STATE JOLTS BISON HOPES BISON EMBARK ON TRIP WEDNESDAY

BISON OPEN WITH ST. THOMAS THURSDAY EVENING AT ST. PAUL

EIGHT MAKE TRIP

TEAM WILL MAKE EFFORT TO REGAIN FIGHT OF EARLY SEASON

Coach Ad Dewey and eight Bison cagers will leave tomorrow evening on Northern Pacific train No. 8 that leaves Fargo at 10:25 p. m. The men making the trip with Dewey are Captain Cy Arnold, Harry Blakely, Wad "Oscar" Thompson Ted Greenfield George Newgard, Claude Miller, Ben "Dutch" Rumpeltes and Harold Bechtel

Just before noon today Coach Dewey pointed out that his team that will make the southern invasion will not be the same one that made their disappointing appearance on the Bison court Friday and Saturday. The team will not have their games won before they take the floor as appeared to be the case last week.

The Bison must now beat Creighton in both of the contests with the Bluejays to have a chance at the conference flag. In addition they must take all other circuit tilts. The only other possibility of a Bison championship appears in the form of the Bunnies, who meet Creighton on Friday of this week. Should the State super-passing game bring them to victory the complexion of the race will change considerably.

Dewey is not decided as to who will start in the coming games, although the same five that have appeared in the lineup to date seem to have an edge on the positions. They will have to show a changed attitude to stay on court, according to the shrill voiced Bison mentor.

The Bison itineray follows: Thursday, Feb. 5-St. Thomas. Friday, Feb. 6-Des Moines. Saturday, Feb 7-Creighton. Monday, Feb. 9-Midland. Tuesday, Feb. 10-Wesleyan.

SIGMA TAUS GIVE EIRST ALL-COLLEGE FUNCTION

The first Annual All College Dance of the Alpha Sigma Tau fraternity Friday evening following the basketball game with South Dakota State in the dining room of Ceres hall. The attendance was large and all present appeared enthusiastic about the dance. A large number of the faculty attended the party, giving it a more dignified aspect than usual at an all college dance. The music was furnished by Bagrud's five piece orchestra Frappe was served by Jane Canniff and Jane Barton.

WOULD HAVE BEEN COMPELLED TO RETURN TO TROOP THROUGH MISTAKE

By BRUCE RINDLAUB

Joy reigned yesterday in the Military Department of the college when word came from the War Department to the effect that Major Harrell will remain here as Professor of Military Science and Tactics. Through a cleri-cal error it was expected that the Major would be compelled to return to duty with the troops for at least one year. This news comes as a com-plete surprise to the student body, who had almost been resigned to the prospect of not having the Major here to help us win another distinguished

The Major has won his way into the hearts of all the students through his personaity and efficient management of the Military Department. Previous to his taking charge of the department the military end of the A. C. had been much neglected. Students took little interest in the study and did as little work as they were able.

BASKETS

South Dakota track fans will be plaesed to learn that the Dakota relays committee is angling to secure Paavo Nurmi, otherwise known as the Flying Finn, who has smashed over a dozen indoor records since coming to the United States at the beginning of the year.

Nurmi won three first places in the Olympics held at Paris last summer, and was the running marvel of the world wide sports.

Runners who compete with him but one exception thus far have inhaled his sawdust, and his only loss came when he allowed a countryman a 100 yard lead in a 2,000 yard race, and finished a pace behind the winner. If he can be secured to run at the relays, the status of this newly organized meet will be greatly magni-

ROSTER

Wriggling, bright colored worms contained in a bottle of water were recently received at the North Dakota Agricultural college. Living specimens of insects are often sent to the college for examination, but this is the first time worms have been re-ceived, according to Dr. R. L. Webster, entomologist on the station and extension staffs.

The specimens were found in a water tank for cattle and were sent in by A. R. Sheldon of McLean county, North Dakota, who thought their presence might be injurious to stock. Dr. A. F. Shalk, head of the veterinary department at the college, stated that he knew of no records of injury to live stock from the presence. jury to live stock from the presence of these insects in water.

Some of these worms were found frozen in the ice in the tank, Mr. Sheldon wrote. A block of ice containing several specimens were thawed out by placing it in water and the insects therein quickly recovered. The insects are larvae, or grubs of small mideste which greatly recovered. of small midgets, which greatly re-semble mosquitoes in appearance.

"The present flies are sometimes observed in immense swarms dancing in the air, especially in the fall." Mr. Webster explains. "Very likely the water tank became infested with the larvae last fall. Technically the insect is known as Chironomus."

