Military Ball First Queen Candidates Formal Dance Dec. 4 Selected By Frats

Preparations are now underway for the Military Ball which will be held at the Memorial Union December 4, according to Dick Hermanson and Eric Flaten, publicity chairman. Special invitations for the event have been extended to all military personnel in the area as well as to the governor and to campus officials.

Although the dance is open to the public, either tuxedos or military uniforms worn with a white shirt and bow tie are necessary for admittance since it will be the first formal dance of the year.

Held annually under sponsorship of military organizations on campus—Arnold Air society, Scabbard and Blade, Air Debs and Guidon, the dance provides financial assistance for some charitable group.

Bar-Illan Presents Concert Here Tues.

Bar-Illan

Flying directly to the Upper Midwest from London, David Bar-Illan, 23 year old Israeli pianist, will appear at Festival Hall in connection with the lyceum series on November 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Bar-Illan has been hailed by critics of three continents as having an "outstanding and exception talent . . . rich and powerful . . . prodigious technique . . . genuinely poetic playing . . . mature insight, inspiring musicianship . . . remarkable ability, keen touch, energy and vitality."

Bar-Illan was awarded the Coronation Medal as the year's outstanding young pianist in London earlier this year. He has toured Canada, been awarded the YMHA Artist's award, and appeared on a nationwide TV program starring with Ezio Pinza and Jennie Tourel.

Alpha Flying Club

A new organization, the Alpha Flying Club, was formed October 2 by five NDAC students having the interest and ambition to fly. The club, organized to provide basic and advanced flight training at a minimum of cost, accomplished this by purchasing a cheap but dependable plane, "Gracie" to be used for flight training.

The cost will be less than $100.00 for each member to get his private license. This amount does not include the cost of the plane.

The members of the Alpha Flying Club plan to solo by the first of December and have their private license by the first of June. The president of the club, Don Hart, has his private license and is working for a commercial license.

The other four members of the flying club are Nick Westman, Al Fragodt, Marty Kraninger, treasurer, and Bob Curl, in charge of flight schedules.

Kaiser Instructor In Driving Course, New College Class

"Easy on the gas" "Lift up on the clutch!" "Don't kill the motor!" These are not new cheering yells for NDAC, just the driver's training course pupils out for a joy ride.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 2 p.m. Ervin Kaiser, director of Physical Education, takes his class out driving. Students not doing actual driving in their du-control care are kept busy testing their reaction time, accuracy and eyesight with the reliable testing equipment the department has purchased.

This course, which was offered for the first time on this campus this summer, is designed to teach students to drive or instruct them so they will be able to teach student driving in high schools. At the present time the course is offered to seniors only and the enrollment is limited to ten members.

Henning Elected Head

Professor K. A. Henning, chairman of the department of architecture and architectural engineering, was elected president of the North Dakota Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The North Dakota Chapter, which is the 108th chapter of the AIA to be formed in the United States, elected officers at an organizational meeting held in Minot last Friday. Fifteen out of the 22 professional architects in North Dakota are now active members of the group.

The NDAC Student Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, which has been in existence for three years, is to be sponsored by the group.

Eveleth At Meeting

Dr. Donald P. Eveleth, Professor and Chairman of Veterinary Science at NDAC, returned November 1 from Sioux City, Iowa, where he attended the 39th annual meeting of the Interstate Medical Association.

Features of the meetings were talks and discussions by prominent veterinarians from throughout the United States. Dr. Eveleth presented his findings on "listeriosis" a disease of cattle, fowl, and sheep.

According to Dr. Eveleth "listeriosis is becoming of increased economic importance and is important also because there is always a danger of human infection."

As a result of his intensive study of this disease, Dr. Eveleth has developed a reactor test similar to the tuberculin test. If the animal has the disease, a redness will appear at the point of injection.

startled by the sounds coming from the room. Such shrieks and moans we've never heard. We rushed in to rescue the victims in distress, only to find three very pale girls gasping for breath, as the rest of the class fiendishly winding brown tape around the torsos of the victims. You see we were in the drapery class where they were making dress forms.

When we had gathered up our courage, we asked them what their purpose was in creating such weird objects. We were told that upon completion of the winding each girl would have an almost exact reproduction of her form which she would then be able to use for her work in original clothing construction.

Quite satisfied with what we had found out about the strange forms, we left the room. But we can't help thinking that it's remarkable what clothes do for a person.

AC Livestock Team Leaves For Chicago

Choice of vocation of teaching as form of Christian Service.

Deep religious convictions and growing religious perspectives. (The Foundation is looking for candidates who are seriously examining their own religious life, and are seeking a maturing faith and a social outreach.)

