Clean Clothes Lessen Danger Of Moth Damage

Extension Service Advises Washing or Cleaning Before Storing

Cleaning is an important measure in moth prevention, according to clothing specialists of the State college extension service. Moths concentrate on the soiled spots in a garment, particularly those containing grease, so before storing winter woolens it is wise to see that they are clean.

If the garment can be washed this is most desirable. If not, the spots may be removed with any of many good cleaning agents. Carbon tetrachloride is useful because it is non-explosive and does not alter the color of the fabric. Garments which are badly soiled should be sent to a cleaner or given a home bath of gasoline. Washing clothing in gasoline, however, should always be done outdoors and away from heat for the sake of safety.

Airing and sunning are also good preventatives. Choose a dry sunny morning and hang garments on the line, spread out as much as possible so that the sun and air can reach them. They should be brought in before the air gets damp in the afternoon and should be perfectly dry before being stored. Otherwise, mildew may develop in the dark storage box or closet.

Beating, shaking and brushing garments helps to loosen any moth eggs which may have been deposited in them. Careful attention should be given seams, plaits and the insides of pockets, for moths lay their eggs in protected places. Furs should be brushed the wrong way and the hide examined for tiny white specks.

Students at the University of North Carolina are boycotting a local theater in an attempt to obtain lower prices. Petitions have been distributed among the students to reduce the price from 40 to 30 cents.

50 Women Appear In Dance Recital

Hooper, Healy, Swanson, Fleming, Knight Outstanding Performers

The annual dance recital sponsored by the department of physical education and directed by Miss Dorothy Cole proved to be one of the most interesting features of last weekend. More than 50 girls participated in presentations given Thursday and Friday evenings.

Myrna Ottinger, Frances Wright, Minerva Streed, Shirley Johnson, Emaline Olson, and Georgina Metzinger appeared in the first number, an "English Country Dance," in costume.

Janet Hooper with her interpretation of "La Paloma" gave one of the most graceful and best executed dances of the evening. She portrayed the Señorita with the talent of a professional. In the Dance of the Coquée, Margaret Fleming, and Margaret Ballard appeared in costume. Bernice Streit interpreted the dance "Juba."

Irene Beyer, Esther Greenshields, Roberta Henning, and June Von Sien appeared in Kracovia, a Slavic dance. Mary Healy, doing a tambourine dance "By the Firelight," and Alpha Knight portraying the Oriental dancer "The Nautch Girl," were two of the several outstanding solo dancers on the program.

Dorothy Smith and Crystal Mannes with their interpretation of the "Mosslem Sword" dance gave a difficult portrayal with the use of swords. Isabel Barrett, Jeanette Greenshields, Marie Bach, Mona Davis, Jean Pote, and Vada Kinman appeared in a polka. Swinging was the dance done by a couple of kids depicted by Marge Metzinger.

Miss Billie Veitch of Argusville, N. D., has been selected by Horace McGrath, president of the Junior class, to be third in line with him at the Junior Prom. Miss Veitch is a Sophomore and is enrolled in the school of Education. Because McGrath is president of the Junior class, the couple have been accorded this honor.

Billie Veitch

Horace McGrath, president of the Junior class, will be third in line at the annual Junior Prom. McGrath is a member of Blue Key and Kappa Tau Delta, honorary fraternities. He is enrolled in the school of Mechanic Arts and is taking architecture. McGrath has been a letterman in football and hockey for the past two years. He is a member of Delta Kappa Sigma, social fraternity.

Changes Made In Ranks of College Extension Staff

Wayne Weiser Is Appointed County Agent At Large

Several changes which have taken place in the ranks of North Dakota State college extension service and experiment station workers recently are the appointment of two new men and transfers of two others within the organization.

New members of the extension service are Harold Seielstad, field agent in marketing, and Wayne Weiser, county agent at large. New experiment station members are H. R. Danielson, recently resigned county agent for Steele county, and Harry E. Ratcliffe, assistant farm economist who comes from the Bureau of Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Seielstad has been with the extension service for several weeks, having changed over from farm management work with the experiment station. Mr. Weiser's appointment took place March 25 and he is at present on duty in Cass and Richland counties.

