Scalf Outclasses Johnson In Golden Glove Tournament

Adams, Rupp Fight Second Draw Contest In Mit Card Last Night

LIEB WINS BANTAM CROWN FROM WEISS

Deering Gets Judges' Decision In Fast Bout With Mert Brady

(By "Bosco")

It's hard to sock a fleet, hard-hitting shadow and that is why Johnnie Scalf, last year's welterweight champion, won a clear decision over Roy Johnson in the windup of the third series of Golden Glove elimination tourneys held in the Armory last night.

Throughout the four rounds of fighting Scalf kept a bombardment of blows pelting the head and body of Johnson, piling up a huge margin that made the judges' decision turn unquestionably in favor of the veteran scrapper.

Pair Again Tie

Paul Rupp and Felix Adams, although their intentions were not to do so, repeated their fight of the first tourney of the season by again taking a draw decision in the semi-windup match. Both middleweights showed great improvement in condition and a willingness to punish one another. No marked advantage was gained by either fighter in any of the four rounds.

The new bantamweight titleholder at North Dakota State College is Don Lieb, whose technical knockout over Byron Weiss cleared his field of competitors. Weiss, though greatly outclassed, showed a fine sportsmanlike spirit which won him the applause of the large crowd. Referee Chesley stopped the fight after Weiss narrowly missed being knocked out on two close-following occasions in the second frame.

Deering Gets Fight

Displaying better condition and boxing form, Bob Deering, heavy-weight challenger, gained a judges' decision over Mert Brady after four rounds of fighting. The forepart of the fight was clearly to Deering's advantage; Brady, however, staged a rally in the latter part of the fight which threatened to turn the decision. The two freshman heavyweights fought a draw in a former match.

In a bout full of surprises, William Hasselstrom won the middleweight decision over Irwin Deitrich after four rounds of fighting in which the advantage changed position a number of times. Deitrich began hostilities by clouting Hasselstrom all over the ring. Toward the latter part of the fight the clouting process was reversed with Deitrich on the receiving end of numerous jabs.

The first preliminary of the evening was the Murray-Bakken fight in which the former was awarded the decision. Few ring tricks were utilized; both stood in front of each other and exchanged blows. Murray displayed a longer and a trifle faster pair of hands, which fact gave him the bout.

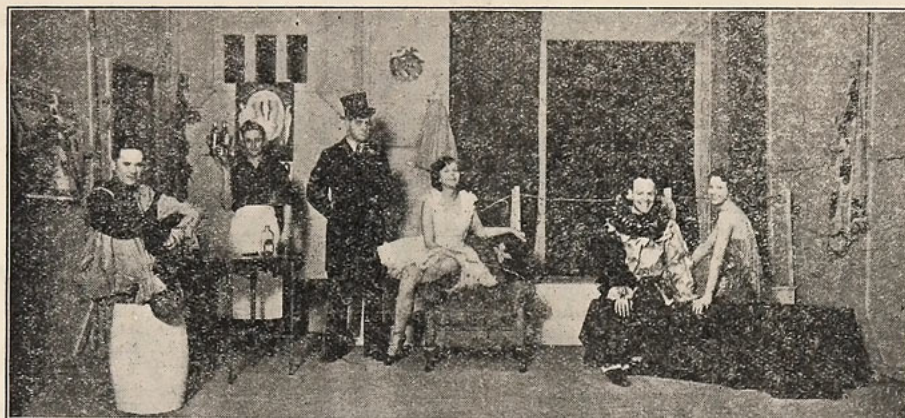

Judges for the matches were John Martin, Captain Conny, and Sam Chesley, who also refereed. "Notorious Cy" did the fight card announcing.

Tau Delta Pi Holds Pledging For Three

Pledging services were held by Tau Delta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, in the Alumni Rooms Wednesday evening at 7:00 o'clock for three senior engineering students. Those honored were Robert Carlson, Glen Schoessow, and Wallace Lovness.

Jack Simonitsch, president of the organization, presided over the pledging ceremonies and instructed the three pledges as to their pledge obligations to Tau Delta Pi. Each of the pledge members must compose a paper, acceptable to the active chapter, on an assigned subject of timely interest in the engineering profession.