Each institution is asked to limit its nominations to two, or at the most three. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with Dean Sevrinson.

Farmers Union Tours Visit NDAC Campus

Listen, son, you may meet your dad on campus today.

Those accidental encounters with folks from home are possible this fall because the North Dakota Farmers Union is making NDAC one of the stops on a series of weekly tours which, each autumn, take North Dakota farmers and their wives on educational trips. NDAC is the last stop on the homeward journey.

Here, under direction of A. G. Hazen, assistant to Dean and Director Glenn C. Holm, the FU-sponsored visitors see the campus, new building, research greenhouses and other facilities used in agricultural research and education.

Study Reveals Difficult Credit, Land Shortages Restrict Farmers' Efficiency

How are these young fellows—these returned veterans—making out in their farming operations? Well, for one thing, they've been curbed and hobbled, frequently by lack of credit. That's what NDAC Experiment Station economists found out when they made case studies in four areas—down in Ransom County, out west around Dickinson in Stark County, up at New Rockford in Eddy County, and around Park River, in the north end of the Red River Valley.

Dr. Balduur Kristjanson starts his bulletin, which describes these studies by laying the ghost of an old belief, a belief he proves false. Says the economist: "It has often been said that if you cannot do anything else, you can go farming. There have been 2 implications in this expression—first, that it was relatively easy to enter that occupation and, second, that the skills required were of a low order.

"In actual fact it has never been easy to gain an effective entry into farming. Even the so-called 'free' homestead involved substantial costs. Today it requires at least $20,000 in land, buildings, machinery and livestock to give a young couple a reasonable chance to become established as farmers in North Dakota. This is a minimum." The NDAC economists studied all kinds of financing—from family and friends, from the Farmers Home Administration, Production Credit loans, bank loans, father-son partnerships. It was found that credit restrictions pinched many young veterans so that their farming wasn't efficient.

In general, the economists boil down their findings under four headings. 1) shortage of land; 2) high costs of land, livestock and machinery at the start of farming; 3) high operating costs which start in long before crops and other returns can make a comparable return; 4) difficult credit, both in amount and in terms under which it is available.

While the economists give credit to the veterans' on-the-farm training program, they say frankly that the four handicaps listed above make it actually impossible for these young farmers to practice the lessons they have learned in agricultural classes. Efficiency can be taught in the classroom, but if a man hasn't got the money to buy efficient machinery, to milk an efficient number of cows, or plant an efficient number of acres, his classroom efficiency doesn't mean much, these studies showed.

Meat Judging Team Organize, Take Trip

The first NDAC Meat Judging Team was organized this year by Dr. Verlin K. Johnson, assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry. The purpose of the team, and the class in Animal Husbandry 316 from which it started, is for red meat selecting and grading. Red meat is beef, pork and lamb.

The four member team, with Dr. Johnson as their coach, will compete for honors at the Intercollegiate Livestock Show at Chicago December 1st, 1953.

Team selection is done on competitive basis. Individuals making highest scores in class workouts will be picked to go. Eligible candidates for the team from Animal Husbandry 316 are George Birk, William Costello, Leonard Dalzell, LaDon Johnson, J. D. Latham, Dar-el Lettun, James Michaelson, Bjerne Naaden, Paul Ruliffson, Wesley Tossett, Robert Velure and Wallace Payne.

What's On Our Mind Students Abuse Bison Room

Just how much do you appreciate our new Student Union? Have you already forgotten the years we have gone without it, leaving your manners behind with those memories. When the information for this story was received, I really wondered what the answers would be. Let's state the many things you have so thoughtlessly done in the Bison Room.

First of all, much candy and gum have been stolen from the cases. Drinking glasses, ashtrays, and salt shakers have been taken, for some childish reason, as souvenirs? Gum has already been found deposited under the tables and counters! Cigarette burns and wear from shoes are evident on the new furniture! Ashes and soggy napkins are carelessly left in cups, and water is left in the ashtrays.

Many of you are completely unaware of these, but those who have practiced these mistreatments should begin right now to be more considerate.

Why can't students who are in college act like adults! We all can benefit from the new building if we take good care of it, and it doesn't require any effort to reach for the ashtray to deposit smoldering cigarettes, ashes, and gum; to keep feet on the floor and not propped on a chair; or to pay for a candy bar. The Bison Room has been trying to operate at very low prices, but this cannot continue when $50 in candy is taken and 100 drinking glasses are missing.

Let's start now to keep our building nice and running efficiently. A little more patience and courtesy could be shown while waiting at the lunch counter. Much of the equipment is not installed yet, so it is not easy for those who are working to get the lunches prepared quickly. They are doing their best—the rest is up to you.

