Bison in a two game series.

The Bison succeeded in downing the Tigers on their recent southern trip, 26-20. A close victory like this will make both teams fight harder as the Tigers realize they have a chance of downing the Bison and getting revenge for the trimming they took on their home floor.

Knapp to Make Bid

With the Tigers comes Knapp, considered by many N. C. I. followers the most likely candidate for all-conference honors along with Arnold. Arnold succeeded in outscoring the Tiger

Burnett was considered as one of the best guards in conference circles two years ago, but Knapp has overshadowed Burnett's work with his clever playing so far this season. Olson is considered a very good center by the majority of Iowa Conference critics, of which conference the Tigers are also a member.

Greenfield Improves

The battle between Knapp and Arn old for all-conference honors should prove one of the most interesting bat-tles staged on the Bison court for some time.

some time.

Greenfield in his two games against the University has got a late start, but his play in the coming series will go far as to whether he is of all-conference caliber. Greenfield displayed wonderful shooting ability on the coast trip and during the first two games of the South Dakota State series. If Greenfield hits his stride again like he did at the start of the season his bid for a berth on the conference team cannot be overlooked.

Three red headed players on one basketball team is a record that is doubtless unique. At least the Bison quint are certain that no other college team in the United States can boast of three players who have carrot-red hair.

Stick Together

This trio of red heads have played together for three years and each member is a regular at his position. To show their versatility and that the color of their hair is no indicathe color of their hair is no indication as to their ability for any one position on the team, each holds down a different job. Cyril Arnold, captain of the team, is a guard; Harry Blakely holds the center post; Ted Greenfield shines as a forward.

There of course can only be one of them bearing the nickname of "Red" and after their taem and college mates had compared the shades of red represented on the three thatches. Blakely was given the moniker of red represented on the three thatches, Blakely was given the moniker as his hirsute adornment seemed to be a trifle the reddest, if possible.

Another characteristic that the three have in common is scoring ability, as these three are the leading basket shooters of the team. In one game one of the redheads is in form and stars with field goals and free throws but in the next game one of the other sorrel-topped players has his night "on" and finds the center of the hoop consistently. They are not jealous of each other but they do insist that no other player on the team, no common brunette or blond, shall score more baskets than does shall score more baskets than does the particular one of the redheaded trio whose turn it happens to be to lead the team's counters.

BAND SETS RECORD AS JOURNEY FINANCIERS

"The 'U' showed the best losing spirit as far as their band is concerned that I have ever seen there," said "Doc" Putnam on his return from said Doc Futnam on in return from the Forks after the games last week. The Nodak followers gave "Red" an awful "booing" as he left the floor in Saturday's game. We never saw a single Nodak in the series at Grand Forks that we would trade for "Red."

You can't get this term's credits with last term's grade.

Your college diploma should be looked upon, not as a reward, but as sentence to hard labor for life.

None of the students knew that some one had blundered, And all of the whole back row got way less than a hundred.

A MAN'S A FAILURE

When he has no confidence in himself nor his fellow men.

When he values success more than character and self respect.
When he loves his own plans and interest more than humanity.
When his friends like him for what he has more than for what he is.
When he becomes so absorbed in his work that he cannot say that life is greater than work.

When he lets a day go by without making some one happier and more comfortable

When he trys to get ahead in the world by climbing over the shoulders

When he values wealth above health, self-respect, and the good opinion of his fellows.

When he is so burdened by his business that he finds no time for rest and recreation.

When he envies others because they have more ability, talent or wealth

When he does not care what happens to his neighbor or to his friend so long as he is prosperous.

When he is so busy that he has no time for smiles and cheerful words.

DOORS AND MORE DOORS

Is the other door of Old Main a relic of the past, or is it one in common with the fourth on the renowned Ford and its brothers? Indeed it does look like one, or what might have been one once but in the past three years with the fourth on the renowned Ford and its brothers? Indeed it does look like one, or what might have been one once but in the past three years of our residence in these parts never once have we seen door number 2 show signs of relenting in its stubborn defense of its interior. Of course we couldn't find any use for said or its counterpart being free of movement and putting on a hospitable look, but we do think that there is undue wear and tear on the east half of the threshold and stone steps over which some thousand students and as many visitors pass several times a day. And the hinges of that east door will surely give way before their time.

