Schalk Leaving For Ohio School To Assume Post

Plans Made To Leave Early In June For European Convention

SHEPPERD REGRETS LOSS OF ASSOCIATE

Has Been Connected With The Veterinary Department For 20 Years

Dr. A. F. Schalk, professor of veterinary medicine and for the past 20 years connected with the department of veterinary science at North Dakota State College has resigned to accept the chair of preventative veterinary medicine at his alma mater, the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio. His resignation, effective Aug. 1, has been accepted by the State Board of Administration, Bismarck.

Before establishing the department of preventative veterinary medicine, the first of its kind in America, Dr. Schalk, through special request of the Ohio State University, will tour Europe this summer and visit the outstanding veterinary colleges of the old world in quest of information.

Shepperd Regrets Loss
"Losing Dr. Schalk as an associate here is distressing to me since he is a capable investigator, a good teacher and a personal friend," said Dr. J. H. Shepperd, president of North Dakota State College, in commenting on the loss of this man to the institution. "The offer made Dr. Schalk by the Ohio State University is out of our financial reach at this institution, and the opportunity to engage in a special and attractive line of work is an allurements which would move him, I fancy, if all other things were equal. I can only congratulate and rejoice with him."

Dr. Schalk, accompanied by Mrs. Schalk, will visit continental Europe for six weeks and the British Isles for two weeks. They will travel with American Veterinary Medical association representatives and take in the International Veterinary congress at London, Aug. 4 to 9. On his visit to the leading veterinary medical colleges of Europe Dr. Schalk will gather first hand information concerning the equipment, practices and curricula, preparatory to developing the department of preventative veterinary medicine.

Leave in June
Dr. and Mrs. Schalk plan to leave Fargo early in June and sail from New York June 14. They will return to New York Aug. 26, and go immediately to Columbus, Ohio, where Dr. Schalk will attend to urgent business before coming to North Dakota State College about Sept. 1 to close his work in North Dakota. He will return to Ohio Oct. 1, according to present plans, and after that visit several of the leading midwest medical colleges in search of further information before taking final steps in establishing the department of preventative veterinary medicine at Ohio.

The band, made up of ten pieces, is en route to St. Paul for a two weeks' engagement, then will be routed southeast thru Chicago, the Carolinas, and into the summer resort region on the southeast Atlantic coast.

For the past few years they have played at most of the college formals at the University of Montana and just played at the Mount St. Charles spring formal a month ago.

ELECTIONS NEXT WED.

Colorful Affair Under Direction Of A. G. Arvold And Miss Cole

Announcements made today by the Student Commission present the plans of a glorious and spectacular pageant for the afternoon of All-College Day, Tuesday, May 27. The event will include the crowning of the May Queen who will be chosen from a group of seven contestants. The pageant will take place immediately south of the trees east of the Library, and figuratively in the shadow of Old Main.

The candidates for the honor of May Queen were picked by the various women's organizations, each group naming an outstanding girl for its members. The May Queen will be chosen by two elections, the first coming on May 14, and the group will then be eliminated to three contestants. On the morning of All-College Day, the Queen will be chosen by popular ballot from those girls remaining. The results of the elimination election will be kept a secret until the voting begins for the final selection.

Seven Candidates

Seven candidates will be voted upon by the students on May 14, the list including Marion South, Dorothy Lieb, Katherine Knerr, Margaret Ballard, Thelma Nelson, Grace Reynolds, and Gertrude Almos.

For the Convocation period of All-College Day, the students will assemble in the armory to make the final selection of May Queen. Besides the election a great program is promised by Leonard Luther, president of the commission.

The pageant appearing on the afternoon program will be a colorful affair, under the direction of Prof. A. G. Arvold and Miss Dorothy Cole. The first item of interest for the pageant will be the crowning of the May Queen, who will preside over the entire affair. Following the coronation the Queen will go to her throne attended by the six defeated aspirants to her position. In a setting of variety (Continued on Page 2)

Twenty Attend "Y" Conferences At Grand Forks

1931 Conference To Be Held In Fargo; Albrecht Is Officer

"What's It All About?" was the theme of the 1930 North Dakota state student conference of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. held at the University Thursday, May 1 to Sunday, May 4. Twenty young men and women and Professor Otterson, secretary of the YM, represented State college at the convention. All meetings were held in the new liberal arts building, Merrifield Hall.

