CHARITY BALL TO HOLD SWAY TONIGHT IN COLLEGE ARMORY

JAPANESE GARDEN TO FORM SETTING FOR FIRST ANNUAL CHARITY BALL.

PROCEEDS GO TO CHARITY

DANCING TO START AT 8:30 WITH GRAND MARCH SCHEDULED FOR 9:00 O'CLOCK.

Decorations for the Inter-Sorority Charity Ball, which will be held in the Armory this evening will be carried out in the form of a Japanese garden. An improvised fountain and pool, and Japanese bridges will be some of the detailed settings.

Refreshment booths will be maintained by each sorority at which coffee and tea and light refreshments may be secured.

Patronesses from each sorority will be present at the ball, and with Mrs. Myrtle Gleason Cole, dean of women, and Dr. and Mrs. John Lee Coulter, will be the honorary guests.

Dancing will commence at 8:30 and continue till midnight. Several interesting features are being planned, one of which is the grand march, scheduled for 9:00 o'clock.

This party sets a new precedent in college circles, the practice in the past having been for each individual sorority to support its own private philanthropic movement, but under the new plan all organizations will give support to the charity ball, proceeds of which will go into a fund to be disbursed to some worthy charitable cause.

Tickets for the ball are now on sale and may be purchased from any sorority member upon the campus. Tickets for the party are two dollars, and spectator's seats twenty-five cents.

ZOO STUDENTS MOURN AS FROGS BECOME EXTINCT

"Where, oh where, has my little frog gone?"

This is the longing cry issuing from the throats of anxious students in the biological department of the college since A. H. Whedon, professor in charge, has revealed the little known fact that frogs are becoming an expensive luxury both for the cuisine and the laboratory.

Professor Whedon ordered several dozen live frogs for laboratory work last fall from an Indiana frog farmer, who has supplied the head of the department with the lively-legged creatures for twenty years.

Unable to get frogs after ordering from Chicago and New Orleans markets, the biologist learned that the useful frog is well on his way to becoming a revered memory.

"The frog birth rate is diminishing every year," said Mr. Whedon.

The layman might account for the shortage because of the frog's popularity as a fancy edible. His guess is substantiated by fact; the passing of the green hoppers being due as much to our fancy appetite as to their laboratory use, according to biologists. The frogs are popular with the biologists.

FORMER STUDENT RECEIVES HONORS

BRUCE D. RINDLAUB APPOINTED TEMPORARY CADET LIEUTENANT DURING RECESS.

Cadet Bruce D. Rindlaub, a former student here, was selected as cadet lieutenant at the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y., from the period Dec. 3 to Jan. 1, while upper classmen were away from their posts during the Christmas leave, according to word received through a public communication from West Point.

"To be selected for one of the temporary officer cadet appointments is a distinct tribute and honor to the cadet concerned, especially since such appointments are based both on military and academic work of the cadet in question," says the communication. Cadet Rindlaub attended Fargo High school, and was a member of the 1925 Bison staff last year, in charge of the military section of the book. He was a member of Phi chapter of Theta Chi here, and a charter member of Gamma Tau Sigma, honorary journalistic group.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION IN NEW QUARTERS IN MAIN

T. W. Thordarson, secretary of the Alumni and Former Students Association has moved his office from Francis hall into his new quarters in the Administration building. The Association offices occupy the space formerly used by the postoffice which has been moved to the basement of the building.

FRATERNITY BASKETBALL MANAGERS TO MEET AT "Y"

Adolph Wall, who is in charge of the annual fraternity basketball league at the "Y", has requested that the managers of the various teams entered, meet at the "Y" at 3:45 this afternoon. A meeting of the group was originally scheduled for Wednesday, and as only four men showed up the meeting was adjourned until today.

GOLD STAR BAND PRESENTS CONCERT TO LARGE AUDIENCE

PROGRAM MEETS MUCH APPROVAL

TRUMPET TRIO, "TRIPLETS OF THE FINEST" IS FEATURE NUMBER OF WELL ARRANGED PROGRAM.