A visitor the other day was tickled to death so to speak with the spectacle of students pouring in and out of the building at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning like unto many flies going through a funnel. 'Tis nothing uncommon to us, however, to see ten fellows go through where two is a crowd, and the survival of the fittest is an old story to us on meeting someone intent on going through said door in the opposite direction at the same time, so maybe we ought to let things go as they are. Old customs and traditions become almost sacred as time passes and probably in due time one door will be enough in all the buildings alike. Science hall is rapidly coming to this stage we note, with Francis hall a close third, so it might be well to score the ones who in a fit of extravagance and thoughtlessness had the state go to the additional expense of fitting our very newest acquisition, Agricultural hall, with double doors, when we have forgotten what more than one acts like.

THE 1926 BISON

THE 1926 BISON

The A. C. always put out a Bison. Sure, we knew that all the time, didn't we, but now, when, and why do you suppose we come by a treasured volume containing therein the things of vital interest to us as students and graduates of our Alma Mater?

It is and has been in the past the privilage and honor of the Junior class of each succeeding year to collect, edit and publish the kind things you are most interested in and been in direct contact with during our stay here, and on them lies the responsibility of making a Bison that will reflect credit on the editors, the class and the institution itself. To do this, of course, as in any and all other things, the hearty co-operation of every one interested and connected with it in any way must be secured. And for some reason or other things don't seem to be going as smoothly as they might. Existing conditions, whatever they may be, seem to indicate the need of a little get-together on the part of the staff and the Junior class as a whole and immediate steps taken for the putting across of what is, should and must be by all means the biggest and best Bison that will have yet represented the North Dakota Agricultural college. Naturally the editor can't do it all, netther can the business manager, nor any other staff member; and it's up to all to turn in and do what can be done in helping the work along. The credit doesn't go directly to anyone in particular, rather to the institution we have the privilege of attending, so let's not be selfish unto our very own selves but talk the thing up and make a go of it. YOU JUNIORS! HOW ABOUT IT?

SPECTRUM 1926 Bison Will Employ Honor Roll Advertising

By BYRON W. HANSON

The advertising in the 1926 Bison will take th eform of an honor roll.

This method of advertising has met with success in the annuals of other institutions. The idea of an honor roll is to place before the students the firms which have made possible the publication of the book. In former years the display type of advertising has not created the intended idea of pains before the student the idea of placing before the students the names of firms which they should patronize.

Three Types Cited

In this institution there seems to be three types of students to which advertising appeals in a different manner. The first type is the student who comes to this college who is not acquainted with any firms of business and who will rely on a directory of advertisers as a guide for his buying. The directory of advertisers is his selective of the college with the college who is not acquainted with any firms of business and with the college who is not acquainted with any firms of business and with the college who is not acquainted with any firms of business and who will rely on a directory of advertisers is his college.

sole guide.

The second type of student will buy at the firms recommended to him by students whom he has come in con-tact with and also by a directory of firms which by their advertising have created in him the desire to buy from firms interested in this institution.

The third type is one who knows the firms which he will patronize before he comes to this college. He is the student who lives here or has been a visitor in the city before.

To the students who do not have an acquaintance with Fargo business firms and to those who rely on the recommendation of other students the Honor Roll forms a suitable directory of firms which carry the line of goods without as much as even finding the backboard.

Two field goals, gathered in by Wild toward the conclusion of play in the second contest were the only field counters that found their way through the hoop for the upstaters, the Bison romping away with a 20-10 victory.

Ted Gets Sensational Shot

With 10 minutes of the play gone in the opening period, Dewey took out his reserves and sent Miller, Newgard and Greenfield into the fray with the Bison leading, 5-3. Viegel negotiated a free throw and brought the score to 5-4. Greenfield dropped two countfound the net for one, the counters all found the net for one, the counters all found the net for one, the counters all found the net for one was made on a high arch pass from Miller which looked like a poor attempt for a double counter, but the play was well timed and Greenfield tipped the ball through the net for the most sensational marker of the game. Busdicker got the fifth free throw of the half for the Nodaks just before the period ended with the Bison leading by a six point margin, 11-5.