It was an intercollegiate conference on genuine student problems. T. F. Kane, president of the University, in his address of welcome concisely pointed out the significance of such gatherings as well as the value and importance of the Christian Associations when he brought out the results of a national study. He declared that reliability, leadership, personality or, in short, the essence of character constitutes 53 percent of the requirements or qualifications of a young engineer as shown in the results of a questionnaire sent to the leading engineers of the United States.

Mrs. Jessie Bural Eubank was the outstanding speaker, although George H. Collins was scheduled as Conference Leader. Forums and private interviews followed each address. The annual "Geneva Banquet" was held Saturday evening at the Methodist Church.

The 1931 state students conference will be held at State College the first week of May. Carl Albrecht, newly elected president of the YMCA, was elected secretary-treasurer of the State Council. Other officers elected are: Roy Holand, University, president; James Johnson, Ellendale, vice-president.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Gamma were first place winners in the major division of the Flickertail Follies which concluded a three night run Wednesday. The Follies was sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

HELLO THERE!

With the entire college, The Spectrum extends the glad hand to the 700 high school students participating in the May Festival. While on the campus we want you to feel perfectly at home. There is nothing we will not do to make your sojourn with us this weekend, the most pleasant time in your lives. We want you to look our school over, realize its advantages, visit its open houses, and then form your own opinions. Whatever your purpose is, we want you to do your best, fight hard, and be a good loser if necessary.

"WELCOME EXAMS"

It is childish, very childish to feel that examinations are an agony. We delude ourselves when we wish for no test and the psychological reactions from such moods not only wastes our energy but also makes it more difficult to get the high marks that we are continually "squaking" about. Goethe once declared: "The greatest piece of good fortune is that which corrects our deficiencies and redeems our mistakes."

Read these words found in a booklet, How to Study, by Geo. F. Swain of Harvard, and then consider what foolish notions you have been entertaining during the past week of mid-term exams: "You should delight in discovering difficulties which give you an opportunity to test and increase your strength and so avoid future errors. In the same way, examinations should be welcomed, not dreaded. The teacher does not mark you—you mark yourself; the teacher merely records the mark. Even if you fail in the examination, that should indicate to you what you lack, and so be a benefit. Indeed, it is far better to fail than to scrape through. There must be a line somewhere. The man just above the line passes and the man just below the line fails. The former may not be as capable as the latter, but, having passed, he does not remedy his faults; while the man who has passed is required to remedy his."

Individuality Marks Displays In Open House

Architects Display Drawings, Done By Students And Masters

ENGINEERS ASSEMBLE EXHIBITION MACHINES

Chemists, Pharmacists Show Handicraft To State Visitors

Colored lights shooting upward from a Greek vase and playing on a group of murals in pastels light the cupola at the entrance of the architectural exhibit held in the department during the annual May Festival.

In the collections are eight murals designed by seniors in the department. The Egyptian, designed by Ellen Kelly and Byron Tharaldson, depicts the Egyptian contribution of mass. Tile decorations were the contributions of the Persians, the mural being designed by Ernest Nystrom. The set-back type of architecture used in modern skyscrapers is the Mayan contribution shown in the painting by Chester Comeau. Florence Fleming, Robert Stinson, Alf Skaret, Don Best, and Lawrence Parsons have shown the contributions of the Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Gothic, and Modern types to be those of refinement, construction, mosaic decorations, verticality, and transition, respectively.

Etching Exhibited

S. Chatwood Burton, head of the free-hand drawing department at the University of Minnesota, has sent a group of etchings for the exhibit. He is a personal friend of Paul Jones, a member of the department, and included in the collection is one with this inscription: "To my friend, Paul Jones." The title of the etching is "Segonia Cathedral" in Spain. With many spires rising against the sky, a cathedral is shown built on the side of the hill. The design for the drawings are taken from several parts of the world. There are many from Spain, Italy, New Mexico, and Minnesota.

In another section of the exhibit are 16 posters portraying the future development of Fargo, made by the classes in junior and senior design.

All classes have entered design problems, some of which were sent to the Beaux Arts Institute of Design, New York City. Alf Skaret was awarded half-mention on his two entries, "Peace Memorial" and "A Precinct Police Station."

In a poster competition sponsored by the advertising committees of the Military and Charity Balls, Florence Fleming and Lawrence Parsons secured first place.

Sketches Exhibited

Sketches entered by every member of the department in a sketching competition are on display in another part of the exhibit. These are made by pen, pencil, pastels, or water colors. Alf Skaret, Florence Fleming, and Henry Zwerg received first, second and third places, respectively.