How's Your Perception?

Are we really alive?

This may seem to be a rather silly question, but it is meant in a manner which is not immediately evident. Our state of being alive in a physical sense is quite obvious. We eat, sleep, breathe, play, and work. We go through all the normal actions and processes of life. But if we stopped here we would only be alive in an animal sense. We would be just another organism.

Fortunately, however, human life does go beyond mere animal characteristics. Man has been given talents above those of the rest of the animal kingdom. We are aware of many of them: judgement, reason, memory, speech and emotion. The development of the first four and the effective control of the latter have been emphasized throughout man's history.

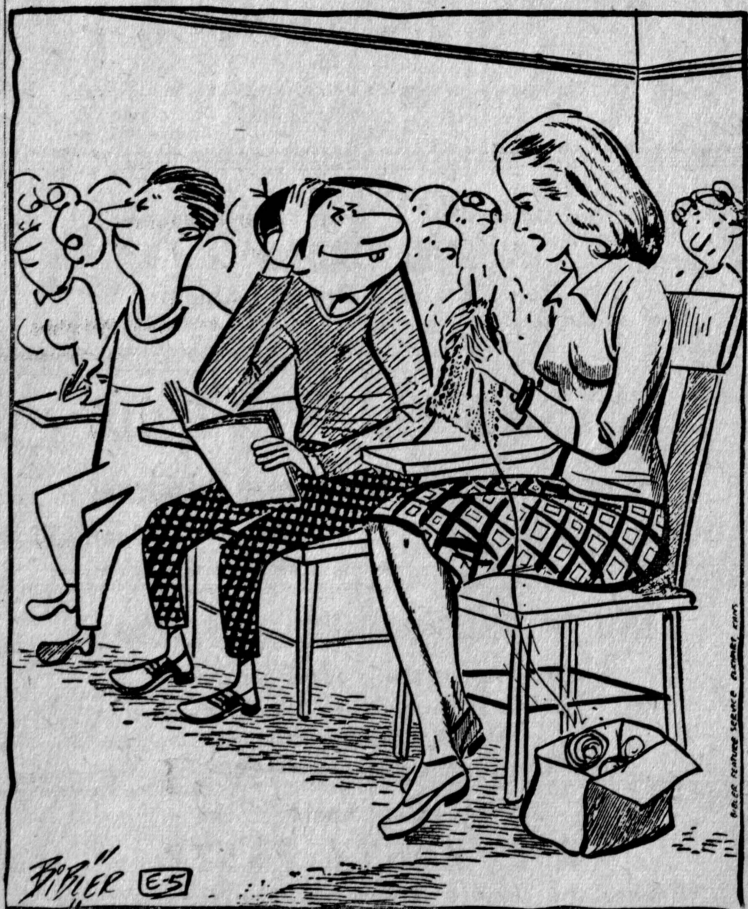

One talent, however, which has been taken for granted perhaps more than any other is perception. Perception is the mental recognition of a sensory image. Our minds give meaning and significance to the senses' physical reaction to stimuli. But it happens to automatically that we seldom think of the process of perception in this manner. When understood in this light, however, we see that our perception can be improved just as we improve our other mental qualities.

Take sight for an example. We may think that we see everything around us when, in reality, we miss a great deal. This is especially applicable in the out of doors. We may perceive an outdoor scene in a general sort of way, perhaps seeing here a clump of trees, here a wheat field, there a towering mountain. We can increase our enjoyment of nature, however, by being more aware of the infinite number of shapes and shades which it presents to us.

Instead of seeing merely a clump of trees, we may notice, for example, that the leaves aren't just green but, rather, show varying shades of green depending on the variety. Instead of just a field of yellow grain we see the rhythmic, wave-like movements made by the wind. The tall mountain becomes a blue-hazed fortress, pointing its pinnacle into the sky.

Waring Organizes Workshop, Active In Business, Music

Many choir directors throughout the country have been aided by Fred Waring. Waring and the Pennsylvanians will appear at the NDAC Field House on November 24. The choir directors have attended his Shawnee Workshop.

Fred Waring has been intensely interested in music education. To foster better choral singing in America he has organized the Fred Waring Music workshop which last summer toured across the nation and was attended by some fifteen hundred choral directors.

He personally supervises the workshop, visits many school music departments, lends his arrangements and special recordings to music directors and through Shawnee Press, his publishers, makes his musical arrangements the common property of all who wish to use them.

Fred Waring's pioneer work in choral music and his music education activities have won him the admiration of great musicians such as Toscanini, and Fablan Seivitsky of the Indianapolis Symphony.

