BISON ROMP TO 37-25 WIN IN LOOP OPENER

BISON AND BUNNIES MEET IN TWO GAME SERIES THIS WEEK

BUNNIES SHOW GREAT REVERSAL OF FORM IN RECENT TILTS; CREIGHTON GIVEN TOUGH BATTLE.

NEWGARD MAY GO WITH TEAM

BUNNIES UPSET DOPE LAST YEAR; EIGHT MEN AND COACH CORTRIGHT LEAVE FOR BROOKINGS THURSDAY.

Bison cagers will leave Thursday for Brookings where they meet Jack West's Bunnie cagers in a two game series Friday and Saturday evenings. The games will be the second and third loop series for the Bison.

Bunnies Inconsistent.

The Bunnie cagers have shown inconsistent form in their games as far as they have gone. The Huron college quint gave them a bad beating in the first meeting of the two quints the first week in January, but the next night the Bunnies turned the tables and gave the Huronites just as bad a trouncing as they had had the previous game. The Bunnies dropped two games to the Creighton quint last Friday and Saturday. The Bluejays held a big lead at the half time in Friday's game, but the Bunnies tied the count in the middle of the second period and gradually fell behind when the Bluejay quint got under way again. Their games against the Bluejays should prove that they are a tough aggregation and one not to be sneered at. The Bluejays are not as good a quint as they were last year, but nevertheless they will prove the downfall of nearly every loop quint which meets them this season.

Bunnies Upset Dope.

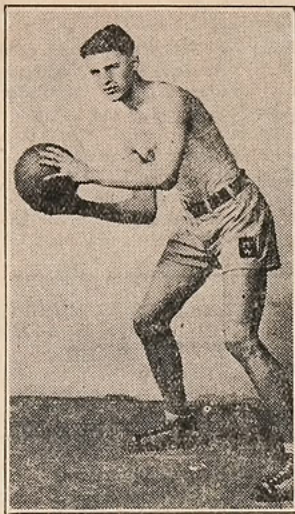

The Bunies are the kind of a crew which upsets the dope bucket, having taken the Bison by a one point margin in the fourth meeting of the two teams last season after the Bison had beaten them decisively the three previous tilts.

Cortright will take eight men on the Bunnie trip the personnel of which will be made of Captain Blakely, Arnold, Miller, McPherson, Thompson, Rumpeltes, Tilton, and Hanson. Newgard, who has been confined to his bed with mumps may be in fit condition to accompany the team, but it is doubtful if he will be able to play the entire game.

George McPherson, frosh quint star last year, removed conditions incurred in some of his scholastic work last term and will be eligible for participation on Friday.

NOTICE.

The local chapter of the American Association of Engineers will hold their regular bi-monthly meeting on Thursday evening in Room 22 of the Engineering building, at 7:30. The program committee has secured an interesting program for the evening, and it is desired that every member of the engineering department be present if possible. Light refreshments will be served following the program.

McPHERSON

BOARD APPROVES FACULTY CHANGES

TWO RESIGNATIONS ACCEPTED AND FOUR NEW MEMBERS NAMED BY STATE BOARD.

The resignation of two members of the faculty and the appointment of four new members recommended by Dr. Coulter, at the meeting of the state board of administration Tuesday were approved, according to word received Thursday evening.

The resignations accepted were those of Dr. R. L. Webster, entomologist, and James R. Redditt, instructor in poultry. No successor was named to Dr. Webster, but the appointment of O. J. Weisner to succeed Redditt was approved.

A temporary appointment to the position of instructor in mathematics to succeed Elmer Dynes, who died several months ago, was given to Sophus Thompson, a graduate of the college last June. Miss Ruth Mikkelsen was appointed to assist in the mathematics department during the winter term.

The appointment of Herman Boerth as special instructor in painting and decorating for the winter term, was also approved by the board.

NATIONAL SORORITY HEAD VISITS LOCALS

Mrs. Genevive Griffith Turnipseed, grand president of Phi Omega Pi sorority, who made an official visit to the local chapter of the sorority during the past week, was the guest at several social functions while in the city, the most recent ones being held Friday and Sunday.

