Golden Glove Card Opens Wednesday With Six Contests

Freshman Football Men Will Meet In Heavyweight Bout

MOLITOR, WARD IN FISTIC EVENT

Rupp And Adams Tangle In Semi-Windup To Tournament

Tomorrow night, at eight o'clock, the first series of fights in the Golden Glove tourney will be held in the Armory, it was announced definitely by Lt. Fay Smith, boxing instructor, today.

Eight bouts, of which a selected six will be fought, have been scheduled for tomorrow evening's tournament, according to the coach. The remaining two pair of fighters will be held in readiness in case of a last minute elimination that may be caused by oversight or disqualification.

John Molitor and Bobby Ward, contender and champion in the lightweight division last year and known as two very clever and hard hitting fighters, will fight in the main go of the evening. In the last tourney of the season, after both had fought and won an elimination fight each earlier in the evening, Ward was able to get a close decision over Molitor.

The semi-windup will consist of a match between the two hard-hitting middleweights, Paul Rupp and Felix Adams, who both have shown fine promise and natural fighting ability during their workouts.

A bout, which promises to be one of the most outstanding of those scheduled is a fight between Mert

Henry Zwerg Second Beaux-Arts Mention

Second State Representative To Receive High Honors In Traveling Exhibit

The design, "A Monastic Chapel", by Henry Zwerg, is the second representative problem from State College to appear in the traveling exhibition of the Beaux-Arts Institute of New York City, said Prof. Homer B. Huntoon, head of the architectural department.

Zwerg, a senior in the department, planned the design which will be included in the institute display which is to be exhibited at schools throughout the country. His entry was given honorable mention by the judges. Zwerg makes his home at Sheboygan, Wis., is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social fraternity, Kappa Tau Delta, architectural group, and Scabard and Blade, honorary military organization. The first recognition of Beaux-Arts was given to Lawrence Parsons last year in a similar competition. Parsons graduated last spring and is now an instructor in the department.

The design submitted by William K. Shine was also given honorable mention by the institute judges this year. Shine is a member of Delta Kappa Sigma and Kappa Tau Delta fraternities.

Exhibits from the Beaux-Arts Institute are sent to colleges and universities throughout the United States having outstanding architectural departments. Since the North Dakota State College receives Beaux-Arts exhibits regularly, it is possible that the display including Zwerg's entry will be shown at the college, says Professor Huntoon.

Official Bulletin

The Girls Glee Club will meet at Scherling's studio, 113 1/2 Broadway, Wednesday (Jan. 4) at 8:30 P. M.

Bison Pictures scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday night are cancelled on account of the basketball game.

PAN-HELLENIC SCRIBE

Ethel Renwick

Miss Renwick as Pan-Hellenic secretary will be second in line at the Charity Ball. She is a member of Alpha Xi Beta sorority.

Ticket Sales Opening Today With Meeting Of Representatives

Reserved Seats To Be Sold At Sherdahl's Jewelry Store Until Presentation

A meeting of representatives of the several Greek letter organizations on the campus will formally open the ticket sales competition for the student vaudeville show today, it is announced by Curtis Ball, ticket sales manager for the 1931 edition of the Bison Brevities. The presentation will be staged in the Central high school auditorium March 2 and 3.

Only general admission tickets will be sold by competing organizations while reserved seats will be on sale at Sherdahl's Jewelry store until the presentation. Saturday, Feb. 28, has been set as the closing date for contest in order that winners may be announced before the show is given.

Poster Contest

A poster contest, to be carried out in connection with the work of the classes in the art and architectural departments at the college also is planned, according to Mr. Presler, manager of the show. With the requirements that each poster must combine the idea of music, dancing, and drama, as well as the definite facts regarding the performances, separate contests will be conducted for students in each of the departments. The deadline for entries will be 6 p. m., Feb. 21.

Three prizes of tickets will be awarded in each of the poster contests. Judges who have been named for the poster contest are Miss Nancy Elliott, Paul W. Jones, and David Train.

NEW SECTION PLANNED FOR 1932 BISON ANNUAL

A new section is to be added to the 1932 Bison that will lend the personal touch lacking in many annuals. Elene Weeks, editor of the Bison and Floyd Veil, business manager have been working on the section since the opening of school and report favorable progress today.

