

Bison Defeat Cadets By 7 to 6 Score

Flicker Freshmen Trounce Baby Bison In Upset, 19-7

Second Half Passing Attack And Brilliant Runs Win For
"U" Yearlings

By Oliver Radde

The North Dakota University freshman, featuring a clever passing attack and a couple of speed merchants in the persons of Red Jarrett and Curtis Schave, defeated the determined, but slightly overconfident, Baby Bison Saturday on Dacotah Field by the score of 19-7.

An unusually large crowd of fans braved the adverse elements to form their opinions of the future varsity candidates of both schools. Judging from the exhibition Saturday, fans in this vicinity will be treated to some real football next season.

Score Misleading

The score does not indicate the closeness of the battle. The first half was mostly a kicking duel, with each team waiting for a break. The Baby Bison threatened twice in the first half, having the ball within the University's 30 yard line, but lost it once on a fumble and again on downs. Early in the second quarter, Babcock, Bison right end, received a severe cut on his face and was removed from the lineup. Babcock was a tower of strength on defense and the story might have been different had he remained in the fray. His successors could not measure up to the standard of Babcock's play and the three touchdowns made by the university in the second half were all around his end.

In the second half the University yearlings came out and took things in their own hands. They scored their first touchdown early in the third period on a neat end run by Jarrett. The place kick for the extra point was good. A short time later the Nodaks got the ball on the Bison 40 yard line and several line plays put the ball in a position from which Schave broke around end for the second score.

Bison Open Up

With the score 13-0 against them, the Baby Bison opened up with an intensive aerial attack which was climaxed by a heave from Bassett to Bunt who went over for the Bison marker. Pariseau place kicked for the extra point. The final Flicker tally was the result of a pass from Jarrett to Kahl, who scored. The Bison started another passing attack but the timekeeper's gun ended the festivities before they could put it across.

Jarrett, Schave, and Kahl looked like the class of the Flicker backfield with Raseck, Lovejoy, Woods, and Thoreson doing good work in the line. Coach Rockwell will have wealth of young material to work with next fall at the up-state institution.

Bunt Stars

Paul Bunt was the outstanding Bison performer until removed from the game by Referee Kimball for getting personal with Red Jarrett. Bunt was in nearly every play and was effective both on offense and defense. May's line plunging was not as good as expected but he turned in a fine exhibition, his punting being especially good.

Bryson and Pariseau make a good pair of halfbacks and both play a heady game. Shamp and Friberg turned in a good game at tackle.

Typical State college-University spirit was manifested by the yearling teams and the game was bitterly fought from the opening whistle until the final gun was sounded. Several decisions by the referee were much in favor of the university and one robbed the Bison of an excellent chance to

BABY BISON TO CLASH WITH TEACHERS FRIDAY

The only local game this week, and the last home game of the 1927 football season, will be played between the varsity eleven of Moorhead State Teachers' College and the Frosh of North Dakota State College, Friday Nov. 11, on the Moorhead College field.

Coach Nemzek's squad, after a rest the past week, is in fine condition and under the leadership of Edwards, star quarter, the Peds expect to beat the inexperienced freshmen team.

Coach Saalwaechter will give every Frosh a chance this game in an attempt to get prospects on coming varsity material. Bunt and Babcock, two of the most promising ends ever on the Bison Frosh will be out of the lineup. Blakeslee may be too weak to see action. These three "Bs" will be missed by the Bison squad in the ped-freshmen combat.

Putnam's Hymn Gains Popularity On Presentation

Song Written In Half Hour By State College Musical Director

The lyric written by James W. Foley, nationally known poet, and the melody composed by Dr. C. S. Putnam, director of music at North Dakota State college, "North Dakota Hymn," has gained popularity since its presentation to the public recently.

Though written and composed a year ago, it first was sung in public the night of Oct. 26 by a male quartet at the state convention of the North Dakota Education association at Bismarck. Eight hundred teachers at the convention sang it in unison under the direction of Dr. Putnam the next morning and on the following night an all state high school band included the piece in its concert program before the convention.

Written a Year Ago

Mr. Foley wrote the words while driving in an automobile from Killdeer, N. D., to Watford City, through the Badlands, according to Dr. Putnam. Miss Minnie J. Nielson, former state superintendent of public instruction was in the car and at the end of the trip Mr. Foley gave her the copy of the four verses with the word that she might do anything she wished with them. This was on Oct. 18, 1926.

