

Bison Take Nodaks In Close Game

200 Must Accompany Team To "U" Friday

Gold Star Band To Be On Hand Seventy Strong

$3.75 Will Pay Transportation Charges And Admit You To The Game

Two hundred Bison rooters must accompany the Bison Special that is slated to leave the Great Northern depot at 2:30 Friday afternoon for will undoubtedly witness the Bison will undoubtedly witness the Bison take the state collegiate basketball championship.

Rally Tomorrow

A gigantic pep rally will be held tomorrow at 9:40 at which time enthusiasm will be stirred up for the trip and the last of the $3.75 propositions will be disposed of. That 200 students must accompany the special and the tickets must be sold by Wednesday evening is no "bologna" according to "Casey" Finnegan, athletic director, who is in charge of the ticket sales. He says that if the tickets aren't sold the train will not make the journey. No fear is felt though that the quota will not be reached for seventy members of "Doc" Putnam's Gold Star band will be on the train, leaving only 130 tickets to be sold. In fact the fear is felt in the opposite direction, that of not being able to accommodate all who desire to go for "Casey" only has 200 tickets for the University game. Mr. West, University director, refused him a larger number because he was sure that not more than 200 university students would come down here thus making the exchange possible. But "Casey" says, "First come, first served, so get your tickets early."

The trip in reality is not quite as an expensive proposition as it has been in past years, for the round-trip ticket and a ticket for the Friday night game is being offered at the Athletic office the forepart of this week for $3.75.

"I have helped send the band to the "U" recognition cards were distributed to a group of sorority girls late yesterday afternoon and are being sold to meet the financial obligations the band incurs on the trip. The girl selling the largest number of the green and white tags will have her way paid up to the "Forks" by the Student Commission who has charge of sending the band North.

Incidentally, "Docs" band has never missed a varsity basketball or football game up at the University. They plan on making the trip this year and plead with the sorority girls, "Buy your recognition card early."

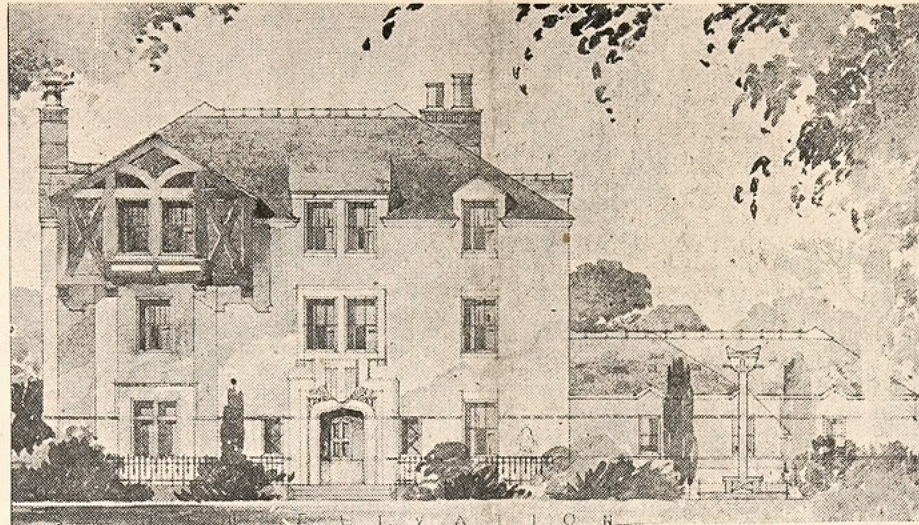

The special goes up and returns on Friday so that students may witness the game Friday night, which is the only game of the series that counts in the North Central Conference scores. A win the first night will firmly place North Dakota State in second place in the conference and a win both nights will bring State the North Dakota Inter-collegiate Championship bunting.

To Elect Rooter King

Another good reason why everybody should turn out to the rally tomorrow morning according to Everett Wallum, rooter king, is that his successor will be elected. All students who have ever led any yells or who believe they can be urged to try out at the rally by those in charge. The rooter king for the coming year will be elected by ballot at the close of the rally.

W. A. A. are sponsoring a toboggan party this evening. The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Fargo College hill.