The name of the section has not been disclosed and will remain unknown until the book is issued. It has been planned to place the section before the advertising division. The idea for the section is not totally original as it has been used in a few of the more successful annuals in the east, but is strictly an innovation to North Dakota State annuals. It is believed that the new section will take the place of the entire section that has been missing in the Bison for the last two years; however, something more personal to the student is promised.

The representative student section is to be changed slightly in keeping with the theme of the book. As yet the layout has not been definitely decided.

"Little Women" To Be Given By Country Theater Players

Four-Act Drama Given As One Of Winter Term Plays Of This Group

"Little Women", a four-act drama by Marion De Forest, adapted from Louisa M. Alcott's immortal novel by the same name, will be presented by the Little Country Theater Players Thursday, February 12, as one of the winter term plays.

The first revolves around the poverty stricken family of four sisters and their difficulties. Jo, the older sister, hopes by her writing to put her family on easy street. She has written a blood and thunder play which is rehearsed on the stage. The climax of the first act occurs when Mrs. Marsh, because of her husband's illness, is forced to borrow money from the kind-hearted although somewhat exacting aunt.

The second act concerns the success of Jo as a fiction writer and the development of the love story of Meg and Brooke.

The third act deals with the birth of the twins to Meg and Brooke and the beautiful story of the death of Beth.

The fourth act carries the romances of Jo and Professor Bhaer and Amy and Laurie to a successful close.

Characters of the play are: Jo, Jean Pote; Meg, Sally Hunkins; Beth, Dorothy Holes; Amy, Lois Klinsmann; Mr. Marsh, Clark Fredrikson; Mrs. Marsh, Dorothea Ward; Aunt Marsh, Constance West; Laurie, David Miller; Mr. Lawrence, Lawrence Forman; Hannah, Grace South; Professor Bhaer, Lester Wyman; and Mr. Brooke, David Miller.

Glee Club Elects Officers For Year

Robert Olson, Robert Stinson, Gordon Widdifield Are New Leaders

Except for a few minor details the organization of the College Men's Glee Club for this year is complete with the election of officers and the arrangement of the year's work, according to Prof. Homer B. Huntoon, director of the club and head of the architectural department.

The officers as selected at a business meeting held last Thursday, January 29, in Ceres Hall, are as follows: Gordon Widdifield, president; Robert Olson, general manager and vice-president; and Robert Stinson, librarian and secretary-treasurer. Frederick Martin is the accompanist.

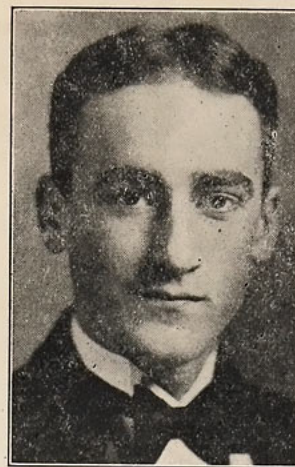

Professor Huntoon reports that an exceptional amount of very fine material showed up and that the selection of the personnel was a difficult task. With the abundance of new material along with that which returns from last year, the club is certain to have a remarkably successful year, said the director. Including about 30 voices, the size of the club will be almost the same this year as last year. Some entirely new music has been ordered and work for the annual spring concert will be started immediately. Besides the programs which the club will present locally, a spring tour is planned which will take the club to many of the surrounding towns.

SENIOR WOMEN LEAVE PRACTICE HOUSE LIFE

Eight seniors in home economics are finishing their period of practical experience in the practice house this week. Eight weeks are spent by the girls in trying the duties of cook, assistant cook, hostess, laundress, and seamstress, and marketing head.

Not all is work, say the girls, when they recalled the many good times that are had in entertaining at dinners, teas, and bridge. Those leaving are Ethel Dahl and Grace Soper of Dilworth, Minn.; Kathryn Engebretson and Vivian Rice of Fargo; Dorothy Conley, Minneapolis, Minn.; Genevieve Wright, Cummings; Ruth Baird, Ambrose; and Alta Holtritz, Carson.

HER PROM ESCORT

Rollin Moore

Rollin Moore will escort Miss Renwick at the annual women's formal. He is a member of Delta Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Chemists Planning Bridge Party Soon At Group Meeting

Clifford Bowman Named Head Of Retort, Organization Magazine

Plans for a bridge party and smoker were formed when the Chemist's Club held their regular meeting Thursday evening. The date of the party was not set definitely but will probably be this month, according to the committee in charge. Elsmere Chamberlain, John Rooney, Clair Lynn, and Clifford Bowman are in charge.