Though now a resident of Pasadena, Calif., Mr. Foley spent many years in North Dakota, including his boyhood, and much of his poetry has mirrored his experience in and affection for the state of his boyhood memories.

Copy Sent To Putnam

A copy of the words was sent to Dr. Putnam. Idling in his office in the music hall at the college on the night of Oct. 28, 10 days after the words were written Dr. Putnam decided to scan over the words with the idea of composing music for them. Within 15 minutes he had evolved the melody and within a half hour had the composition on paper.

Following correspondence with Miss Nielson, the composition was copyrighted and printed. The covers of the song carry the statement, "Written for Miss Minnie J. Nielson, ex-state Supt. of Public Instruction, President of N. D. Education Association."

It has been arranged for unison chorus, male voices, band and orchestra.

Dr. Putnam is the composer of a number of band and orchestra pieces, the best known of which include "The Yellow and Green," "Alma Mater," and "Fight, You Bisons," North Dakota State college songs, and "Atlantus," an overture.

SADDLE AND SIRLOIN TO MEET TOMORROW

The Saddle and Sirloin Club will hold its next regular meeting Wednesday evening, room 210 in the Agriculture building. An interesting program has been planned by the officers and refreshments will be served after the meeting. Every Ag freshman, sophomore, junior and senior are urged to be present. The meeting will be called to order at 7:30 p. m. by President Clyde Barks.

Jug Newgard's Dropkick Is Deciding Factor of Contest

He Got The Point

Jug Newgard, whose well-aimed dropkick following Ben Gorder's touchdown in the first period of the St. Thomas game carried victory with it as it hurtled over the Cadet crossbar.

Cortright Clan Will Meet Coyotes Friday

Team Is In Fine Condition For Final Conference Start
Of Season

North Dakota State gridmen will endeavor to upset the dope and blast the University of South Dakota conference title hopes this Friday at Vermillion. This will be the last conference game for the Bison this year.

Coach Cortright stated that the entire squad came through the St. Thomas game in fine shape and will put up the best game of the season against the Coyotes. With every man except Baldy Hays, who is out for the rest of the season, in the best of condition, an upset of the dope bucket is not unlikely. The spirit among the fellows is great and the desire to break into the conference win column makes it look as though South Dakota is due for a rough Armistice Day Celebration.

Hickerson Is Ready

Hickerson was kept out of the game last Saturday but will be ready for the Coyote clash. Hick is effective in the aerial game besides being able to smash the line for substantial gains. Ranes is filling the gap left open by Baldy Hays and will no doubt be started at end next Friday. Captain Peschel turned in a good exhibition against St. Thomas and can be counted on for a steady performance.

Jug Newgard will be playing his last game in conference competition and is sure to do more than his share to bring home a victory. Jug has been one of the most consistent athletes in the North Central conference and we are loath to see him pass from the picture.

Coyotes Are Powerful

The power and ability of the University of South Dakota cannot be doubted if a glance over their season record is taken. They have not been defeated this year in conference competition and have beaten such teams as South Dakota State and the University of North Dakota. They feature a hard-driving attack and play a heady game. This plus the fact that they are playing for the championship and on their own field makes the Bison task a difficult one.

Big Ben Gorder Smashes Thru
Tommy Line For Score In
First Period

By Dick Hackenberg

If St. Patrick is the saviour of the Irish people, Jug Newgard is their nemesis. Jug's dropkick for the seventh point after Ben Gorder's touchdown proved to be the margin of the Bison 7 to 6 victory over the St. Thomas Cadets at St. Paul Saturday.

The Bison didn't hesitate long about setting an example for the Tommies. Five minutes after the initial kickoff, Mero, Cadet halfback, fumbled on his own 30-yard line, and the invaders recovered. Things began to look black for the Tommies, who were doing their level best to satisfy a Homecoming crowd, after the herd began to thunder down the field toward their goal. Big Ben Gorder ripped through the Irish line, which at times is too clever to even see through, and Cy Peschel ran the ends, until the pork epidermis was in possession of the Bison on the Cadet five yard line. Peschel slipped through to the one-yard marker, and Big Ben busted through for the score.

Jug Kicks Goal

Veteran of three campaigns against the Tommies, Jug Newgard was called back to kick the point. At the time Jug sent the oval hurtling over the Cadet crossbar, no one could guess that one point would mean victory for the buffalo battlers. It was a speedy start for the State eleven and they capitalized on their venture heavily.

