean of the school of home economics. These courses, points out Dean Bales, will be made unusually popular under the leader-ship of Miss Isadore Blacklock of the Merrill-Palmer school, Detroit, Mich.

Captain Frank Ross To Leave After Five Years Campus Duty

Coach Brought Bison Marksmen To National Prominence During His Career

Five years of service at North Da-kota State College will be terminated next week when Capt. Frank M. Ross, the coach who brought the Bison marksmen into national prominence, completes his career on this campus.

On August 15 Captain Ross will report at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to begin a two year course in the Com-mand and General Staff school, the mand and ceneral Staff school, the second highest official school in the United States Army. Captain Ross' selection for this school among the fifty officers chosen from the army at large each year, is an outstanding honor one of the highest given commissioned officers.

The completion of the course at Fort Leavenworth is a prerequisite for serving on the General Staff on the nation's army or entrance into the War College at Washington, the only other high ranking officers' school in the United States.

Under the direction of the captain Under the direction of the captain, who was, himself, ranked among the best shots in the army, North Dakota State College riflemen won the National Intercollegiate Riflery Championship in 1928 and again in 1929. Their 1930 national championship came as the result of the winning of the Hearst Trophy Match, which prize included a trip to Washington, D. C., for the college sharpshooters and their instructor.

Zoology[Staff Men] Go To Massachusetts For Summer Study

Whedon, Brinley To Do Research Work; Solberg Plans To Study Inverterbrates

All members of the North Dakota State College staff of zoology instructors will be in attendance at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Massachusetts, this summer, it was announced today by Dr. A. D.

Both Dr. Whedon and Dr. F. G. Brinley, also from the college, will carry on zoological research at Woods Hole while Instructor Archie Solberg's work will consist of advanced study in inverterbrates during the latter per-iod of the summer session.

"Woods Hole Biological Labora-tory", which was founded by a cor-poration of scientists 20 years ago along the lines of the laboratory sysalong the lines of the laboratory system started by the famous Louis Agassiz in that region 60 years ago, ranks amongst the best in the world", Dr. Whedon said. "It is regarded superior even to the similar laboratories at Plymouth, England, and at Naples, Italy" Italy."

Originally sponsored by scientists or collective research and instruction work, especially in marine biology, its organization is now backed by a $3,000,000 endowment fund. Its field of work includes all zoological lines and certain phases of botany. The institution itself is situated on a point between the deep Vineyard Sound and the shallow Buzzard's Bay where tides flowing regularly between those water bodies establish unique biological conditions.

Besides having the advantage of association with leading zoologists of the nation and many from Europe at this station, the members of the State College department will have access to the laboratory library, to which more than $15,000 worth of books and periodicals are added each year. Nearby and easily accessible for the Woods Hole scientists are the laboratories of the United States Fish commission and the newly organized Oceanic laboratory, which are also extensively financed.

WE DISAGREE

In less than two weeks over two hundred men and women will be graduated from this college, most of them finished with preliminary training and anxious to enter some field

During the last few years there has been much discussion as to the true function of the college. We must admit, however, that we were just a bit startled by an editorial appearing in the Fargo Forum June 1, which in part words as follows: in part reads as follows,

"First, specialize. Pick out some field in which you are particularly interested, learn all you can about it, then learn some more. Necessarily, that means continuing your education past high school. In college it means getting into your field at once; getting all the subjects offered; completing a unified course which results in a trained individual rather than one col-lection of smattering facts, interestingto be sure, but as practical as a sun helmet in an Eskimo igloo.

When the day comes for getting a job you can present yourself to the business world with the assurance business world with the assurance that you are more than just a college graduate. You are an individual trained to enter business with the expectation that your background and training will fit you for learning by experience essential material not contained in college text books."

Has then the college become purely a business proposition? Is there no one wishing for the sun helmet in an Eskimo igloo? We realize that most of the graduates have prepared themselves for a certain definite job, but we hope that not one percent of the two hundred regard themselves as "trained individuals".

It is true that the most stress is placed on vocational education in a the instructors presume to teach students in lecture courses or even in the experimental laboratories the actual method used in any business field.

Their scope is purely theoretical even though it has its practical aspects. They are primarily concerned with teaching the student the ideal with the hope that the student will catch their enthusiasm and by his even efforts raise the average a hit catch their enthusiasm and by his own efforts raise the average a bit nearer to the ideal. This is the real function of the college—the inspiring of its students with the desire to attain greater heights, to do greater things, in some way to advance the progress of civilization and not merely to turn out trained automatons interested just in things as they are. terested just in things as they are.

THE SETTING SUN

The sun is slowly setting on another year—one eventful in the lives of all North Dakota State students. For the seniors it symbolizes the ful-fillment of a purpose, for the juniors, sophomores and freshmen it repre-sents another milestone in their college careers.

For some who are watching the sunset there has been much of pathos and of tragedy during the year. Now as it is sinking ever lower we take this opportunity to congra ulate the seniors, to wish them well, and to console those for whom life has been hard by reminding them that as sure-ly as the sun sets so surely must it rise again.

and shot put events in the conference track meet at Grand Forks last week-end was the last athletic contribution of Leo May to his college. He gradu-ates next week.

Leo will be long remembered at this school for his athletic ability, he having won three varsity letters and a numeral in each of the major sports, football, basketball, and track.

As captain of the football team last year, he directed the Bison team which lost but two games throughout the season. Though no captain was chosen in basketball during the last seasonal campaign, he acted as temporary captain in the majority of the conference games. He led the attack which gave the Bison their first conference victory over the Sigus in two which gave the Bison their first con-ference victory over the Sioux in two years. Leo broke existing college records in both the shot put and the discus throw events during the spring interfraternity track competition.
