

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

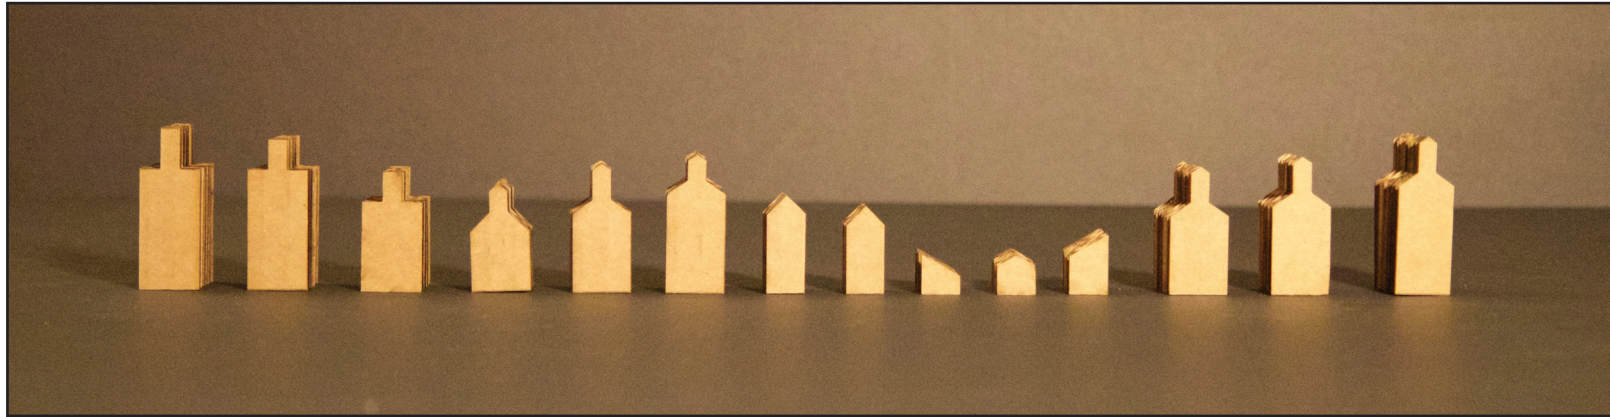

COMPARE: estimate, measure, or note the similarity or dissimilarity between(Google). There is common ground between the expectation and the experience of architecture. A model does not try to be an inhabitable piece of architecture, but is an architectural expression. It encapsulates the views and ideas surrounding a piece of architecture from the creator's perspective at small scale.

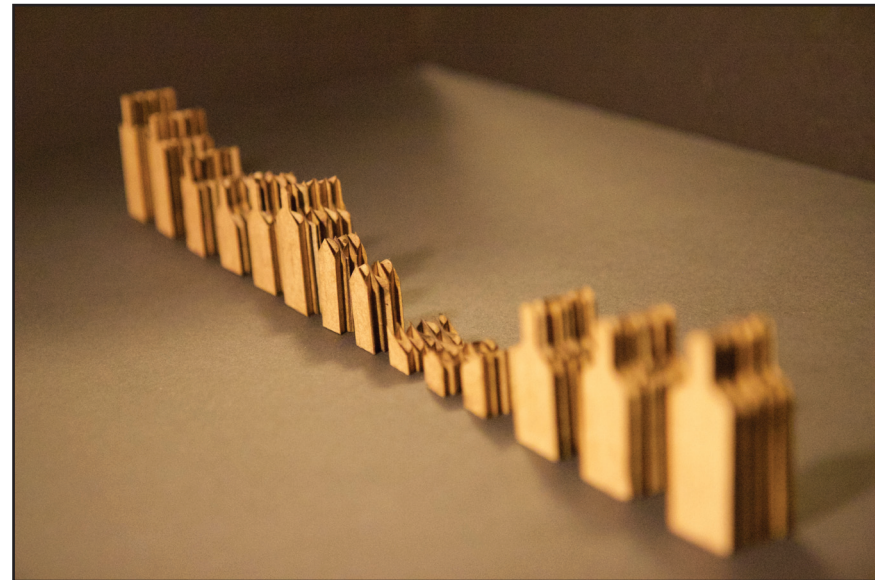

In drawing the outlines to laser cut, I was influenced by the proportions Lisa Mahar-Keplinger drew in her book Grain Elevators (Bottom scanned images) and images from the internet of existing grain elevators. My goal was to create a group of small models that could be arranged into groupings of existing main elevators and their secondary buildings.