Two other important committee heads were appointed at the meeting. Clifford Bowman will edit the "Retort", official publication of the organization. He is to be assisted by staff members who will be appointed at a later date. Elsmere Chamberlain will direct the chemist's open house during the May Festival.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Glenn A. Lindsay, assistant professor of bacteriology. His topic was "Biological Aspects of Sewage Disposal." Two of the most modern methods of disposal were outlined by Dr. Lindsay; namely the "Activated Sludge Process" and the "Filtration Process." These processes vary somewhat in construction and operation of the plant but in both of them minute organisms in the nature of bacteria and single celled animals play the leading role.

In closing the program Don Wardwell played several selections on his piano accordion.

Robert King served a lunch.

GAMMON ADDRESSES CONVOCATION MONDAY

Emphasizing the importance of character, Dr. R. W. Gammon, Chicago, addressed the students and staff members of North Dakota State College at a convocation in the college armory, Monday morning. Gammon is associate secretary of the Congregational Educational Society.

"The importance of intellect is not in the amount one possesses but what one is going to do with it," remarked the speaker who frequently referred to Huxley's statement that 'wise men are as numerous as blackberries, but it's hard to find a good one'."

The fact that character is an attainment was stressed by Dr. Gammon who declared that character is worth the price whatever it may be. "You will always have to live with yourself," the speaker reminded his audience. "The decisions that you make now will be a part of you forever."

Carol Loppnad and N. Roab were guests at the Kappa Phi house over Sunday night.

Renwick, Moore Second In Prom Line Of March

Pan-Hellenic Secretary And Partner Honored At Formal

TICKET SALE MAY REACH 225 MARK

Emphasis On Colored Lights Feature Decoration Scheme

Ethel Renwick, senior in the School of Education, and secretary of Pan-Hellenic council, with her guest, Rollin Moore, also a senior in the School of Education, will be second in line when the line for the Grand March forms Friday night at the annual Charity Ball.

Miss Renwick is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Nu, and Phi Gamma Mu, honorary organizations; she is president of her social sorority, Alpha Xi Beta, and holds membership in the Woman's Senate, and Senior Staff.

Mr. Moore's fraternity is Delta Kappa Sigma, and he is active in the Writer's Club.

Virginia Davis, president of Pan-Hellenic, and her guest, Blair Seitz, will lead the Grand March.

Approximately 210 tickets have been placed with the sororities for sale and it is expected that the sale will exceed 225 before the end of this week, according to Joyce Peterson, in charge of tickets. Non-sorority girls may secure tickets from Miss Peterson or from Doris Bugge in Ceres Hall.

"Simple modernistic effects will be carried out in decorations with special emphasis placed on colored lighting effects during the waltzes," said Jane Canniff, chairman of decorations, when interviewed today.

Jubilee Singers To Present Program

Group Is Third Generation Of These Artists; Has Made European Tours

The Fisk Jubilee Singers, one of the outstanding sextets in the field of Negro singing, will present the second number of the twentieth annual lyceum series at the armory on Thursday evening. Their program will begin promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Being the third generation of the singers, the group includes four men and two women, all graduates of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. During the last 60 years there have been three successive group organized from Fisk University graduates. The original singers made their first tour of Europe in 1873, when they appeared before Queen Victoria as well as the king and queen of Holland.

Four European tours have been completed by the present sextet. At Paris the singers were soloists with the Colonne orchestra and Societe Philharmonique. Besides singing before King George and Queen Mary, the singers gave private concerts at the homes of Lady Astor, Premier Mussolini, Ambassador Tobin of Holland and Ambassador Fletcher at Rome. Extensive tours on this continent have also been completed by the group.

KAPPA DELTA ADVISOR INSPECTS LOCAL GROUP

Miss Florice Nicolai, national financial advisor of Kappa Delta, arrived Friday to make her biennial inspection of Sigma Psi chapter.

Active members entertained at a dinner in honor of Miss Nicolai at the chapter house Sunday. Other guests were Miss Pearl Dinan, Dr. and Mrs. Alva Benton, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wilson. Alumnae, actives, and pledges were present at a buffet supper Sunday evening.

Miss Nicolai will remain in Fargo until Tuesday evening, meeting with the actives and pledges Monday night, and with the alumnae chapter Tuesday.