A large audience greeted the Gold Star Band in their sixteenth annual concert presented before the Tri-State Farm congress at the Fargo Auditorium Wednesday evening, which is in session at Fargo. A well arranged program was presented which met with much approval from the auditors.

A concert polka for three trumpets "Triplets of the Finest", played by Fred Byerly, Milo Durett and Ralph Turnblad was the feature number of the program.

The Gold Star Band has presented a concert program before this group, which holds its sessions in Fargo annually the second week in January, for the past sixteen years.

The concert was given under the auspices of the Fargo Commercial club, which presents the complimentary concert annually. This concert is used as a means of selling the college to those in attendance at the sessions of the congress, and to the people of Fargo, and is the outstanding achievement of the college band during the year.

Wednesday's program was as follows:

March, "Step On It".....King Overture, Yelva....Reissinger, Op. 66 Idyll, April Sighs.....Ring-Hagar Concert Polka for Three Trumpets, "Triplets of the Finest"

.....Henneberg Messrs. Byerly, Durett and Turnblad. Fantasy on "Three O'Clock in the Morning".....Garing

Written for the New York Hippodrome Orchestra and arranged for band by Al. H. Hicks. Played from manuscript.

Selections from "Rose Marie"

.....Friml and Slothart

Introducing: Entre Act, Hard Boiled Herman, Rose Marie, Why Shouldn't We, Totem Tom Tom, Indian Love Call, Door of My Dreams, Empire Scene and Finale.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF LIBRARY ON MONDAY

Monday the A. C. library, in its present residence will have attained its twentieth anniversary under the direction of Mrs. Ethel McVeety. The library, a Carnegie structure, was erected in the summer of 1905 and dedicated January 18, 1906.

A magnificent addition upon the campus twenty years ago, the library has become a hub to collegiate life in those years. An old issue of the Spectrum for April 15, 1906, then published on the 15th of each month prints thus of the library:

"It is hoped that the additional (Continued on page three)

SPECTRUM STAFF TO BE ENLARGED

SEVERAL CHANGES AND ADDITIONS TO BE MADE ON COLLEGE PUBLICATION SOON.

In order that all departments and activities of the college may be more thoroughly covered, several new additions to the reportorial, editorial and business staffs of the Spectrum, student semi-weekly publication of the college, will be made soon, according to word given out by Eugene Fitzgerald, editor-in-chief, and Paul Revell, business manager of the paper.

At the present time several departments are assigned to reporters, but for some unknown reason news from these sources do not reach the student publication. Under the new system, regular beats will be assigned to each reporter to cover at convenient times.

On the editorial staff of the paper a managing editor will be named to have charge of all reporters, making assignments and assisting in news gathering. The business staff will be enlarged by the addition of a circulation manager and another assistant business manager, an assistant athletic reporter will also be appointed.

It was also announced that a new feature section, starting with this issue of the Spectrum will run in each issue throughout the year. The section will deal with individual members of the Bison Booster club, members of which subscribe for tickets admitting them to athletic games throughout the athletic season. Each member will be taken individually in an issue of the Spectrum and a brief summary of his activities, business, birthplace, and other phases will be explained. "This section is inaugurated in order to acquaint college students and members of the club, and to create a closer connection between them, as they are all working toward a common cause," Mr. Fitzgerald said yesterday.

Applications for these positions will be received until next Wednesday noon, according to those in charge, and will be awarded to willing workers regardless of whether they have had experience or not.

COBBERS ON SHORT END OF SCORE IN INTER-CITY CONTEST

BISON LOOK GOOD IN ANNUAL TILT, TAKING CONTEST FROM CONCORDIA QUINT 32-16.

BLAKELY AND ARNOLD LEAD

TIGERS HOLD PRACTICE PERIOD TWICE DAILY; LINEUP FOR BISON FRAY UNCERTAIN.

By Dick Hackenberg.

Coach Cortright's cagers piled up their sixth consecutive non-conference victory Wednesday evening by handing the Concordia Cobbers a 32-16 defeat on the Cobber floor.

