Another feature of the International show tomorrow night will be "Delores Christensen and her High Schooled Horses". In her act Chiquita, a high-schooled and dancing horse, Mighty Mouse, a trained pony and a trick dog will perform.

Besides training animals, Delores also does trick and fancy rope spinning and trick riding. Miss Christensen is from Worthington, Minn. and has performed at rodeos and horse shows in the northwest. During the past year she has participated in shows at Minnesota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Missouri, Wyoming and the Dakotas.

Student Union Board Gives Contest Results

Robert Danelstad, Arch-Jr, won the first prize of $25 for designing a motif for the north wall near the entrance of the Student Union. The contest was sponsored by the Memorial Student Union board of directors.

Other winning designs were submitted by Robert Wright, ArchE-Jr, and Henry DuBe, Arch-Jr. They received $15 and $10 respectively.

Danelstad's motif is a copper design mounted on a circular back. Symbols representing the various schools on campus make up the design.

The Student Union board of directors emphasizes that Danelstad's design may not be used for the motif relief although it was considered to be the best entry in the contest. Judges for the competition were John Kurke, Leness Lakiberta, Francis Kapuschinski and the board of directors.

Selective Service Group Announces Change In Rules

Selective Service officials have cancelled the rule requiring male students eligible for induction into the armed forces to carry at least 16 credit-hours per quarter or the equivalent thereof if they are to be considered full-time students.

According to information received from Nation SS Headquarters, "a student may be considered to be taking a full-time course of instruction provided he will complete the college course he is taking, in the time required to complete such a course under normal conditions.

In other words, a student taking a straight arts course would normally complete that course in four school years; therefore, if the student in question is going to receive a degree at the end of four school years, it should be considered that he is taking a full-time course of instruction."

In the year 1950 to 1951 the "academic year" considered was the school's "academic year." This has been changed. Selective Service now considers "academic year" as being the student's "academic year." Such a year could begin in September, December, January, March, or June. In any event the student must graduate in approximately 45 months from his original date of matriculation.

At the end of a student's "academic year" the Office of Admissions and Records issues a SSS Form No. 109 to his local board. This certifies that the student was or was not a full-time student and gives class standing and other pertinent data.

"The student should diligently try to fulfill the requirements for a SSS Form 109 to the effect that he can graduate within the normal time," states Mel Miller of the office of Admissions and Records. "It is highly unlikely that deferment will be granted beyond such period."

Author Of AC Freshman English Text To Speak At Convocation Next Friday

A name from a freshman English text will come to life for AC students next Friday when Carey McWilliams, emigrant sociologist, author, and lecturer, speaks at a 9:40 convocation in Festival Hall.

Author of "In the Middle of the Middle Class," which this year's freshmen read in English 101, the noted leader in the fight for better race relationships will evaluate various minority groups when he analyzes "America's Problem" at convocation.

Writing of "Prejudice," one of Mr. McWilliams' ten books, Bernard de Voto said: "This is a shocking, an appalling book—and a public service of inestimable value." As former Commissioner of Immigration and Housing for the state of California, twice awarded Guggenheim fellowships to carry on his work, Mr. M. Williams has the background to shock and serve with facts.

His shorter writings include contributions to the Atlantic, Harper's, North American Review, Staurday Review of Literature, and New Republic, besides his work as contrib-

NDAC Publications Need Larger Staffs For Better Journalism Says Norris

Students now working on campus publications are doing a good job, but the publications suffer from too little participation, W. W. Norris told journalism students here last week in discussing problems of the campus press before his class in Journalism 201.

"The Spectrum alone should get about 200 man-hours a week under our conditions to put out a good 8-page paper, and the staff is not nearly large enough now to spend that amount of time," he said.

Norris illustrated his point by analyzing the Feb. 15 issue of the Spectrum and by using time standards set by the class in writing and copyediting news stories.

"With the present-sized Spectrum staff, little true reporting is possible," he said. The editor is forced to fall back upon "hand-outs"—publicity written up and submitted for publication—"and this is often written on the backs of old envelopes and has to be re-written."

Copyreading, proofreading, library filing, and staff meetings are also slighted when the paper operates with a skeleton staff, he said.

Norris also pointed out that the student publications are the only student activity operated as a regular, producing business, and they offer a wide variety of experience in writing, executive management, advertising, and learning about a community and human nature.

"Operations of the Bison and Spectrum combined amount to $25,000 a year, and they operate in the black most of the time. That's not playing with marbles," he added.

In his detailed analysis of one Spectrum issue, Norris showed that it contained approximately 10,000 words, 20 illustrations, 40 headlines and 28 advertisements. "Gathering and writing the news is the largest item in Spectrum production and should get about 100 hours an issue," he said.

The editor must have a surplus if he is going to have any chance for selection of the most interesting stories. It takes at least one hour to gather the news and write up the material for every 100 words that appear in the paper," Norris stated.