Proposed Alpha Kappa Phi Fraternity House

Bids for the new Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity home to be erected this summer will be called for this week by the fraternity building committee. The new home is to be located directly back of the college Y. M. C. A. building on 12th avenue and is to face south. It is estimated that the bids will range around $35,000. One of the outstanding features of the new house is a terracing effect which may be seen on the front view pictured above. This terrace is not only planned for appearances' sake, but to accommodate a portion of a chapter room which will be built out from the basement. A battery of garages are drawn in on the East end which will not be completed this summer, but at some later date.

At present the group is located in their own home at 1131-14th st. N. Officers of the fraternity include: John Bohlig, president; George Hermes, vice-president; Robert Danstrom, secretary; and Marvin Spielman, treasurer.

Friday's Victory Cinches Second Place For Bison

Lose Saturday Night Game To Nodaks 37-18; Gergen's Play Outstanding

BY MILO HOISVEEN

The specific heat of the Flickertail cagers compares with that of dynamite, for this hot bunch of basket shooters fairly blasted their way to a 37-18 victory Saturday night over the Bison to avenge the 27 to 26 win which the Bison netted out the evening before. Bobby Hahn, Bison forward, counted a free throw in the last minute of play to give the one point margin for the victory. As a result of Friday's victory the Bison are now runner ups to South Dakota State for the conference title.

Friday evening's game was one of the most exciting battles ever held in the Armory, and its only rival for the present season was the 20-19 Bison victory over South Dakota State. During the contest the lead changed hands four times the Bison commanding the advantage the majority of the time. At one time the Bison held a five point lead over their opponents, the largest advantage to be held by either team.

Gergen and May were the most outstanding players for the Bison in the Nodak undoing. Gergen held Schave scoreless through the entire contest. Gergen followed the elusive Nodak forward so closely that Schave did not even get near the Bison net. Pete also did much in the offensive play. May showed the way to the Bison scorers counting three field goals and a free throw. The big fellow did much to break up the Nodak pass attack and was the star on the offense.

Eberly, fast Flicker guard, was the most effective for the Flickers. Eberly counted three field goals and earned a number of foul shots when dribbling into the Bison basket.

Gergen started the scoring for the Bison by counting under the basket shortly after the game opened. Eberly evened the count, but then Gergen put the Bison back into the lead by counting a free throw. Brown then registered from the side to give the Nodaks a 4-3 lead. Hahn made good a free throw and May dribbled in for a goal to give the Bison a 6-4 advantage. Nodak traveled a little to far and the Bison took the ball out. Bliss then counted on a pretty out of bound play and the Bison gained a total of eight points.

The Flickers took time out and came back to even the count at 8 all. Gergen, Johnson, and May then made gift shots to bring the Bison's total to 11. The Nodaks tied the count and Bliss rung up a counter under the basket to give the Bison a 13 to 11 advantage at half time.

As the half opened Lee let a long one fly at the basket which evened the count. Eberly put the "U" ahead making a field goal. Johnson stole his way up the floor and counted from the side to make the count 15 all. Hahn followed in a long shot by Bliss and a free throw by Bliss coupled with a follow in shot by May gave the Bison their biggest advantage at 20-15. This melted away in fast order as Lee let lose with another long shot and Jarret counted a short one. Lee then drew a free throw to even the matter up. Eberly counted on a short shot to give the Nodaks the lead. Johnson counted from the free throw line and May tossed in a field goal to deadlock the score at 23 all. Hahn made good a short shot but Lee duplicated Hahn's feat to make it 25 all. Lee made a free throw and put the Flickers back into the lead. Bliss evened it up with a single counter.

THE MARCH OF TIME

Time, tide, and faculty members wait for no man. It does not take a collection of frosty mornings and late street cars to remind us of the unpleasantness involved in being late to class. There is more to it than the tardy mark or even being counted absent. None of us wish to incur the justifiable wrath of an interrupted class. Yet it is disappointing to arrive on the campus at ten minutes to eight by the college beacon in Old Main, feel the elation that the day has at least started right, and then go to class to find that roll has already been taken. Clearly something must be wrong. So thought the writer. With a true zest for imitating Einstein he made a survey of the problem and discovered that clocks in the several buildings varied by as much as ten minutes, on those particular days. The serious offenders were the timepieces in the armory and science hall.

We feel that under those conditions students are at a distinct disadvantage. Until the fault is corrected it will be well to endeavor to be early for the "eight o'clocks" and "one o'clocks."