Brewster Cob Star.

Captain Red Blakely and Cy Arnold were the Bison bright lights of the contest. Blakely was high scorer with six field goals and two free throws for a total of 14 points. Arnold's floorwork was a feature of the game. He assisted his mates to many easy tries at the basket with almost perfect passes, and his ability to nab the tip-off from center was a big factor in the victory. "Sally" Brewster and Stardig were the luminaries of the Cobber quint.

The Bison basketballers open their conference season here tomorrow evening against the fast Des Moines university outfit. The Tiger tossers will come here from Grand Forks where they play a two-game series with the Flickers last night and tonight. The jungle men have been going through two practices daily to prepare themselves for the Dakota invasion, and hope on these double daily sessions indicate that the varsity passing is invisible as far as the scrubs are concerned. Whether the Tigers can produce such speed or not, there is little doubt that they will furnish tough opposition to the Yellow and Green in the opening mixup.

Lineup Uncertain.

Captain Olson, Tiger center, Couchman, forward and Driebilbis, guard, are the only sure starters in the Bison battle. Toay and Burns seem likely to fill the open forward and guard positions, respectively. Couchman at left forward has been going at a fast pace, so far this season, and has been a threat in all the Tiger conquests. Barnes and Driebilbis are dead shots on the hoop from long range and good defenders of their goal. The probable Tiger lineup is a strong one.

The Bison started the scoring against their inter-city rivals after three minutes of play when Blakely, Arnold and Tilton each contributed their bit to make the count 6-0. The Cobbers came back with a fast offense and raised their score to five before the Cortright clan could increase the lead. From this point on the two quints settled down to steady but fast pace, as the Fargo team gradually drew away from the Cobbers. At half timethe score stood 15-7.

At the start of the second half the Bison opened an offensive drive that carried the count to 24-8. The Cobbers altered their score, making it 14 and Arnold and Blakely made theirs 28. Blakely again scored, followed closely by Thompson. Concordia registered a long shot to end the game 32-16 in favor of the Dakota contingent.

MAYBE SEVERAL SEASONS, TOO.

"There are several reasons why we cannot meet your team here on February 9." That is the way A. A. Schabinger, athletic director at Creighton, and coach of the Bluejay quint, explains his inability to meet the Bison court team at Omaha, while the Bison are on their annual southern trip around the loop.

If Schabinger really has several reasons why he cannot meet the Bison team, he should at least give one of them. Close followers of the N. C. I. activities can answer one of the reasons without much thought. It is the main reason, and possibly the only reason: THE BISON ARE TOO GOOD.

Bison basketball teams did not give Creighton the run-around when the Bluejay quint was admittedly the class of the loop. Creighton and the University of South Dakota, and probably some dark horse, look like the class of the loop this year. It is generally conceded that the Bison have the best chance to cop the title, and if Creighton does not have to meet the Bison they stand a chance of going into a tie for the gonfalon. If Creighton wants to win another basketball title in the above manner, it is perfectly agreeable; but whenever one talks of basketball prospects in future years, the Creighton deal should stand as the contrast between leading teams, the one having the easy schedule being likened to "Creighton's Wonder Five of 1926", N. C. I. cheese champions.

It may be that Creighton will be in just such a position as the Bison are today, and the one in Creighton's position should make "several reasons" read, "We cannot meet you for several seasons."

BRING AN HONEST FACE.

When a supposedly grown-up man or woman has reached college, he or she should have intuition, if nothing more, to realize that they will get no more out of a college course than they put into it. If a student comes to college and expects to "get by" through dishonest methods, that should be the concern of the student himself.

It is true that students will try to get through "tough" courses, and for that matter "pipe" courses by dishonest methods. If one who has reached the age of a college student, and uses dishonest methods, it would seem that he is going to retain them throughout life. Some things can be taught a student in college, besides the daily routine of the classroom, but it is not the opinion of this publication that honesty is one of them. Dishonesty is either inborn or acquired some time early in life, and it is questionable if the methods used in the classrooms are the ones by which these are corrected. The methods employed in this institution are probably no different than in other colleges and universities.