Eighteen hours were spent on the photographs. The time was spent taking, developing, selecting, scaling and writing of captions. The two syndicated cartoons, received in mat form, were taken to the Western Newspaper Union where stereotype plates were poured.

There were 40 headlines, and "these easily take five minutes per headline," Mr. Norris said, "thus requiring three hours."

News selection is responsibility of the editor. He must read critically the 10,000 words, revising if necessary, to make a good selection. This task requires four hours, he said.

The editor, "has to know what is going on and plan advanced coverage," Mr. Norris said. For example before Homecoming week many stories, features and statistics covering the event are prepared. Such advance planning requires three hours a week.

Copyreading is an important job, Mr. Norris said, and it requires 12 hours per issue. The copyreader reads critically, looking for mistakes.

The task of make-up requires four hours, he said. The editor decides where the items should appear. He may want them on page one or on the sports page, and it is up to him to make this decision.

After the printer has set the paper, a proofreader checks for printer's mistakes. This task requires eight hours, Mr. Norris said. Running errands requires four hours. Here necessary contacts are made with the printer and engraver.

"It is important to have a library file," Mr. Norris said, "and this requires four hours." Information is written on file cards and filed for future reference. Information is recorded about individuals, organizations, and special subjects.

Staff meetings require six hours each issue, Mr. Norris said. The time is spent in staff discussions, breaking in new reporters, and meeting callers at the office.

An average of one hour is spent on each advertisement. There were 28 advertisements in the issue. The time is spent soliciting, writing and recording payments for the advertisements.

"We have a rather simple circulation procedure here," Mr. Norris said. The papers are merely placed in the various buildings, but approximately 560 papers are mailed weekly, and this requires eight hours.

"This adds up to 204 hours. I don't say that we are spending that much time now," Mr. Norris said, "but the paper could be improved with more students working on it."

Students in top jobs on major publications here receive a salary, plus a bonus when the paper shows a profit. "But I imagine this would not amount to more than about 10 cents an hour now," he said.

In reply to questions concerning future journalism courses, Norris explained that the four quarters of journalism now listed in the catalogue will be taught if enough students are interested. Plans are also under way to give a one-quarter course with credit in which students will produce for the Spectrum.

Education Majors Do Student Teaching; 24 To Graduate In June, Says Iverson

Some 31 students majoring in the field of general education at NDAC are doing their student teaching and methods observation this school year, according to Dr. P. J. Iverson, head of the NDAC department of education and psychology.

Preparation at NDAC for teaching in high school includes four weeks of supervised student teaching in the Fargo city schools and two weeks of observation in schools over the state. In observation work, students learn such things as keeping school reports, handling textbook and library services, accounting for school money, arranging noon lunches and managing custodial care of buildings.

"Above all, students must learn how to live in a small community and how to participate in its activities," points out Dr. Iverson.

North Dakota students do observation work at Mandan, Mo-

hall, New Rockford, Fessenden, Carrington, Bowden, Hillsboro, Wahpeton, Tower City and Gardner. Students from Minnesota do observation at Hawley, Breckenridge, Fergus Falls, Hopkins, International Falls and Grand Rapids.

Of the 31 NDAC senior students currently doing supervised teaching, 24 will definitely graduate in June and the rest will get degrees at the end of the summer or fall quarter, said Dr. Iverson. Immediate placement is certain because of the current teacher shortage.

"The most pressing need is for teachers of the physical and biological sciences," Dr. Iverson explained. "Because of the higher salaries which industries offer, competition is very keen for persons trained in these fields."

The current crop of new teachers from NDAC includes 5 mathematics majors, 5 English majors, 10 social science majors, 6 physical education majors (including two women), and five composite science majors who have training in both physical and biological sciences.

Senior students in general education who are majoring in mathematics include Roger Backen of Harvey, Harris Tollefson of Milton and Edward Barrie, Donald Knott and Marion Paris, all of Fargo.

Senior English majors at NDAC are Joan Hauge of Leith and Mary Broderick, Catherine Stoke, Phyllis Gorder and Orilla McGill, all of Fargo.

Those preparing to teach the social sciences are Norris Johnson of Hawley, Minn., Maurice Knutson of Alamo, Edwin Loveland of Wilton, Donal Nudell of Buffalo, Don Sheldon of Wheatland, Beverly Anderson of Kindred, and Albert Anderson, Hilmer Brehmer, Marlo Hagen and Gale Smith, all of Fargo.

Seniors majoring in physical education teaching are Kathryn Kloster of Sharon, Donald Musch of Beach, Elinor Carlson of Oserly, and Robert Fisher, Domenic Gentile and Robert Leck, all of Fargo.

Composite science majors in the senior year of general education are Milton Anderson of Willmar, Minn., Dean Morford of Kempton, Robert Zorich of Wakefield, Mich., and Jean Davis and Robert Granum both of Fargo.