For almost three quarters after this major event in the St. Thomas Homecoming which was not set forth in the programs, the two teams battled up and down the field, made first downs and lost ground, and kicked punts all over the field, the bleachers, and the fence. At the outset of the second half the Tommies made a bid for a comeback, but like Jack Dempsey, they lacked the punch. With the ball in the shadow of the Bison goal, the Tommies hit the line, the ends, and each other and finally conceded that they couldn't make it. Polly Guertin booted the ball out of danger.

Mullen Scores

In the closing minutes of the last quarter, however, Bobby Hahn was called upon to punt from the immediate vicinity of his own goal line, and the ball made a bee line for the St. Thomas bleachers, going out of bounds on the twenty-yard line. From this point the Cadets ran to the two yard marker, and after several unsuccessful attempts, managed to send Mullen through for the score.

The Cadets lined up in kick formation for the extra point but no one knew how to kick. As a result a valiant but vain attempt was made to pass for the tying digit. The Bison, having been trained in the classroom that none shall pass, easily knocked down the ball. A few seconds later the game was brought to a close by the timer's gun.

Gorder Outstanding

In the Bison backfield Captain Cy Peschel and Big Ben Gorder were the outstanding performers. The buffalo forward wall played as good a game as against the University, which was plenty good Newgard took care of his end job well, and Alf Skaret hasn't outgrown the idea that he's got to be every place at once yet. Alf shows wonderful possibilities as a guard on the Bison eleven. Barney and Berntson, the impenetrable pair, stopped up the leakages in the line whenever any occurred. The Cadet line showed a great deal of resistance to the Bison attempts at ground-gaining.

FUTURE FOOTBALL

Students who witnessed the Flicker Frosh-Baby Bison contest here Saturday could not help but be impressed by the wealth of material available for future Bison teams. Though defeated the Bison freshmen displayed a varsity type of ball and much will be heard of the green-clad players before another season draws to a close. Friday this same yearling squad will tangle with the Moorhead State Teachers and, with the same student support that was given them Saturday, should win handily.

It is commendable, indeed, that the students should display the enthusiasm they did at the freshman game, for it shows these new players of ours that we are behind them to the final gun, that win or lose, we are proud of them as fellow students here. Back them Friday afternoon at Moorhead and we'll have gone a long way toward the making of a successful team next year.

MID-TERMS

It won't be long now before our mid-term grades begin presenting themselves. And they carry a weighty significance to each student on the campus. Whether we originally came to college to play football, have a social good time, pass the time away, or to learn something means nothing. While we're here, now that we're here, we've got to get good marks, or there won't be any football, etc. Our mid-term grades mean a great deal. They serve as a warning to those whose marks are down in order that he or she may boost them before the finals. They serve to encourage the student whose marks are good and to urge him on to a better standing.

And it's the duty of every student to try for better marks. If a fellow is working his way through college it's his own business whether or not he gets his money's worth of knowledge out of it; but, in our opinion, a fellow who deliberately squanders his parent's money by wasting his time in college while his father provides him with a livelihood is the cheapest form of crook. His provides him with a livelihood is the cheapest form of crook. His parents are working, saving, sacrificing, and perhaps slaving to provide him with an education; and the student himself sits back, takes flunks nonchalantly, and has a good time in general. That's one criminal act that ought to take the place of a hundred worthless ones on the statutes of our government.

Let's all try to boost our marks before the final grades are made out!

Just Comment
WISE and OTHERWISE

IT CERTAINLY was gratifying to veiw the fine turnout to the Frosh game last Saturday. In spite of the chilly blasts of the oncoming winter, a large crowd of loyal rooters braved the cold to support the Freshmen in their first season game. Our band gang was strong as usual. Keep it up everyone! We want DRIVE!

A CERTAIN S. C. History professor recently startled his class by saying that approximately fifteen percent of the students on this campus are interested in the affairs of student government or in outside activities. The other eighty-five percent are too interested in their own studies and work to take any particular notice of what is going on. Of this interested fifteen percent, probably eight or ten percent get thru the elections or committees. It is quite true that about eight percent of the students run things. This is true also of city government. It is a peculiar characteristic of modern colleges—a fact hardly to be lamented. College students are knowledge seekers. Many work their own way. But the sad part of it all is that a great group of the students are terribly ignorant of college affairs, of the government. The writer recently talked to a S. C. student who did not know when or where to get a Spectrum, who was surprised when told that his subscription had already been paid in the student activities fee. Then to cap it all, he had never read his college paper! The great percentage of students who take no part in college activities should be careful not to get in a rut. They should at least read the Spectrum, attend all student functions possible, go to class meetings. Let everyone at least keep in touch with what is going on. Don't become wholly submerged in your own affairs.

