Fulbright Award Offers Year's Study

Applications for the Fulbright scholarship award must be in Dr. Genschmer's office by Oct. 31 to be eligible for study abroad during the year 1953-54. The award is given annually to two graduating seniors from each state.

The Fulbright Scholarship, a government award, offers a year of study in one of these countries, Australia, Austria, Egypt, France, Greece, India, Iran, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, and the United Kingdom. Added just recently to the list was West Germany.

Requirements for application are citizenship of the U. S., holder of a B.S. degree or its equivalent, good health and a working knowledge of the language used in the country where study is to be taken up. Dr. Genschmer points out the latter requirement as the weakest link during the past few years.

Being offered this year are state awards. Requirements for the state award are the same as for the national except that the applicant must be a legal resident of the state and be either a graduating senior or be a first year graduate student.

Expenses covered by the scholarship include transportation, expenses of a language refresher, tuition, books, and maintenance. For those students interested, courses in foreign language conversation are being offered. The classes are headed by Dr. Genschmer.

Students seeking additional information are asked to see Prof. Genschmer. His office is located in Minard hall, in the modern language department.

Comedian Dances, Recites, Sings, Mimics In First Lyceum Wednesday, At Festival

Elsa Lanchester's "Private Music Hall", which come to the NDAC campus next Wednesday, October 8, makes no pretense of being anything but an evening of hilarious entertainment.

Miss Lanchester, one of the top comedians of stage and screen, is a performer of versatility. She dances, she recites, she mimics and she sings. A popular star of the night club circuit, she has performed at London's Cafe de Paris, New York's Blue Angel and the Bar of Music in Los Angeles.

Variety is lent to the "Private Music Hall" by the Madhatters, four young men who gained fame individually before they decided to pool their talents. They have been

Tryouts For College Play Set For Monday

Tryouts for "The Lady's Not for Burning" by Christopher Fry, first all-college play of the year, will be held in the Little Country Theatre on Monday from 2 to 5, Tuesday from 2 to 5:30 and Thursday from 2 to 5.

Miss Constance West, director of the comedy, announces that tryouts on Tuesday will be individual and group tryouts will be held on Thursday. "The Lady's Not for Burning" was a recent Broadway hit.

Some men are convinced they will never die; the neighbors wonder why they were ever born.

billed as a comedy quartet at the Las Vegas Flamingo. The Los Angeles Ambassador's Coconut Grove and San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

The musical portion of the show gets backing from Ray Henderson who accompanies Miss Lanchester at the piano and who is responsible for the musical arrangement of the entire show.

The Music Hall is the idea of Paul Gregory, who proved last season that the American people, on Broadway and in the hinterlands, are eager at all times to support the best in the theater. He did it with The First Drama Quartette's performance of Bernard Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell".

Although she won her initial successes as an actress on the legitimate stage in London, Elsa Lanchester has set her foot down against any return to the footlights "as a play actress".

"I just simply don't like the stage," says Elsa. "I am a vaudevillian at heart. I like to put myself across as I see it."

After her last appearance in New York, a critic of the New Yorker commented, "A breath of fresh air—Elsa Lanchester, with her abstract face, her thicket of apricot hair—oddly diverting, funny, fantastic, wistful and wayward—A weird and wonderful will-of-the-wisp, being female, street urchin and witty in rapid succession.

"Private Music Hall" will be presented at Festival hall at 8 p.m. Students will be admitted on activity cards.

Students To Pick Homecoming Queen, Two Attendants From Eight Finalists

Margaret Anderson, Sylvia Askew, Arlyss Elliott, Beverly Ewald, Patti Jones, Virginia Lidstrom, Barbara Morris and Juanita Olson have been chosen as finalists in the Homecoming queen contest.

Today students will vote for a queen and two attendants from the eight finalists. Voting polls are at Minard hall, Morrill hall and the engineering building. Polls opened at 8:45 this morning and will close at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

Students must show their activity cards before receiving an official ballot. The candidate receiving the largest number of votes will be queen. The next two candidates receiving the next largest number will be the queen's attendants.

The eight were chosen by downtown judges at a luncheon last Wednesday. Candidates sponsored by college organizations were Margaret Anderson, HE-Jr., Ceres hall; Sylvia Askew, HE-So, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Beverly Desmond, HE-Sr., Theta Chi; Arlyss Elliott, HE-So., Alpha Tau Omega; Beverly Ewald, HE-Sr., Sigma Chi; Elaine Forbes, HE-Jr., Sigma Phi Delta; Patti Jones, HE-Sr., Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Joan Keller, HE-So. Dakota hall; Carol Kirkhus, AAS-Jr, Phi Mu.