Mrs. Turnipseed was the honor guest at a seven o'clock dinner at the Howard & Watson cafe Friday evening. The Fargo alumnae of the sorority acted as hostesses. At the charity ball held Friday evening she was in the receiving line.

Sunday afternoon a reception was held at the chapter house of the sorority in honor of the visiting official. Representatives of the two Eastern Star chapters, Mecca and Orpha, and representatives of each fraternity and sorority on the campus were present.

During her stay Mrs. Turnipseed is the guest of Mrs. A. M. Loudon.

EXHIBIT FEATURES ANNIVERSARY OF COLLEGE LIBRARY

INTERESTING FACTS IN CONNECTION WITH HISTORY OF COLLEGE LIBRARY SHOWN.

TO REMAIN INTACT UNTIL WEDNESDAY

PAMPHLET SHOWS BUILDING INADEQUATE TO CARE FOR PRESENT NEEDS OF SCHOOL.

An interesting exhibit, portraying the history of the college library from its start to the present day, is now set up in the vestibule of the college library. The exhibit is in commemoration of the twentieth anniversary of the present library building.

The exhibit which will remain in its present location until Wednesday evening, has interesting pictures, clippings and books, all of which give a brief history of library maintenance at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

Dedicated in 1906.

The present building was erected in the summer of 1905 and dedicated Jan. 18, 1906. Pictures and clippings reveal some of the hardships undergone to maintain a library, and it is revealed that the college had a library from its very beginning. Miss Lois Harper, now Mrs. C. B. Waldron, was appointed the first librarian in 1891. At that time the library was housed in the Administration building. Mrs. Percy Evans was the second librarian, and along with her library duties, acted as postmistress. Mrs. McVeety the present librarian, took charge in 1897.

At the time of Mrs. McVeety's appointment there were 3,100 volumes, while today the library houses approximately 40,000 volumes.

A typewritten pamphlet setting forth reasons why a new library is needed on the campus is one of the most interesting articles on exhibit. This pamphlet appears verbatim in the editorial columns of this issue. Pictures of early days in the present library, picturing students with their seemingly quaint costumes, a picture of Mrs. McVeety and her lone assistant, a student, the laying of the cornerstone, and other interesting bits of history regarding the library make up the exhibit.

POWER MACHINERY TRIO WIN DEBATE DECISION.

The industrial classes of farm, husbandry and power machinery opened the debating season here Friday evening when the Power Machinery team won a decision upholding the negative side of the question: "Resolved that: 'Compulsory Military Training is More Beneficial to the College Student than Compulsory Physical Training.'"

Members of the contending teams were: Urban Moritz, Donald Odenbach and Jesse Simmers of the Farm Husbandry trio who argued the affirmative side. On the Power Machinery team was Joseph Langaunet, Fritjof Elverum and Arthur Stuart.

KNEESHAW

RAE KNEESHAW TO HEAD N. D. CLUB

LETTERMEN TO STAGE DANCES AFTER FIRST HOME GAMES ON JANUARY 29 AND 30.

Rae Kneeshaw of Hastings, Neb., a junior in the School of Mechanic Arts, was named president of the North Dakota club, the organization composed of men who have won their letters in athletic competition, at the regular meeting of the club Sunday afternoon. William Gray, a junior in the School of Science and Literature was named vice president. Adolph Wall of Bottineau, a junior in the School of Education was named secretary and treasurer.

The appointment of a dance committee of the club, to have charge of dances after basketball games during the winter, and other routine business occupied the remainder of the session. The club definitely decided that a dance will be staged after the next two games against Jamestown college and the South Dakota State Bunnies, on Jan. 29 and 30. Proceeds of these dances will go into a fund to help equip the new quarters of the club which were recently opened.

SPECIAL CLASSES START NEXT WEEK

Special classes in first year college work are to be started next week for the benefit of incoming high school students who have graduated during the mid-year from high schools of Fargo or other points in the state, according to A. H. Parrott, registrar.

The classes, opening later than those of the winter term, will be new and regular sessions. Basic subjects, such as freshman English, mathematics, and chemistry will be given, where the number of registrants warrants, tutoring of students will be provided for.

With about forty students graduating from Fargo High school alone, it is hoped that these provisions will enable high school graduates to begin freshman work at once instead of waiting for the spring term or a new school year.