Dr. Fevold Speaks On "Cross For Today"

The Lutheran Student Association marks the first meeting during Lent next Sunday evening with Dr. Eugene Fevold speaking on, "The Cross is for Today". The meeting will be held at the LSA center at 5:30.

"During Lent Christians contemplate with deep reverence the meaning of the Cross. We are invited to meditate upon the sufferings of Jesus Christ as He carried out the Heavenly Father's will on calvary," Dr. Fevold states. "But the Christian must not simply live in the past. The Cross is also deeply meaningful for this confused and materialistic age. The Cross is relevant for today."

Dr. Fevold is a graduate of St. Olaf College and received his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Chicago. His theological work was taken at Luther Seminary, St. Paul. Since 1947 he has taught at Concordia College, while serving Faith Lutheran Church, West Fargo. The termination of a church building program there releases him for a full teaching ministry at Concordia, beginning next fall.

The annual meeting of the Lutheran Student Association will be held from 7:30 to 8 March 2 at which time election of officers will take place.

Former Student Gives Eyewitness Account Of English King's Funeral

by W. J. Klundt

(Editor's note: Wally Klundt, a North Dakotan now in England, sent the following eyewitness account of the late king's funeral. Klundt went to England last fall where he is studying under a Fulbright scholarship at the English cathedral city of Exeter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klundt of New Salem and a 1951 NDAC graduate.)

George VI was dead. On the day of the funeral, all Britons who couldn't attend the services or who didn't have television sets, stood with bowed heads for two minutes. In the heart of London, traffic came to a standstill at 2 p. m. Factory workers, students and farmers dropped their work as they paid their last respects.

For days since the news first shocked the nation, plans for the funeral had been methodically carried out. Clothing stores featured black—black dresses, suits, ties and shoes. Other establishments decked their windows in black or royal purple. The king's picture, embellished with a silk bow or velvet background, appeared in nearly every window.

Along the procession route, people began to line up at 4 a. m. They came with chairs and stools, blankets and raincoats and they waited. Three hours before the procession started, the streets about Marble Arch and Edgware Road were crammed with people. From windows, balconies and roof tops, they watched and waited.

Soldiers stood shoulder to shoulder guarding the three-mile route. Immediately behind them, policemen from all of Britain's cities were stationed at regular intervals. It was a typical wintry London day—cold, damp and hazy with the sun obscured intermittently by fast moving clouds.

At mid-morning, the coffin was taken from Westminster and the mile-long procession started to Paddington railway station. A detachment of the royal horse guards led, followed by units of the cavalry, infantry, marine and naval regiments. The men marched slowly and rhythmically and sand spread along the pavement enhanced the staccato of their steps.

In the background, the booming salutes of Hyde Park cannon could be heard every minute. Big Ben tolled 56 times, also at minute intervals. Ten bands played Chopin's Dead March over and over with the haunting music blending perfectly with the slow march.

The gun carriage bearing the coffin was drawn by 140 navy men. The king's crown, orb and sceptre and a few flowers rested on the coffin which was draped with the royal standard. A red coach carrying the queen and queen mother followed. Behind it came rulers of European nations besides representatives of countries around the globe.

Regiments of the Scots' guards with tall bearskin caps marched with rifles pointed to the ground. Interspersed throughout the procession were horse guards in scarlet uniforms and tasseled gold helmets.

As the procession passed, the soldiers guarding the route bowed their head and presented arms to the new queen. There were few tears among the onlookers—only silence and the occasional snap of a camera shutter.

The king whom Britons called "a monarch beyond reproach" was buried in St. George's chapel at Windsor. In every city and town, the Union Jack flew at half mast. But at Windsor, the royal standard of the new queen flew high at the top.

A Georgian age had ended. A new Elizabethan age had begun.

ROTC Students Go To Fort Benning

All army ROTC students attending the infantry summer camp this summer are scheduled to go to the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, according to word received this week by Lt. Col. Neal W. Lovsnes, Professor of Military Science and Tactics.

The Infantry cadets will arrive at Fort Benning for the six-week summer camp on June 21 and are scheduled to depart on August 1. Fort Benning, long a traditional army post, has housed the Infantry School since its inception in 1918.

'1848' Exhibit Now At NDAC Library

"1848", an exhibition prepared by the editors of Life magazine in their series of exhibitions on the history of Western culture, is now on display at the library. The exhibition consists of 24 panels.

"1848" depicts that year of the 19th century which some historians have called "the turning point of history at which history didn't turn." Revolutionary crises erupted in many European countries in 1848. The display attempts to describe the events which culminated in 1848.

The exhibition is divided into five sections: England and Industrialism; France; Austria; Italy; and Germany. The title panel is a reproduction in color of Delacroix's "Liberty Leading the People" and is followed by a portrait of Prince Metternich and a painting of the diplomats at the Congress of Vienna.

Reproductions of paintings, drawings, woodcuts, lithographs, cartoons and maps are included. The last panel contains a cartoon from "Punch" of that year and a painting of New York City's Battery as it was when emigres landed there after 1848.