CRITICS

We hear a great deal about technique and style and phrasing that go into the making of a perfect writer. Those of us who don't ever expect to be a perfect writer derive no small satisfaction from those few lines of Emily Dickinson that go like this:
 There is no frigate like a book
 To take us lands away,
 Nor any coursers like a page
 Of prancing poetry.
 They give us satisfaction because there are some books that make us forget the rudiments of style, the good English, and all the other points that a critic pounces upon with such evident eagerness.

These books carry us from the drab realities of the present to a glamorous land of imagination where there are perfect men, beautiful women, and despicable villains. As we hastily turn the pages to follow the chaotic footsteps of the heroine, we are carried out of our sphere, are entranced with the wonder and the beauty of it all.
 Surely no author that can instill such a feeling in any of his readers needs to mind what the critic may say about triteness, and sentimentalism, and the other points that are brought to our notice. His true critic is the man who reads with passionate joy and then hastes to tell his friends.

STANDARDIZATION VERSUS INDIVIDUALISM

Have you ever noticed how quickly the average student, in any of your classes, will withdraw an opinion that doesn't agree with that of the professor, or will simply sit and not defend his position by the slightest effort?

It is necessary it seems to "get in and to keep in good with the prof." Few students ever credit the instructor with any intelligence. If they did they would realize that he detests the "Yes-man" as much as anybody else, and is interested in discussion and disagreement. Don't forget that he is well aware that your mind is constantly on "that grade" at the end of the term which you may (but probably won't) get because you agree with everything he said.

For ages philosophers of all sorts have been preaching the doctrine of being individual. By carrying that theory to an extreme we imagine one would find a certain type of satisfaction, but would lose many friends that make the various social contacts pleasurable things.

Now that this has become a mechanized age we are slowly approaching the dead level of civilization. We do nothing, but merely exist while the press does our thinking, the bakery our cooking, the laundry our washing, and the movies our entertaining. We should have more leisure time in which to think, but our grandparents assure us that there isn't as much time now as when they were of like age. Surely this can't be true—time doesn't change. If we have more leisure it ought to make for an age of individualism rather than one of standardization.

STRIVING FOR PERFECTION

For the vast majority of students on the campus a perfection in everything that is undertaken is an impossibility. Most of us have, besides our school work, three or four outside activities to take care of. We are apt to be a little careless with everything we do and just "get by."

This attitude of mind is injurious because it gives us a chance to excuse ourselves when with an effort we might have been able to see our job perfectly done. It is not easy to arrive at a perfection but a conscientious endeavor in everything that we do will give us experience and mistakes will occur less frequently.

At times through no fault of our own the work that we are doing is disturbed by the mistakes of others and discouragement sets in. We ask: "What is the use of it all?" But when we stop to realize that the next time, if our efforts are well directed we are bound to reach the ideal for which we strive. Perfection itself is of minor importance but the endeavor that goes to making an ideal a reality is the effort that brings out the true quality of our character.

WORK IS OUTLINED

Coach Saalwaechter's squad of Bison basketballers have their work cut for them in their fight for the North Central conference championship. A victory over the University of South Dakota and two victories over the Grand Forks institution will place the herd in a fine position to carry off the loop honors.

For the first time this season the Bison spirit that has made the institution famous showed itself at a game. The crowd was behind the team and the team came through with a fine if somewhat belated victory. A well coached aggressive team cannot be expected to turn in perfect performances all the time, but the more support a team has the better they are able to play.

It is entirely up to the student body if State is to have a championship team this year. The next conference games are bound to tell the tale. Nothing is impossible when faced with a determination to win.

FIGHTERS TO THE FRONT

On Wednesday evening, Lieutenant Fay Smith will present to followers of the fistic art his first round of the Golden Glove Tournament. In the past two years boxing has grown until there are now more than fifty men turning out regularly.

From a small beginning the sport has grown to be one of the foremost athletic attractions on the campus. The school is much ahead of any member of the conference and has developed fighters that are not only well trained but are also clever. The fact that State fighters placed high in the Golden Glove Tournament at Minneapolis last spring is proof that Smith's instruction shows merit.

We feel that Smith is to be congratulated on his efforts to teach men the art of self defense. Contests featuring his proteges are always interesting.