HERD IMPRESSIVE IN DOWNING TIGER FOE IN FAST GAME

BISON SCORE 23 POINTS IN OPENING PERIOD WHILE KEEPING JUNGLEMEN TOTAL AT SEVEN.

THOMPSON IS SCORING ACE

CORTRIGHT USES SUBSTITUTE SQUAD IN FINAL PERIOD; TIGERS STAGE DESPERATE LAST MINUTE RALLY.

By Dick Hackenberg.

North Dakota Bison cagers opened their 1926 conference campaign here Saturday evening with an impressive 37-25 victory over the University of Des Moines Tigers. The Cortright clan led at the half 23-7. A Tiger rally against a substitute squad in the final period was brought to a halt by the injection of the regulars into the lineup.

Tigers Rally.

The Iowa junglemen were unable to stop the fastbreaking offense of the Bison basket baggers, and didn't have the oval in their possession enough in the first half to organize a drive of their own. It was a discouraged bunch of Tigers, already anticipating their third straight defeat in three days, that slunk from the floor at the end of the first period. It was the same bunch—save for an altered frame of mind—that started a spirited rally against Cortright's reserves in the second half and proceeded to tear down the Bison lead from 16 points to 7. The score was 26-19 when the Bison mentor sent the regulars into the fray and the anticipated Tiger defeat was realized by a 37-25 count.

Blakely, Arnold, and Miller, veterans of last year, were the star performers of the battle. A new scoring ace was uncovered in Wad Thompson, who found the net five times from the field and twice from the free-throw line for a dozen Bison counters. Captain Blakely fell one field goal short of Thompson's total and contributed ten points to the cause. Cy Arnold dropped three long ones through the hoop and added one foul shot for a total of seven points. In other words this trio cast 29 of the 37 Bison votes. Toay and Olson starred for the Tigers.

Bison Start Fast.

Fifteen seconds after the ball left Dick Holzer's hands in the initial tip-off, the score was 2-0 in favor of the Bison. One minute later it was 9-0 and then the Tigers found their basket at the other end of the floor, used the hole in the hoop to good advantage and made it 9-2. The Bison, led by Blakely and Arnold, showed the count to 19 before the Des Moines men scored again from the field. Three free throws by the Tigers and a basket and two free throws by the Bison ended the half 23-7.

The Iowa quint started the final period with a bang and ran their count to 19 while the Bison reserves were boosting theirs to 26. Coach Cortright then brought the bigger guns to the front and when the smoke cleared away the yellow and green cause looked better in the ratio of 34 to 20. This was the straw that broke the Tiger's back and the addition of a

A REALIZATION.

It seems to be a trait of the human race to always be wanting something. Students, faculty, alumni, and what not, have been crying for a new armory for this school for sometime. There is also another crying need on this campus in the way of buildings, and that is a new library. Few students fully realize the overcrowded, inadequate, conditions pervalen in the library in this present day. Not until a student has seen the exhibit in the library building, in commemoration of its twentieth anniversary, can he fully realize the necessity for a new building for housing the large number of volumes needed in the present day college.

Among the facts revealed by the sheet in connection with the exhibit is, that in 1905 the student body numbered 308, whereas, by actual count, nearly 70 students are found to enter the library in one day. Over twice as many students entered this building in one day, recently, than were in the entire school when the structure was erected. This should be conclusive proof that a new library building is not only a passing fancy but an actual necessity.

The sheet which is maintained in connection with the exhibit says:

"This building was erected in 1905, twenty years ago, and no additions or great improvements have been made since that time.

"In 1905 the student body numbered 308 and now numbers 1,117.
"The college catalog of 1905-6 announcing the prospects of the new library mentions that it will house 25,000 volumes. We now have over 39,000 volumes on the campus, 6,000 being in department libraries, leaving 33,000 here, which is 8,000 more than the building was originally planned for. Four and one-half years ago the floors were pronounced overloaded 8½ pounds per square foot. Steel pillars were erected in the basement to make the building safe.

"The library should have a fireproof stack room, as the extensive files of periodicals, works of reference and government documents are entirely too valuable to be housed in the present building. In case of fire this would mean irreparable loss to the students of the future.