Beverly Kraus, HE-So, Alpha Gamma Rho; Virginia Lidstrom, AAS-Sr, Kappa Delta; Barbara Morris, HE-Jr, Independent Student association; Juanita Olson, HE-Sr, Farm House; Phyllis Pearson, AAS-So, Kappa Sigma Chi and Nancy Pease, HE-Sr, Kappa Psi.

Enrollment 1,731; Frosh Have Biggest Class, Most Women

Enrollment of students is 1,731 at NDAC this term, according to Merlin Miller, Director of Admissions and Records. This figure includes only current students. With new students enrolling in succeeding quarters, final enrollment is expected to reach 2,000.

Of the total number, 352 are women. Men number 1,379. Percentage-wise, this amounts to a ratio of four men to every girl on campus. According to specific school breakdowns, the engineer's have the largest department. Enrollees total one woman and 493 men. There are 347 men and one woman studying agriculture.

In the School of Chemistry there are six women and 61 men. Enrolled in arts and sciences are 90 women and 324 men. Home economic majors total 242 women . . . The pharmacy school has 11 women and 155 men.

Freshmen have the largest class aggregate, 112 women and 493 men or a total of 605 students. Sophomores total 407, 87 women and 320 men. In the junior class there are 69 women and 256 men, total enrollment is 325, lowest of all the classes.

Registered seniors number 82 women and 256 men, additional students are doing graduate work. Listed as special students are 13 others. Registration of veterans has increased over last year, states Miller. Of the 212 veterans at NDAC 100 have been in Korean action.

Chemists Get $8,000 In Research Grants; Chemistry Major's Receive New Awards

The School of Chemical Technology has recently received research grants totaling over $8,000, for support of basic research in the various fields of chemistry, according to Dr. R. E. Dunbar, Dean of the School.

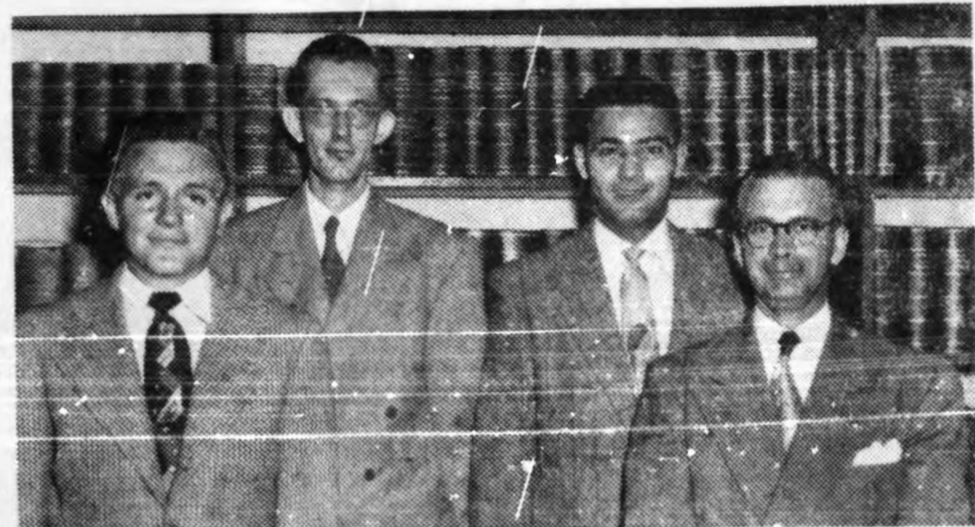

The latest grant is the "Archer-Daniels-Midlan Company Senior Award in Chemistry" of $500 which has been assigned to Donald Wahlgren, Ch-Sr. The same Minneapolis firm had previously forwarded a check for $750 to defray the expenses of a graduate student in chemistry.

Dale Noack, Ch-Grad., has been named as the recipient of the award and will study the relationship of acetone tolerance to the physical and paint making qualities of bodied oils. The two grants were arranged largely through James Konen, Research Director and Vice-President of the company in Minneapolis.