There seems to be no logical reason why an instructor should stand before a class of college students, giving a ten-minute lecture, warning them not to look on another student's paper for answers or clues to a question before a quiz is given. A word should suffice. In short, who is the student cheating? No one but the student himself will suffer. There is also the thought that a student using dishonest methods will cast reflections on the institution, which is true. The percentage of students who would use this method of getting through college is small, and hardly deserves mention. It should rather be a concern of the student than of the professor, for it is the student who suffers for his dishonesty.

As to just what plan could be evolved to leave the matter to the student rather than making a policeman of the instructor, is problematical, but surely one should be adopted. One instructor in the college now requires that all students write a statement at the end of the quiz in approximately the following words: "I have neither received nor given help during this examination." This is then signed by the student, and the instructor takes it for granted that the writer has lived up to it. Any self-respecting student who had used dishonest methods in procuring answers would not sign this statement, and if not signed would be proof that the student did not use the usual method in writing answers. If a student used dishonest methods and did not sign he would be admitting that he did use dishonest methods, and that's honesty, to make such an admission. We are heartily in favor of having this plan adopted for use in quizzes as well as general written class work.

Meet the Bison Staff.

Snuffle, snuffle. Ebony Blott gazed fondly at the Spectrum reporter, who sat talking earnestly to his boss, the Bison. He removed one of the rubber gloves his boss had given him for Christmas to wipe away a furtive tear that squeezed out under his chocolate brown lids, and leaned on his broom to gaze at the object of his sentiment with greater comfort.

"The Satire section is certainly going to be worth the price of admission this year, I'm telling you that," the Bison was saying warmly, gesturing with his hard old hoof, as he always did when most earnest.

Snuffle. Suddenly the sob! The reporter turned around hastily, and saw a picture of a little cullud boy, draped forlornly on a broom that was bigger than himself, with large black eyes dripping with sentiment and tears gazing upon him.

"Why, Ebony!" he cried. "Why all the salt brine? Isn't your mammy well?"

"Mammy's fine," he quivered. "I jus' so bad, Mr. Reporter, thinkin' of all the fine times we've had this year with you a comin' down here for interviews bout the Bison staff, and all. And you say there's only one more interview. I feel bad!" and he sobbed outright.

The Spectrum representative was touched. He came and patted the little black boy on the shoulder. "Well, it is nice to be missed like this," he said complacently.

Ebony wailed. "I never knew but what you would be thru on your ear by the boss!" he cried regretfully, visions of past thrills rising before him.

The reporter retired suddenly. "Well, sir," he addressed the Bison, a hard shoulder turned toward the too honest little office boy. "Stewart Schlipf is manager of the satire, isn't he?"

"He is," affirmed the buffalo solemnly. "The boy has a wide streak of burlesque running thru his mental make-up that makes his stuff inimitable. I've read some of his satire on the fraternities that he has written already, and ho! ho! haw-haw-haw! Why, just wait till you see—hee, hee!" the dignified old beast actually doubled up in laughter, chancing to remember one of Schlipf's bon mots on the good fraternity brothers.

"The satire section will be 32 pages and plenty keen," the Bison continued when he was able. "Schlipf is the ideal collegiate fun maker. You'll be forced to laugh, even if the joke's on you. His cartoons are good, too, and he will be assisted in a general way by Red Blakely, Bill Hurt and Elmer Hanson. It is my personal opinion," he cried impressively, "that the satire section will be one of the very best ever seen in the Bison at this college."

A chuckle was heard crackling across the room. It was Ebony Blott, who, while dusting the filing cabinet had unearthed some of the copy for the satire section and had begun reading it. "Oh, boy, thisere is good!" he cackled. "Listen, Spectrum; to this one on the Kappa Phis. This is rich!"

The Bison snatched the copy from him. "Mind your business, Ebony," he said sternly. He glanced casually down the sheet, and suddenly his frown gave way spontaneously to a shout of glee. "Press, come over here," he cried. "Listen to this one on the Delta Sigs!"

