Resorts in the alpine climate tend to only have one season. This is because many people are misconception resorts as a winter-only location. However, nowadays, resorts are designed to showcase the diversity of the mountain range and bring people up year-round.

Lolo Peak Resort is an all-season resort on the West side of the Bitterroot Mountain Range. The activities that take place here are diverse and include winter and summer sports and activities. During the winter season, activities include skiing, snowboarding, and snowshoeing. For the summer season, activities include hiking, mountain biking, and equestrian events.
