JUNGLE KITTIES DROP FINAL CONTEST HERE

DEWEY'S BISON RALLY TO PULL OUT 18 TO 15 WIN OVER DES MOINES

Des Moines Tigers dropped both ends of their two game series to Dewey's cagers, losing the second game, 15-18, Thursday evening. Play in the first half was slow, but one field goal being registered in this period, Knapp getting this after 13 minutes of play.

Thompson opened the scoring with two free throws and Miller followed with a gift shot a moment later. Knapp got his basket when Miller misjudged a long pass from Olson. Rumpeltes closed the Bison scoring with a free throw on Burnett's infraction. Toay got a free throw and ended the scoring for the half, which ended, 4-3 for the Bison.

Newgard Gets Winner

Rumpeltes and Couchman got a free throw apiece as play in the second half opened and Bechtel scored the first Bison field goal after six minutes of the period had passed. Both teams battled on even terms with the lead alternating until Newgard sunk a field goal 90 seconds before the conclusion of play to give the Bison a one point advantage, 16-15. Arnold cinched the game with a long field counter with but one-half a minute of play left.

SPANISH WOMAN WILL ADDRESS CONCLAVE

SENORA ISABEL O. PALENCE WILL SPEAK HERE ON MARCH 18

Toreador's trousers that have swept arena sawdust in the bull fights of old Spain, gay shawls that have added to the coquetry of Hispanic lasses, gala costumes whose owners have strummed a guitar beneath Spanish balconies are some of the bits of romantic history with which Senora Isabel O. De Palencia will illustrate her lecture on Regional Spanish Customs when she addresses the students and faculty of the North Dakota Agricultural college March 18.

To Use Slides

The speaker will illustrate her history of the Mantilla, Spanish shawls, laces and embroideries with slides also.

Senora De Palencia travels under the auspices of the Institute of International Education, New York. She arrived from Spain only last month. As a journalist, author and lecturer she has gained recognition on the continent and in England. Much credit is due Dean Minard for producing a native and resident of Madrid to tell of her people's traditions.

She has acted at different times as sole correspondent for Spain to English papers such as the "Tribune," "Standard" and "Daily Mail," also as staff member of "La Tribuna," and "El Sol," Madrid papers. "La Esfera" and "Elegancias" are publications that claim her services at present.

Besides being the writer of several books, Senora De Palencia is president of the Womans Suffrage Alliance in Spain. At the congresses of the International Suffrage Alliance held at Geneva (1920), and Rome (1923), she represented Spanish women.

Students have been fortunate in hearing speakers who have had the experience of residence in the countries of which they tell. Intimacies as related of Alaska, British Columbia, India, East Africa still leave room for the provincial Spain.

BUNNIES END YEAR BY BEATING NODAKS

HOUSER'S CREW FALLS BEFORE LONG BASKET ATTACK OF RABBITS

Brookings, S. D., Feb. 28.—State college finished its 1925 cage season with a victory over the North Dakota University Flickertails by a 24 to 21 count.

The Jackrabbits held a 19 to 9 lead at half time, but the Flickertails staged a great rally that knotted the count at 20 all. Earl Welch sank a long goal to break the count and then Reitz put the game on ice with a two pointer. The Flickertails had several tries at the net but were wild and then the Westmen played a "freeze" game to prevent further scoring and the Flickers were held from further scoring.

Ekern counted five times from the field to reap Rabbit scoring honors. Wilde of the Flicker quint added one free throw total 11 points. Boe played a great floor game for the visitors, but had hard luck in his heaves at the net. Captain Owens played a great guarding game to mark his exit from state athletics.

Notice!

To the Student Body: Byron Hanson, business manager of the 1926 Bison, appearing before the Student Board of Control of Publications, at a meeting of this body Saturday, Feb. 28, stated that no more than one hundred Bisons had been contracted for up to that date.

Realizing the folly in attempting to carry out further work in development of the Bison unless existing circumstances are much improved, the board passed a unanimous ballot on the following resolutions:

"Be it known to the student body that there will positively be no issue of the Bison for the year 1926 unless four hundred books are contracted for by March 15th.

"Sales campaigners are asked to make a greater effort to reach all students on the campus, and to cooperate more fully with the Bison in this, the greatest undertaking of the school year."

ARNOLD GOES THROUGH ENTIRE GAME WITHOUT SINGLE PERSONAL

By EUGENE FITZGERALD

What was billed as a basketball game turned out to be a mid-winter football practice session when Dewey's Bison cagers met the Cobber basketball quint from the northern school, 36-28, on the Bison floor Friday afternoon. The Bison acquired a big lead in the first half largely through the shooting of Hanson and Zimmerman, the period ending 13-4 for the Bison yearlings.