THE REGULARS brought a scalp home for the trophy chest—a bit of cheer for those discouraged football fans. There are quite a few in this latter group. These fellows seem inclined to see only the dark side of the defeats, focusing their attention only on the score. Every school has its good and bad years on the athletic field. So far this year, our team has been unfortunate in most games, but only so far. Why not keep the eye on the future instead of the past? Be forward looking—not backward looking. Gang upon all pessimists!

ONLY ONE more football game will be played in Fargo or Moorhead this season. That game is scheduled for November 11 and will feature the Baby Bison against the regulars of the Moorhead Teachers College. Bison student, start boosting NOW. Wind up the season en masse at the game. When the moleskins are tucked away, let it not be said that Bison spirit fell away at the last.

ART CLUB TO MEET TO DISCUSS GIFT-MAKING

The Art Club will meet Thursday at 6:15 in the school cafeteria for dinner. After a social meeting there, they will adjourn to the art studio where they will undertake the first problem in the project for the term, that of making Christmas gifts. The problem consists of marbelizing paper and color merging in the decoration of furniture. Miss Hatch and Miss Elliott will demonstrate.

I'M THE CO-ED

I'm the co-ed that stops to talk with my sorority sisters between classes in Science Hall. We form a big circle right in the middle of the hall so that it is almost impossible for anyone else to get by without stopping to beg pardon for bumping into one of us. We hold regular sorority meetings at the expiration of each period during the morning and early afternoon classes, and get all our business transacted so that we can have a good time and social hour Monday nights. Of course, it makes the halls terribly congested, and many a student has been late to class dodging sorority groups, but we must have our little chat just the same. It takes the monotony out of college life for us, even if it does cause other people a great deal of inconvenience.

Seven In One

Seven schools are located in one college. That is the situation at the North Dakota Agricultural College. Other schools will be added in the future as they are needed.

The School of Mechanic Arts, the School of Science and Literature, the School of Agriculture, the School of Chemistry, the School of Pharmacy, the School of Home Economics, and the School of Education comprise the divisions within the college.

Within the seven schools are various departments. Architecture and Architectural Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, and Mechanical Engineering comprise the School of Mechanic Arts. Other schools have their divisions in a similar manner.

Those seven schools in one college are housed on a campus containing nineteen major buildings.

Saalwaechter Sends Harriers to N.C. Race

Weiser, Nelson, and Reynolds To Enter Conference Meet At Brookings

Weiser and Nelson, and possibly Reynolds, will make up the North Dakota State College cross country team that will compete in the North Central Conference meet to be held at Brookings, South Dakota, Armistice day, according to Coach Saalwaechter.

The team will leave for the scene of action Thursday morning. The men running for the Yellow and Green will meet with plenty of opposition at Brookings for star long distance runners from all over the conference will be on deck to make the jaunting tough. South Dakota State, winners the past two years, with their veteran team are heavy favorites to walk off with honor of the meet.

Weiser And Nelson To Go

Weiser, and Nelson gained the right to represent the N. D. S. C. at the conference meet by winning first and second respectively in the race held last Saturday between the squad members. Both men were in fine condition at the finish and their time was good, Nelson was clocked only a few seconds behind Weiser. Wollan finished third and Muller fourth. Reynolds, veteran runner, was forced out with a side pain, which is a common fear of long distance runners Weiser, Nelson, Muller, and Wollan will receive medals for placing in the race last Saturday.

Coach Saalwaechter will have his runners out every day this week to get them all set for the conference meet Friday. This conference meet will close the cross country season until the spring sunshine makes running possible.

