Vagabonds Enjoy Experiences Of Pacific Voyages

Make Two Voyages During Summer Months On Pacific Liners

Seeking Tour round The World For Next Years Vacation

Having had innumerable, unique experiences and still craving more adventures in foreign lands, Henry Presler and his Vagabonds, an orchestra composed of five North Dakota State college boys, are back at school. The five boys including Henry Presler, Charles Brown, Owen Jones, Ernest Larson, and Clarence Putnam spent the summer serving as an orchestra on ships on two different voyages.

The boys sailed on the S. S. President Pierce on June 14, and all but Putnam began the second voyage on the S. S. Sonoma, Aug. 21.

That thrilling experiences were not lacking while on board, is the belief of Presler. At 2:30 a. m., one morning the ship was being battered by a typhoon off the coast of China. Two native Chinese were drowned at another time when the steamer struck a Sandpan, a native Chinese boat similar to the gondola.

Outstanding among the experiences in Japan was seeing the Great Diabutha, the largest buddha in the world and comparable in size to the Egyptian Sphinx, at Kamagura which is typical of old Japan, says Presler, and vastly different from the greater port of modern Japan which so closely resembles America of today.

Only through the assistance of two French policemen were two of the members of the orchestra, Presler and Ernest Larson, saved from the attack of a Chinese mob while crossing the Whong-Po river in the slum district of Shanghai, this being among the most interesting happenings in China, says Presler.

During the two weeks that the party spent in San Francisco between trips, the boys spent the greater part of their time visiting the American navy ships in port. Two vitaphone numbers were recorded by the Vagabonds for Paramount Pictures while the boys were in Seattle.

The South Sea Islands, Australia as well as many other interesting places were visited during the second tour. The Sonoma encountered the worst storm ever experienced by any of the boys between Honolulu and Pago Pago in the Samoan islands. Presler barely saved himself from going over board during the storm.

Luck was with Ernest Larson at Pago Pago when he escaped from a shark with only a badly lacerated leg as a reminder of the fight.

During the days spent in Australia, the boys had many experiences of interest such as a kangaroo hunt and a visit to Captain Cook's landing place.

The extreme heat was the most impressive thing about crossing the equator, believes Presler. With the temperature 110 degrees in the shade at the time and the ocean water registering 86.

With plans for a 109 day round-the world tour being formulated, the orchestra expects to start the extensive trip which will take them back to the Orient and on around the world, next September.

ENGINEERING GRAD MARRIED SATURDAY

Johnnie Johnson, a graduate of the School of Engineering in '28, was married Saturday to Miss Clara Rydstrom a former student of State college.

The president appointed Naomi Ap-land chairman of the social committee and Reynold Fredeen, publicity.

Electrical Wizard Appears Wednesday During Convocation

Glen L. Morris Under Auspices Of Minnesota University Extension Dept.

Glenn L. Morris, electrical entertainer, will appear in convocation Wednesday, November 5 at 9:40. He is sent here under the auspices of the University of Minnesota.

Mr. Morris brings to the public, lecture entertainments in which many new and interesting facts of science are popularized and presented in a strictly non-technical manner. His program is primarily a show, consisting of a series of seemingly magical electrical demonstrations each of which Mr. Morris explains the steps clearly and concisely, and shows how the demonstration is based on scientific facts and reasons.

One of the outstanding features of the program is a presentation of the earth-inductor compass, such as Lindbergh used on his flight. Mr. Morris explains how long distance aviators keep their bearings while flying blindly through fog, darkness and cross currents of air. Other demonstrations consist of; an electrical storm on the stage, the world's smallest wireless outfit, a candle lighted from a drop of water, how air planes and ships are controlled, how a quarter of a million volts can pass through a human body, etc.

Mr. Morris besides being a lecturer is a humorist and specializes in putting things within reach of his audiences. The program serves as a summary of recent developments, or perhaps intensely interesting magic, and a stimulus to interest in the world in which we live.

Stewart Quits Post Here As Publicity Ticket Sales Head

Sets State Record For Gate Returns During Bison University Game

Jack Stewart, director of publicity and ticket sales here since the beginning of the football season, left his post with the Athletic department Saturday after setting a state record in gate receipts for a single game and number of season tickets sold.