Weeks Has Story In National Magazine

The February issue of the Scientific Monthly carries an article, "Mental Differences and Future Society", written by Dean Arland D. Weeks of the school of education, which treats the subject of mental scales in a thorough and well expressed manner.

Dean Weeks should have gained some distinction inasmuch as the Scientific Monthly is a publication of scientific works written by some of the nation's greatest minds.

"Our attitude toward the foolish we shall change, even as we have changed our attitude toward the insane and the sociopath," says Dean Weeks in the midst of his discussion. He deals mainly with the inequalities of the brain and the problems of inequality in society. Nine qualities of intelligence are listed in a mental classification that he presents in the article.

Marionettes Still Charming Audiences With Performances

Tony Sarg's Puppets Play "Alice In Wonderland" For Lyceum Number

"Butter doesn't seem to suit the works," said the Mad Hatter, shaking the watch.

"But it was the very best butter," answered the March Hare, plaintively.

Tony Sarg's world famous marionettes were again playing before a packed audience in the North Dakota State College Armory. This time the vehicle was the old, well-loved tale of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland". Before the delighted eyes of the school children in the afternoon performance, and their elders on Tuesday evening, the White Rabbit with his gloves, who stole the tarts of the Queen of Hearts, the Duchess and the baby who turned into a pig, the Cheshire Cat, the Frog Footman, all paraded on the diminutive stage.

Between performances, Mr. Searle, manager of the company and his cast were guests of Mr. Arvold and the Little Country Theatre staff at dinner in the Lincoln Log Cabin. Members of the Edwin Booth Dramatic Club and the Lincoln Debate Club were present. After the evening performance they were guests of Mrs. C. J. Whempner and her sons, who operate an amateur puppet show.

The Marionettes were en route to Grand Forks, and Crookston, and from there will play through the Middle West via Chicago to New York.

Vivian Luther, Bob Sanderson Play Leading Roles In Four Act Play By Leonid Andreyev

Offering the students of State College and the people of Fargo one of the finest dramatic productions of the year, the Little Country Theatre Players will present "He Who Gets Slapped", the four act mystery drama by Leonid Andreyev in the L. C. T. this evening at 8:15 and tomorrow evening at the same time.

Special musical numbers that will lend to the atmosphere of the show will be played by Lawrence Forman. Besides the special music, lighting effects, scenery, and costumes there will be a ballet by Frances Wright and six of her dancing pupils.

Sanderson Has Lead

Robert Sanderson, Fargo, plays the role of the clown He who seeks some place to forget his past life. He falls in love with Consuelo, the bareback tango queen, but tries to keep it a secret. Vivian Luther, Mandan, plays the leading feminine part.

The entire story is built around the backstage life in a French indoor circus. There is Briquet, the circus manager, played by Tony Faber. Consuelo's stepfather, Count Manchini, who is a charlatan, and finally succeeds in selling his daughter's hand to Baron Regnard, a depraved aristocrat, played by Rod McMillen. Raymond Gregerson takes the part of Manchini. Zinida, an audacious lion tamer is cleverly portrayed by Katherine Lindley. John Dixon as Bezano is Consuelo's riding partner.

The audience is kept in a state of suspense wondering who He really is. At the close of the second act a gentleman appears on the scene who had been associated with the clown in his

Scabbard And Blade Inspector Comes Here

W. S. Hagen Greeted By State Chapter Yesterday Afternoon

Wayne S. Hagen, second lieutenant of the sixty-sixth cavalry reserve, inspected the local chapter of Scabbard and Blade yesterday afternoon. From here he continues a hurried inspection of the seventh corps area.

The local chapter of Scabbard and Blade and the military staff here turned out to greet the inspecting officer yesterday afternoon in the armory.

According to Bob Carlson the inspection has three aims to accomplish: to assist the local authorities in raising the standard of military training; to offer advice based on experience gained through contacts with other schools and to meet the local chapters of Scabbard and Blade and aid them in increasing the efficiency in R. O. T. C. work.