SPORTSMANSHIP

One of the finest bits of sportsmanship as well as presence of mind was demonstrated at the Morningside game when Referee Smith corrected a mistake in the last half of play. The Methodists made a basket which was counted and the game was stopped after the officials decided that play should have started from the end of the court.

Student Opinion

My patience with the student who wanders listlessly into the classroom, drops into a chair, and sighs at the tedium of this class, or his endless class schedule—with him, my patience is gone. I can no longer tolerate him. He complains bitterly of a system which requires him to take such a course, for which he has no use; and from an instructor for whom he has less respect, and who only renders the boredom unbearable with his occasional outpopping questions, disturbing what might at least be a siesta. He sits patiently through the hour, feigning an attention, as often resisting the appeal; or he fights for the bell to release him from one more hour of emptiness or of torture, as the case may be.

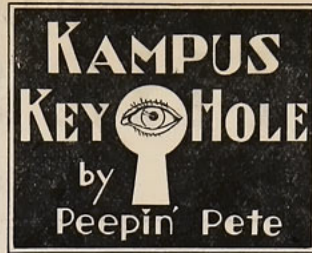

To him—"What are you doing here? Get out!" You're out of place in an institution of supposedly higher learning. At your age, if you can't develop an interest, no matter how removed from your sphere, or worse, if you have no desire to do so, the educative process, as far as you're concerned, has failed. Oh, it's psychologically possible for you to develop interest where you will, if you will.

You blame the professors and you feel superior. Remember, he has degrees behind him, and experience. He's presenting his angle. And no one in this world demands that you accept it or agree with him, more than for the moment. Tear down his propositions, mentally, of course. Argue with him, actually, if you wish; but deference is his due. Base your own mental criticisms and your verbal observations of him, scientifically. You'll find that hard to do, and yet be justified. Improve upon him, then. He is a freak: at least, an individual. As such, he's worthwhile of analysis.

At least, don't succumb to an hour of mental stagnation. You're a big factor in class morale. In your present frame, you debase that; you waste the time of others. If this class is bad, you're finding others bad. You're wasting time, your own, a good proportion of your life. Your attitude proves that.

Don't be the dupe of a system of requirements. Don't be the dupe of your own propensity to resist the required because it is required. You're long past that excuse. That's child play.

Man! You're college-bred! And if you're not, to this extent that I've inferred, of this extent: you're here to become so, or, more important, you're here to strive to that attainment. "Get out. This is no place for you." A Student.

THE EDUCATION OF LITTLE LOU Chapter Two

Just then the conductor cried "Bath-salts", and Lou knew that she had reached the land of her dreams.

"Do you mind if I stay with you?" she asked one of her new found friends. "I'm so frightened among strangers."

"You needn't be, dearie," the girl replied sweetly. "You'd be safe anywhere."

When Little Lou saw all the college boys standing on the platform she screamed in spite of herself.

"What quaint people!" she cried. "Why, back in Juneau the men who don't even belong to the Rotary Club often shave. And look at the bulges on their hips. They must be loaded for bear!"

"Bear and forbear," murmured the other girl, shifting her quid to the other cheek.

"Hello, Sweetie," said a fur coat which surrounded a college man.

"Say," replied our heroine, "I don't know as if you ever bought me any silk stockings!"

And she drove her point home with a left hook to the solar plexus, a trick taught her by one of her childhood playmates, Frisco Red, now doing time in San Quentin, poor unselfish soul, because he would rather kill a man than argue with him.

The college slicker was struck dumb with such an exhibition of childish right thinking, although there are some skeptics who will say it was the sock in the solar plexus.

Giving no thought for the morrow, she skipped off to the dormitory where she was to have a good time for four years without getting caught. That night she received her first shock when two other girls came into her room smoking cigarettes.

"Dear, dear, and what the hell?" lisped Little Lou, blushing in confusion. "At home in my pa's saloon the only ladies that smoke are the ones that work there, and if you are going to carry on like that I shall have to ask you to get the hell out."

Then came the day when Lou's closest friend, Sophie Brodski from the Bronx, whose blood was so blue she filled her fountain pen with it, took our heroine aside to give her a bit of advice, not to mention a shot of Minn. 13.

"Lou, you should get yourself a boyfriend," Sophie said. "Every girl should have herself one in case she wants to go to the aquarium or church suppers without a chaperone."

"Oh goody, goody, I know how that works!" cried Little Lou, clapping her hands in childish glee. "You get to be friends with a boy and bother him until he says: 'I love' in the presence of two witnesses, then you collect for breach of promise. Am I right?"