That game was the annual University-Bison contest, played this year on Dakotah field at the college here. The receipts were $8,004. The former record for the state was $7,300, set at the university in 1929.

But in setting the record this year, Stewart simply surpassed his own achievements, because last year he was employed by the upstate school to handle its sales and news.

Stewart, now 25, has been in charge of athletic publicity at South Dakota State college, North Dakota university, and was assistant in the department at the University of Illinois.

He leaves here for Los Angeles. Shortly, he will sail for the orient for a winter's cruise after which he will engage in radio publicity and advertising work. Besides his work at the four colleges he has a varied amount of newspaper experience which he began to accumulate when scarcely out of knickers.

Stewart set another record for State college this year when 646 season tickets were sold. In 1929, 140 season tickets were sold; the previous high mark was 453.

Publicity matter on the Bison teams carried in various newspapers this fall has filled a large scrap book.

Reserves Hold Teachers Half; First Stringers Roll Up Score

Ellingson Does Nice Ball Toting For State; Cy Makes Three Counters

In a football game with a basketball score the Bison chalked up their second victory over the Moorhead school this season. The Yellow and Green reserves left the game after the first half with the score 9 to 7 against them, but with the start of the third period the first stringers began to score with much regularity. As a result their defense was not as it should have been and the Teachers rolled up the largest score that the Bison have met this year. The 39 to 21 count didn't go so well with Moorhead either since they had not been scored upon in their previous contests.

Scores of Bison opponents over the weekend.
Concordia 6; Macalester 7
Davis and Elkins 2; Oklahoma 14
South Dakota U 6; Northwestern B 12
Morningside 13; South Dakota State 0
North Dakota U 6; Army 33
Michigan State 13; Georgetown 14

The highlight of the game was the classy carrying of that stocky little Ellingson. It was a pleasure to watch him when he received the pigskin for he can certainly run.

Cy played his usual smashing game and scored three of the Bison's six touchdowns. The others were counted by Westgate, Ellingson, and Blakeslee who is just back in his football togs.

The play by play account of the game.

First Quarter
The Bison kicked off and after two plays Ingersoll punted and Booher downed the ball on the Bison 41-yard line. The Bison picked up seven yards on the first play and then gained a first down on Moorhead's 47-yard line on a penalty for offside. Two more plays netted a first down on Moorhead's 33-yard line. Another wide end sweep at the left by Ellingson resulted in a first down on Moorhead's 20-yard line. Three plays produced no yardage and Blakeslee's pass was intercepted by George Anderson, who ran back to the Dragon's 34-yard line. An end sweep and a pass failed. Ingersoll punted on third down, the ball being downed on Moorhead's 44-yard line. Two plays and a penalty for offside gave the Bison a first down on Moorhead's 33-yard line. Three runnings plays and a pass gave the ball to the Dragon's on downs on their 34-yard line. Ingersoll punted out of bounds on the Bison 37-yard line on third down. Two plays netted a first down on the Bison 48-yard line.

Ireland Scores
Ireland intercepted Blakeslee's pass and ran 57 yards for a touchdown. Ingersoll passed to Ireland for the extra point. Score: Moorhead Teachers 7; State 0.

Moorhead kicked off, Ellingson returning to his own 39-yard line. Two running plays and a penalty for offside gave the Bison first down on Moorhead's 48-yard line. Two plays picked up another first down for the Bison on Moorhead's 34-yard line. Two plays left the Bison with 10 yards to go as the quarter ended. Score: Moorhead Teachers 7; State 0.

Second Quarter
Blakeslee shot off left end on fourth down for a first down on Moorhead's 21-yard line. The Bison were penalized 15 yards for holding after the first play had netted a yard. Blakeslee was run out of bounds at left end and his punt was downed on the 1-yard line. Ingersoll punted and Pariseau returned to the Bison 20-yard line.

Three plays failed and a pass was grounded, the Dragons taking the ball

MIDTERMS

Midterms are over and many of us realize that the first six weeks were rather inadvisedly spent. Studies perhaps have been given secondary consideration. If your grades appear bad there is nothing for you to do but buckle down to work.