Konen received his B.A. degree in chemistry in 1933 and the M.S. in 1935, both from NDAC. He was also one of the featured guest lecturers on the advanced paint short course that was offered on the campus this summer.

The Cathaphoe corporation of Toledo, Ohio, this summer granted a sum of $2,400 to support a basic research program at the graduate level in the field of highway traffic paints. Sam Vranish, Ch-Grad., has been assigned to the project.

The Ernest T. Trigg foundation of Philadelphia, Pa., last week confirmed, three fellowships of $750 each to encourage senior and graduate students to enter the field of Protective Coatings.

These were the very first grants ever given by the newly created foundation and have been assigned to Donald Pehrson, Stanley Lokken, Ch-Sr., Leslie Ferris, Ch-Sr.

The Shell Chemical corporation of New York City is continuing their current research on rheology under the direction of Dr. Wouter Bosch with William Jacoby of Green Lake, Wisc., assigned to the project.

The Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company of Minneapolis has announced their intention to again subsidize, for the seventh consecutive year, plastic research under the direction of Dr. R. E. Dunbar to the extent of $500.

Forman, Ford and co. of Minneapolis will again award $100 in chemistry reference books to outstanding students in the four chemistry

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships Available To Descendants Of World War Veterans

The late LaVerne Noyes left a trust providing for several scholarships each year to deserving students who are direct descendants of veterans of World War I. The scholarships must be used for the payment of fees in part or in full. These students are selected without regard to sex, race, religion or political party. Applicants must, however, be citizens of the United States and must meet one of two requirements.

First, they themselves shall have served in the Army or Navy of the United States of America in the World War which began on April 6, 1917, and they shall have been honorably discharged from such service.

Second, they shall be descended by blood from someone (father, mother, grandfather or grandmother) who served in the Army or Navy of the United States in said war and who is still in said service or whose said service in the Army or Navy was terminated by death or an honorable discharge.

Ordinarily at least six months' service prior to the signing of the Armistice, November 11, 1918, is necessary except where there was active overseas' duty prior to the signing of the Armistice, or where a person died in service.

The purpose of LaVerne Noyes in establishing these scholarships was to express his gratitude and reward those who died for this country.

For application blanks and further information contact Miss Thompson, Chairman of the Scholarship Committee, Room 209, Minard hall.

The other members of the committee are Pearl Dinan, Merritt Flynn and Ernst Van Vlissingen. All applications and necessary credentials for the LaVerne Noyes scholarships must be filed with the chairman of the scholarship committee by October fifteenth.

The department of Veterans Affairs also has scholarships available to the orphans of veterans of World War I or II. Eligible students may get further information regarding these scholarships by contacting the Department of Veterans Affairs, 55 1/2 Broadway, Fargo.

'Outside World' Kind To College Graduates

The probing fingers of survey conductors have unearthed a handful of hope for the college student who looks toward graduation as "the end of the world."

Apparently all is not dark on the outside. In fact, only one per cent of the national collegiate class of 1951 is currently unemployed, according to a survey taken by the National Scientific Register.

The Register, a federal agency, found that 63 per cent of the male graduates are employed, 18 per cent are in military service, and 17 per cent are in graduate or professional school.

Almost all those employed are doing work which requires college training. The remainder are engaged in such obviously non-professional jobs as "laborer," "taxi driver," or "tourist guide."

Alum Retrieves Books

Recently an old alum paid a visit to the library to donate a part of his book collection. While arrangements for the gift were being made, time expired on the man's parking meter and the familiar parking ticket was neatly placed on his windshield.

The alum went to the Controller's office to pay his fine but found the office closed for lunch. After a half hour of waiting and fuming he decided that the university parking procedure presented too great a barrier to anyone merely wishing to present a gift to the school.

So he took his books and went home. Someone asked Jean Coteau if he believed in luck. "Certainly," replied the Frenchman. "How else could you explain the success of your enemies?"

David Bartholomew

David Bartholomew, editor of the Bison yearbook, announces that there will be a meeting for all students interested in working on the annual on Wednesday, Oct. 8 at 4 p.m.

Bartholomew comes from Hawley, Minn. He attended high school and took one year of college at Moorhead State Teachers college.

Bartholomew edited his high school annual. He belongs to Theta Chi fraternity, Saddle and Sirlion and is circulation manager for the Spectrum.