Arnold got two long shots shortly after the play in the second stanza had barely started and a short dribble in shot and a free throw by Miller gave the Bison an 18-5 lead with but four minutes of play gone.

Twelve minutes of play gone.

Twelve minutes of play gone.

Twelve minutes of play and elapsed when Wild found the hoop for twe short counters, which brought the score to 18-9. Blakely and Busdicker agreed to disagree and each took a punch at the other and both were ejected. Both were allowed a free throw for their little fracas and Busdicker made his good, while Blakely, shooting during a session of the "boo

Boe Best Nodak
Greenfield and Arnold were again the mainstays of the Bison crew, Arnold playing a fine defensive game and scoring nine of his team's total.
Greenfield scored two field goals, but his play in other departments made his play in other departments made up for whatever he lacked in the scoring end.

Kindred Sees Alice
Alice Dahlen went to Kindred to see her folks over Sunday.

Boe was the best of the Houser crew, his passing and pivoting being exceptional. Boe was the central figure in the offensive end of the game for the Nodaks and his defensive work was also good. Viegel played good ball but seemed unable to locate the hoop with any degree of accuracy. He hoop with any degree of accuracy. He hoop with any degree of accuracy. He kept the Bison forwards working fast in an endeavor to get in for close shots and took the ball much of the shots and took the ball much of the time to launch a Nodak offensive.

Newgard's floor work was as good as any exhibited by the Bison and although he seemed to be having hard luck with his shooting his floor work was just good enough to offset this.

Stars At "U"

Captain Cy Arnold

Blakely and Miller did not seem to hit their stride in the Nodak series. Both went scoreless in the first contest, but Miller found the hoop for one field counter and a free throw in the second contest. Miller's defensive work seemed to run in streaks, at times he exhibited a good defensive game and then he seemed to get lost for a short period.

"Dec" Was There

"Doc" Was There

Blakely, whom it seems cannot command th respect of Nodak rooters went scoreless in both contests. Blake went scoreless in both contests. Blakely did miss several shots only one of which could be termed a "setup." Blakely played a strong floor game and kept many of the Nodak scorers in a position where they were forced to resort to jumping in order to regain possession of the ball. Despite the enjoyment the Nodak rooters got out of "razzing" Blakely for his seemingly noor play, the Bison center was ingly poor play, the Bison center was a much more valuable man in the of-fensive and defensive end of the game than Nodak followers realize.

VALUE OF EDUCAT

ESTABLISHMENT OF SCHOLAR-SHIPS AS MEMORIAL USED AS PROOF

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 10.-Much has been written regarding the value of a college education to the man en-tering business. Discussion, pro and can, has resulted, as so much discussion of a similar nature results, in merely confusing the young man who is confronted with the question as to whether or not it is worth his while to spend four or more years in acquiring a college or university education.

Several Funds Provided

In general the question which such a man asks himself both before and after entering college is, "Will the time and money I am spending here pay a reasonable dividend in dollars and cents?" That the answer to such a question is an unequivocal "Yes." is best illustrated by the attitude which modern business takes toward higher education.

modern business takes toward higher education.

A few months ago the General Electric company decided to create a lasting memorial to Richard H. Rice, former manager of its works at Lynn, Mass. It did so by establishing a scholarship at Stevens Institute of Technology.

Even more recently the same concern has set aside a considerable sum

Technology.

Even more recently the same concern has set aside a considerable sum of money to establish four scholarships at Union college to serve as a memorial to Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, former consulting engineer of the company.

When one of the largest electrical manufacturers in the world believes that there is no better way of honoring the memory of two of its best loved and most prominent engineers than by establishing scholarships bearing their names there can be little doubt that it is the belief of those who govern the policies of that concern that education is worth while.

Further proof of this contention is supplied by the fact that of the 350 to 400 student engineers employed annually by the company practically all are graduate engineers. At the same time a number of students from the commerce and economics schools are employed each year by the company in the accounting department.