Mr. Danielson's resignation as county agent in Steele county was effective April 1 and he is now in charge of farm management work in Barnes, Nelson, Steele and Grand Forks counties. Until June 1 he will be located in Finley, at which time he will transfer his headquarters to State college. The farm management route is a joint project of the experiment station and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Coming direct from the Department of Agriculture at Washington where he was engaged in statistical research work, Mr. Ratcliffe will take up the position of statistical analyst for the experiment station April 15. He replaces Mr. Seielstad in this work.

Electric Lighted Punch Fountain Formal Feature

Carlson, Benidit, Say Effect Most Sensational In Years

LIGHTS PORTRAY "TIGER RAG"

Hanging Chandeliers Will Be Placed In Clusters Of Four

Color, produced by a multitude of electrical effects, and centered in an electrically lighted punch fountain, will mark the decorations for the annual Junior Prom, to be held in the Crystal Ballroom on Friday, April 25.

Unique and startling electrical effects already have been designed, constructed and tested and these tests, prom committee and Bernard Benidit, prom manager, declare lead them to believe this year's prom will be the most colorful and brightest ever staged.

An outstanding feature of the decorative scheme is the electric punch fountain. Centered in the room, and surrounded by lattice work and flowers, this fountain will dispense punch, proving its utility, and lend to the affair a novel and bizarre atmosphere.

Unique Chandeliers

Hanging chandeliers of a unique design, and modeled after lighting fixtures built especially for the National Broadcasting company's New York studios, will be placed in clusters of four in the ballroom; and reflected, indirect light will play upon the Crystal Ballroom floor.

During the playing of "Tiger Rag", one of the feature numbers on the musical program, electrical effects again will be brought into play to produce, in a magnified manner, the gleaming stripes of the shining beast of Africa.

The electrical punch fountain, in addition to its place in the decorative scheme, will be a novelty at the party. The cooling beverage will be forced into the air in a regular fountain spray, falling into the base. All will be accomplished through the unique use of electrical implements. The punch will be kept cool through the same ingenious use of modern electrical methods.

Color Changes

Throughout the dancing program the colors will be altered to meet the particular mood of the tune being presented. Use of electrical effects in a multitude of combinations will make this result especially pleasing. Moonlight effects will be present, as they are at all well regulated proms, but they will be different from all previous proms.

Construction of these effects has been in charge of Robert Carlson, and he and Mr. Benidit are positive in their assertions that this modern prom will be a sensation, even among outstanding proms.

CURT BALLARD HAS CHANGED EMPLOYERS

Dr. L. L. Carrick, dean of chemistry, has just received a very interesting letter from Curtis Ballard. It seems that the Rinsched Mason Co. has induced Ballard away from the Acme White Lead and Color Co., where he was placed last year by the department. In his new position Ballard is doing research work on lacquers, synthetic varnishes and enamels. He was a member of last year's graduating class.

A contest being carried on by the Ohio State Lantern has as its prize a $175 business scholarship in the Buckeye State Business College of Columbia. The object is to find as many inaccuracies in each issue of the paper as possible.

INITIATES

"Hell Week" is over; the Spring Term now opens.

What is there about a small $10 jewelled badge to cause new wearers such ecstasy?

Well, to begin with, it marks one as a "fraternity man" or a "sorority girl"—which is very desirable, according to College Humor. Furthermore, every new active feels the joy of achievement, of having won out in the prep period, in spite of the fact that fraternities must have actives or go to financial ruin. Finally, when the great cold world rewards the alumnus with a key to the city, metropolitan newspapers will say: "His fraternity was . . . ;" this fact can be used as rushing talk.

It has been the truth of experience that fraternity life does not begin until after initiation. You new actives have already tasted a bit of that sentiment for your organization, a realization of what the fraternity means, that died-in-the-wool "loyal" feeling. From now on your organization will take a permanent hold upon the heart strings. It's a great feeling!

HELL WEEK

Campus groups vary in respect to the stringency of "hell week." Some even renounce it; others use its every advantage. The present trend seems to be away from "mock initiation."