During the exhibit upper classmen are working in the department modeling clay and showing exactly how free hand drawings from life, water colors, and other sources are done. After six weeks of work the Junior class in design are finishing their problem, "Town House" which will also be in the exhibit. Freshmen classes are exhibiting a "Presentation of a Parthenon."

 Mr. Huntton has received a group of prize drawings from New York City submitted by architects in other schools, and will place them on display for three days.

Engineers Open House
 The engineering school of the college will hold open house today to show the public what they have to work with and also to show other exhibits that companies have brought in to display. Some of the wonders that can be seen follow: starting a machine by the wave of your hand or putting out a fire by automaton; your voice recorded by the oscillograph on a screen; "Casey Jones" automatically started and stopped by a spoken command; an "electric eye" which counts persons or objects; frying eggs on ice, an invention which eventually will run the gas companies out of business; machines which automatically type Associated Press dispatches; and artificial lighting production. Preparations so war point to one of the most successful open house programs that the school of mechanic arts has ever offered for public inspection.

Pharmic Display
 Persons with lucky numbers will be awarded prize boxes containing hand lotion, bath salts, cold cream, shampoo, and vanishing cream which have been manufactured by North Dakota State pharmacists. Displays of other cosmetics will include rouge, lipstick, face powder, hair oil, and tooth paste, all made at school. Demonstrations of the effect of a dose of strychnine on a white rat and of the action of ergot on a rooster's comb will be shown. Other displays will include prescriptions filled by a Dakota Territory drug store in 1879, a first aid exhibit, emphasizing home remedies, well known crude drugs from different parts of the world, and a typical window display for every month in the year.

Chemists, too, expect to show truths stranger than fiction. In the organic laboratory will be found a dramatization of "All Is Not Quiet on the Western Front." An entire synthesis of violet perfume, glass blowing, and a display of the change from corn to corn syrup will be featured. The industrial laboratory will have an alchemist making gold from baser metals. Dry ice, halitometer, and the dehydration of alcohol are to be on exhibit.

The workings of a woman's mind, fire water, fortune telling, and a fountain that never stops will be found in the freshman laboratory.

Art Department
 Artificial palm trees, bird fountains, ferns, and awnings lending to the art department an atmospheric touch make up the background of a fine group of art exhibits.

Displays will be featured from all the art classes, among them being pictorial works in tie-dyeing, elaborately gowned dolls furnished by the

In one corner of the studio the clay models are displayed on black and orange pedestals. Refined chairs, portraits in water color, scarfs and negligees designed by the costume designing class, redecorated jewelry, and copper and brass work are also part of the exhibit.

As a special feature the visitors will be presented with souvenirs, the design for which has been selected from a block printing contest inspired by scenes of North Dakota. As a part of the exhibit the actual printing process will be carried out in one section of the studio.

"Outward Bound" Scores Big Success

Presenting as an experiment the exquisite drama of Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound", the Little Country Theater Players scored another success Tuesday evening.

The cast, headed by Kenneth Wyard and Ruth Barrett, as the two lovers, and including Arthur Buckley as Scrubby, the steward, Harold Julrud as Mr. Fryor, Katherine Engebretson as Mrs. Clivedon-Banks, Ruth Olafson as Midget, the charwoman, Gerald Garlid, the rector, Jesse Reynolds as Lingley, the business man and Clark Fredrikson as the examiner, succeeded in interpreting the parts and sustaining the emotional content of the play which was its beauty and strength.

The plot is almost a fantasy, the scenes are set on a boat bound for eternity, unknown at the outset to the passengers, and their ports are heaven and hell. They are assigned to their places contrary to most of their expectations, except the young couple who, having committed suicide are doomed forever to wander on the boat, half-way between. However, saved by their dog, Jocko, they are sent back to earth again and given one more chance.

STUDENT COMMISSION PLANS SPECTACULAR FOR QUEEN CROWNING

 ous kinds of flowers, the Queen will be entertained by three individual nature dancers, costumed effectively for the occasion. The dancers will recede, as a pair of fencers appear to give a thrilling exhibition of the art that was holding the major popularity at the time that the idea of May Queen was originated. The Queen will select the winner of the contest in the charming manner of turning her thumbs down at the defeated fencer.

March of Horses
 Featuring the pageant's point of interest, will be a grand march on horses, executed by four young men and four young women, all arrayed in bright colorful costumes. The march was effectively termed a quadrille by the Student Commission president. Following the equestrian demonstration the Queen will be entertained by twelve maidens and youths who will attempt to promote the May Pole dance. The youths will all be dressed in pure white costumes, while the maidens will represent the different kinds of roses.