"You are wise for your years, child," replied Sophie, coyly peering at the preserved appendix on the mantelpiece.

(All this, however has nothing to do with what follows and we shall print the next chapter of this stirring tale of the west in a forthcoming column. Thousands are still seeking the author, some with warrants.)
 LAST LINE: No, I won't you a bid to the Charity, so there!

Bison Meet Cobbers and St. Thomas This Week

COBBERS READY TO UPSET STATE CAGE SUPREMACY

Saalymen Eager For Victory Over Fighting Cadet Quintet

DEFENSE STRENGTHENED FOR GAME TOMORROW

Sophomore Material Gets In Shape For University Contests

With North Central conference opposition out of the way for the present, Coach Saalwaechter's Bison basketballers have their sights trained this week on Concordia and St. Thomas, two of the strongest Minnesota loop members. The Cobbers play in the Bison armory Tuesday and St. Thomas journeys to Fargo after a conference game with Concordia Thursday.

Concordia meets the Bison with the best chance in history for a victory, and will be primed for revenge over the institution which has held the upper hand in basketball since Bison-Cobber rivalry started. Lest his charges underestimate Concordia's cage ability, Saalwaechter has pointed toward this game as a "tough one". He has drilled his Buffalomen in ways and means of stopping Moran, Hilde, Halmrast & Co., and the Cobbers will meet some of the stiffest defense in their campaign. "Saaly" is relying on his offensive aces, May, Fairhead, and Nordstrom to garner enough points for victory. Fairhead, leader in North Central conference scoring, is apt to give visitors the most trouble.

Greatly improved since they lost to St. Thomas on the tail end of a holiday trek, the Bison should have enough strength to turn back the cadets Friday. Members of the team are convinced they can defeat the Tommies, revenging the two point defeat of Jan. 7, but this belief will not halt preparation for the game.

Saalwaechter may use some of his sophomore material in these two games, getting them in shape for the all-important Bison-Sioux series which starts next week.

Y. W. SPONSORS TEA IN LINCOLN LOG CABIN

Today from 4 to 6 the World Fellowship division of the Y. W. C. A. with Amy Oscarson in charge will entertain all the women on the campus at tea in the Lincoln Log Cabin.

To acquaint the students with the customs and sacred objects of other countries tables bearing displays will be arranged throughout the rooms. Members of the hostess committee will also be dressed in costumes from different countries.

STATE QUINT EVENS METHODIST SERIES WITH BELATED WIN

Maroons Garner Five Points Before Bison Are Effective

With a rejuvenated lineup, the North Dakota State College basketball team avenged the defeat handed them last week by the Morningside Maroons. In a hard fought game the Bison eked out a 27 to 20 win over their conference opponents.

Coach L. T. Saalwaechter surprised local followers by starting two substitutes for his regular players. Leo Thomasson, guard, and Bob Weir, giant center, started in place of Eric Nordstrom and Viv McKay.

The Maroons tallied 5 points before the Bison were able to make a count. McKay, who soon substituted for Wier, dribbled away from his man shortly after he entered the game and made a beautiful side shot to register the first count for the Bison. He followed with another short shot under the basket to bring the score 4 to 5. From this time on until the latter part of the game there was no decided advantage for either team.

Different Defenses

Two directly different types of defensive tactics were displayed in the game. The southern aggregation employed the zone defense while the local team used the man to man type. Both teams were often successful in stopping the offensive thrusts of their opponents. The manner in which these two defenses functioned was one of the high lights in the game.

The large crowd was kept on its feet throughout the contest cheering the players on. The ever changing lead and fast breaking plays kept the spectators in a constant state of excitement.

The Maroons took their 5 to 0 lead shortly after the start of the contest. With eleven minutes gone the Bison were out in the lead with an 8 to 7 count, and the first half ended 11 to 0 in favor of Morningside.

May Stars

Leo May caged a long shot to give his team a 17 to 16 lead with ten minutes of the second half played. With but three minutes of play remaining, the score stood at 20 all.

May again sunk a long side shot to give the Bison a 22 to 20 advantage one and one-half minutes before the final whistle. Arthur and Fairhead, caged consecutive goals and May sunk a gift shot in the closing minute of play to widen the margin to 27 to 20.