Music is not the sole interest in the life of this man. He owns and operates a luxurious summer resort, Shawnee Inn; runs Shawnee Press, a music publishing firm; is the perfecter of a steam iron and famous Waring Blender; is a trustee of the Penn State College, his alma mater, and an active member of the Lambs Club.

Tickets for the Waring Concert here are now available at Daveau's or at the Little Country Theatre, NDAC.

Symphony Features Barnum As Soloist

Something new in instrumentation, as well as several new musicians, will be heard when the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony Orchestra presents its second concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 22, according to Sigvald Thompson, conductor.

Marion Barnum, Canadian pianist from Vancouver, will be guest soloist. And the concert will mark the first appearance with the orchestra of a new bassoonist, William Abbott, head of the Music Department of Mayville State Teachers College.

The instrumental innovation to be heard at the next concert is an electronic musical device that local audiences are hearing perhaps as early as any symphony-concert audience in America.

A French invention, the clavoline was first introduced into this country at the American Association of Music Merchants Convention last July, according to A. J. Daveau. It is a keyboard instrument whose stops are played much as those of an organ. It is adjustable to reproduce the tonal qualities of about thirty musical instruments. The English horn it simulates superbly, says Sigvald Thompson.

Admission will be without charge. Reserved seats for the rest of the season's concerts are available to contributors to the Orchestral Association's sustaining fund, says Mrs. W. S. Shaw, president, 1319 S. 9th St., Fargo.

'Kiss Me, Kate' At Field House Wed.; 'Limelight' Follows 'The Moon' At Roxy

by Don Berger

There's enough going on this week that you can probably get by without even thinking of homework. We'll start with the movies.

"Mogambo" was filmed 21 years ago as "Red Dust," but then Clark Gable had Jean Harlow as leading lady. This time he goes into the jungle (and who wouldn't) with Ava Gardner and Grace Kelly. Since it's a jungle picture, there are many travelogue-like scenes of animals and Africa. And because it's a movie, there's a triangle of emotions. The outcome is fairly predictable—but there's enough predicaments to keep you entertained. "Mogambo" starts at the Fargo November 19.

"The All American" gives us the chance to experience a little more football before we pack our pennants for another year. In this one, Tony Curtis has to prove he can not only play football but be a regular college guy as well. He's from the wrong side of the tracks and his play-boy college friends turn on the cold shoulder until his winning the big game reserves a place in their hearts, at least until graduation. It's a nice little rah-rah picture at the Towne November 15-17.

Walt Disney has turned out another knights in shining armour epic using people from real life instead of his cartoon characters. In "The Sword and the Rose", Disney presents a movie everyone will enjoy from the matinee crowd on up. Richard Todd is the star out-Robining Robin Hood. All this Technicolor chivalry will start at the Towne November 18th.

ALSO SHOWING:

"Calamity Jane" has Doris Day shooting and singing in a sorta "Annie Get Your Gun" type of thing at the Fargo November 13-15.

"Scared Stiff" with Martin and Lewis has a plot that doesn't interfere with the real reason of the movie: an occasion for Lewis to be funny and Martin to try and sing. Elizabeth Scott is the girl friend. Hope and Crosby also show up. It's at the Moorhead Nov. 15-17.

"Call Me Madam" is good enough to see again. Ethel Merman is the lusty hostess with the mostess. Donald O'Connor wins a princess, there's a happy ending and Technicolor, too. Isis, November 15-17.

"A Lion Is In The Streets" is on at the Towne through tomorrow. The story of the rise of a politician starring James Cagney and Barbara Hale.

"Limelight" will start at the Roxy as soon as "The Moon Is Blue" finishes its extended run. This is the last movie starring and directed by Charles Chaplin and is supposed to show Chaplin's versatility. Claire Boon is the dancer.

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT:

"Kiss Me Kate" is a jazzed-up, loose fitting version of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew". But don't let the mention of Shakespeare scare you away—you'd never recognize his work this time. This musical comedy has splashy dancing and songs you'll recognize from the hit parade a few years back. "Kiss Me Kate" will be at the Field House Wednesday, November 18 at 8 p.m. This road show is being sponsored by the Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR.

Nov. 13-14 Last two days of the F.M. Community theater's production of "Therese" at the Ben Franklin Auditorium.

Nov. 13-14 "Hedda Gabbler"—Hinrik Ibsen's study of futility and frustration. Concordia College Chapel 8 p.m.

Nov. 16 Engineers Meeting will have D. Lee Chestnut speaking on "The Atom Speaks and Echoes the World of God". Festival Hall 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Nov. 17 David Bar-Illan, pianist. A Lyceum at Festival Hall 8.15 p.m.

