McLain emerged victor in the three-way contest for student body president. Twelve new members for the coming year's Student Senate were nenamed.

In the presidential race McLain led all the way, but was followed closely by George Schwartz. The final tabulation showed McLain on top with 548 votes, Schwartz close behind with 506, and Monson following with 301.

New one-year senators are Jean Ann Nelson with 580 votes, Fred Flanders with 443, Pat Moore with 435, Jean Anderson with 406, Bly-

The two year senate race saw Jerry Schnell walk away from the top of the field with a booming 794 votes. The other five were Margaret Platt, 571; Betty Pe gley, 560; Bill Lantz, 566; Sue McCooe, 533; and Bucky Haas, 527.

The outcome of the election

The presidential race remained close between Schwartz and McLain right up to the finish, with Monson bringing up the rear all evening.

The senate race was a close one all the way, except for Schnell and Nelson, who led their respective departments from start to finish.

State College Heifer Takes Top Trophy At Winter Show

In the judging Wednesday NDSC walked off with many other top honors. In addition to the grand champion Shorthorn heifer, SC also had the reserve champion Angus bull and grand champion Hampshire ram.

NDSC also scored in the sales Thursday and Friday. Another Shorthorn heifer was named grand champion Shorthorn sale heifer and later sold for $60. A Columbia ram consigned by NDSC went top-selling at $162.

In what has been described as the best Winter Show to date, the NDSC cattle, under the supervision of Bob Magill and Clint Kopp, placed high in most classes.

Professor Knute A. Henning, chairman, department of architecture at NDSC, spoke before the spring meeting of the South Dakota Chapter of the American Institute of Architects at Watertown, S. D., this week.

in the midst of the quarter, and it is indeed difficult to think of some worthwhile topic to discuss, praise, criticize, or just plain chew the fat on.

The student elections are over, the winners congratulated, and the discussion, praise, criticize, or just chew the fat on.

Thoughts are turning to the outdoor sports of golf, tennis, pennant and other forms of monkey business.

That winter wardrobe of clothes is losing its attractive force for the sartorial perfectionist. It is a period of frustration. The winter clothes are too heavy and the spring clothes are too light for the changeable weather of March.

Fly not yet, 'tis but the hour of transition.

The seniors are beginning to realize their brief but glorious fling at college life is drawing to a rapid close. They have but one quarter in which to impart to their successors all the knowledge and wisdom they have acquired. It is now or never for them, if they wish to leave their mark for posterity's sake.

But one must eventually run out of nonsense, and so, as the old saying goes: "Onward, onward, oh time in the dance!" so I'm going too.

We leave you now, to return another day, ready or not.

Marriage Course Could Have Merits On State Campus

To the Editor:

Have you ever heard of a course in marriage preparation and personal relations?

The University of Minnesota has a department that gives counseling and offers credit courses on these subjects.

College students, especially girls, have long talked about the adjustments needed for marriage and the possibilities of furthering their careers after marriage. Some students feel there is a need for education in such personal relations, so a number of colleges have tried to meet this with just such a department.

What do more students at NDSC think about a human relations department on their campus? Many have said that they would be willing to work for it.

Now You Can Be Younger Than She Is!

It's a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls decline to make romantic alliances with freshman boys.

Thus, the freshman boys are left dandle, and many's the night the entire freshman dorm sob's itself to sleep.

An equally damp situation exists among upper-class girls. With upperclassmen being snatched up by freshman girls, the poor upper-class girls are reduced to dreary, manless evenings of Scrabble and home permanents.

There is a solution to this morbid situation—a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups find solace with one another?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take the case of Albert Payson Sigfoss and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vindictable University, was walking across campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the support form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

"Don't worry, lady," said Albert Payson. "I am yours!"

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stepped, struck by an inspiration. "Lady," he said, "you're miserable because you can't get a date. So am I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his youthful head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find many splendid things to do together."

"Like what?" asked Eustacia.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could get a third and play some one-on-one.""

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and skip some stones and maybe catch a few frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length.

"How about some run-sheep-run?" he suggested.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia. "I'm losing my attractive force for marriage.

"Then you are not immature!" she cried, clamping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Philip Morris is the very essence of wisdom, incontrovertible proof that you know rich, natural pleasure from pale, poor substitutes! Albert Payson, I am yours!"

And today they are married and run one of the biggest wicker and raffia establishments in Blue Earth, Minnesota.

Study Tips Offered To Help Students Face Final Exams

Do you know how to study? With final exams beginning, students start cramming. This could be eliminated if they had a basic system for studying. You should try to develop some good study habits now and practice them for spring quarter. Here are tips from several “How to Study” guides.