Disease In The Breeze . . . Student Tells Of Siege With Measles

by Ken Ward

Ah, yes! There I was, hunched over my drawing board last week-end doing an assignment for January 10. I thought Brother Hansen, our house manager at AGR, was leaning rather heavily on the coal shovel that evening as I shed my sweater and went back to work. Little did I know . . . , but a few minutes later as the weather seemed to approach the tropical, I began to wise up and one glance in the mirror convinced me that I had the disease; measles, you know.

The path of a measles patient to recovery is quite standard from the moment one decides he is among the stricken until he comes back to school. A call to the Health Center is the first step and Myrt convinced me that I had all the symptoms; slight sore throat and cold, a fever and of course the spots—fire engine red and thick as pledges on skip night.

When the diagnosis was complete a few minutes later in the Health Center, Miss Johnson told me I was spending the night right there. I politely refused, but after being threatened, I surrendered, and doffed my cords for a pair of Health Center pajamas, size 52½, standard equipment in the men's ward.

Seems that the city of Fargo, NDAC and other colleges in the city alike have no place for people who contract measles, chicken pox and the like, so Myrt immediately requested that I leave town. First she asked me to spend the night, then in the same breath to leave town, but I've learned not to argue with the fair sex when at a disadvantage, so I called the folks and told them they'd have to put up with the big lug for a few days while he got rid of his spots. It didn't seem to surprise them, because up until last week, I had been an exceptionally healthy specimen and had not contracted measles, mumps, and smallpox like the rest of the diaper set when I was young. In short, I was ripe for the disease, especially after we elected new officers at the AGR house the beginning of that week, and touched off a gala few nights in the hinterlands of Fargo-Moorhead.

The next morning, we began to make plans for hitting the road. Dick Strand, another student of Old State from Osnabrock had come down with IT one day before myself, and we left for home together. When confined as we were, one really appreciates friends, roommates and fraternity brothers who will gather up books, clothes, and fill the car with gas when it would be against all of Myrt's rules to go back to the house and contact normal human beings.

Heading the list of musts for the trip home was sunglasses, the distinguishing feature of a measles patient in the sunshine. The trip home was uneventful, which was lucky for us, since we were about as companionable then as a pair of skunks upwind, and spotted ones at that.

Three days of rest were welcome, as was the chance to complete assignments due one month ago. Getting admitted to school again is simple. The doctor looks, and if he sees no spots in front of his eyes, you're back in school; another of the 20 measles patients to recover so far from the disease on this campus.

Strangely enough, the doctors don't seem to worry about damage to the eyes with the type of measles that is rampant on the campus at present. The usual duration of the spots and sickness is five days. Evidently a milder form measles has come into vogue. Every ten days they break out again, and there are many kinds of measles, so don't be grim if you have to go back to school after five days; you may get them again and again and . . . again.

All right . . all right! My cigarettes are in my coat pocket.

Adventures of Olaf... Father, Son Make Tour Of AC Campus

by Jerry Frederickson

(Father and Son approach Campus)

Pa: Well, it hasn't changed much son. Looks just like it did 20 years ago.

Olaf: Probably never will change either Pa, if the solons here have their way.

Pa: What's that son?

Olaf: I said expecting to see a change here is like expecting to see teeth in a chicken's mouth.

Pa: Why Son, you sound cynical.

Olaf: Well, it's about time somebody was . . .

Pa: What's that building over there?

Olaf: That's Ceres Hall.

Pa: Is that where they had the U series?

Olaf: Oh no, Ceres has nothing to do with the Series.

Pa: Why do they call it Ceres then?

Olaf: Ask me something I know, Pa.

Pa: Who lives there?

Olaf: Frustrated women who voted the football team the men they would most like to have play into their hands.

Pa: Too bad innocent people have to suffer.

Olaf: Times are rough all over.

Pa: What's that new looking building?

Olaf: The health center.

Pa: Who do they help?

Olaf: I said health, not help. Nobody helps anybody there.

Pa: Do you ever go there?

Olaf: Not any more, remember I told you they hand out nose drops and pills for everything. Well I was over there the other day and they said I was suffering from intentional flu. So I had to have my girl friend write an excuse for me. You met Lena, didn't you, Pa? Well, anyway they wouldn't honor the excuse. Imagine that. I have it right here in my pocket. Want to read it Pa?

(Pa reads)—Dear Teecha-Olaf wasn't in school yesterday not because he don't want to come, but the going was so tuff he couldn't get to went. Signed, Lena.

Pa: Good Lord Olaf, does this girl go to school here?

Olaf: I know she isn't an intellectual Pa, but she is virtuous.

Pa: But where does she get them there grammar?

Olaf: She was born that way.

Pa: That's Festival hall isn't it?

Olaf: That's right Pa.

Pa: I suppose it is just as stuffy as ever.