Edwards, who went scoreless in the opening period, found the hoop for six counters in the final period and along with the work of Lavoy and Bjorklund kept the northern yearlings in the running. Hanson, flashy Bison forward, got six field counters in the closing period and Fuller, Zimmerman and McPherson got two apiece, with Millard getting one to keep the Bison in the lead. As the game drew into the closing minutes with the Nodaks close to the Bison, the Dewey-coached aggregation gradually increased their lead to trot off the court with an eight point edge.

Hanson and Fuller played good floor games, although Fuller slowed up in the latter half. Zimmerman was the backbone of the Bison defense and in addition sneaked down to count from the field three times. For the Nodaks Edwards was easily the star on offense with Watkins and Bjorklund taking good care of the defensive end of the game.

WHY NOT?

The down trodden student, formerly a mere coinage of words, appears to be a coming reality. This at least would seem to be the case at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

The point is forcibly brought to mind with the coming of the end of the term and no vacation. The University of North Dakota has 166 days of school while we, here at the college, must say, "Good morning, Professor," on 178 mornings, or over two weeks of school in excess of the upstaters.

Washington's birthday, Lincoln's, armistice and the rest are all forgotten as holidays. We wonder what happens in summer school on July 4. In all it seems that the students are deserving of a rest of at least three days between terms. It would give them a chance to recuperate after the seige of finals which unfortunately are crowded into too few days.

The same rest period would enable all department heads to get their records up to date, the registrar's office would be able to handle their records and have them ready for the start of the new term.

In all everyone would be better satisfied. Those living near Fargo could go home and renew acquaintances with the home folks. Teachers would be rested after the strain of final exams and term gradings.

HONORABLE FACULTY—LET US PAUSE A WHILE—SAY THREE DAYS.

A TOUCHSTONE FOR THE COLLEGE

The training of men who will produce dividends in the financial world seems to be the objective in the modern college system, in the opinion of a committee of Dartmouth college seniors appointed by President Hopkins to study the subject. "The ages of business demands," they say, and the college complies." And then the committee says something that may have been suggested in various presidential inaugurations, but never, we are told, more directly:

"The serious question arises: Should the college continue to be bellhop to the world . . . and, in an age where the apparent criterion of any venture is the commercial touchstone. 'Will it pay?'—to turn out a finished product whose bugaboo is pure learning and whose ideal is immediate, paying practicability? Or, on the contrary, has the college some more difficult function—to be the leader, and not the errand boy, of society; to set up ideals for the world, and thereby satisfy a need more fundamental than those represented by the fluctuating demands of a changing society?

The opinion of the students turns toward this latter end. To achieve it, they offer a twofold suggestion. On the one hand, they would have the student body picked with increasing care, recognizing the alleged shortcomings of all mass education. And on the other, they would let faculty members carry on their work in the knowledge that their function as relayers of information is of distinctly subordinate importance to their office as guides to independent thinking and inspirers to an intellectual life."—Literary Digest.

ON CUTTING CLASSES

"College students should not hate their teachers," editorializes the Ala. Crimson and White. "Such feeling between professor and pupil is a reverting to grammar school and kindergarten. Neither should the two love each other with the demonstrativeness of the younger folk."

"But when a college student is forced to remain within four walls for fifteen minutes without receiving one whit of the knowledge which he attends school to obtain; when a student is kept in session several minutes after the hour has sounded and a long walk faces him in reaching the next class before the instructor bars the door; there is some foundation of hate in the mind of the students."

"There is cause for great dislike in the first exigency, and the added influence of the latter action fuses this emotion to some thing very close to hatred."

"Why should not one man very greatly dislike another when he is cheated by him, jailed by him and then must suffer for his failure to act fairly?"

"The tardiness of instructors in meeting classes and the reluctance with which some dismiss their sections after the whistle has blown, have been outstanding undesirable traits in daily evidence at the university. Faculty action on such matters imperative or else the more grave situation of student initiative in this respect will necessarily result."

"India Is Misunderstood" Says Dr. John Cornelius

FAIRMOS PHILOSOPHER DELIVERS INTERESTING ADDRESS TO STUDENTS

"India is much misunderstood," said Dr. John J. Cornelius, formerly professor of philosophy at Lucknow university, India, in an address on "The Religious Heritage of India" to the student body Monday morning.

Indians Are Philosophers

"My country has always been misunderstood by the western world. Perhaps it is because we think so differently. The civilization of the western world began to develop when India was already old.