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

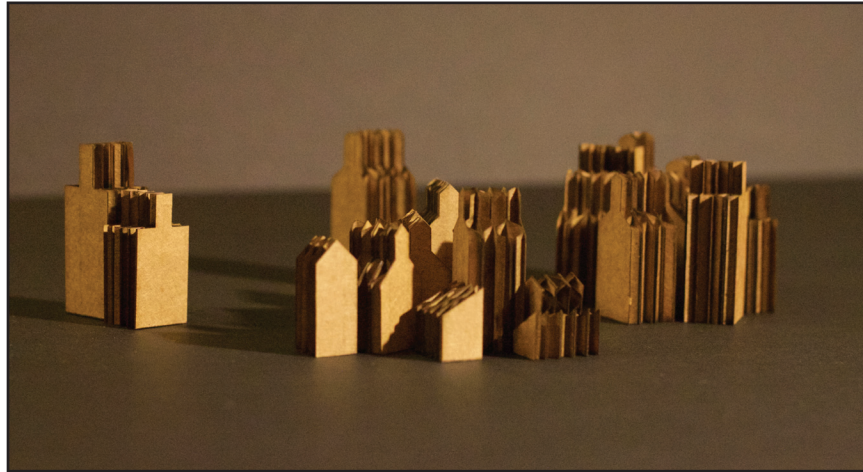

I created 30 small models from 14 profiles (two or three of each profile).
(Second photo by Edward Pavek)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

And arranged them according to the images I had collected of existing grain elevators.
(Second photo by Edward Pavék)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

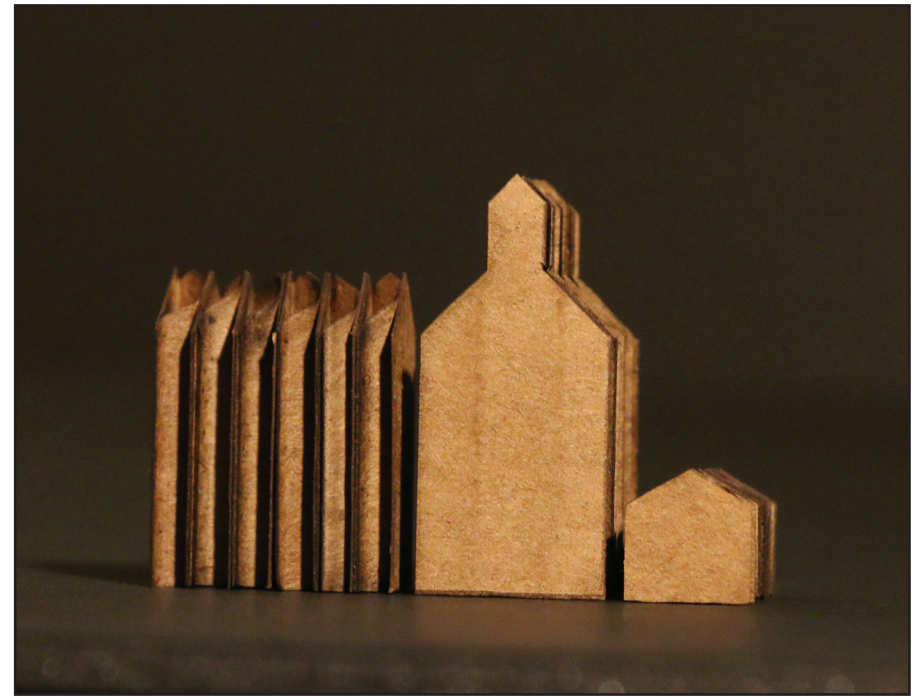

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Epping, North Dakota
(Top left image snipped from Google Maps; bottom left from the City of Epping)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