"Several hundred of the books, which should be in circulation have had to be taken to the basement to make room for growth. This may often prevent students from finding the book they are searching for in its regular place.

"The students are constantly complaining that they cannot find a chair, or a table on which to spread their papers and books, and that they cannot concentrate to do their best work under these crowded conditions and in these poorly ventilated rooms. Many faculty members and students do not use the library as much as they would if there were more room.

"As this is a state institution and also a depository for government documents, citizens of Fargo and Moorhead frequently use this library, but find it almost prohibitive during the busy hours, when endeavoring to work out their individual problems.

"Statistics show that the circulation has doubled in ten years, which proves that books are going out as well as being used in the building.

"There are no seminar rooms where students may discuss their class work or make outlines for debates. Such rooms are much needed in a college library. Coat rooms are badly needed.

"This library is entirely inadequate for the needs of the staff. Much work which should be done behind the scenes must necessarily be accomplished amidst the crowded condition of the student body.

"By actual count nearly 700 students entered the library in one day. As the library is used by so many on the campus, we should have one of the largest and most convenient buildings, so attractive that the students and general public would find it inviting."

The subject of this issue's Bison Booster became a member only last fall, not through choice but necessity. He needs no introduction to the large majority of the students and faculty, for Stanley E. (Stan) Borleske was athletic director here from 1919 to 1925.

Stan was born at Albert Lea, Minn., August 20, 1888. He early heeded the advice of Horace Greeley and went west. He graduated from high school at Spokane, Wash., and after graduation matriculated at Whitman college, at Walla Wala, Wash. in 1907. While attending Whitman, Stan took part in basketball, football, and baseball.

In the fall of 1908 he decided he would like to get some football tutoring under Fielding (Hurry Up) Yost, and as a consequence he registered at the University of Michigan. On account of the freshman rule being in force at Michigan he could not take part in varsity athletics the first year, but in the fall of 1909 he was made regular end on the Michigan varsity team. Stan proved his worth by being chosen All-Western end in 1910, and at the present time Yost regards him as one of the greatest ends who ever wore the spangles of the Wolverines.

Stan played professional baseball the Canadian, Texas, and Central leagues for the next three seasons, and in 1915 he went to Portland, where he coached the Lincoln high school teams until the outbreak of the World War. Stan was a captain in the 116th Engineers, and remained in the army until he became athletic director here in 1919.

Under Borleske's guidance Bison teams were equipped in better fashion than they had ever been before, with no loss in the department showing up on account of his team's equipment.

He resigned the athletic directorship last spring after a successful regime, Borleske having defeated the University in football his first and last years here. Material was very poor while Borleske was at the helm but despite this he managed to grab games which were marked up against his teams before the contest. He was instrumental in securing basketball coaches who downed the University three of the five years he was here and much of the material at the school at the present time, in both football and basketball, was developed under his tutelage.

Stan went into the sporting goods business last May, buying out the interests of Mary S. Hart, with Glifford (Luke) Moher, and is now in business at 205 Broadway, the firm being known as Moher & Borleske.

Stan was married in 1920 to Miss Gladys Engle of Enderlin, who was a student here at that time. They have one daughter, Irene, who is four years old, and they reside at 1106 Fourteenth St. N.

E BULLITIONS OF EBONY BLOTT

By Ebony Blot—Himself.
"I must have a splitting headache," moaned the muscular one as he went to the woodpile with the axe.
* * *
When you, in a stupor, accidentally step on your dancing partner's corn, be nonchalant—light a Durad. When in a frenzy of anger at your instructor or because he flunked you, and you curse him roundly to his face, be nonchalant—light out.
* * *
If you laugh at this, don't
Come to me.
You don't deserve
No sympathy.