'Y' Plans Membership Drive; Teams Compete To Recruit Members

Harry Swanke, vice-president and membership chairman of the college YMCA, has appointed Gene Williamson and Bud Hall as team captains to head this year's membership drive. The drive will go on until October 8th.

Williamson will head up the Athens who are Delbert Moore, John Kirk, Harold Moe, David Kaspari, Dick Froeschle, Eugene Erickson, Maurice Knutson, and Harry Otway.

The Spartans, headed by Hall, are Don Piepkorn, John Schacher, Harold Janneck, Frank Rose, Frank Esposito, Tokio Inoue, Clyde Oberlander, and Carl Eloffson. The team signing up the most members will be the guests of the YM Board of Directors at a theatre party.

The "Y", which has grown steadily the past few years, has as its purpose the aiding of college, church and community by serving the best interests of the student. It offers the student an opportunity to meet and know fellow students in an atmosphere of friendliness. Its scope of interest is campus-wide.

All male faculty and students will be contacted by the Athens and Spartans during the drive. Any student who is interested in entering the contest for either the team party or for individual awards should contact either Hall or Williamson at the Y.

Someone asked Jean Coteau if he believed in luck. "Certainly," replied the Frenchman. "How else could you explain the success of your enemies?"

Broberg Co-Edits Recently Published Chemistry Manual

The Wm. C. Brown Company of Dubuque, Iowa has just released a new chemistry text book by Prof. J. W. Broberg, assistant professor of inorganic chemistry at NDAC, and Prof. O. H. Johnson, associate professor of inorganic chemistry at the University of Minnesota.

The new 78 page book is spiral bound and is entitled, 'Problems In General Inorganic Chemistry.' The new volume contains 37 sections that deal extensively with every type of mathematical and other problems ordinarily encountered in freshman chemistry.

Full and complete explanations are given of the principles involved in each type of problem, examples are solved, and numerous supplementary problems are included for assignment or practice by students.

The text will be extensively used on the University of Minnesota campus as well as NDAC. It is also available from the publisher for use at other colleges and universities.

Graduates Of '72 Present At Picnic; Parrott Schedules Meeting With Alums

Reorganization of the alumni of the north-west area of the state was effected in late May when about fifty alumni and former students attended a picnic on the lawn of the Williston Sub-station. Howard Olson is president of the permanent organization.

On June 28, NDAC alumni living in Southern Michigan held a picnic at Camp Dearborn, near Milford, Michigan. About forty families attended and Ted Brvki of East Lansing was elected president with Clarence Engberg also of East Lansing, secretary.

Another meeting is planned for the winter months. On August 24 about sixty families of alumni and former students had a picnic in Riverside Park, Bismarck. So many children were there that the Bismarck Tribune with a large picture of the group called attention to the NDAC "graduate of '72." Paul Bibelheimer was elected president and another meeting was announced for early spring.

Plans are also underway for an early meeting of Northern Missouri and Southern Illinois alumni at St. Louis. Lyle Gilbertson and Gene Hillesland are organizing this meeting and will be assisted by Dr. Frank L. Eversull, former president of NDAC. All three live at Belleville, Ill.