Olaf: Yes they haven't improved the ventilation any even though there is plenty of hot air available.

Pa: Say that's a new building over there, isn't it?

Olaf: Let's go over, that's the library.

Pa: There doesn't seem to be much activity here.

Olaf: No there isn't. Everyone is in class all day.

Pa: What about that $20.00 incidental fee you were telling me about?

Olaf: We need a Sherlock Holmes here . . Besides, anyone who asks questions is under immediate suspicion. I wouldn't dare—

Pa: I must write my friends in the legislature about this.

Olaf: Better than that, send Kefauver.

Pa: That is a good idea. You can't tell what he might turn up.

NDU (Pardon The Slang) Enrollment Drops As Fellows Check In Local Hotel

by Ken Ketchner

The Red River runs north, and the big Safari leaving the banana belt today will follow it all the way to Grand Forks, home of the North Dakota 'University Sewers! The expedition of four or five hundred students is being led by a group of undermanned, injured, but spirited group of basketball players whose theme and thoughts are: "On Bison!" Big Chief Bogan has probably been trying to drill into his black boys heads, the words to "Fight on Sioux."

No matter who wins, we know the games will be played hard, fast, and maybe a little rough in spots, but for a change most of us will not have to watch them over television at the Riveria.

There are a few interesting stories going around now that the first half of the 1952 series are completed. First of all, because of a change in the seating arrangement in the Fieldhouse, the two biggest crowds ever to watch the Bison and the Sioux tangle on the BB court were cramed into the stands on Friday and Saturday.

After the crowd moved from the surroundings afforded at the fieldhouse, quite a number of them moved into other spots. One place in particular was so crowded that they were dancing in shifts. Harv (ugh, name sounds familiar) Burkholder ambled into one spot wearing his form fitting, pointed stocking cap. One thing about this Burkholder, he never takes a drink, you have to hand it to him.

Last fall there was quite some talk going back and forth in print about which school had the largest enrollment. Finally we of the AC had to concede that the NoDucks did turn up with the greater number of students.

After last weekend maybe someone should recheck the figures—quite a few fellows checked in at the Gardner Hotel and reported that they did not attend NDU. For the records, only NDU girls were supposed to stay there. Maybe Harv Jacobson can enlighten you on that subject, he made reference to "The Gardner Affair" in last week's Spectrum.

Speaking of Mr. Bystander Jake, in his guest column last week he also expounded considerably on the number of firsts for the U. He mentioned the fact that they instituted and adopted a new one last fall. Just how effective is your new student government mr jako? It seems that we've been hearing about your infamous school. If memory serves me correctly, the "Nickel" disappeared from under your noses. Don't be so busy sawing wood that you haven't time to sharpen the saw—Bobo!

For those of you who are interested, the sharp odor which greeted you as you left the Fieldhouse Saturday night might have been a post-mortem of the just completed basketball game, and the refereeing job done at the game. And then again it might have been just a strong west wind.

Louie Bogan's basketball cagers are to be congratulated on their very fine beards! I wonder where they got all the beard black and while on the subject of masculine ability I'll have to concede one more point to Mr. Jacobson. Your boys are just a little rougher—Fougner's wrenched back; Thayer's broken ankle; kinda proud of those feats Jacobson?

The North Dakota State College Bison, and the North Dakota University Sioux have been meeting on the basketball court close to fifty years. Each year it is the same story, but somehow told differently. The games are usually played fast, sometimes too rough, and always produce a brand of basketball which will never be forgotten.

So therefore, we are making this northern trip and are invading their campus, their houses, their town, and their Fieldhouse with this attitude: "We think our school is the best and we KNOW our team is the best!" If they believe otherwise—let'em prove it!!

Student of the Week . . .

Scott Thayer, sophomore transfer from Hamline University is the spark plug that has put and kept the Bison on top of the heap in the NCC race. Thayer, who is a Fargo student, suffered a broken ankle in last Saturday nights game and will be out of the line up for the remainder of the season. Tonight and tomorrow Scott Thayer night the Bison will be out to win both of the games against the University and they will be winning them both for Scott Thayer.

Behind The Scenes . . .

Murphy Cracks Whip Over Brevities; Producer Predicts Colorful Production

by Dorothy Morrow

"Actually I'm just the guy who cracks the whip. The director smooths the acts together, the business manager doles out the cash, the publicity director informs the public and more Blue Key men handle other assignments." His word made their way through the smoke of a local coffee pub.

Behind a disguising beard is the man behind the 1952 Bison Brevities. Jack Murphy is the producer of the coming variety show. "Murph" acts as "coordinator to see that the show gets coordinated."

Jack is a switch from the usual picture of a producer. He doesn't smoke cigars, he doesn't take aspirin by the bottle and he doesn't have just started. Jack's sense of humor has already carried him through heavy extra curricular action without any nervous results.