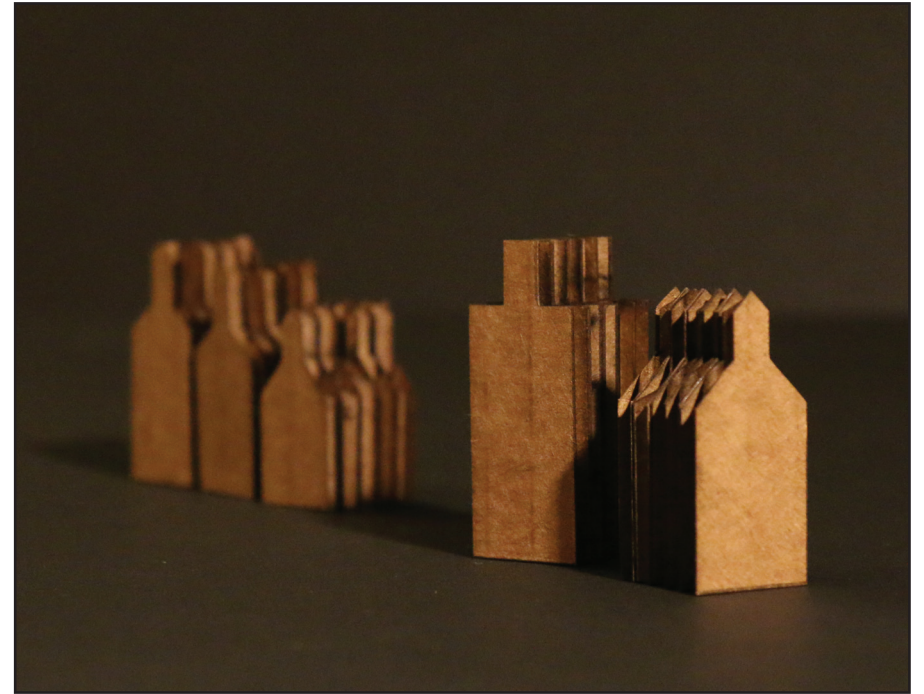

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Wildrose, North Dakota
(Google photo by dloran01)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Williston, North Dakota
(Google photo by dloran01)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Williston, North Dakota
(Image snipped from Google Maps)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

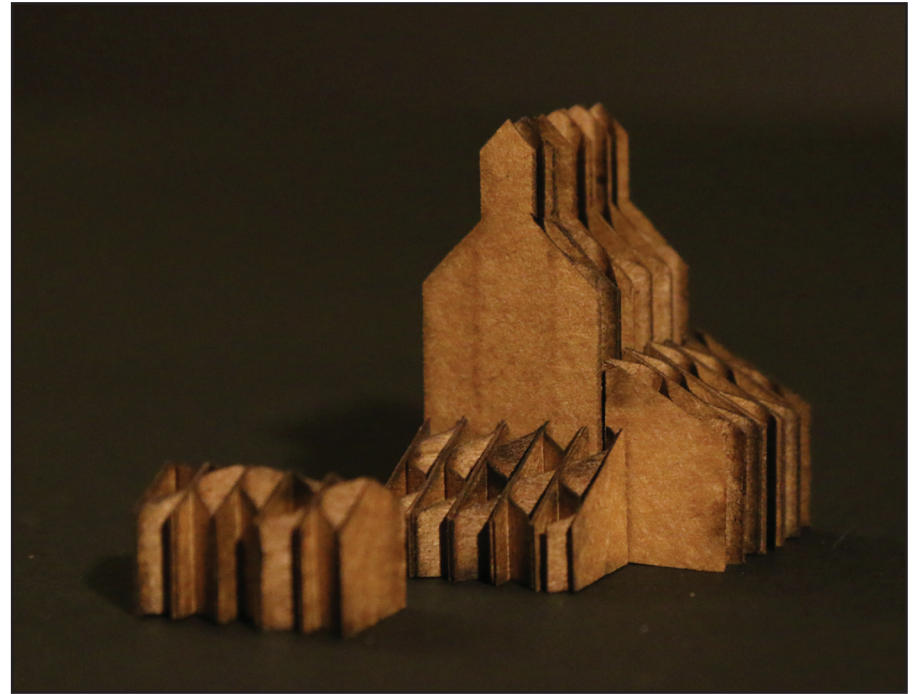

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Stanley, North Dakota
(Google photo by dloran01)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

Tioga, North Dakota
(Google photo by dloran01)

Grain Elevator Model Comparison

ARCH 771 - Week 14
Crystal Rinkenberger

White Earth Elevator, North Dakota
(Google photo by NDakota)