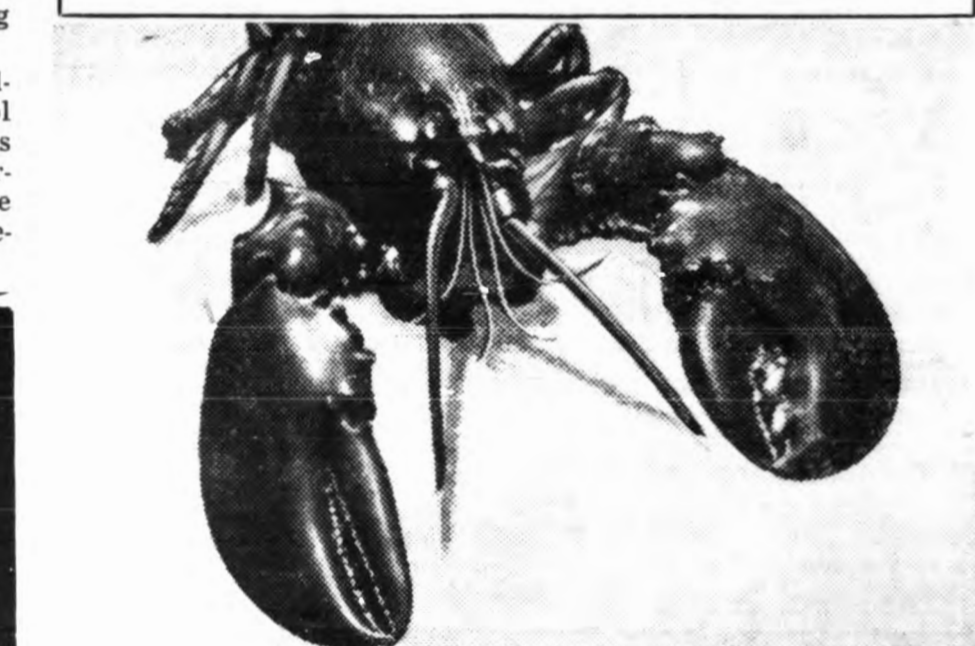

If the association can provide the funds, Mr. Parrott will, at their invitation, meet with alumni groups at Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit and New York, all of which are awaiting the associations approval.

After a conference with county agents at their meeting on the campus in July, Mr. Parrott has arranged for county agents to bring car loads of promising young men from their counties in to the football games this fall.

The plan has the support of Mr. Haslerud, Director of Agricultural and Home Economics Extension but is made possible only thru the cooperation of President Hultz and the courtesy of Director Finnegan and the Athletic Board.

English Teacher Gets Compared To Hertel

by Walt Fogel

One of the most welcome additions to the N. Dak. State campus this fall is Dr. Leo Hertel, professor of philosophy and history in the Social Science department.

Dr. Hertel as an instructor presents a delightfully colorful figure. Although he has been in this country since 1934, Dr. Hertel still retains a heavy German accent which seems to have a peculiar attention drawing note about it.

He is a very fluent and entertaining lecturer, flavoring many of his classes with humorous antidotes, oftentimes about his life in Germany. Dr. Hertel says that one of the most confusing things that he found in America when he first came here was the jargon used by baseball announcers.

He happened to be in a Mitchell, S. Dak., barbershop during the last game of the 1934 World Series when he was first perplexed by baseball. The announcer seemed to be clearly understood by all the other men in the shop, but to the new resident of the U. S. it was all "Chinese."

Dr. Hertel's enthusiastic approach to the courses he teaches is almost unique. Each morning he enters his classroom with a cheerful "Good morning," and this spirit prevails throughout the entire 50 minutes. With this attitude Dr. Hertel will very likely become one of the school's most popular teachers.

How different was an attitude expressed by an English department instructor last week. It seems that this instructor decided that more than half of the students who registered for an English course called Word Study should not take it.

His reason for virtually refusing to teach the course to them was that they were Juniors and Seniors taking a Sophomore course, and they had too high English marks and would be wasting their time in a course of that type.

Although we are wondering if his action did not come from an honest dislike for teaching the course, we still believe that a college student should be able to decide for himself what courses he should and should not take, as long as he satisfies his basic departmental requirements.

The fact that these students did have good English marks would seem to us to be evidence that they possessed enough intelligence to know what they were doing when they registered for the course.

This undemocratic action presupposes that all of these students were taking the course merely as a "snap course" and entirely excludes the possibility that a student may desire to take the course for the purpose of improving his vocabulary.

This is the first time that we have heard of anything like this, and for the benefit of the entire student body we sincerely hope it is the last.

Frosh Gets Desertation On Men In Midst Of Cholorphyll Bubbles

by Joan Evenstad

The sparkling green of my chlorophyll toothpaste nearly blinded me and I stood enthralled in the green bubbles as she shuffled in. "Hi, you're new here, a freshman, eh?" she smiled sympathetically.

"Uh-huh" I sputtered. "Well, there's a lot of things that green people like you should know about that aren't in books. Now, you're very lucky that you happened to run into me because I am taking it upon myself to educate you."

She perched on top of a table, delicately crossed her legs and lit a king sized cigarette. "Naturally I'm talking about men" she crooned.

"First let me tell you that you freshmen have a whole carload of seventeen and eighteen year olds to pick from but the older men are a little more scarce so things are rougher for us upperclass girls. The first rule to remember is to lay off older men."

"Secondly, men are basically all alike, or else they wouldn't be men. Actually, there are two kinds of men, the married and the unmarried. We won't bother with the former group. Of the latter there are two kinds. The sincere and the insincere."