"The larva itself is slender, threefourths inch long, brilliant red in color and is provided with gills by means of which it is able to live in water.
They are very active, continually writhing and twisting in the water. In New York state these larvae serve as food for fish and have often been found in the stomachs of brook trout."

This in itself is more than the average college schedule and yet the Bison are but little past the halfway mark with 14 contests ahead of them.

In the contest on Friday the Bison shot in poor form but succeeded in making enough in their bombardment of the white board to boost heir total above that of the State crew. The only redeeming features in the contest were the defensive play of the Bison as a whole with Blakely and Captain Cy Arnold doing the heavy work and with Blakely leading the scoring with seven field goals.

Easy Shots Missed

Easy Shots Missed

Time after time the Bison worked the ball down the court for "gift" shots under the basket, only to toss the ball in a wild fashion and miss. The Bison must have had over 100 shots the first night and but 10 of them were good. It appears as if Dewey's team has reverted to mid-December form or else the heavy schedule has worn them of a point where they are stale.

In contrast to last week's play.

schedule has worn them of a point where they are stale.

In contrast to last week's play, Coach Karl Erickson of Jamestown college comes forth with some interesting dope. He says that in the first contest at Jamestown when the Bison ran roughshod to a 53 to 28 win over the Jimmies that 83 per cent of their tries at the basket.

In the contest Saturday Dewey started a revised lineup with Thompson at Miller's watch post. The combination did not appear to be a happy one and State ran the score to 11 to 3 before Miller was rushed into the game. Miller's entrance improved the Bison play and at half time the score stood 14 to 3 for State.

When the Bison returned to start the final 20 minutes they appeared to be a different team. With the opening whistle they fought State to a standstill and then forced them to take the defensive. With eight minutes to go the score stood 18 to 13 for tSate. Baskets by Arnold and Greenfield brought the total to 18 to utes to go the score stood 18 to 13 for tSate. Baskets by Arnold and Greenfield brought the total to 18 to 17 with but three minutes to go.

In the closing of play every man on the Bison team had an opportunity to win the game with an easy shot but due to carelessness and the manner in which State forced the game the shots were missed. Greenfield was high point man of the contest with 10 ponits.

YOUR ROOMMATE

Environment plays an important part in the actions of individuals The above should be seriously considered when a student chooses to cast his lot with another student, or students, as a roommate. The old saying that "birds of a feather, flock together," often becomes noticeable in the tendency of effecting a balancing process between roommates of opposite natures, whether it be in the right or in the wrong direction. Let us take for eample, the combining of an individual of a studious nature and one 'given to slovenly practices so far as industry is concerned. Such a pairing often results in either an improvement in the habits of the latter, or in a destruction of the good practices of the former. Such an occurrence, however, is not always true; in general the two men will go along their separate paths, but with no benefit for the student who is headed in the right direction. For the individual who requires constant application to his work in order to master it, much care must be employed in his selection of the one who is to be in the closest contact with him during the schoolmonths.

He should, in the first place, choose a man who will present an industrial attitude that will spur him on to more consistent endeavor-a man who can be of assistance to him in clearing up points in his work that present difficulty. A man who has already covered the subjects which he must take is preferable in this respect; one who can advise upon the most efficient methods for mastering the fundamentals. He should be an individual who is interested in his work, optimistic, and given no encouraging the attempts of others.

The Agricultural College opened the intercollegiate debate saeson last night in a brilliant stand against the University of West Virginia. The debate was a non-decision affair on the question of giving Congress the power of overriding the decisions of the Supreme Court by a two-thirds majority vote, as effected the acts of congress. It was one of the best battles of words that has been had at the Little Country theater for some time.

All Lawyers

The West Virginia team was composed of law students, two of which are members of Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary fraternity and one of th young men has been in college debates for three years. The team members were Hugo Blumenberg, Robert Donley and Harry Snyder. Mr. Blumenberg is at the present time president of the West Virginia chapter of Delta Sigma Rho, a national forensic society.

Agricultural college The Agricultural college team which upheld the negative side of the question in a very excellent manner was composed of Clair Southam, Jams Parkinson and Lewllyn Howell. Howell, who is at present the Commissioner of Public Speaking, is in his third year of debate, and his work last night was very good He was able to place many stumbling blocks in the way of the opposing team and his examples and analogies were a mighty factor in driving home the mighty factor in driving home the negative contentions.

The debate teams along with the other college debaters, were entertained before the debate at a turkey dinner given in the Log Cabin.