McCRACKENS

—for—

Photographs

Remember the place
OVER BLACK'S

It seems to us that this question is of minor importance; all the discussion centering therein is rather immature. The week has its advantages and disadvantages. The pendulum will swing back again with the coming of our freshmen to power, so why worry? Any organization claiming superiority because of its individual policy strikes us as being simply childish.

FRATERNITIES

There are too many fraternities on this campus; there are too many fraternities on other college campuses; there are too many fraternities outside of the campus. Service clubs, federations, unions, honor societies, dancing clubs, etc., etc., and so on to doomsday.

If there is any gag that plagues this country it is the "club" gag, from birth to death. The European can well laugh at this great sham, a sickly offspring of mediæval days.

In college one must "belong" or be an outsider; in business one must join the brotherhood or fail.

But of all organizations, the nationals are the worst. The average man's savings go to the upkeep of a vast system of temples, district superintendents, office forces, and clubrooms. Some crack organizer sits in a beautiful marble vault, paid for by struggling men who receive a 10 cent magazine once a month.

Belong! Belong! Belong! Belong to the club and be put on a committee! Wear a badge and be a brother to every Tom and Dick having the money to "join!"

Wise Guy vs. The Sceptic

Dear Johana:

THE COED: AH, YES! I HAVE heard of her. She's the young woman who has more to learn about life than any other creature on the face of the globe. Her's is an innocent existence. Up to the age of ten her Daddy supported her; up to the age of sixteen her Daddy supported her; up to the age of twenty-one her Daddy supported her and the young man friend paid for the shows; from then on her husband will support her until he dies and then her second husband will support her. But right now she does few odd jobs to earn spending money. She worships her sorority; it's her world; purgatory, and heaven. Yet this is not enough. She craves organizations, and gets herself on all sorts of boards, Big-Sister movements, committees, etc., etc. They hold meetings, adopt resolutions, follow Robert's Rules of Order, and rope the boys in to do the work. She thinks she is talented, and has a "future", and isn't going to waste her life on some man. She thinks that there is a prosperous field for women in business, and that Mary Roberts Rhinehart exemplifies her possibilities. She likes to wear white dresses and hold pink candles at initiations. Jollies her way through Chemistry, Corporation Finance, and other subjects which she calls "stuff." She says, I simply can't get that stuff." When greeting a friend she smiles and says, "Heh-louooo!" This word is pronounced with a rich, throaty, aristocratic sound, and the pitch rises. Every formal demands a new gown. She often gets mad at Mother. When her sorority sister becomes engaged, she exclaims, "Mary is too good for John." When they break up, she affirms, "Serves John right." Likes to appear in mixed company. Admires pretty things and has a very real taste for art. Reserved and grownup in appearance. Loves her fur coat. As a freshie she lives in a daze of college splendor and has no definite plans; gets the big head over her pledge pin. When a sophomore, she becomes worldly and plans to specialize in something; a junior, at the peak of her popularity, and decides to burn up the world; a senior, she leaves society in the hands of the younger set and plans to teach. On graduation she gets married and joins some more clubs. Late in life she regrets having thrown her career away and buys garters bearing her sorority colors. It's great to be a wise guy. You know a lot.

Michael.

Dear Mike:

Your relations with college coeds must have been very friendly.

Listen, old man. You seem to overlook the fact that women are now taking a very important place in industry, science, art. Why! We have Madame Currie, and Sarah Teasdale, and the American woman's inspiration: Mary R. R. These are not exceptions to the rule; any college coed can emulate them. Even Edison has picked a successor in the male element; the thing is simple.

MEN IN INDUSTRY ARE LOOKING FOR WHOLESOME, INTELLIGENT COLLEGE WOMEN TO BECOME RIGHT HAND MEN; THEY WANT THEM TO WEAR TWEED SUITS. I AM GOING TO BUY MY DAUGHTER A DARK TWEED SUIT, AND SHE WILL SUCCEED.