"The sincere group are the kind that love you deeply in a sick dog manner. They are very nice, in fact they are so nice that you just can't fall in love with them. But be sure you keep a few around for Old Age Security in case nothing else more interesting shows up." "Now for the insincere, you get to know the type as you get around. They have a line a mile long, but for heaven's sake let them go ahead. Flattery is always good to hear and they like to fancy themselves as quite the cassanovas."

"Since they really enjoy laying it on thick, listen to them, keep the men happy, that is the most important thing. With the insincere they love to talk, almost better than anything else."

She uncrossed her long white legs, leaned back and blew smoke lazily out of the corner of her full lips.

"College dating is another important phase of your education," she drawled. "First off, never let a fellow kiss you on the first five or six dates. That way they think you're naive and haven't been around so they will keep busy protecting you from the big bad wolves at college."

"After you have gone with him for quite some time then really kiss him—that will make them wonder, and will keep them coming around for further glimpses of this new "Flaming Mamie" streak. Never let them think they are the only fish in the sea, however. Always keep them dangling."

"Oh, and another thing, be sure you hang on to all your high school boy friends, their pictures scattered around your room gives you prestige with the girls and its always nice to get mail."

She got a misty, far away look in her eyes and continued: "Always have one hopeless love—someone you love madly but can't have. It creates atmosphere to weep over old mementos and to go into deep trances when you hear certain records. Then the girls will really know your a sophisticate."

"All in all its quite a problem, this struggle to stay single. Most men have marriage on the brain and will picture a little white house with rows and rows of zinnias but actually the house is five hundred miles from nowhere and they don't mention the dirty socks and cooking you'll have to do."

"Every man HAS to have a girl, but the point is to see how many men you can keep happy at the same time. Men are nice, especially in large quantities. Just keep your head at all times and follow my advice and you'll manage to stay single."

"When there is nothing else to do, then you get married. Take me for instance, I've been around a lot, thats how I can tell you this, and the longer you look around the fussier you get."

"Right now I'm majoring in engineering, men you know, so I'm looking for some fellow with a home ec major to take care of my home," she ground her cigarette out in my soap dish.

"Yes, its quite a struggle to stay single but now you have the information so you at least know the score. Its all in your modus operandi, your savior-faire. Love them but be sure you leave them."

I muttered my thanks and swallowed my chlorophyll toothpaste as she slithered out the door.

Lovers Espied In Campus Shadows; Galahad Fails To Understand Women

by Warren Frank THE TEAS-JERKING STORY OF TWO CAMPUS LOVERS IN THE SHADOWS

Part I; Prelude While tripping merrily o'er the campus one night, that's my favorite exercise, I espied two young campus lovers in the shadows. "Ho-ho," I said to myself, "are those two young lovers I espie in the shadows?"

Now anybody who would deliberately change his course in order to espie more closely on two young campus lovers is nothing but a heel. Knowing this I avoided becoming a heel by letting the gentle evening breezes waft me to an opportune position for espieing. Snuggling close to Mother Earth, I started my wire recorder.

Part II; What I Saw I'll go on to Part III, the editor would most likely censor Part II anyway.

Part III; What I Heard She; If you don't stop kissing me violently, profusely and vigorously about the head and shoulders and neck, I will not go out with you anymore, but will bestow my affections on someone who won't quit.

Authors note: That is a typical feminine statement. Now our ardent young swain is supposed to decide just what she means by it. He; But I enjoy kissing you violently, profusely and vigorously about the head and shoulders and neck.

She; Yes, I know. He (startled). You know? Then mydecr Irish father was right. In the tender years of my youth, before I came to college and women, he told me, "Son, don't try to understand women." So I will remove my dampened spirit and body (it was a drizzly night) to my lonely room where I shall chastise my wayward emotions by memorizing that beautiful old tale, "Wind in the Willows". And so I must disappear languidly into the darkening night.

Authors note: At this time young Galahad disappears languidly into the darkening night. She (tearfully): I'm rather crushed. I believe I shall console my battered feelings with a king-size cigarette.

Authors note: With that bit of logic our heroine left for Ceres hall. I remained where I was until her hacking was smothered by the slamming door.

Part IV; What I Learned Snuggling close to Mother Earth on a drizzly night will certainly remove the crease in ones trousers.

HOMECOMING!

