

APR 5 '56

BIMONTHLY BULLETIN

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH
DAKOTA AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

of the
NORTH DAKOTA AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

March -- April 1956

Vol. XVIII

No. 4

Fargo, N. D.

Table of Contents

SUGAR BEET ROOT MAGGOT.....	115
One Year's Trials Show That Chemical Control Is Feasible in Handling This Hazard to Important Red River Valley Cash Crop.
By W. L. Gojmerac and J. A. Callenbach
PARAKERATOSIS	121
This Serious Swine Disease Is Frequently Being Reported in North Dakota; Can be Exceedingly Costly Hazard for the Hog Producer.
By I. A. Schipper and W. E. Dinusson
GRASSED WATERWAYS	124
At Dickinson Experiment Station Waterways Stop Gullyng and Produce Valuable Hay Crop.
By T. J. Conlon, R. J. Douglas and W. C. Whitman
SOIL—FULCRUM OF AGRICULTURE.....	125
Plants, Livestock and Man—They All Depend Ultimately Upon a Well-Fed, Well-watered, Well-tilled Soil.
By H. L. Walster
FUNGICIDAL RUST CONTROL.....	127
Continued Trials, in Greenhouse, Experimental Plots and on Farms, Show That Chemicals May Have Considerable Value in Controlling Stem Rust in Cereal Grains.
By W. E. Brentzel
ROUGHAGE TRIALS	133
Corn Is Dependable, Yields the Most Palatable Roughage, and Does a Job in Controlling Weeds.
By T. J. Conlon and R. J. Douglas
PLANT IDENTIFICATION	136
In Nearly Half Century at This Station, Veteran Botanist Has Identified Some 15,000 Specimens Sent or Brought to Him by Inquirers.
By O. A. Stevens
LIVESTOCK NUMBERS RISE.....	141
Cattle, Swine, Sheep, Turkey Numbers Showing Increase on North Dakota Farms, Report Federal Agricultural Statisticians.
By C. J. Heltemes, L. W. Orvold and B. B. Barr
BRANCH STATIONS	143
Summary of 1955 Activities at Six Branch Stations.
NORTH DAKOTA PRICES	146
Farm Prices First Two Months of 1956 Some Stronger; Wheat Prices on Down Trend for More Than Year.
By Perry V. Hemphill

COVER PICTURE—The Western Meadowlark, North Dakota's "official" state bird, is pictured on our cover. Allan Brooks painted the picture, reproduced courtesy of the National Audubon Society. We obtained the plates for this picture from Ben Meier, Secretary of State, who has published an interesting folder depicting North Dakota's various official emblems.