WHAT ELSE?

"Weekend", N.B.C.'s Sunday newspaper of the air is two hours of everything. It starts at 3:00.

"Colgate Comedy Hour" on T.V. will have Abbott and Costello with Peggy Lee and Gene Nelson as guest stars.

The Charcoal Broiler in the Tree Top Room, a new feature, is now going full blast.

GLANCING BACK (TV-PU Dept.)

"Medallion Theater" concerned itself last week with Beulah Bondi dying and Jackie Cooper coaxing her on. By the time she died, most of the viewers had passed on too.

"Goodyear Theater" was about a frustrated TV career girl. The ending would have been enhanced if they'd carted her off in a paddy wagon. But as it turned out, I got a phone call so didn't see the finish. That proved to be a stroke of luck in my favor.

"Armchair Theater" must have gotten some Charlie Chan movies cut-rate. No wonder our relations with China are so strained.

LSA Program For All NDAC Students

"LSA is not tied up with the Lutheran Church. It is independent from the church as the YMCA," explains Rev. John Schultz, supervising pastor of the college Lutheran Students Association. "Pastor John" reports that it is an organization for students of all the Lutheran churches, but it is not a result of the churches. It offers fellowship, fun and worship to all Lutheran students.

The LSA program starts at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning with a breakfast and bible study under the supervision of Othelia Hauge, program director and counsellor. A fellowship supper is eaten at the LSA center in the College Y at 5:30 p.m. followed by a meeting at 6:30.

Although most churches hold their main meeting Sunday evenings, Rev. Schultz believes that the daily meetings are most important. These meetings are achieved by a cafeteria lunch at the student center every noon, Monday through Friday. About 50 to 70 students participate in the fellowship and "family devotions" of the noon hour.

"Study groups are the result of the students' own initiative. A group may get together and decide how long their group study will last. Some phase of theology is the topic of five to ten study groups," states Rev. Schultz.

"The Christian Student and the University" is the topic of a non-credit course given by Rev. Schultz on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. This is for those students that feel that they want to take a religion course, but do not have the time to prepare for the tests of a two credit course.

Recreation and vesper services are held each Friday night by the Foundation.

Officers for the coming year are: Bob Leiseth, president; Lois Knatterud and Eddie Gordhammer, vice presidents; Joan Solberg, secretary; Loran Beiber, treasurer.

Campus Afflicted By Unknown Malady; Aunt Hanna Supplies Cure For Symptoms

by Wesley Rae

It has come to my attention that there is an unknown malady afflicting certain students on this campus. No one knows who, when, or where it will strike. The disorder seems to fall into a pattern of attack; for instance, following Homecoming festivities there were several cases. I also understand that it affects some during afternoons in the latter part of the week.

In view of the potential cases which may follow Thanksgiving holidays and the Military Ball, I thought a discussion of symptoms and cures might be appropriate. Before we begin, I must clarify my position. As a lover of books, I am seldom afflicted, so my knowledge is for the most part secondary.

First for the symptoms. As far as I have been able to ascertain, this malady is attended by dizziness, passing out, puffing of the region immediately below the eyeball, and scarlet coloring of the nasal housing.

Secondly, the causes, according to my information, seem to cluster about overheated rooms, smoky atmosphere, over-indulgence in food, or some other cause foreign to my knowledge, or which is purposely being kept from me.

This disorder may affect different people in various ways, of course. It creeps upon some like a subtle woodtick out for blood; others it strikes like a hammer blow on the base of the skull. But no matter how, the fact remains that it is still there the next morning. It may last for days.

As in all remedies for this sort of thing, there are a few general rules to alleviate the distressing pain. First let's not open any blinds. Sunlight or any light—even shadows—are harmful. We might even pull the covers over our heads. Second, for pity's sake shut off the radio. Third, under no circumstance shall we poke our heads to see if they are really that size.

Now that we have taken care of the general precautions, let's proceed to more specific cures for specific cases.

For dizziness, one simple cure will suffice. Slap the patient in the face with a chilled watermelon rind, such as Mother saves for pickling.

Passing out brings a little more complicated process. First, let's get a large cast iron pot. Now let's boil together eight ounces of turpentine (raw), three cups Hilex, one bottle oil of peppermint, six tablespoons of chloroform, and just a dash of kerosene.*

While this boils, gather a few balsam shavings. Toss them in the pot and steep for ten minutes. Suspend in cheesecloth bag and waft under the nose.

For puffy eyes there's just one thing: Splash your whole head in icy water every five seconds for one minute. Keep adding ice.

Red noses present two alternatives. You can either feign a real rowser of a cold, or, especially for the coming holidays, apply for a job on TV as Rudolph the Reindeer.