COULTER SPEAKS AT ARMISTICE PROGRAM

Dr. John Lee Coulter, president of the North Dakota State college, has been secured as the speaker of the Armistice day program to be presented at the First Presbyterian church at 8 p. m. Friday. This is the one program of the year that the organization holds in the evening which is arranged primarily for the entertainment of the men members congregation. In keeping with the spirit of the occasion, a musical program has been arranged and one of the special features will be the singing of the songs of the allied nations. The singers will appear in the national costumes of the countries that are to be represented. Soloists will be Mrs. Manzanita Stephens, Miss Dorothea Thomas and Dr. D. T. Robertson, pastor of the church. The Sunday school orchestra will play. The evening program is open to the public and an invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

"TRIPLE THREAT" A COLLEGE FOOTBALL STORY BY ARGY AITCH

SYNOPSIS

BOB CRAWFORD, senior law student and quarterback of the Stamford College eleven, is waiting for the center to pass the ball to him for an attempt at a drop-kick over the Northeastern University goalpost in the final quarter of their game on Thanksgiving Day for the national championship. A pass to JOHNNY GRANT, Bob's pal, has just tied the score at 6-all. If Bob makes the kick, Stamford will win the game, and Bob will win All-American mention. This will act as one of the three great deeds Bob must accomplish before he can hope to win MARY MALONE, who is listening to the game by radio. RALPH NORTON, captain of the Northeastern team and Bob's rival, has been the leading player on his team, but his failure to kick the extra point following his touchdown has cost him the game. The radio announcer continues the account of the game:

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"The ball is passed to Crawford who makes a perfect drop-kick for the extra—" more cheers issued from the radio and Mary hurriedly turned off the dials. The game was over and Bob had turned defeat into victory. He had succeeded where Ralph had failed. His first great deed was done. A thrill of happiness passed over her, happiness and pride.

Bob had counted heavily on his leading the Law School honor roll at the end of the semester to make up his second deed to Mary, but in this he was doomed to disappointment. Football had cut a wide swath in his studies and he had only ranked sixth among his fellow students when he received his grades just before returning home for Christmas vacation. By virtue of his brilliant showing on the football field he had made the All-American team that was his first and only great deed. But now he must return with the year half gone, and only one-third of his promise fulfilled. The second semester was always the hardest in the senior year, for there was graduation to take care of, and a hundred and one things to do to prepare for life off the campus.

He saw much of Mary during the vacation, more than usual because Ralph Norton did not come home during the Christmas recess. He wrote that he could not afford to spend the money to come west for the few days that he would be able to be home.

Directly after returning to Stamford, Bob went out for basketball, following Grant's advice that anyone who could be an All-American football player ought to be at least fair in the court game. But try as he would, Bob could not cope with the seven veteran players who were the Stamford team, and he finally gave it up in disgust. He would have to seek great deeds in other channels. He turned once more to his studies. He'd have to lead his class this last semester, graduation or no graduation. Scholarship had to be one of the remaining two deeds.

Accordingly, while Grant was at basketball practice Bob penned himself up in their room, and struggled with his books. Day after day, and night after night, he studied until Grant was positive that his All-American friend had turned into a full-fledged book-worm. Bob's mid-semester marks were excellent as a direct result of his hard work, and with the start of the last lap of the year, he began to ponder over the whereabouts of one remaining deed, providing, of course, that he succeeded in his scholarship race. He thought of track, and of baseball, but he could not hope to make either team since he had ignored both during the four years at Stamford. And then too, he would rather do something outside of sports. He had his one great deed stowed away from that realm, and if he could think of something else— But the days slipped by, one by one, until, with a sickening sensation within him, Bob noted that but two weeks remained of the year that had been given him to accomplish his three great deeds. And he had only one. It was certainly lucky for Bob that all seniors were exempt from their final examinations in their last semester at Stamford, for the discouragement that he felt would surely have reflected in his marks.

Graduation-day brought many fond mothers and fathers, sweethearts and buddies, to the Stamford campus. When the big limited rolled into the little rambling station and discharged its passengers Bob's mother and father, and Mary were among them. Bob met them, and again, a half hour later, they disembarked from another mode of transportation—old "Dad" Whimple's trolley—at the Main Gate to the Stamford campus. The four walked up the path towards the dormitory in the shade of the giant elms that lined the thoroughfare. As they passed "Old Main" Mary glanced at the bulletin board near the steps where her eyes rested on a notice which read "Scholastic Standings." They sought Bob's name in the maize of cognomens. There it was! "Law School Honor Roll; Robert Crawford, first, 95.3."

Bob and Mary looked at each other understandingly, while his mother and father beamed with pride. A few minutes later, in their room, Johnny suggested showing Mr. and Mrs. Crawford the campus, and Bob and Mary strolled off through the grounds, down to the river bank, alone. As they went Bob told of his failure to accomplish a third deed. It was hard, this having to confess defeat to the girls he loved, but like the ideal girl that Mary was, she tried to cheer him, saying that something was bound to turn up. To Bob this was impossible with only the rest of the day remaining of the school year.