Ralph Heggeness Senior Chemist Passes Wednesday

Graduated In June, Prominent In Glee Club, And YMCA Activities

North Dakota State College faculty and students will pay tribute, tomorrow, at the funeral services in the First Lutheran church of Fargo, to their former pupil and classmate, Ralph Alexander Heggeness, who died early Wednesday afternoon of pneumonia.

Ralph had been ill but two weeks, spending the latter ten days in a Fargo hospital. He was a senior in the school of chemistry at the college and had planned on graduation in June, completing his course fully though absent two regular school terms.

A greater share of Ralph Heggeness' life had been spent in Fargo. He was born in this city on Dec. 10, 1910. He attended grade and high school here, completing high school in January, 1928. He then enrolled at this college in the school of chemistry.

Prominent in student activities, he was a member of the College Men's Glee Club, the College Y. M. C. A., and the Chemists Club.

Ralph is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Heggeness, the former a worker at the North Dakota Experiment station; by three brothers, Gordon, Franklin, and Clark; and by a sister, Helen. Funeral services will be held at the First Lutheran church starting at 2 o'clock.

Shepperd Outlines Appropriations Of Legislature Today

Old Deficit Eliminated With Provision For Payment In Recent Bill

MANY NEEDED REPAIRS BEING PROVIDED FOR

Bill Provides For $860,206.30 To Defray Running Expenses For Two Years

At a meeting of the college faculty in the L. C. T. this afternoon at four, President J. H. Shepperd will outline the appropriation granted State College by the legislature in their recent session. A measure providing $860,206.30 for the maintenance of the institution and another making available $113,033.78 for payment of a deficit in the college's general fund was signed Wednesday by Gov. Geo. F. Shafer.

With the appropriation, President Shepperd expects to be able to continue the standard of the school. No expansion will take place, however, although needed repairs on buildings, and maintenance of salaries is allowed for.

Some Curtailment

Some curtailment of the work of the experiment station and the extension division may be necessary it is reported by officers in charge, due to decreased funds, but details have not yet been worked out.

"On the whole the legislature dealt very fairly with the institution, and in view of the widespread need for rigid economy, we have no complaint to make, but will endeavor to live within our means, while keeping up the high standards of the college," said Dr. Shepperd.

For the three divisions of the institution the legislature appropriated $1,238,339.94, a decrease of $76,241.70 under the $1,314,581.54 which was recommended by the budget board.

The college gets $860,206.30, compared to the budget board's recommendation of $900,740, a reduction of $40,533.70.

The experiment station receives $275,360, compared to a recommendation of $296,068, a reduction of $20,700.

The extension division receives $102,773.64, or a cut of $155,000 under the budget board's recommendation of $117,773.64.

Deficit Eliminated

An additional appropriation for the college was $113,035.75 to pay off the deficit which has been accumulating since 1921. This deficit resulted because of a reduction in the earning power of the college's land grant.

The college, during the past year, has been paying 6 per cent interest (Continued on Page 3)

A CONDEMNATION

In Tuesday's Spectrum we referred to the bitter condemnation given the fraternity system by Dr. Sternheim in a recent lecture in Fargo. We felt at that writing that the speaker had some ground for his assertion. Further probing of the article, however, has caused us to take exception to his method of reasoning. For this reason we have analyzed his lecture a bit more carefully and find his reasoning a bit faulty.

The theme of the talk was an unfair condemnation of the fraternity system as we know it and of fraternity men. Dr. Sternheim is a Jewish rabbi and as such is careful to inform the readers that he has steadfastly refused to speak before a fraternal group be it Jewish or Gentile. Further he says that the American fraternity man is a snob and that his training here totally unfit him for assimilation at Oxford.

Dr. Sternheim has a right to his own opinion, but when he makes it public he lays it open to analysis and criticism. A broad generalization such as this, we feel, must have challenged the minds of a good many college men and women. It is for that reason, and not with any forlorn hope of convincing Dr. Sternheim, that we shall attempt to analyze his viewpoint, which isn't at all uncommon.