Freshmen are very often discouraged in their first reports and feel that they have not been getting a square deal. The instructor may not have given as high a mark as you feel that you deserved but you may not have remembered that day you forgot to study because you didn't leave your girls house until late or that the alarm clock didn't go off and you couldn't get to class.

There is less than six weeks left of this term in which to raise those grades if they are low or to keep them up if they are good. Buckle down and do a little studying.

BISON JOURNEY

When the Bison football team leaves for Michigan state on Wednesday morning they will be beginning on the trip that will take them to the haunts of one of the strongest teams in the country.

Michigan State held the powerful University of Michigan eleven to a 0-0 tie. If the Bison succeed in defeating this team it will place them on a par with the big ten teams and assure for the State a place in the football sun.

Whenever a football team leaves on a trip to play a game, there are very few members of the student body to see them off. We suggest that it would be a very good idea to have the band at the train and as many of the student body as can get away for classes. The team is embarking on one of the hardest trips that it has ever taken and needs the support of the entire school.

STUDENT OPINIONS

The expression of student opinion at this school is at a very low ebb indeed. We feel that there are things on this campus that could be discussed through the pages of this paper to the advantage of everyone.

We write our editorials and try to direct student thought along certain lines only to find ourselves alone and wondering, if after all, the college as a whole takes an interest in what we write.

There is a drop box that is placed in the entrance to the postoffice in Main building that was put there for the express purpose of receiving student communications. May we have a few drops in this bucket?

FACULTY-STUDENT ASSOCIATIONS

There seems to be a lack of understanding between the students and the faculty of this institution. The fact is that they hardly know each other. Aside from occasional meetings in classes there is very little mixing.

Of course there are a few members of the faculty that the students all know and can call by their first names. The athletic coaches are perhaps the most familiar because of their close association with the student body.

The faculty could not be expected to push themselves into the activities of the students nor can the students be expected to force themselves into the lives of their professors. Still there must be a happy medium that could be easily established.

A feeling of intimacy would lead to a feeling of understanding so that when differences of opinions arose they could be settled without hurting any body's feelings. Try and figure out how each can know the other better.

JACK STEWART

We feel that in the departure of Jack Stewart, State Publicity director and ticket sales manager, the college is losing a valuable man. Stewart not only wrote the publicity that gave the Bison recognition all over the state but he managed the ticket sales and hung up a new record for himself and the institution when the University met the Bison.

As a publicity director, Stewart has very few rivals in this part of the country. His journalism and experience at four different schools in the northwest have served him in good stead. With Stewart behind a team and its publicity the season and the team are bound to be a success.

We wish you all the luck in the world, Jack.

TO LUNA

Oh Luna! the splendor of thine radiant beams
That shineth through the gates of my abode,
Are to me like brilliant colored fairy dreams
Of a far away land with different airs and different mode.

Your glowing redness rapture lends to Earth;
Nothing here has equal to your worth.
The persistence of your penetrating rays
Makes me wish that dreamy nights would never turn to days.

Land and sea for countless miles around
Are covered by your brightness o'er each mound.
But where your lustrous gleam is felt most of all
Is here in my study by the long, meandering hall.

Grace and beauty be ever thine
But let the wondrous sig. t be always mine;
Through arched heavens silent glide;
By limpid, sparkling pools slowly slide.

What a vivid picture there, those silhouetted trees
Swinging to and fro in a gentle, wafting breeze;
Now and then a fleecing shadow—a cloud,
Mantling all in a mighty mystery shroud.

But fleecy and shadowy as it may seem
'Tis dull enough to obscure the charming
Then patiently into her glowing orb I'd silent peer
Till once again the whole was clear—there was no cloud.

CLAIR W. LYNN, '31.

ON WORKING ONES WAY

There is a tendency to heap laurels on the head of the student who works his way through college. "Give credit where credit is due" is the probable reason for the awarding of glory. There is no doubt that the working student is entitled to much praise, but is he the better prepared student over the one who has time to play a little while taking his college work? In the bigger businesses, the unions are co-operating with the employers for better working wages and shorter hours in order to let the worker get the enjoyment out of life that is his heritage. Still the college student, to make good is required to place himself on the well known stone for four years without rest.