After 32-0 Loss... Bison Defend Perfect Home Record Against Morningside Maroons Tonite

The NDS Bison have reverted to learning the basic fundamentals in preparation for tonight's game with the Morningside Maroons. Following their disastrous 32-0 defeat at the hands of ISTC, the Bison squad will work on blocking and tackling along with brushing up on some of their offensive plays.

Coach Mac Wenskunas commented that the score of the game of last week was worse than the fracas itself. The players were tired from their long trip to Cedar Falls and their morale was lowered by the absence of Bennie Noland.

Wenskunas stated that the Panthers will be tough this year on the basis of its performance of last Saturday. Playing at home the Panthers are the team to beat.

Noland's absence undoubtedly hurt the State chances for even a close score. Although Bill Bachmeier, former St. Mary's of Bismarck ace, did a commendable job, Noland's work horse ability was sorely missed.

Injuries on the Bison Squad lend a pessimistic note as the Herd tries for its second conference win in three games. Right halfback Dale Wallentine suffered a severe shoulder separation and Wenskunas fears that the Minnesota freshman will not only miss tonight's game but the two succeeding games.

Also on the injured list are tackle Bob Lauf, who suffered a broken nose, guard John Burgerer received a sprained ankle and halfback Tom McLeod sustained a leg injury. These three are expected to be ready for the game tonight.

Game time is at 8 this evening at Dakotah Stadium.

State Ace Recalls Football Highlights

by Kent Sherwood

"Coffee?"
"Yea, black please. Would like to know a little about you for next weeks edition, Ben, if you're not too busy."

"Not at all. What would you like to know?"

Thus began an interview with "Mr. Football" of N D A C, Ben Noland. A short interview, climaxed by the realization of an approaching class. An interview, however, that revealed interesting side-lights along with a condensed biography.

Noland

Born in his home at Park Rapids, Minn., August 14, 1929, Ben was the fifth of six children that now make up his family. One sister and three brothers had preceded him on the family tree, with another sister to appear later.

"Started the grades and received my high school diploma in a rural school just outside Park Rapids," commented Ben.

Ben's first experience as a gridiron player was as a fullback on the B team of his high school during his freshman year. That spring he wound up on the varsity eleven.

Two games deserved mention as the outstanding ones during his prep career, both concerning Bemidji.

"The first game I played with the varsity we lost to them 35-7. The next year we played them we led during the entire game and then with three seconds left they tied us 14-14," Ben replied.

In his senior year, Ben was named to the Minneapolis Tribune's All State team along with the Moorhead Daily News' All West Central eleven.

Football didn't receive all of Ben's attention in high school where he also lettered four years in basketball and won second place in his region while throwing the discus on the track team.