"Education in Life", Mr. Sternheim's topic for his lecture at convocation last Friday, we believe, implies knowledge of all types of men and all sorts of experiences. How can Dr. Sternheim then leave out one of the most striking features of college life—that of the fraternity system? He is reputed to be a noted lecturer and educator yet he has never, according to his own statement, taken the opportunities offered him for meeting fraternity men who certainly play a large part in the American college life. For this reason, perhaps, Dr. Sternheim deserves the epithet "snob" more than, or as much as, the fraternity man whom he has been too intolerant to know or to make any effort to meet.

To digress a bit let us say that we realize that an argument for the fraternity has little place in a representative college paper. All the same we must defend the existing system which has such a tenacious hold on our campus against such sweeping statements as Dr. Sternheim is making throughout the country.

We admit that there are features of the fraternity that are not admirable. For example the expense is in some instances prohibitive. Then, too, a fraternity has a tendency to put its stamp on a man and to crush his individualism. After all, however, a scheme such as this that has been in existence over one hundred years must have some advantages as well as disadvantages. The chief benefits of the fraternity are that it serves as a ballast for the Freshman, it gives college people a common social interest, it provides a home for many and by its training often turns out self-assured, poised men and women well-fitted socially as well as mentally to take their place in life.

It is too bad that Dr. Sternheim couldn't have seen the Bison Brevities. One performance would have spoken more clearly, than any amount of ranting through the editorial columns, of the cooperation of fraternity men and women and the artistic effects that their well-directed efforts can achieve.

Dr. Sternheim emphasized the point that the American fraternity man has difficulties in assimilating himself at Oxford. We wonder how many are interested in going to Oxford. For that matter no one has ever definitely proved to us that the typical Oxford man is any more to be admired than the typical American fraternity man.

AGGREGATOR LIBRORUM

When St. Francis of Assisi was laying down the rules for the brother who was expected to be in the world but not of it, he was careful to include the injunction, "Non sit aggregator librorum"—let him not be a collector of books. Nothing must be done that would take his attention from the great pursuit.

In the past two years the acme of praise for current literature has become, "Its the Book-of-the-Month for February" or "This is the Literary Guild selection for this month". We are amazed at these people who take their reading matter as religiously as they do their green vegetables. On nine out of ten living-room tables today we find such a book prominently and proudly displayed. The reading of the book is another matter, to have it around seems to be quite enough. We confess that we have never yet met a book that we could absorb and learn to love by merely keeping it well dusted by our comfortable chairs.

Occasionally in the mad rush of this hurried world we find hidden in some dark corner a book shop. Of course we seldom have time to enter its doors, but if we do we find it frequented by the true book-lovers—men and women who in their odd hours drop in to look at and to hold in their hands their favorite book though they can't afford to buy it.

Walt Whitman said of his book, "Who touches this, touches a man." Books are essentially personal things. We cannot be fitted to them as to clothes or an automobile by a committee of select judges. Rather we must find them by searching, associating, tasting and trying—and then after continuous efforts the true lover of books becomes his own aggregator librorum.

MANNERS VERSUS MANNERISMS

At present there is much discussion concerning the bad manners of youth. So far we can see it is the one pertinent criticism that we find justifiable in our life today.

On the closing page of "Cakes and Ale", recent book of Somerset Maugham, Rosie, the heroine, pays her dead husband, what we consider the greatest of compliments by calling him "a perfect gentleman".

There are manners and mannerisms. People are continually confusing them. For example one of our friends once characterized a man by calling him the best-mannered man he had ever met. Anxious to meet such an individual we lost no time in analyzing his perfect manners and we found them mere surface mannerisms, the result of much diligent instruction on the part of a conscientious mother, but not inspired by any sincere and honest feeling on the part of the man himself.

We all know college men who are careful to rise when women enter the room, and college women who are most careful to perform gracious introductions. But these same people are rude to their elders and sneer at their views whether they be expressed or not.

Respect for anyone, anything, or any opinion whether it agree with yours or not is the essence of good manners. Mere courtesy is not enough. It is surprising how much we may learn from an elder person by "drawing him out" and making him appear to an advantage in conversation.