Dude—(Catching the spirit of the thing): "So is your old gent."

Stude—(Smiling at the compliment): "Got any classes this P. M.?"

Dude—(Becoming enthusiastic): "Likewise is your Aunt Jenny."

Stude—"Heh, heh, then we can go up town, can't we?"

Dude—(Becoming well warmed up to the subject): "Not unlike your Uncle Fred."

Stude—"You are so droll, and so clarifying in your explanations."

Dude—(Talking with a jovial air): "Even thus is your Grandmother Mary Ann."

Stude—(With a forgiving smile): "My, but it's hot."

Dude—(With fiendish smirk): "But that doesn't exonerate your niece, Ethel."

Stude—"But I repeat, sir, the atmosphere is torrid."

Dude—(Cackling gleefully): "And so is your cousin, Frank."

Stude—(Collapses uttering a shriek of anguish. His cousin had been dead for five years.)

Dude—(Wearing a sorrowful look): "Darn it, just my luck. Here he has to go and faint when I haven't yet told him about his nephew, mother, sisters and brothers."

Last lines are already flowing in for the current limerick, which lines are due to be judged at four o'clock this afternoon. There is still ample time to get in that prize winning line which will make yo eligible for the 'monthly' stipend of $2, as well as the grand prizes. Here is the limerick, act now.

A good basketball leader is 'Red'
From his feet to his gold colored head.

You know he wont stall—

Jay Bryant and Robert Saunderson are the former victors of this period. Following this contest, in next Tuesday's Spectrum, the winner of this contest as well as the winner of the $2 for the person supplementing the best last line of the last four limericks, will be announced. Basketball uloyers seem to offer material for good limericks as the one concerning Arnold drew a large number of answers, and if last lines keep coming in with Blakely as the subject, the former record may be eclipsed. When sending in the last line remember to have the correct tmeter, as well as having the last word rhyme with the last word of the first line. Submit your suggestions by four o'clock this afternoon and wait patiently for the next issue of the Spectrum to see if your efforts have proved successful.

They Also Serve

In thinking of the Bison Booster club, one cannot help but think of John H. (Jack) Grant, one of the organizers of the club, present president of the organization, and it's first secretary and treasurer.

Jack was born in Fargo, Sept. 12, 1889, and has resided in Fargo ever since, except for a brief time spent in the service during the war.

He attended school in Fargo, graduating from the public schools and Fargo High school, from where he came to the A. C. Jack spent three years as a halfback and fullback on Gil Dobie's wonder elevens, and for two years was an infelder on the varsity baseball team. In Jack's own words, "I didn't participate in basketball, because I studied in the winter."

After finishing school at the A. C., Jack went to work for the Interior Lumber company, and is now manager of the Fargo-yards of that company. He was in the air service during the war, as a master electrician on detached service. When Fargo had a team in the Dakota League, in 1922, Jack was on the board of directors, and one of those who financed the building of the ball park for the professional team which furnished Fargoans with baseball the previous two years.

Jack is not married—yet, and lives at 44 South Terrace, Fargo. Jack misses very few Bison athletic contests, in town or away from home, even accompanying the team to Omaha for the Bison-Bluejay football contest last fall.

gists for dissecting purposes, and at the present time he looks askance at the marauding chef; the chef at the biologist. And the price of frogs' soras from "two bits" a dozen as of yore, to two and three dollars a dozen.

Three million frogs are collected every year, informs the U. S. Department of Commerce. Two-thirds of these come from the Mississippi valley, states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota furnishing one-third of this number. Swamps and moist places where frogs breed and feed have been drained. To offset the frog loss, Minnesota has rigid laws to protect the amphibian. They prohibit the catching of the jumbo frog, a three-year old female the propagator of the race, an also protection of the baby frog.

Despite these efforts, will the frog join company with the dodo, buffalo, dinosaurs and other 'has bens'?

Regarding the high price of dissection, ask the man who is kept awake night by the howling feline on the back fence.

reading rooms, well ventilated and equipped, will be an inducement to the students to do more outside reading. However, there is one drawback already noticeable. It is almost impossible for the students to go over to the library and back again for a few minutes reading between classes."