Student Opinion

Mr. W. R. B.
Student Opinion Column
Dear Mr. B.,
Your letter of February 8 which appeared in this column has created considerable interest, and since you ask the student body to think it over and give an answer, we are taking this opportunity to do so.
We admire your straight-forward way of presenting your case, but we think that your candor might be tempered with a little sweetness. You say that the course in freshman chemistry is "all wet." Granting a certain degree of moisture, don't you think that you are a little positive in alleging complete hydrolysis? The only fault that you point out in the course itself is that you are required to write an essay; your railing against taking the course is only a criticism of college education in general. Let's consider the essay first.
You say that "they (the essayists) will of course therefore not have to take a chemistry laboratory examination at the end of the winter term; they will be benefited by this wholesale sticking of noses into books on the relation of chemistry to certain things..." Personally, we think that sticking noses into books is a rather valuable habit to acquire, provided that the nose be wisely directed into the right books, and that the poking be done with the proper pertinacity and prudence. Education comes only through the intelligent direction of this habit. An honest amount of work on this essay will broaden one's education far more than an equivalent effort in the preparation for writing an examination.

Freshman Chemistry is not an unrelieved nightmare of asymmetric equations and cryptic unknowns, unless you, yourself, make it just that. The object in requiring freshmen to write this essay is not to enhance their specific knowledge of the subject, but to correct the scholastic myopia which makes them see nothing beyond the academic aridity of their Smith's College Chemistry. Your reference to "the relation of chemistry to certain things" is the gist of it all. Since you do not intend to earn your living by chemical knowledge, the value of the course lies in your correlating it with other things, and your reading connection with this essay gives you an opportunity to find its relationship to the things of the most interest to you. Be assured that there are no nefarious machinations to proselyte you to chemical apostasy.
You say "I may state without hesitation that of the number who will eventually write their essays, only, at the very greatest count, one third will have opened a book and read more than fifty pages, if that;..." Apparently you did not hesitate, Mr. B., for that statement is a libel on the industry and integrity of many students, who, as you naively say, "have so diligently wrote their little speal" in a fair and conscientious manner.

Practice in writing hurts no one. All students in general, and many in particular, would benefit by it.
You say in a plaintive way that "two years of chemistry are compulsory, and sometimes physics, in at least two of the courses." This, as we see it, is a very good thing. A college degree should connote a certain degree of erudition. Our college can grant nothing but a Bachelor of Science degree, and would you have us give it to those who know nothing of two of the most important of the sciences? Those who wish for only that knowledge which is pertinent to their profession should get it at a trade school, at a purely technical college, or by correspondence.

The common freshman tendency is to make craters out of rat-holes. The floors of the Chemistry building run with bitter tears, and the walls resound with anguished groans and lamentations—all from those poor drudges who must write a voluminous essay of twenty-five hundred words, with scarcely two months in which to write it. Alas!

Let us congratulate you on your temerity in publishing your letter. We realize that the weight of freshman opinion is against us, but since you have thrown down the gage of battle, we had to take it up. We don't know exactly what a gage is, but after having had a finger in the chemical pie for almost four years, we feel ourselves affected. You asked for an opinion, and this is ours.
—M. S. and W. M.

Dear Editor:
Inspired by W. R. B.'s masterly plea for mercy to freshmen students in Chemistry regarding a certain essay on the relation of chemistry to certain other things, I wish to present additional information to be taken at its face value.

Allow me to quote certain portions of an interesting conversation held in a freshman class in chemistry three weeks ago. (I might mention that W. R. B. is also a member of this class.) One of the students asked if it were possible to avoid writing the essay. The instructor replied: "There is only one chance I can think of—one of the instructors through a misunderstanding told his class that they might have a choice of writing the essay or taking a mid-term lab. exam." A general chorus responded "I'd rather take a mid-term exam than write an essay." The instructor replied "No one here could pass a lab. exam." This was a very interesting statement, so one student asked, "What are we going to do at the end of the term?" The reply was quite enlightening: "It will look better to have only one 30 on your record than to have two of them. When they check over the essays they are not very particular. If your essay is in they just check your name off on the list."

Further conversation brought forth some remarks not very complimentary to the method of teaching this analysis (qualitative) but they will not be quoted here because they do not pertain directly to the matter in question and might stir up dissention along another line. This particular matter of essays warrants the concentrated attention of every freshman student.
Careful re-reading of the conversation above reveals at least one possible reason for the essay: It enables the student to make a creditable showing at mid-terms and allows him to save his flunking till the finals.