A little more sincerity and less hypocrisy in paying compliments, a little more respect or tolerance for others—in other words a little more concentration on manners and less on mannerisms might perhaps do much toward making young moderns more pleasant people to know.

"HE WHO GETS SLAPPED"

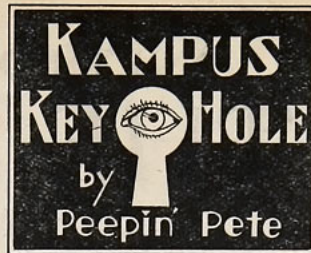

In the production of "He Who Gets Slapped" the Little Country Theatre Players are attempting a drama that is quite different from anything that has been produced at college. The entire presentation of the show from the costumes and scenery to the casting and directing has been left to the students. It is an experiment that helps to build initiative.

Besides the value as an experiment the story itself is one of the world's literary gems. Andreyev has been considered by some authorities as the outstanding dramatist of his day. The play as presented this evening may have lost some of its effectiveness in its translation to the English but, nevertheless, those that see the performances will say it is one of the most gripping things they have seen.

A. G. Arvold is in charge of the class and the theatre-going student body can expect a real performance this evening and tomorrow.

Dear Ma:
 Gee, but this is a funny school. They are giving cups for everything here; the paper says that the K Ds are gettin a loving cup.

The other night some awful fellows over at the men's bunk hall sent a poor short course student out to hunt snipes. For hours he sat at the main gate waiting for the birds but none came so he tried to catch them with fly paper. The policeman came along and arrested him for hunting out of season.

Haven't had much fun this week but expect a rousing time tonight at the Gamma Phi party. Will write soon.

The Bedbugs decisively whipped the Bearcats though the Cats showed some scoring power in the first half. The score was 51 to 16. Spalsbury accounted for 24 of the Bedbugs' points while C. Quinnild was also effective. Erickson was best for the losers.

Warner was outstanding for the Beavers in conquering the stubborn Farmhouse Scrubs 23 to 18. McDaniels was high point man for the losers.

RIFLE TEAM STILL SHOOTS UNDER PAR

Win Four Out Of Seven Matches With Other Colleges In Country

Still shooting somewhat below the regular team average, the North Dakota State College marksmen held a slightly better than an even record for the week just passed with four wins and three defeats.

The University of Dayton with a high record of 3732 led the list of the school rifle squads which defeated the Bison. The University of North Dakota, 3695, and South Dakota State College, 3650, also defeated State College team, whose tally was 3644.

Defeated groups were those of Davidson College, 3426; University of New Hampshire, 3615; Mississippi A and M, 3546; and Ateneo de Manila, 3478.

The ROTC squad was not as fortunate, suffering defeat in the hands of each of its three competitors. The North Dakota State military riflemen countered for 3616, while the ROTC men of the University of Washington tallied 3712; of the University of California, 3659; and Oklahoma A and M, 3676.

Otto Wolhowe and Glen Schoessow, both veteran marksmen, tied for high score honors for the week with 377 points each. Earl Schoessow with 372 and Lawrence Ryan with 371 took second third places on the list.

the amount available for maintenance, giving some opportunity to meet the added demands made by our increased enrollment of 300 college students in the last two years."

Buildings Repaired

Included in the college fund is $50,000 to enlarge the capacity of the heating plant. This will allow installation of two new boilers to replace old boilers, giving a greatly increased boiler capacity to take care of the many new buildings on the campus in recent years.

Work on the remodeling of the heating plant includes raising the roof to accommodate the new boilers. It will be completed in time for the opening of the next school year.

Also included in the appropriations is $15,000 to remodel part of Francis hall for the pharmacy department, and to rearrange the chemistry building to permit expansion of the chemistry department, which has been handicapped by lack of adequate room for several years. The pharmacy department will be moved from the chemistry building to Francis hall. About $7,500 will be expended on both buildings, work to be completed this year.

Another $5,000 is available for a new greenhouse for the experiment station, particularly for studies of flax diseases.

An item of $7,000 is provided for replacement of worn out and inadequate steam mains.