Jack is president of Blue Key service fraternity, president of Kappa Sigma Chi and he also wields the gavel for Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity. Jack sings in the college choir, goes to Interfraternity Council meetings and belongs to the Ski Club. He also makes speeches at the Toastmaster Club banquets.

"The ball is rolling toward a great show," said Jack concerning the Brevities. "Deadlines have been set for scripts, acts have been selected and Kappa Kappa Psi, band fraternity, is furnishing the music."

Blue Key sponsors the Brevities for several reasons, says Murphy. One is to promote good feeling between the state, city and college. Another purpose is to give students a chance to show their talent. Brevities is also good publicity for the school. Above all, the review entertains.

"More originality and more variety will make this year's production more colorful than the 1951 show. A variety type show gives students more freedom in choosing ideas than the theme type."

Brevities will be staged in the Field House instead of Festival Hall, auditorium of past shows. Improvements made by the change are increased room space, better acoustics, improved lighting equipment and more comfortable seating for the audience.

That means no seats next to dressing rooms, no sitting on other peoples laps and no squeaky chairs. Bleacher back seats will be as good or better than front seats.

Acts for the review will be judged according to the degree of professionalism they have. Trophies will be awarded by the decision of 12 judges.

Stee's pride and joy, Jack Murphy, is majoring in agriculture and Brevities at the present but is looking forward to diplomas and picnics in the spring.

Fraternity Man Gives Rules On Dating; Advises Talk On Oil Wells, Her Family

by Neal Funstone
(Ed. Note: The following is a summary of a speech by Jack Wenberg on how to get a date with a girl as written by pledge secretary of the Kappa Sigma Chi social fraternity.)

Jack modestly admitted that he didn't know too much about the subject of women, but he promised to tell all he knew, and what he couldn't relate from his own experiences, he would gather from fellow fraternal brothers. To begin with Jack enumerated a few basic principles.

1. You have to like girls.
2. You have to have an interest in girls.
3. You have to know a girl, or know a girl that knows a girl, or know a boy that knows a girl that knows a girl.

Jack then impressed us with the importance of the field we took up in College in relation to women. Siting some examples, he told us of the case of the Econ major who calculated the cost of living for a couple as compared to a bachelor. It seems that this student of Economics got through extrapolating his graph and when he saw that it costs 33½% more for a couple to live, he stood up and took the oath of bachelorhood.

Turning from one of the sorrier cases Jack then pointed to a shining ideal. He was an EE major and he didn't worry about graphs. He just put a few formulas to work. "The formula for unlike bodies attract is the most useful," quoted this man.

Pharmacists are not advised to use this technique though. It seems they don't have enough resistances ohms or smhos or something.

Jack then went on to quote some actives on a few things they had picked up here and there. Mostly there, I guess. "Don't tell a girl your name when you ask her to dance. She will ask if she wants to know. Talk about her family, and be sure to ask her for the last dance cause if she accepts that means she will let you take her home." "Oil wells and cars help, but mustaches are better than potato eaters."

Jack concluded his speech with a big smile for the visiting Phi Mus and a dirty look at me. He thinks I roped him into this, but I didn't.

Botany Greenhouse Underway On Campus

One of the construction projects now under way on the NDAC campus is the new botany greenhouse. Situated south of Minard Hall, the 25 foot by 50 foot structure is to occupy approximately the same location as the old greenhouse.

Two divisions of the greenhouse are planned. One is for physiological and ecology experiments. This section will have controlled temperature and will be suitable for the study of water relations of plants and plant nutrition.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Take your hat 'n goat and scr-r-ram!" Sheedy's girl said. "I won't give you a date, but your hair sure gives me a billy-laugh!" But-but-but—" he butted. Said she, "Haven't you herd of Wildroot Cream-Oil? For well-groomed hair it can't be beat! Non-alcoholic. Contains Lanolin. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. Relieves dryness. Removes loose dandruff." So Sheedy got Wildroot Cream-Oil and now every gal wants to horn in on his time! Better milk 29¢ out of your roommate and hoof it to the nearest drug or toilet goods counter. ONE DAY SHIRT LAUNDRY SERVICE
Serving the College Folks For 20 Years

ON THE SUNNY SIDE?

by Bob Fisher

The series moves to Grand Forks this weekend, and no doubt half the student body will too. Highway 81 will look like the Pennsylvania Turnpike about 3 p. m. today.

The upstate school of mortuary science sent down quite a few representatives last week to cheer for their team, and kind of took over the town. I don't know how many of them went to the games but by the time I got out to the Venice, you'd have thought they were holding a class reunion.

Of course, the games played here gave us little to cheer about, winning the first without opposition, while losing three key men for the second.

After going through the season in perfect physical condition, the Bison were hit hard by injuries, losing Scott Thayer with a broken inner malleolus of the tibia of the left leg (how about that Mr. Kaiser?) and Bob Lauf and Don Fougner. However, Lauf and Fougner may be in shape for this weekend's contests.