Such a reason hardly seems sufficient justification for shoving this assignment down the throats of the dissenting freshmen. The other plausible reason for the essay, its educational value, was thoroughly disqualified by W. R. B. in his letter.

I maintain that when a student signs up for a course in qualitative analysis (Chemistry 2(2)) he does not do so because he is out for practice in theme writing; that if it is NOT impossible for a student to pass a lab. exam; that if it is impossible for any and all students to pass a lab. exam something ought to be done about it.

Why must we write this essay, and why are we not given a choice between writing the essay or a mid-term lab. exam?
Can anyone volunteer a satisfactory answer to these questions?
—D. B.

Ebullitions of Ebony Blott

By Everett Wallum

A window was broken at the north side of the armory during Saturday's game, and most everybody had a pane in the neck.

Well, are we going up Friday, or does the University have to educate itself?

Our frosh only got a tie down there because they had to catch a train. Our poor yearlings are always catching something.

But if the game ends in a tie Friday, it will be because the U will want to catch a train of thought.

If Dick Holzer hears the Grand Forks street cars, traffic is going to be held up.

An English student here has solved the financial problem of getting to the U. "Pawn my word!" says he.

They're letting us go down for half fare because our coeds are fare enough for two.

The campus' canniest Scot said he wasn't going to the U. "It's too cold out," says he.

The special train will go choo choo, and so will our gum consuming coeds.

The way some girls handle their gum is stretching things too far.

Last year, a student refused to pay the fare collector because his name was Wood. "Wood is not a conductor," he said, "you can't fool me."

We ought to send the band to the U in an airplane, so there'll be music in the air.

But if we lose the game, we'll all come back in a Huff.

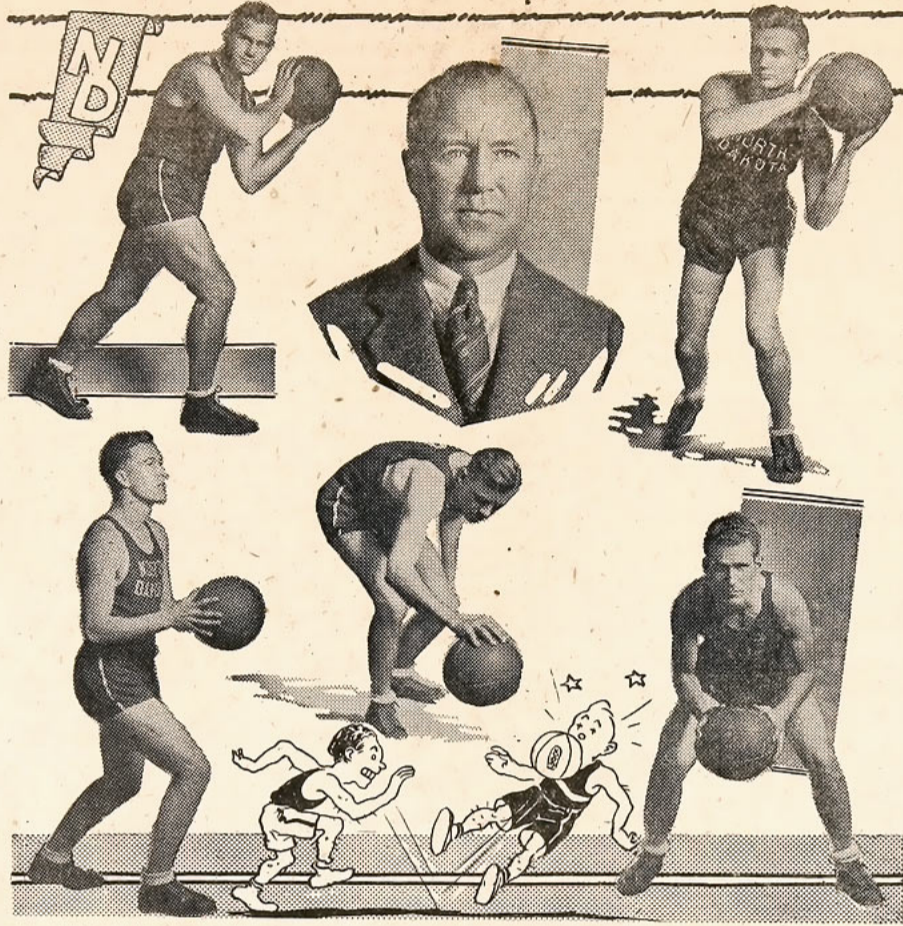

"I'm just at the peak of condition," said the athlete as he bent to the key hole.