Big Increase Shown.

The Bison school has had a library from the very beginning. In 1891, Miss Lois Harper, now Mrs. C. B. Waldron, was appointed the first librarian. The library was housed in Main Hall, a fact which enabled Miss Percy Evans, who succeeded Mrs. Waldron, to act as librarian and post-mistress. Mrs. McVeety, the present book custodian, took charge in 1897.

At the time of her appointment there were 3,100 volumes; there are now more than 40,000. The crowded condition of lone Main hall, often referred to in the issues of the Spectrum of the "nineties" have been relieved; but the gregarious student population has been seemingly shifted to the environs of the Carnegie book stall.

The library of today lacks the spaciousness that the student of the early 1900's were pleased to speak of. Now, on cold days windows may not be opened for the fear of the radiator system contracting rheumatism, and the reading room becomes a stuffy place of foul air. Tables and space are lacking for the wayward freshman who walks upon his neighbor's hat in a dire search for a "Thesaurus" or a "half tone of an ornithoryneus" in library methods work.

WEEK'S ENROLLMENT SHOWS 26 INCREASE

Thursday noon showed a total registration of 1143, an increase of 26 over last week's returns. Not included in the totals are an additional hundred students who have been registered by Dean Waister in the short courses of the School of Agriculture. There are 127 students enrolled, who have failed to register as yet, said Mr. Parrot.

With their registration the maximum will have been reached of a 1270 total. Many of the delinquents, however, will not return to school because of having "flunked out" or shortage of funds. The slight gain shown this week has added to the enrollment in the Schools of Science and Literature, Education and Agriculture.

CORRECTION MADE IN FALL TERM GRADES

A correction in the standing of the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity was made by Registrar A. H. Parrott, yesterday. The standing as originally given was 80.4, but a recheck showed them to have an average of 81.1.

17th CENTURY BOOK
ADDED TO LIBRARY

Several books have been added to the library's collection recently. Outstanding of them is one which Dean Minard was able to snatch up by alert perusal of the catalogues of New York publishers. The first edition, a volume which he obtained, was bought up by the avid reading public before the pressmen had scarcely cleaned the rollers on the press.

Released in 1697. "The Prose Works of Mr. John Milton" is a large full leather bound book which has purveyed the writer's viewpoints since its release in 1697 upon such modern subjects as "Divorce" and the "Irish Rebels." The leather binding, though not in prime condition because of its more than two centuries of use, appears to be good for a few more years. The leaves of the book, which is of large size, about 13x10 inches, show little of the yellow stain of years. Oddly, the typography of the book is not consistent, for the s's of such words as "business" and "likeness" are printed, one in Old English, and the other in modern form. Below the last line of each page is printed the first word of the top line of the succeeding page.

Y.W.C.A. TO HOLD SERVICES SUNDAY

Recognition services will be held by the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon in the Blue Room of the college "Y" at 3:00 o'clock. After the services, the Geneva delegates will take charge and hold a regular Geneva meeting. Tea will be served in the library after the meeting.

All women students of the college are invited to attend the services, and all members are urged to attend Sunday's services.

BISON-SPECTRUM STAFFS HOLD 'TEA'

A Nut Goodie "tea" was held Wednesday afternoon in the Bison-Spectrum office in celebration of the triumph of the Bison-Spectrum staff winning the huge two-pound bar of delicious candy in the contest recently sponsored by the colleg book store. The two editors acted as hosts, and Mr. Robert Sanderson "poured." Congratulations were exchanged among the guests, members of the Bison-Spectrum staffs, on the success of their efforts in winning the magnificent trophy.

"We had so much fun in this contest and were so glad at it," declared Mr. Sanderson, who with Mr. Gene Ostman were heavy scorers on the winning side, eating more nut goodies than Miss Dakin had ever dreamed of selling in her most optimistic moments "that we hereby challenge any other organization or individual on the campus in future contests." A good time was had by all.
