This is a design for a Heritage and Visitor Center for the city of Fargo, North Dakota. The site utilized is currently a parking lot near the Fargo public library and Fargo Civic Center. The overall design and material chosen for this project were meant to create a warm and inviting atmosphere for all visitors. People visiting the area will be able to make reservations and get information from the reception's visitor hub. There are multiple gallery and exhibit spaces for people to learn about the area's local cultural heritage. The exhibits can be changed throughout the year to maintain interest and use among the locals. The program also includes a gift shop, two classrooms, a multi-use event space and an outdoor exhibit space.