A student is flunked. Yes, that does happen once in a while. Perhaps a greater sensation would ensue if it were said that a student wasn't flunked. Let it be repeated that a student is flunked. Being hurt by this terrible misunderstanding, the student, in the privacy of his own room frames the following oration to quote his instructor in an attempt to make him see the error of his ways.
"Far be it from this humble personage, sir, to attempt to dissuade you from any former opinion. I only wish to call your attention to a matter of grave importance. As I am very sensitive to any form of willful or unintended injustice, my plastic mind naturally revolts at the abominable mark which you bestowed upon me the preceding term. My excellent recitations should dispel in your mind any doubts whatever concerning my status. I am appealing to your sense of justice, sir, and I believe that you are too big a man to let such an important matter go unattended to.
What he really said went something like this:
"Far be it—ahem—far be it—" he stops and gulps at least three times in rapid succession without intermission. "Far be it from—" he blindly continues, "Far be it from me—er—ah—". At the sight of the Professor's stony glare he succumbs completely. "How far be it from here to the postoffice?" he simpers with a sigh of relief. Another plea, which would rank with Webster's best, has sunk to ignominy unheralded.

"She is a girl after my own heart," said the Aggie student when a sorority maiden called him up to take him to the Charity Ball.

We hate to do it, but all this was murmured during the showing of the "movie" Alexander Hamilton, at the Armory.
"It's all a lot of gravy; they didn't have any moving pictures when he was living."
"This is a lot of propoganda to make us believe that fighting always results from the making of whisky."

Dear Ebony: I come to you for help when everything else has failed. I have a son who, unlike his father, is a very shiftless lad. He has numerous queer traits. He dozes most of the day and sleeps nights. He likes to brag and sneers at all advice. He seems very courteous, and he promises me time after time to mend his ways. Now what I want to know is what to do about his future life. His present viewpoint of life seems to fit him for a job where he goes to work at noon, quits at one, with an hour off for dinner. Probably a position as between-act entertainer for one-act plays would suit him better. I had a chance to kill him when he was young, but it's too late now. Could you suggest something?
O. HOWE BLANK.

Mr. Blank: Your illustrious son appears to be fit for but one occupation. He would make an ideal congressman.

Meet the Bison Staff.

"The last time!" thought the Spectrum reporter with genuine regret, as he turned the handle of the door of the Bison office. "The last time I'll interview the old Bison on members o' this staff! It's been a pleasant and exciting assignment, on the whole, and the old fellow isn't half bad. There's a heart of gold beating beneath that iron chest."
Altho the metaphor was so mixed that he decided not to turn his journalistic eye upon its defects at all, the sentiment misted his eyes as he entered the office.
What a sight met his eyes! The Bison's desk was covered over with an abundance of food that made the reporter's eyes pop. Half a creamy cheese stood there, a huge loaf of rye bread and a tray of crackers, goblets of foaming malt and root beer, a mammoth cake whereon the rich brown icing was a gleaming glacier in which almonds and walnuts were plentifully embedded.
"Just a little farewell feed, press," said the Bison, nodding his proud, shaggy head. Touched in two vital spots, his appetite and his sentiment, the reporter could scarcely express his delight. Ebony Blott, the little cullud office boy, appeared suddenly from behind a desk, his bright black eyes gleaming with the brilliant shine of the negro's eye on glimpsing food. "Come right in," he said importantly. "Pahty, press, pahty! Fun, huh?"
The enjoyment the oddly matched three got from the "pahty" is a delicious thing to record, so completely did the old buffalo shed his crusty, hard manner and shine forth as the noble, companionable beast he was; so irresistibly friendly, so naively droll and so unconsciously funny did Ebony Blott prove himself to be and so appreciative and responsive was the reporter. The exquisite bouquet of acting together for the last time was a heady scent to their nostrils, and not until the food on the table was regarded with unmistakable aversion that the old buffalo and the reporter came to business.
"We have left for the last some of my best," said the Bison finally. "The art staff will furnish the book with sub-section title pages. Ruth Von Sien, art editor, has already furnished a drawing for the title page of the fraternities sub-section that is a fine, exact piece of work. The sure skill of Miss Von Sien's fingers will contribute a distinct addition to our year book.