Let's hope that this dissertation will help you all.

*I always give credit where credit is due, and this cure I found written on a small napkin between the pages of Aunt Hanna's copy of Pilgrim's Progress.

Esposito, Fougner Lead Bison To Augie Rout; Herd Ties Morningside For 5th

by John Shepard

A 21 point final quarter surge put the North Dakota State Bison back into the win column as they rapped the Augustana Vikings at Sioux Falls Saturday by a score of 34-18.

The Vikings had the Bison standing on edge as they held 6-0 and 12-6 fire quarter and half time leads respectively.

In the third period the superior Bison reserves told the tale of the game as they outplayed the tiring Vikings.

Augustana struck for its first touchdown late in the initial quarter climaxing a 64 yard march with Quarterback Darold Guttormson sneaking over from the one.

In the second period Augustana halfback Ray Billie smashed through the Bison line for 30 yards and the second Viking touchdown climaxing a long drive by the Vikings.

Esposito rifled a short pass to fullback Don Fougner in the latter part of the second stanza to give the Bison their first and only touchdown in the initial half.

In the third quarter Billie streaked 41 yards on a handoff from Guttormson to give the cellar dwelling Vikings their third and final touchdown with 7:15 left in the period.

At this point Esposito started showing his superior passing strength. A number of short passes brought the ball to the Viking 10 where big Don Fougner broke off tackle on a 10 yard jaunt to pay dirt. A 42 yard Esposito pass to end Chuck Thurm put the ball on the Viking 4 where Fougner again plunged for the score.

In the closing minutes of the final stanza, the potent armed Esposito flipped a 15 yard running pass to end Glenn Hill in the end zone for the final herd tally. Esposito booted four out of five extra points, the first attempt being blocked, and he also completed seven out of ten aeriels in the Herd victory.

The South Dakota State Jackrabbits won the North Central Conference football championship last Saturday night by edging the Morningside Maroons in a high scoring fray at Sioux City, Ia. 31-29.

The highlight of the decisive tilt was the great comeback by the Jackrabbits in the second half when the score saw them on the short end twice. Morningside dominated the scoring column as the Maroons held period leads of 7-6, 13-6, and 22-19, but the fourth quarter Jackrabbit surge overtook the Morningside lead.

Mike Radtke and Jerry Welch showed offensive prowess for the winners as each packed the mail into paydirt twice. Morningside showed more team offensive power as each of five men scored once with Don Puff and Buck Miller ripping off yardage on the ground throughout the game.

Students Need Place To Swim At NDAC

If there are no lakes nearby and no one to teach them, children aren't going to learn to swim in their imaginations. Our North Dakota high schools are not big enough for swimming pools with the exception of about five. Where else is there a better place to learn than at college? Yes, there is a swimming course offered in the evenings at Fargo High School for college students once a week.

However, the college can not make it compulsory to every one, and consequently it does not reach those who need the instruction the most. It is doing 90 students out of the 1900 attending the NDAC some good.

Ninety students is only a small part of the students that could and should have the use of a good swimming pool. College students of today don't have time to spend to travel to the other side of town to learn how to swim for an hour.

However, if room was made in their schedules for them to go to the field house for an hour's instruction as a part of their physical education training in a pool that is standard size, most students would welcome the chance. They realize that knowing how to swim is not only a good safety measure, but also a wonderful way to have fun and to enjoy physical exercise until late in life.

The win by the South Dakotans will put them into undisputed first place in the final conference standings with a 5-0-1 record. The only mar on their slate was a tie administered to them by the NDU Sioux.

Star end Dick Beetsch grabbed the pigskin out of the air three times in the end zone to lead the Iowa State Teachers College Panthers to a 34-27 win over the SDU Coyotes last Saturday afternoon at Vermillion. Art Landau and Larry Bitcon each talled once via the ground to assure the victory. For the Coyotes, Ralph Polenz dominated the offensive play as he accounted for two TD's and split the uprights for three extra points. Four fumbles by the Coyotes undoubtedly were the contributing factors to the pack's loss.

The win will leave the Panthers in second place in the final loop standings.

After trailing 18-13 at the end of the third quarter, the Bison of NDSC turned on full steam in the fourth quarter to crush the hapless Vikings of Augustana 34-18 at Sioux Falls. This game was played last Saturday night.

The Bison win boosted the herd into a fifth place tie with Morningside in the present loop readings. The Vikings dropped into the loop cellar after going through the season without being able to garner a NCC win.