"India has always been the home of philosophy and religion. In my country, which is so populous, there are many creeds brought from other nations and peoples; and there they become intensified and more distinctive than even in the countries of their nativity. Mohammedanism has many followers in India; Persia has contributed with her religion; Christianity has many converts.

"So thoughtfully and earnestly does India take religion to heart, that there is found many times in India the converts to Christianity following the laws of Jesus literally and sincerely. A man has done evil with his first hand; Christ says: 'Should thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out; if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off,' and one may see in India that the man does cut his hand off, for the greater salvation of his soul."

British Peeve Indians

In the recent crisis with Great Britain, when, after India had sent money and troops to her aid in the World war, England imposed heavy restrictions upon the liberty of the Indian people as a scanty reward, the people were seething with rebellion and hatred against the oppressor.

"It was then that Mr. Gandhi came as India's leader in her time of great need," declared Dr. Cornelius. "What he did for India then is one of his greatest contributions to her. At a time when hate was running molten throughout the veins of India, he repeated Christ's philosophy that should one strike another upon the cheek, he who is struck should turn the other cheek.

"He suggested that India erect in the garden, where British troops had killed numbers of Indian men and women who had congregated there for a public meeting, a monument that should express not the hatred of the Indian people, but a spirit of forbearance and the endurance of moral courage.

"Mr. Gandhi has been asked whether his gospel were not the gospel of the weak. It is much easier, when one receives a blow upon the cheek, to strike twice back. Surely it takes a far greater courage to swallow ire, forget personal revenge, and strengthen one's soul thereby."

Dr. Cornelius stated that the orient had a great regard for America, because she is considered the leader in the ideals of the world. The east was sadly disappointed when America's seat at the Peace Conference was vacant, and the League of Nations, that she had sponsored into being, was organized without her.

BOARD THREATENS YEAR BOOK

"SELL 400 OR THE BISON WILL NOT GO TO PRINT" IS EDICT

PUBLICATION BODY REACHES DRASTIC DECISION AT MEETING

NAME FINAL DATE

MARSH 15TH IS LIMIT SET AS SUBSCRIPTION DATE IN ULTIMATUM

Unless the student management of the 1926 Bison is assured of a sale of 400 copies, through advance subscriptions, the official and traditional year book of the North Dakota Agricultural college will not go through to completion. This decision, as reached yesterday by the Board of Publications, the official governing body of N. D. A. C. student publications, came as a result of investigations which disclosed the none too welcome fact that student subscription to the annual to date will not merit its publication.

Student Support Necessary
The fate of the 1926 Bison now depends entirely upon student support which, if thirty-five per cent loyal, will merit the publication, and which, if less than thirty-five per cent loyal, will necessitate the discontinuance of a work well under way.

Two things are primarily essential in the successful output of a college annual, and these alone have been considered by the board in taking the above action. First, there must be student support. For essentially, it is a book of the students, for the students, and by the students of the college which they represent. Second, there must be a capable and efficient staff or, in other words, proper management. It is the pleasure of the board to report that the editor-in-chief and the business manager and the members of their staffs are functioning in a very efficient manner. The first essential, and most vital, that of loyal and enthusiastic student support, has been found lacking.

Students Control Bison

If all students on the campus would subscribe for their annual, it could be sold for 25 per cent less and increased in size and inclusiveness, almost 100 per cent.

In placing the necessary number of advance subscriptions at 400, the Publication Board has simply set up a number that will substantially infer a minimum safety margin for a very necessary working basis. Subscriptions to that number will assure the 1926-27 college year of being represented by an excellent year book. Subscriptions over and above that number will assure an increase in its excellence and success in a direct proportion to the number received. The Board therefore has only one alternative in the matter, that being to ask those for whom the annual is being prepared to assume the responsibility of guaranteeing its completion. When this is accomplished, it will then turn its activities toward a successful completion.

RIP VAN WINKLE GETS PLEASING PRESENTATION

"Rip Van Winkle," presented by the Little Country theater the afternoon and evening of Feb. 24th, and the afternoon of Feb. 25th, brought forth once again Irving's magic tale of the old Dutchman who slept and slept and then slept some more.

Thomas Canniff as the unhappy Rip, and Lucile Thompson as the shrewish Dame Van Winkle brought the quaint figures vividly forth from Irving's pages. Nicholas Vedder, the placid old tavern keeper, the smoke of whose pipe had a language all its own, was skilfully portrayed by Howard Parkinson.

The quaint atmosphere of the piece was delightful and well carried out. The makeup of Paul Smith as Clausen, Rip's friend, was outstanding.