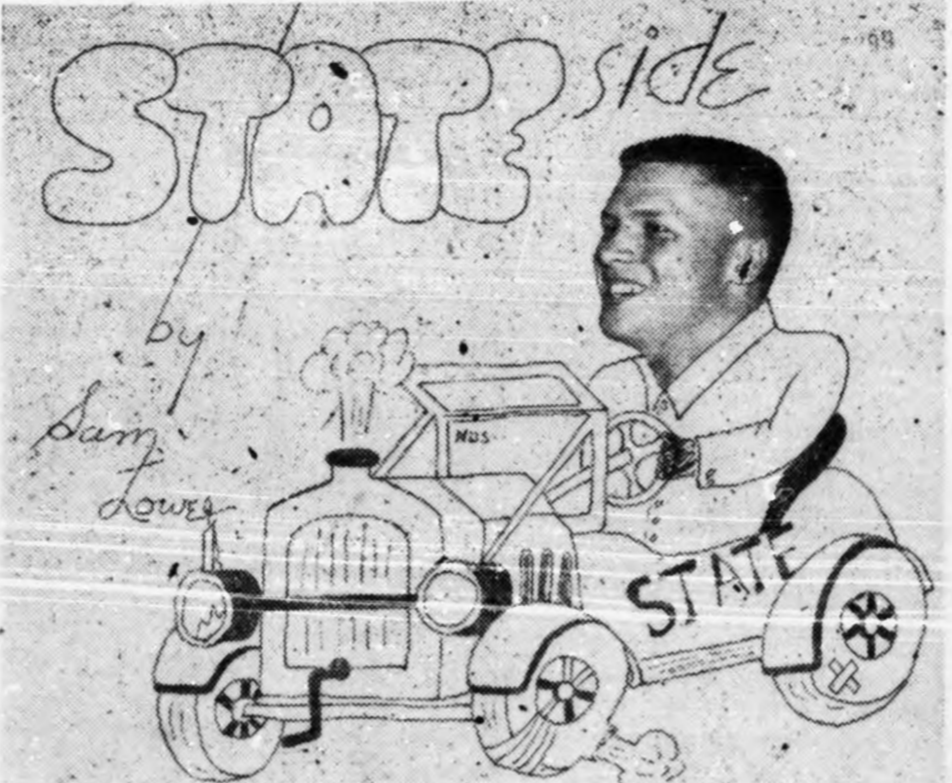

Fall of '49 found Ben Noland enrolling at the NDAC where he wasted no time in trying his hand at football. Starting at fullback for the freshman squad he led the outfit in scoring in an undefeated season.

Playing quarterback during his sophomore year, Ben was moved to halfback in his junior year where he gained All North Central Conference honors. This year finds Mr. Noland again a strong contender to recapture his position on the All Conference eleven.

"With out a doubt the most memorable moment of my college football is a 57 yard jaunt I made against South Dakota State last year to tie them 7-7. Revenge was sweet after that 60-0 shelling they had given us before," quoth Ben.

The last four summers Ben has helped drill water wells out of Minneapolis to help himself through school. A senior Air ROTC student, he is majoring in Phy. Ed. and some day hopes to become a coach.

Topic for the week of September 27—October 3: What happen? Although the 32-0 score wasn't as bad as some of the shellackings the Bison football teams used to take, the setback came as a serious shock to almost every loyal State rooster.

Clink McCreary has again returned to the halls of NDS. The Clinker is currently putting around the football practice field helping Mac. Incidentally, Clink was the cause for Sgt. Siwert's quick withdrawal of a $50 bet that no one could break the fore piece of a ROTC rifle. He lost.

Under the able supervision of Erv Kaiser and some of the ROTC heads, five cheerleaders were picked last Tuesday. These kids are really great and since they had enough ambition to go out for the job, which is one of the most thankless jobs on the campus, they deserve a lot of support when they make their first appearance tonight.

To this reporter's desk came a notice concerning ISTC all-conference end, Mahlon Kaylor. The big end comments on the "big one" he is going to meet this Saturday. (Last weeks' press notices).

The lad he was referring to was Bob Lauf, the Lovable Lad from La-Moure, who apparently came out on the short end of the deal. His nose was running parallel to his left eyebrow until some kind soul straightened it out.

Good old Fitz took off for the World Series again this year. Naturally, the Yanks are picked to win it in three games.

Rumor has it that the Gamma Phi's are already plotting against the ATO's for the Bromo Bowl already. A certain ex-State great is teaching his sister all the ropes about the game, even how to drive a model T Ford through the middle of the line.

Stanley John and Clarence Becker, halfbacks on last year's football team are both in the Army and according to the campus guardian of the two, they are both planning to take the fetal step.

Duane (Grut) Anderson, former State basketball player has returned to the campus after a hitch in the Armed Forces. Grut served

Prodigal Son Robert Roy Returns To Alma Mater

Bob Roy

That's Bob Roy, NDSC assistant coach, talking about his return to his Alma Mater. A '48 graduate and former football and basketball star at Old State, Roy returns to the campus after a three year tour of North Dakota.

In the fall of 1948, Bob took over the coaching at Mott, North Dakota. Over a two-year period, Roy-coached squads ran up a 12-1 record in football, and a 31-15 tally in basketball.

Last year, Coach Roy moved to Fargo as assistant football mentor to Fargo High's Coach of the Year, Acey Olson. The Roy-Olson combo tutored the Fargo squad to the Eastern Divisional championship for Class A Schools.

When he was in high school at Stillwater, Minnesota, Bob built up a remarkable reputation in athletics by winning eight letters on the football and basketball teams. After his graduation from the Minnesota school, Roy headed for the NDSC campus where he played center on the grid and guard on the hardwood court.

With his blonde crew cut and stocky build, Bob has become a fairly well known personality on the State grounds. On the basis of the Bison's showing so far this year, excluding last Saturday, it appears that Bob Roy is doing a fine job in taking over Bernie Krueger's old post.

When he is not helping Mac Wenskunas guide the fortunes of the Herd, Bob has time to take care of his wife, Beverly, and two little Roylets, Bob, Jr. and Doug.

Experience is what you get while looking for something else.