The herd victory can be attributed to the shrewd engineering and passing of squat Frank Esposito and the dynamic running and pass receiving of big Don Fougner. The husky Williston fullback seemed to have found himself as he was on the receiving end of two Esposito tosses in the end zone and scored two touchdowns on running plays. Jim Hitter while playing his last game for the herd must be given credit for his commendable job of field play. Hitter, who saw little action throughout the season, inserted many down field blocks at opportune times which permitted the herd ground threat to penetrate consistently into Augie territory.

North Central Conference football activities terminate this weekend with one game scheduled. The NDU Sioux travel to Vermillion, S.D., to clash with the SDU Coyotes Saturday. If the Sioux should either win or lose, their third place standing in the loop would be unchanged. A loss for the Coyotes would place them in a three way tie for fourth, fifth, and sixth place in the NCC final standings with NDSC and Morningside—each team would own a 2-4-0 record. A win for the South Dakotans would place them into undisputed fourth place with a 3-3-0 record.

Each school is to sponsor a basketball team in the meet, but team participation in bowling, ping-pong and badminton will be selected at random from the attending students.

Plans are set for play to begin at 9:30 a.m. and to continue until 4:00 p.m. At noon a luncheon will be provided at the Student Union by the N.D.S. W.A.A. The program scheduled for the luncheon will feature Beverly Selland who will show slides of her trip to Europe as an Exchange Student.

RON SCHWINKENDORF

PAUL WERNER

JOEL HUNZIKER

JIM HITTER

JERRY LESTER

BOB NOLAN

Adding depth to the middle of the Bison line is sophomore center Ron Schwinkendorf.

The chunky Mandan reserve is proving his worth to the Herd squad by his display of unending enthusiasm and spirit. Touch opposition is what Ron thrives on and when the going gets tough he is able to perform admirably.

Ron undoubtedly will see more action next season when an added punch is needed to maintain a stiff forward wall.

Hampered by a series of injuries this season but still in there playing his heart out is tackle Paul Werner.

From Hammond, Indiana, Werner is never satisfied until a job is well done. He refuses to let leg injuries interfere with the football season. Deadly accurate blocks and tackles are his calling cards. A skillful defenseman, Werner can be even more adept where a crucial block is needed.

Playing his first season for the Herd is end Joel Hunziker.

Being a sophomore, the husky 195 pound Willmar, Minnesota, gridder has seen limited action this year. Hunziker is sure to be a top notch contender for a varsity berth next season.

Considered to be one of the toughest defensive ends on the squad, Joel can be counted on for top-flight service whenever he is in the game.

Playing in his last season is dependable reserve half-back Jim Hitter, who hails from Park Rapids, Minnesota.

Jim, who undoubtedly displayed his best football form in the Augustana-Bison fray must be given considerable praise for his contribution in keeping the State offense clicking.

His magnificent field play during the latter part of the 1953 season will be definitely missed by the Herd next year.

After playing football for Pasadena City College last year, Jerry Lester enrolled at State and hasn't been fully recognized on the gridiron this year.

Jerry is regarded as being one of the fastest men on the squad. With Lester packing the pigskin on a break away or an around end play he is virtually unstoppable.

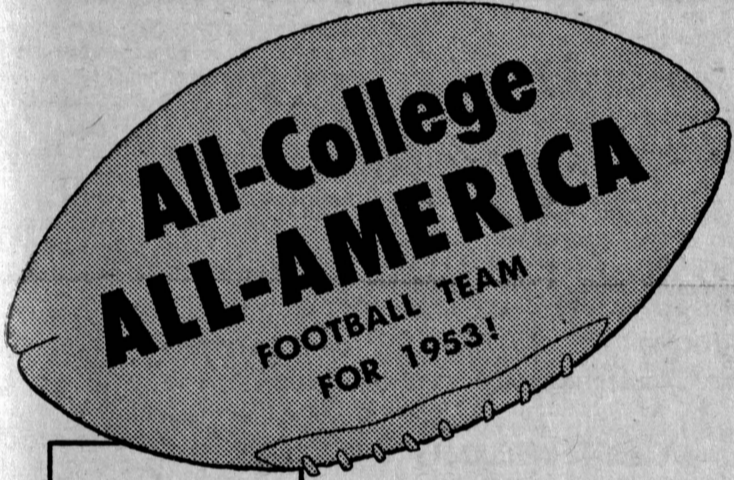

The herd coaches may find the shifty and skillful running of Lester an added asset to next years Varsity team.

Backing up Esposito in the State quarterback slot is able Bob Nolan.

Bob has seen restricted service this year due to the elimination of the two platoon system. The lanky gridder proved his defensive ability last season when he alternated the signal calling position with Esposito and backed up the forward wall very skillfully.