The Bison reserves, did a comendable job, taking over during the second game, and almost pulled the tilt out of the fire. Of course, the absence of the regulars hurt the herds chances tremendously.

Chuck Wolfe, Sioux forward who saw only a few minutes of play in the first game, will probably be fully recovered from his back ailment and will add scoring punch to the 'U' lineup.

First Game Notes

Art Bredahl, now a lieutenant in the U. S. N. and former basketball star here, took in the games, and felt the Bison should sweep the series this weekend.

I wore a dress shirt to the game and in the scuffle that followed found I only had on the cuffs, color and buttons. Those 'U' students must be bad off for white shirts, or was it something I said?

Jim Schrimpf, former writer for the Spectrum, and now writing for that sheet called the Dakota Student, was seen trying to look important at the scorers table. He kept track of the dribbles the Sioux took.

Second Game Notes

After the first quarter, we found out why they call Bob Constantini, "Ram". He butted Bunker on the floor so many times Art Looked like a rubber ball. He better wear his pads this weekend though, if Bob Lauf gets into the games. "Sweet Revenge."

I wouldn't say the refereeing was bad, but after the final buzzer, the two bandits took off for the exit like Gehrman finishing the mile. Lucky they didn't get hit by that flying ice cream bar in the third stanza.

Bob Jones, erstwhile ice cream vendor, wasn't exactly scalping, but he did get 60 cents for four ice cream sandwiches. I'll bet they don't have shrewd business men like that at upstate tech.

Hats Off

To Bill Euren and his fine Gold Star Band for their tireless playing throughout the season. It certainly was sporting to play University songs for the visitors. Wonder if we'll get the same kind of treatment?

Around the Conference

A spectacular 28 point performance against Morningside last week, gave Augustana's Jim Gremmels a total point output of 237 counters in 11 league games. The conference record is 271 set by John Diefendorf of South Dakota U in 1940-50. Gremmels needs 34 points to tie the record and it wouldn't be to surprising if he did it.

Art Bunkers 13 points against the Sioux in the first game has given the big center a tie with Chuck Wolfe of UND, last years, top scorer. Wolfe made one point in the opener, and the two now have 167 tallies. Both are certain to pass second place Howard Pigg of ISTC runnerup to Gremmels who has 174. Pigg has completed his season.

NCC STANDINGS
NDAC	8 1/2	2 1/2	.765
Morningside	7	3	.700
NDU	6 1/2	4 1/2	.585
ISTC	6	6	.500
SDS	4	7	.364
Augustana	3	8	.273
SDU	3	6	.333

There were a few dizzy tracksters last Saturday at the University of South Dakota. One of the events scheduled in a dual meet with Wayne Teachers was the two mile event. This means 25 laps around the oval.

In their last meeting with Iowa TC, the Morningside Maroons scored 32 points in the first quarter for a record period score.

Incidentally, the Maroons are the only conference team to beat the Teachers twice this season and also are the only team from the south to score a victory in North Dakota this year.

There have been many comments on the refereeing of the first two games of the series. Small wonder. When both sides feel that the other is being robbed, there must be something to it.

The first quarter of the second game was probably the roughest the field house has ever seen in many moons. Intentional fouls were overlooked and it was doubtful if we could survive the first half. The second half was no better and a near riot was on hand.

One of the louisiest calls ever witnessed was in the fourth period of the game. It marked the first time I have ever seen an official reverse a decision.

One of the Sioux drove in for a shot and was fouled. One official blew his wistle, and a split instant later the other tooted his. A foul was called on the same man by both refs. The official who called the foul first signaled that the basket was no good. However, the second official said it was good.

In the argument that followed, the basket was awarded to the Sioux plus a free throw.

The ruling should have been; one free throw, and no basket. The rule book states that if two fouls are called on the same man, same play, the first wistle blows the ball dead, and the second is automatically nullified.

Well, these same two referees will officiate this weekend, so let's hope they've studied the rule book during the past few days.

See you at Grand Forks.

Bucket Squad Poses For Portrait

Needing only one victory this weekend to tie for the North Central Conference basketball championship, the Bison cagers took time out for this picture.

Nickel Series Moves To Grand Forks; Bison Cagers Are Hampered By Injuries

by Bob Fisher

The Nickel basketball series between NDAC and NDU moves to Grand Forks this weekend for the final two games of the season. The Bison need a clean sweep over the weekend for a clear cut title, while one victory would assure them of at least a tie for the crown.

The Bison meet the Sioux at 8 p. m. tonight and tomorrow in the new University Fieldhouse. The 'B' teams of both schools will play a preliminary both nights.

It was a happy occasion for the herd last Friday night when they drubbed the Sioux 67-56. But, the next evening proved disastrous as the herd lost the game and three key players. The U won Saturday, 59-56.