We hear that the college authorities are against the practice of bringing home Grand Forks street cars for souvenirs.

Judging from the game last Saturday, a Boyd in the hand is a fowl.

When those smart ticket sellers ask you where you want the return ticket for, tell 'em back here, of course.

ther conference play. Center, Vic Brown, Flicker's star forward. Lower right, Lee, Nodak center who with Boyd and Eberly will be playing his last game for the Nodaks on Saturday.

CLASSES IN TUMBLING ARE SPONSORED BY "Y"

Ben Boyden started a tumbling class on Feb. 12 at the "Y". Regular classes will probably be on each Tuesday and Thursday. Since the primary motive for this instruction is body building, it should be of interest and value to a large number of students.

Boyden is known for his tumbling feats and is quite adept at teaching them besides the exercises for strengthening and building up the body.

In order to stimulate good sportsmanship and better basketball in the "Y" tournament, the College "Y" is offering two prizes to be given this week. One prize will be to the team showing the most improvement from Feb. 11 to Feb. 23. Teams with low standings have just as good a chance or even a better one to improve than the ones with high standings. The other prize will be given to the player showing the best sportsmanship during the same period.

Bison Take Nodaks In Friday's Game

play left it looked much as though the game would go into an over time period. Brown created his fourth personal foul by hacking Hahn. Horatio Algeir could not have composed a more perfect ending than was enacted in the last minute of play for Hahn tossed in the sphere with out as much as touching the rims of the hoop giving the Bison a brilliant 27—26 victory, and cinching the second berth in the conference for the Bison.

In the closing game of the two game series the Bison were in the lead but once, that being the early minutes of play when the Bison played their most effective ball. The Nodaks gained a free throw but Hahn brought the Bison in the lead with a field goal, Gergen and Bliss made their free throws good to make it 4—2. Schave then counted his only field goal of the two games to tie the count. The Flickers from then on could not miss the many free throws which they received and the count mounted to 8 for the Nodaks while the Bison remained the same.

Eberly caught the ball on the tip off and brought it to the middle of the floor where he made good a long shot. Eberly again gained the same position and found the same channel to count a long one. Jarret then became afflicted with his teammates chronic hot shooting and tossed in a long one from the side. In about two minutes it was just one, two, three, multiplied by two to give the Nodaks a 10 point lead. At half time the Bison had erased a few points of the Flicker lead, the score being 15—8 at this period.

Shortly after the opening of the half the Bison crept to within five points of the Nodaks who held a 17 to 12 lead. The Nodaks then opened up with some exceedingly hot shooting and Boyd became more effective than ever before to increase the Nodak lead 33—13. In the remaining few minutes of play the teams played on even terms.

Gergen did the stellar work for the Bison on both the offense and defense, Hahn and May also worked well for the Bison. Eberly, Boyd and Jarret were the aces for the Nodaks.

The Bison will meet the Nodaks at Grand Forks Friday evening in the second and final conference battle. The game to be played Saturday evening will decide the State title. The games should be hard fought and there is little doubt but what the Bison will play much better ball than in the last tilt.

That 47th Improvement

... Pressureless Touch

Geo. S. Parker's latest, in the Modern Duofold— aids college work immensely

Think of this: A pen that's 28% lighter than rubber, yet this light weight alone is all that is required to start it writing at the first touch of the point to paper. And keep it writing—smoothly, evenly and beautifully at any speed!

Finger-pressure is relieved! No bearing down! No effort! Merely guidance from your hand—the pen itself does all the writing for you!

And none of the interruptions or intrusions that any other kind of pen has ever caused before—a gliding, smooth response that clears the track for THINKING, thus producing BETTER thoughts for class-room or home work.

So smooth and even that all papers take ink better from it. This is Geo. S. Parker's 47th Improvement in a fountain pen, known as Parker Pressureless Touch.

The result is the most able pen you've ever used—a pen we guarantee forever against all defects so its benefits to you are everlasting.

Try it without obligation at any nearby pen counter today. All dealers are glad to have you demonstrate it to yourself.

Other Parker Duofold features are Barrels of Parker Permanite, Non-Breakable, Ink-Tight Duo-Sleeve Cap, Non-Leakable, Choice of Five Flashing Colors and New, Modern Black and Pearl, the Latest Mode.