The North Dakota State College Gold Star Band, under the direction of Dr. C. S. Putnam, will furnish the musical scores for the entire affair. The spectators will be placed in a semi-circle facing the throne, thus creating a real outdoor amphitheater on the campus green.

Baseball Tourney Starts Next Week

Inclement Weather Conditions Cause Postponement Of League Games

If old Jupe Pluvius will give his consent, the baseball tournament should get under way next week. The four games to have been played this week will be postponed until a later date.

The Alpha Kappa Phi team opens the season Monday playing the Student League. Paul Bunt is umpire.

Tuesday the Delta Kappa Sigma nine opposes the Kappa Psi with Viv McKay umpiring.

Wednesday finds the Theta Chi playing the Sigma Phi Deltas with Walter Schoenfelder as umpire.

The Sigma Taus close the week's schedule against the YMCA on Thursday, Verne Goodwin umpiring.

Although there seems to be a wealth of baseball talent, the Kappa Phis, Delta Sigs, Theta Chis and Sigma Taus are favored to come through with wins in their first games.

State Fighters Leave For Tournament

Molitor, Dvorak, Loy, Pung, Fox Represent Bison In Twin Cities

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—John Molitor and Frank Dvorak, North Dakota State boxers won the right to enter the finals in their respective divisions tonight by virtue of their victories yesterday in the Golden Glove tournament here.

Johnny Molitor, Frank Dvorak, Ted Loy, Charles Fox, and Roman Pung left with Lieut. Smith yesterday for Minneapolis to participate in the Golden Gloves tournament which is being held May 8, 9, and 10.

A lot of boxers have a high rating and should figure quite prominently in the tournament. Molitor is classed as one of the best amateur lightweights in this state. He holds the lightweight crown for 1929 and was finalist in his division this year.

"Ironhead" Dvorak is the present middleweight champion of the college. His hard hitting, stamina, and clever boxing have established him as an outstanding middleweight. He should show the boys a few things at the tournament.

Ted Loy has won himself a good reputation in the light-heavy ranks. He was finalist in that division in the State College tournament.

Roman Pung, a welterweight, was another finalist in the college tournament. He is a newcomer that has made a fast rise in the boxing game.

Lt. Smith took five of the boys down to the big Mitt throwing contest at Minneapolis Wednesday.

of this nature in veterinary science is truly the culmination of practically a life long ambition on my part," Dr. Schalk said. For that reason when the rare opportunity was accorded to him, he found the urge and temptation irresistible and was compelled to accept their invitation. "In severing my connections with State college of North Dakota, after 20 years of most pleasant associations, inspiring surroundings, and, what I consider, quite fruitful results in my profession, it is done only with deepest regrets in many respects," Dr. Schalk said in commenting on his departure.

Came Here in 1910

In 1910 Dr. Schalk cast his fortunes in the west and accepted an appointment as assistant professor of veterinary science in the school of veterinary medicine and assistant veterinarian of the North Dakota Experiment Station at North Dakota State college. He took some graduate work at the University of Chicago in 1915, and returned to North Dakota as professor of veterinary science. In 1918 he became head of the school of veterinary medicine and surgery, experiment station veterinarian, director of North Dakota State serum institute and bacteriologist and consulting veterinarian of the North Dakota livestock sanitary board.

Dr. Schalk has been principally interested in teaching in the technical school of veterinary medicine, teaching of sanitation to agricultural students, conducting field sanitary survey work in animal diseases, and research studies in various fields of veterinary science.

Extensive Investigations

The projects that have been given most extensive investigations are infectious anemia or swamp fever in horses; avian tuberculosis; physiological studies of the stomach of the ox, horse and goat; sweet clover disease in cattle, and the tuberculosis in domestic livestock. The tuberculin test on fowls was worked out by Dr. Schalk and his associates in 1912 and given out to the world in 1913. At North Dakota Experiment Station there has been considerable research conducted in the various phases of avian tuberculosis, particularly the transmissibility of this disease to other animals.

Among the several things at the experiment station that have attracted national recognition is the experimental tuberculosis barnyard. Work with sweet clover poisoning in cattle at the college has been commended by experts far and wide.

Well, according to the National Federation of College and High School Athletic Associations we will have a chance to recruit a few new players this Friday and Saturday.