Leo May was easily the star of the Bison team. His passing was one of the important factors in the success of the team, and he also intercepted many passes that were meant for the opponents. Leo was acting captain for the team. Besides being the team general he added 9 points to the total score.

Donald Arthur was also very effective for the Bison. He teamed very well with Fairhead and May on the offense and his fine defensive play on the front line gave Morningside much trouble in advancing the ball.

Fairhead Gains 8 Points

George Fairhead, high individual scorer in the conference, added 8 points to his season's total. Olson and Thomasson played a steady game at the guard posts, dividing the duties of working the ball through the opponents.

Sheldon Hutchinson and Hobart Mossman were the only members of the Maroon team to break into the scoring column. Hutchinson scored a total of 11 points and Mossman counted three times from the floor and three free throws.

Golden Glove Card Opens Wednesday With Six Contests

In the welterweight section, Don Hammond and John Gabe are scheduled to contest for fistic honors. The winner may have an opportunity to fight with the school champion, John Scalf, later on. Robert Thompson and Don Murray, freshman leather pushers, are also scheduled on the card for Wednesday, as are Bob Smith, whose aggressive left has already knocked a sparring partner for the count, and Reiton, a newcomer.

Two husky lightweights, Irwin Deitrich and Edwin Whitmore, are scheduled to trade blows. Weshnevski and Kunkel, fighting in the lightweight class, complete the group on the card.

Lieutenant Smith announces that Sam Chesley has agreed to referee the bouts and that Charley Dawson and John Martin will be judges. These men officiated at a number of the fights last year.

Benny Burns was called to Minot on account of the illness of his brother.

Arc Welding

Diminishes the Din of Steel Construction to a Whisper

IN Boston—Dallas—Los Angeles—and in other cities, lofty buildings are going up so quietly that the passerby all but stops and strains an ear for the old familiar clangor.

Silently, swiftly, rigidly, economically, arc welding knits steel with joints as strong as the metal itself.

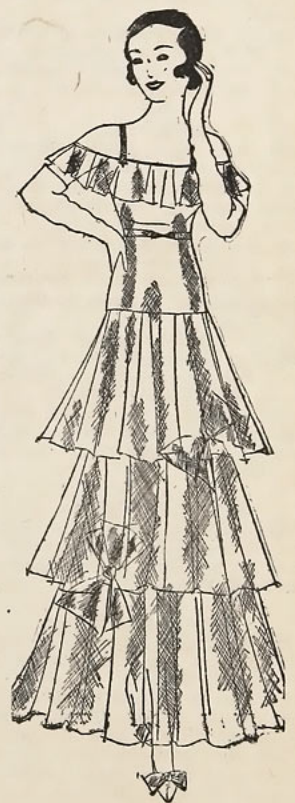

Arc welding is being used more and more in the fabrication of buildings and machinery, the construction of pipe lines and tanks, and as a repair tool of universal utility.

Development of General Electric arc welding has largely been the work of college-trained men. Others of the college men at General Electric are largely responsible for the high reputation won by hundreds of G-E products used in industry and in the home during the last thirty-seven years.

Sigma Delta Meeting Postponed Two Weeks

Ten Members in New Group Being Considered By College Council

The regular meeting of the Sigma Delta discussion club, to have been held on February 1, was postponed to February 15 due to the illness of various of the members. The announcement was made by President Chester Walla.

Composed, at the present time, of ten members, Sigma Delta was organized late last fall. Numbered among its members are the officers: president, Chester Walla; vice-president, Matt LeFor; sec-treas., Mart Vogel. Donald Hay of the public discussions department acts as faculty advisor. The club meets every first and third Sunday of the month at the Howard and Watson cafe for an evening dinner. Such topics are discussed that have to do with international relations. At the last meeting Matt LeFor gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "World Politics".

Under the leadership of Donald Hay the Sigma Delta discussion club of international relations is demanding official recognition as a campus activity. At present its constitution is being considered by the College Council. There are over fifty such

31% more Parkers in college too as nation-wide pen poll shows

The late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle wrote reams of manuscript—tried all sorts of pens. Came the day, as it has to 26 million others, when he discovered the Pressureless-Writing Parker Duofold. "I have at last met my affinity in pens," he said. You, too, can gain great aid from this Pen that lets you write without strain, and think without irritation. Go to the nearest pen counter and look for the name—"Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD"—on the barrel. That Guarantees the genuine for Life.