Any bunk-shooter who claims that women, because of her very nature, is incompatible with the modern business world, should be censored. The coed's road to fortune, independence, and fame in the economic strife, is paved with realized illusions, breathtaking achievement, and satisfaction in old age.

Look at Madame Currie, Sarah, and Mary R. R. The thing is simple. Coeds! Can Ceaseless Chatter and Succeed with your Sisters!

Johana.

Ward Loses Decision To Hendrickson After Great Comeback

MOLITOR FIGHTS
FINEST BATTLE

McMillan Is Awarded Verdict
Over Bielfeldt After Hard Bout

One of the best amateur cards ever held in Fargo, was the way critics described the bouts between the Bison and Moorhead State Teachers held in the Armory last Friday night. All five bouts were over the four round route with only one knockout and that one of a technical nature, when the referee stopped the first bout, a one sided affair between Stevens of Moorhead and Fields of the Fargo Y. M. C. A. This bout was a substituted match at the last minute, when Dahl was forced to cancel his bout with Bond because of an injured hand.

In the second bout of the evening Ward, Bison lightweight champion, met a freak southpaw fighter in Hendrickson of Moorhead. Hendrickson with his unorthodox methods scored two knockdowns in the first round. Ward came back strong and they fought on even terms for the remainder of the fight. The bout was awarded to Hendrickson on virtue of his first round.

Molitor Scintillating

Molitor fought the best fight of his career against Hank Ruegamer in the third battle of the evening. Both men were cautious in the first round with Molitor continually tying Ruegamer up in clinches. The round was fairly even. In the second stanza activities started and after one minute and 25 seconds of fighting Molitor connected with a straight left and a beautiful right cross putting Ruegamer down for a nine count. This was Molitor's round by a mile. In the third round Ruegamer was again floored by a left hook to the heart. Ruegamer scored a couple of nice rights to the head but the round was awarded to Molitor. The fourth was a slow setto with Molitor winning the first few honors given. The judges' decision was for Molitor.

McMillan Classy

The next bout was a light-heavyweight affair between Rod McMillan of North Dakota State and Cy Bielfeldt of the Moorhead Teachers; this was really the main attraction on the program. Bielfeldt with his characteristic rushes carried the fight to Rod but was met toe to toe by the hard punching Scot and it was McMillan's round. In the second he again rushed Mac who floored him with a terrific right cross after 30 seconds of fighting. Bielfeldt took a short count and after that it was all McMillan's round. Bielfeldt came back strong in the last round again rushing McMillan about the ring throwing hard rights and lefts to the head and body. Rod was in a bad way at the end of the fight but was awarded the decision because of his earlier aggressiveness.

The windup was a middleweight bout scheduled between Albert Zech of Moorhead and Frank Dvorak of State but Zech was forced to cancel his bout because of illness. Moberg of Moorhead Teachers substituted for Zech but with his lack of experience was no match for Dvorak. Frankie took every round scoring a nine count knockdown in the third round.

The medals for the Golden Glove tournament were presented and the trophy for the winning Fraternity was given to the Gamma Rhos who had gathered the most number of points in the tournament.

Sam Chesley refereed all bouts with King and Martin acting as judges with Chesley.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY IS NEW ORGANIZATION

The first meeting of the newly organized Agricultural Engineering society was held last Thursday evening, April 10. P. Jensen of the J. I. case Co. was the speaker of the evening. He spoke about the development and importance of modern farm machinery, particularly the harvesting machines. He gave some of the main steps to the efficient operation of the separator and combine thresher. Mr. Jensen stated that his company alone expected to sell 500 combines in this state during 1930.

The purpose of this organization is to promote the interests of students for agricultural engineering and to keep in touch with research problems conducted along this line. The importance of machinery for successful agriculture cannot be denied. Leaders in agriculture must have a working knowledge of modern farm machinery.

This society will hold monthly meetings. Outside speakers will be obtained whenever possible and various agricultural engineering problems will be discussed. Agricultural students are urged to attend these meetings, according to Dean Walster.

Coeds of the Indiana and Ohio universities will hold a debate on the subject—"Resolved: That fraternities and sororities in state universities should be abolished."