Nolan may again have the chance to prove his worth on the gridiron next season.

Greetings . . .

The week old sports editor, Dick Jolosky, sat on a wild hair a few nights ago and enlisted in the Marines. It's actually a shame to see a good man work for a living, but thirty years from now he can look at life with a different standpoint of view.

So now a new column with a new sports editor will begin to give you a little pertinent poop from inside the sports world. If you don't find this column interesting or enjoyable, my only recommendation to you is that you probably will have to break down and read the Fargo Forum's Sports articles.

As a matter of local football interest, the great high school clash for the North Dakota State Class A championship will be played Saturday, Nov. 14, at 1:30 p.m. on Dacotah Field. The Saint Mary's Saints of Bismarck will clash with the local Shanley high Deacons. Undoubtedly this game will be worth your while because a very good display of football action will take place between these highly potent teams.

By now you know that the Bison gridgers walloped the Vikings of Augustana last Saturday night to the tune of 34-18. The entire Bison squad finally put on a performance in harmony with their pre-season rating of being the best in the conference. Throughout the season the herd displayed a lack of fire and fight as was visible to everyone. The Staters had the potentialities to drub every team that they came up against so of course they were quite a let down to the fans. Naturally a good team is a fired up team provided that the squad is rounded out with capable men. But to give credit where credit is due I must extend my congrats to the herd for ending up their campaign in a successful fashion. Some of the men who showed their stuff were seniors Fougner and Hitter in the backfield coupled with the reliable Esposito. Ridder along with many other stalwart linemen also did commendable jobs in the forward line.

I would like to extend my appreciation to the artist whose cartoon will appear on the sports page with each addition. The wicked wielding penman is Bob Teschendorf.

In previous sports editions not much has been said about intramural sports. To me a very important feature to the campus activities of all students, women as well as men, is participation in intramural sports. Any important news about such athletic participation within the school submitted to this department will be highly regarded.

Well, basketball will be on the agenda in the months to follow so all of us at state will begin to center our interest from the grid action to the court performances.

Before I close this week my unrelinquished praise goes to the Bison gridgers and especially to coach Mac Wenskunas and his able assistants. Until next week then always remember the best policy is to hang loose—never hang tough.

Army ROTC Opens New Enlarged Training Program

The Department of the Army has recently introduced an entirely new program in the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) instruction being conducted in senior colleges and universities throughout the United States. The new program emphasizes General Military Science training instead of specialized Branch training and sets up new qualification standards for institutions offering ROTC courses.

In the past, the ROTC program has presented specialized branch training in sixteen arms and services. The new General Military Science Curriculum contains a college level course which stresses the history of the Army and individual leadership as inspirational and integrating factors which tend to add meaning to the large amount of detailed information presented throughout the course.

The development of junior officers who have outstanding leadership ability and a broad background of military knowledge, who are ready, willing and qualified to be assigned to any branch of the service for specialized training after graduation from college is one of the principal objectives of this program.

Both civilian and military educators worked together in developing the General Military Science Curriculum which consists of four academic years of general military instruction and one six-week summer camp of specialized training. The school year 1952-53 was an experimental period and the complete curriculum was back in 25 new institutions accepted into the Army ROTC system along with 34 institutions which formerly maintained branch units.

The General Military Science program for the 1953-54 academic year was extended to colleges and universities that specifically requested the change, (NDAC is one of the colleges which desired this change in the program and is presently converting to the new curriculum.)

While the schools are changing program, the third year (first year in Advanced ROTC) is modified to insure a smooth progression from the branch material training to the full General Military Science Course in the fourth year. Those who are in the fourth year now will continue the branch material instruction.

When a student is in his fourth year of general military instruction, he will have the opportunity to indicate his preference for assignment in one of the sixteen branches of the Army. There is no guarantee that each student will be accepted into the branch of his choice, as the Professors of Military Science and Tactics, together with the College authorities will recommend to the Department of the Army the branch which the student should enter. This recommendation will be based upon the students' major academic course, class standing and his qualities and potential value as a leader.

Macaroni Association Sponsors 15B Grant

The National Macaroni Ass'n. has approved a grant of $1000 to the NDAC experiment station for increase of new 15B rust resistant durum wheats in California this winter. Dr. Glenn Smith, chief of the division of plant industry at NDAC, will accept the grant for the experiment station on Nov. 6 at the durum show at Langdon, N. D.

This grant will be used to pay shipping costs and special expenses to insure return of the increase from California in time for early spring planting and maximum increase in 1954. It is separate from the larger amount recently made available by the North Dakota emergency commission from the state contingency fund increasing Ld. 356 durum and CT 186 hard red spring wheat.