After only four minutes of play in the second game, Scott Thayer, outstanding Bison guard was carried from the floor with a broken bone in his leg. Don Fougner, was kept out of the game because of a slipped disc in the lower lumbar region of the vertebrae. Bob Lauf was helped off the floor in the third stanza with a badly sprained ankle.

Fougner and Lauf are expected to see limited service this weekend, but of course Thayer's loss will hamper the herd. On the bright side of the ledger, Bob Grant is expected to be recovered from a kidney infection and will take over some of the burden.

Both games played here were the worst the Bison have played all season. The shooting percentages were extremely low, and the passing and floor play of the herd were far off form.

Bentson was extremely pleased however with the showing of the reserves. They played on an even keel with the Sioux, and even forged ahead in the waning minutes.

It was easy to see the University missed the scoring of Chuck Wolfe. The Sioux made only four field goals out of 42 attempts in the first half of the first game. The Bison lead at the half 30-16.

Wolfe, however is expected to be ready for full time duty tonight as well as Rube Entzel, who has been suffering from a muscle injury.

Coach Louie Bogan is expected to start Wolfe and Entzel at forwards, "Ram" Constantini at center, and George Razook and Bill McGinnley at the guards. Also certain to see a lot of action are; Emil Carlson, Harvey Burkholder, and Jon Haaven.

Bison coach Chuck Bentson is expected to start Jerry Geisler and Jack Cavanaugh or Bob Grant at the forward posts. The center slot will be ably manned by big Art Bunker, leading scorer in the series to date with 33 points. Rod Fercho and Ozzie Twedt are the likely choices at guard.

Don Fougner, Jim O'Connor, Bob Lauf, Rog Fercho and Dale Peppel are also likely to see heavy duty.

The Sioux must win both games in order to keep their mathematical chance of tying for the crown alive. The Bison will have their backs to the wall on the Sioux court, knowing they must take at least one victory.

If the Bison win one game, they will also establish themselves as possibilities to enter the NAIB tournament at Kansas City in March.

'Blackjack' Scores . . .

Like a jumping jack, Jack Cavanaugh leaps into the air to flip in a two pointer for the Bison in the first game of the series.

Music Groups To Give Home Concert March 9

The Gold Star Band, under the direction of William Euren, will appear in a joint concert with the A Cappella choir on Sunday March 9.

The band will offer a mixed program of standard and modern music, featuring trumpet and marimba soloists as well as a trumpet trio. Arlene Tiegen, AAS-So, will be merimba soloist and Robert Van Wechel, EE-Jr. will be trumpet soloist.

Organized in 1904 by the late Dr. C. S. Putnam, the Gold Star band plays both military and concert music. Harold Bachman, director of the Million Dollar Band and James Stamp, formerly first trumpet with the Minneapolis Symphony were former members of the group.

Last April, the organization accepted an invitation to appear at the Williston Band Festival as "guest band" for the occasion. There, it presented two concerts and led the parade of 34 high school and community bands.

The band is scheduled to present a concert at Hillsboro on March 4.

$3,000 Loan Available To Agriculture Students

Encouragement for future North Dakota farm implement dealers is contained in a check for $3,000 from C. R. Carlson Jr., vice president and manager of Deere & Webber company at Minneapolis.

The check, made out to NDAC and sent to Dean of Agriculture H. L. Walster, is to establish a loan fund for students in mechanized agriculture. The check is from the John Deere foundation and is believed the first such student loan fund set up by this farm implement firm.

Administration of the loan fund is left to the NDAC student loan committee, with provision only that loans be limited to $300 each, that they be issued only to juniors and seniors taking courses in mechanized agriculture.

As planned by NDAC, selection of student borrowers and supervision over them would be directed by Prof. W. J. Promersberger, chairman of the department of agricultural engineering, and by Dean Walster.

Marketing Class Returns From Touring Industrial Enterprises Of Twin Cities

The Agriculture Economics marketing Class returned from a three day trip on February 16th. The class of 65 students spent three days touring the various industrial enterprises of the Twin Cities.

The class, which is under the direction of Professor P. V. Hemphill, left on Thursday and spent that day, Friday and most of Saturday studying various aspects of the marketing field. Mr. George Wilkens, assistant manager of the Minneapolis Grain exchange handled the interview and arranged the trips to other plants.

The first afternoon, the group was split into two parties and they were shown through the General Mills Research center and the Creamette Macaroni Company. On Friday morning the class assembled at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange and were provided with a breakfast with the compliments of the exchange.

M. J. Laurel, of the Cargo Incorporated, spoke on Futures Market and the students observed the opening of the grain exchange. Robert W. Benson gave an explanation on the working of the cash markets and conducted a tour of the "floor" of the exchange.

After lunch the class assembled at the office of Peavy and Company and a talk was given on the malting barley and the products of malt. The students were shown through the main offices and warehouse of Red Owl wholesale grocery.

The group, which drove down in cars, reported a spirited, helpful attitude displayed at all times by the cooperating businessmen and that much was learned during their short stay in Minneapolis.