MILLER WAS NOT FIRST TO GET NATION MENTION

FORMER STUDENT BRINGS TO LIGHT MENTION OF FLICKER IN '16

A letter has been received by The Spectrum from a former University of North Dakota student who contradicts the statement that Claudio Miller was the first man from North Dakota to place on an all-American mention.

The gentleman's letter follows:

Heaton, N. D., Feb. 13, 1925.
Editor The Spectrum,
Agricultural College,
Fargo, North Dakota.

Dear Sir:

Our school here receives regularly your valuable contributions — The Spectrum and The Alumni Bulletin. We take a lively interest in both these publications—and are pleased to learn of the powerful athletic strides taken by your school in recent years.

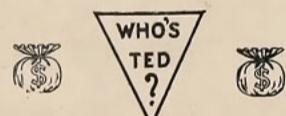

However, my attention has been called to a recent statement in the Alumni Bulletin relative to the placing of your Mr. Miller on the Literary Digest honorable mention list as all-American halfback, and with a statement that no athlete from this state has heretofore been so similarly honored.

In correction of this statement, may I kindly direct your attention to Walter Camp's All-America of 1916, published in a December, 1916, issue of Collier's, in which he gives honorable mention as all-American quarter to Douglas McKay of North Dakota University—certainly as capable a football pilot as this state has seen for years—heavy, a good punter, a passer and dangerous dropkicker from any place on the field and at any angle. In substantiation, consult the score sheet of practically any game played by the university from 1913 to 1916 inclusive.

Yours very truly,

Student Opinion

To the Editor of The Spectrum:

Dear Sir: On Tuesday, March 3, at 5:30 another "bean dinner" will be held at the Y. M. C. A. The subject for discussion will be student government in college. It would seem that college students are both competent and entitled to a voice in the government of the college. Inquiries are being sent out to different colleges to find out the extent to which their students are self-governing. It is a fact that the students of this college have very little self-government. It may be that they are not competent. Personally I think this might be the case. But it would seem rather strange that the students of other colleges should be competent to govern themselves and we should not. I think it is rather desirable that the students should have self-government, to some extent at least, if this government could be made somewhat representative of the students. To accomplish this, the thing to do, I think, would be to disfranchise the girls. Only in this way could the seemingly determining factor of hero worship be sufficiently eliminated to insure us a representative and competent government. With student self-government, college spirit and college tradition would spring more from within the student body itself, and would be a much stronger and more favorable factor in determining the future of the college.

With the co-operation of The Spectrum, then, let us get student opinion clearly expressed that it may become the force it ought to be for the good of the college and of mankind.

Sincerely yours,
EINAR LEIFSON.

throwing contest. Blakely got two more field goals and Newgard got one to complete the field counting of the contest.

Blakely, Arnold and Newgard were the best performers for the Bison, if one is allowed to pick outstanding performers in such a contest. Rumpeltes kept Birkeland well covered and the Cob star was unable to do his best. Bechtel performed in good style as did Thompson, while the pair were in the game. Miller made several short dashes down the court and dribbled through the Cobbers with comparative ease. "Tony" had miserable luck with his shooting but made up for this shortcoming in his brilliant dribbling and defensive work.

Birkeland and Lawrence played the best games for the Cobbers but they were unable to stop the Bison short attempts so good was the passing at times. Boe was unable to hold Blakely in check after the big redhead got hot." Brewster and Ostbye were both off form.

"Store manners" may not be as important as ballroom manners but we think they are. Every store that has become an institution holds to the same doctrine. When you come to this store, every one here becomes your host as truly as though you visited them at their own homes. As a guest you expect courtesy without stiff formality, careful attention to your wants without impudent suggestion, and a pleasant echo of the welcome that greeted your arrival when you leave.

"Prexy" Speaks

Dr. John Lee Coulter discussed the college work before the house appropriations committee at Bismarck on Thursday night. Friday night he discussed the work of the extension department and experiment station before the committee. The appropriation bills for the college and for the University are still in the appropriation committee, but will probably reach the floor of the house today. Undoubtedly both appropriations will be materially reduced.

As a result of the completion in the four stages of the Corps Area rifle matches the North Dakota Bison gunners stand well up in the scoring. In a triple match the Bison defeated Iowa and North Dakota Universities. The Bison scored 3790 to 3766 for North Dakota and 3512 for Iowa.

In the four stages of the corps area match the Bison totaled 7493, which according to word received from Colonel Muller leaves them in second place at the present. Scores that have not been turned in may force the Bison down the list but it is not likely. Minnesota is the school leading "Sarg" Culpeppers shooters.