"Charles Bowers, famed in the architecture department, has contributed some fine drawings in black and white of campus spots for the scenic section, that will give a 'keen' touch to the book.
"The art work contributed by students is an important part of my annual, inasmuch as it is representative of the student talent and skill at the institution. The rank and file will be proud of the work coming from the fingers of Miss Von Sien and Charles Bowers."
The reporter stuck his pencil in his pocket with a regretful sigh. "That's all for the Bison staff, then, sir," he said. "It's been a great assignment, and I hope I'll be given your office again." An unmistakable gulp interrupted his little speech, as the sentiment that occupies a large slice of any newspaperman's heart overflowed. "I'll never forget—"gulp—"you, sir, nor—"gulp—"you, Ebony, by heck!"
The emotional little black boy was frankly sniffling, and the Bison shook his head sadly. Into this melancholic atmosphere the telephone suddenly whirred. It was Editor Eefy. "Well, you big chump," he shouted, "have they fired Ebony Blott and are you staying on as office boy? Ask the old boy can you please go out and play a minute, so you can come over here and write up that assignment before the paper goes to press. I won't keep you a minute after the story is down, you can go right back there or anywhere else you like better," he assured the frightened reporter menacingly. "What are you trying to say? Shut up! Come home to papa or papa What's that? What's that?" But the Spectrum reporter, shaking in his knees, had snatched his hat and run from the office. Editor Eefy was most dangerous when he attempted satire.

Prep Notes

Coulter Speaks at Convocation.
Dr. Coulter addressed the Prep School students at the first of a series of High School Convocations held in the Little Country theatre Friday morning. On the theory that life is what we make it and that work one likes is play, Dr. Coulter explained why one's vocation should be chosen with the greatest care. The purpose, he said, of such a high school as ours, is to help young people find the work they will enjoy through life.
Introducing the speaker of the morning, Supt. Iverson told the students that this was to be the first of a series of convocations to be given at regular intervals. Future speakers will be Fargo businessmen who will speak on the advantages and shortcomings of various professions. In this way our students will be aided in choosing their vocation.

High School Declamation Soon.
At the Prep School Convocation last Friday morning, Miss Challey urged the students to enter the High School Declamatory Contest to be held early in February.

If you have not already left your name with Miss Challey, or have not yet seected your reading, better do so now. Let us have some keen competition this year.

Looplights

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 16.—The "Band of Quality" of the University of North Dakota is booked for an engagement at the Garrick theatre in Duluth from April 3 to 9. Under the direction of Mr. George F. Strickling, the band will play three times a day. The Garrick is Duluth's largest theatre and the engagement was secured through Finkelstein & Raben, theatre owners.
"Very Good Eddie," a musical comedy, is to be presented by the band sometime in March and it is planned that the University talent will be used in this production, according to Mr. Strickling.
The organization being a military band the equipment is furnished by the government through the R.O.T.C.

Lim'rick Contest.

Stewart Schlipf, a former competitor in our contest, succeeded in capturing the bunting in Red Blakely's limerick. This is the limerick complete:
A good basketball leader is 'Red'
From his feet to his gold colored head.
When handling the ball
You know he wont stall—
The No-daks all wish he was dead.
Keen competition was the feature of the above contest. Some of the judges thought the above line was a bit too forceful. Maybe the No-daks don't wish he was dead, but undoubtedly they do wish he was a long ways from the scene of conflict when they play the Bison. "The No-daks all shaket at his tread," was another last line of Stewart Schlipf's making that received consideration from the judges. Jay Bryant continued his splendid work with "He'd keep fighting until he was dead." Esther Skjelset, a new entrant in our contest gained recognition with "After all what more's to be said."
Our next limerick differs from the previous one in that an athlete is not featured. Fitzgerald may not be an athlete, but his mind is athletic in that it is very active. Of course his excellent editorials are read by all who like good writing. Besides writing editorials "Eefy" has to "mother" the Spectrum along to see that not too many errors are made. He deserves six or seven limericks in his honor. Start working on the last line now, before it is too late.
Three cheers for Fitzgerald our boss!
'Round whose form there gathers no moss.
"I like him a lot,"
Said Ebony Blott—
The last line "He resembles our dapple grey hoss" is strictly prohibited. Rush 'em to the Spectrum office by four o'clock, Friday.
Jay Bryant, a very busy bee in our swarm of contributors, realized on his last lines by winning the $2 due the writer submitting the best last line of the last period just ended. Jay probably wouldn't take the money, but it's just the principal of the thing—not the interest. Here is his blue ribbon limerick:

A basketball demon is Cy,
Whose fame soars as high as the skigh.
In watching him shoot,
You can't help but root:
Nice goin', you sure got the eyegh.
Good, isn't it? You can do as well.
Prove it by wining the next contest which starts in this issue.