The student enters college with one thought in mind, to get an education. If an education means getting out of college what the books and instructors can tell him, then the worker student gets it. On the other hand, an education has a better chance of meaning a good education coupled with the college outside activities, and in this case the student who works his way is sadly cheated. Many learned and educated people will aver that the outside activities are as much a part of education as the classes one enters. This being true, the student who works his way is left with the problem of whether or not it is worth it all.

The old saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is still true, and the student who requires every available minute for class or remunerative work is going to be graduated with something lacking in his preparation of life. It is still admitted that all play is less desirable than all work, but would it not be very much better if the student could have the happy combination of the two that college classes and college outside activities have to offer?

THE EDUCATION OF GUSSY Scene I

Gussy:—
Mother, I know not the ways of the scheming brazen female nor do I have the ability to partake in heavy drink, but I must take me away to college.

(Gussy's mother expectorates a quantity of horseshoe plug—tells the sad-eyed individual on the divan to keep his thoughts to himself—drains a quart of milk-like beer and calmly proceeds to give Gussy a choice word of advice.)
Mother:

Gussy, college would help you in life. One must pluck the ripe fruit of knowledge—or other fruit—when it is ripe. Salesman Silkproof, (she points lewdly) (he travels for a hosiery firm).

Would tell you to hunt for the zest in life. (Cat calls are heard from the gallery) Do thy chores dear boy and whilst thyself away. (Following this speech she sighs deathlike—swoons into the eager arms of Silkproof who soothingly tells her the story of "Cats Who Howl.")

Gussy slides pantherishly off stage.

Scene II

(A beautiful scene of rural life)
Gussy is doing his chores. The well filled, inflated udders of the kine are promptly deflated. Gussy is seen in a barnyard scene. He is seen broadcasting a slowly diminishing mountain of gold to the surrounding fields. (The villain appears—Where?—In a window.) (A point of suspense)

Silkproof's stock of "stories" has depleted. He stands twirling his "Dirty Dick" moustache gazing disconsolately on the bleak sight that greets his eyes.

The merry widow also appears—in a window. She is much elated concerning her son's departure for college.

Gussy nonchalantly continues broadcasting mountains of gold.

Finnegan Leaves For Michigan Wednesday

East Lansing School Has Imporing Record So Far This Year

Casey Finnegan and his Herd of charging Bison will leave Fargo Wednesday enroute for East Lansing, Michigan, where next Saturday they will pit their strength against the most powerful team that Michigan State College has boasted of in many years.

Michigan State has set up an imposing record already this year; outstanding among the gridiron battles it has fought are its victories over the strong football teams of Purdue and Colgate and its hard-fought tie game with the University of Michigan.

A great deal of the credit for Michigan State's outstanding team is due its famous coach, "Sleepy Jim" Crowley, one of the "immortal" Four Horsemen of Notre Dame. "Sleepy Jim" has only been on the Michigan State coaching staff for two years but during that time has helped bring Michigan State to the front of the football world.

Students in the course in newspaper writing and reporting at Ohio Wesleyan U. had more than 7,800 column inches of news matter published during the first semester. The students average more than 230 column inches of published stories each, 33 students being enrolled in the class.

At the University of Oregon, before a soph may paddle a lowly freshman, he must show the yearling a licence from the office of the dean of men.

After 15 months of practical experience in industry, Rutgers university students will return to school, attend one year, and then receive their degrees.

The inter-fraternity council at the State college of Pennsylvania has formally abolished "Hell week." The fraternities at Penn State have instituted an educational probation period to initiation ceremonies.

The University of Cincinnati spent a full week for the dedication of its new "Y" building. The last night was given over to the entertainment of foreign students.

A $2,000,000 Life Science building at the University of California will be ready for occupancy this spring. When it is opened it will serve as the university's science departments.

This is a play dedicated to the college co-ed who wants to be smart. Smart, in this sense of the word, means smart in saving money, and smart in appearance. The one act (it's all that's necessary) is shopping at Herbst's. Beneath one roof, which is suspended three floors off terra firma, the co-ed can find anything her little heart (or pocketbook) desires, from the newest fashions in coats and dresses to the finest packet of pins ever made. Get the point? It all amounts to using your cents, which means you'll—