Knewsy Knosey Kampus Kolumn

Samuel B. Folk, instructor in the civil engineering department, returned from Chicago Sunday, where he attended the national convention of the Good Roads association.

Special recognition services were held in the Y. W. for those girls who were unable to attend the services held some time ago. After the services a meeting was held to discuss the Geneva Conference. Alice Dahlgren, Doris Stewart, Alice Bender, Amy Erickson, and Constance Melchoir led the discussion. Tea was served later in the afternoon in the library of the "Y" building.

The Sigma Theta meeting was held at the home of Miss Dorothy Stoudt, on Monday evening.

Sigma Theta alumni, active and pledge members enjoyed a skating party at the park rink on Saturday afternoon. The girls then went to the home of Dorothy Stoudt for refreshments.

Theodore Martell was a dinner guest at the Kappa Phi house Friday.

Miss Nellie May Root will entertain at a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Dorothy Loudon, at the Practice House on Wednesday evening.

Reports of the game Saturday were broadcast from the Armory by the new announcer, Becky Keene. All home games will be broadcast along with the concert given by the college band, and the songs and yells which are lead by the "Bisonites."

Ernest Stoudt was formally initiated into active membership in the Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity at formal services held at the chapter house Sunday afternoon.

Howard Lewis left for his home at Binford Saturday where he will remain until the beginning of the spring term.

SCHALK AND DOLVE ON LOCAL RADIO THIS WEEK.

Dean E. S. Keene, in charge of the college broadcasting station WPAK, announces that Dr. A. P. Schalk will speak from WPAK at 7:30 Monday. The weekly market report will be given at 7:30 P. M. Wednesday.

Prof. R. M. Dolve will tell of "Opportunities in Mechanical Engineering at Your State College" at 7:30 P. M., Friday.

N. E. A. PAPER CARRIES ARTICLE ON BISON HEAD.

The current issue of The Service, trade publication of the Newspaper Enterprise association carries an article and photograph of Miss Carrie Dolphin, editor of the Bison.

The article says: "Miss Carrie L. Dolphin, 19-year-old co-ed at the North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo, is the first girl to become editor-in-chief of the 'Bison', student year book, in the 35 years of the college's history. She heads a staff of 40 men and women. Carrie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dolphin of Fargo. She expects to enter journalism after she finishes school."

CHARITY BALL HELD SUCCESS

MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED COUPLES ENJOY DANCING AT FIRST CHARITY BALL.

More than two hundred couples attended the Charity Ball in the Armory Friday evening. Decorations for the party were carried out in a setting of a Japanese garden. An improvised fountain and pool, and Japanese bridges were some of the detailed settings of the party.

Patronesses from each sorority, Mrs. Myrtle Gleason Cole, dean of women, and Mrs. John Lee Coulter were honorary guests. Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, national president of the Phi Omega Pi sorority, who is on an official visit to the local chapter, was also one of the honor guests.

Informal dancing commenced at 8:30, with the grand march taking place at 9:00 P. M.

The party set a new precedent in society circles, this party being the first of what is planned to be made an annual affair of the college.

According to those in charge of the party, the experiment was a complete success, and all expressed the opinion that the party would be made an annual affair. Receipts of the party had not been completely checked up last evening, but it is believed they exceeded expectations.

Chairmen in charge of committees for the party were:

Music, frappe, programs, Florence Henderson.

Decorations, Rebecca Keene.

Reception, Helen Curran.

Publicity, Martha Thompson.

Refreshments, Alice Chandler.

Student Opinion

The dance given after the game on Saturday night was a great success. The proceeds are to go toward furnishing the varsity room, (Trophy Room) which is to be for the use of the team's alumni, and students of the college, both men and women. This type of dance will be given after every home game and should be patronized by the student body in general. Girls, if your boy friend suggests going down town instead of staying at the dance, be firm! and answer "No!" Boys, if your lady-love just has to go to the Winter Garden, be a cave man and lock the Armory door! And, if you want to stag it, there will be plenty of unmarried, single, unattached to keep the evening jolly. K. R.