Study in one place. Pick a room that’s quiet and make sure you have good light and ample work space.

Study at the same time every day. Eliminate the temptation of TV and the gang’s hangout by setting a special time to study and sticking to it.

Have all your reference books handy. Along with your text and library books, keep a dictionary at hand. Get into the habit of looking up the pronunciation and meaning of words that you don’t know.

Study alone. Once you’ve been over your lesson by yourself it’s okay to go over it with a friend, but do the real digesting by yourself.

Keep readable notes. Write clearly so that anybody could read them.

Make an outline of your lesson. Make a clear brief digest of what you’re studying. It will come in handy when you’re reviewing for exams.

Take time out to relax between subjects. Stand up and stretch, blink your eyes to rest them or take a short walk to ease the strain.

Understand why you are studying... that the more you know, the more you understand, the better student you will be.

Fashion Tips To Aid Women In Business World

The new “successful look” may appeal to any fashion-minded young woman who wants to make good in a man’s world.

Soft, fuller lines sum up the list of hints on what it takes to be a success in fashion according to the March issue of Mademoiselle.

The cape is versatile. Look for it alone, or as part of a coat, suit or dress. More cling and less line are becoming notes.

The Dutch Boy skirt, the bloused back, and lantern sleeves may be used to soften the severe lines of a sheath.

Any cost, suit, dress or blouse is likely to succeed if it is of silk. This popular fiber is found in chiffon, crepe, surah, and tuck.

Bowlers, Muddy Feet, Dirty Ash Trays, None Of These Can Outshine Money

did you ever stop and think how you and your fellow students appear in the eyes of a Union employee? Let's find out!

First, take the fellows who work in the bowling alley. To the pin setter a bowler is nothing more than a machine which frequently gives a ball down the alley to set the pins flying. The pins have to be picked up and set up and the ball returned only to have the curious bowler knock them down again.

The fellow behind the desk? He is a patient man who disdains shoes and takes money. He firmly believes that bowlers are completely filtered when it comes to reading signs such as “Please Return Balls To Racks.”

Across the hall is the bookkeeper. These people put up with a quick rush of student who demand to be waited upon instantly. They have the never-ending choice of stacking shelves and keeping the answer? Simple! Payday again.

Iowa State College Daily Reflects On Student Springtime Relationships

(ACP)—Spring seems to have come to Iowa. This editorial from the Iowa State College Daily, Ames, Iowa, reflects some thoughts on the subject.

With the coming of spring a student grows restless. He dreams of picnics, gold, and party raids.

He is the first to put on Bermuda shorts, to sport a summer tie and whistle at the girls.

That's a college student. And give him a few more hours of daylight and the promise of added hours to come and he can suddenly organize parties or sleep longer than anyone.

His darkest thoughts are brightened by thoughts of an approaching weekend. The cold war, Middle East situation, graduation and active military duty are intangible objects hidden in the lengthening shadows of longer days.

Suddenly he feels better. Examinations aren't so important. Dates are easier to get. And the student gazes out the window dreaming—about monkey business.

And after all is done and said, we must conclude that the anthropologist is right—man did stem from the small version of the ape—commonly known as the monkey. We conclude that this explains the monkey business that occurs on the campus every spring.

What's doing...at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Professors practice what they preach...and vice versa

Following a practice of twenty years, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft will again welcome a group of college professors as members of the engineering staff during the coming summer months.

Last year our "summer professors" represented colleges from coast to coast. They tackled important projects in such diverse fields as instrumentation and vibration, combustion, compressible flow, and materials development. Despite the limited time available to these men, they made significant contributions to our overall effort.

Though it was to be expected that both the company and the participating professors might benefit directly from such a program, the sphere of influence has been much broader. The many students who are taught by these professors during the college year are sharing the ultimate benefits...profiting from lectures that are sparked by the kind of practical experience that can be gained with a recognized industry leader like Pratt & Whitney Aircraft.

Several "summer profs" voluntarily spent part of their time conducting refresher courses for P & W's young engineers. One assignment involved a comprehensive survey of equipment for the expansion of high-altitude test facilities in Williams Laboratory, the world's most complete, privately owned jet engine lab.

Technical contributions were varied. Worthwhile assistance was given in vibration and instrumentation engine studies.

"The Plough and The Stars", a play written by Sean O'Casey and directed by Frederick Walsh, is being shown at the Little Country Theatre tonight and tomorrow night. The story is based on life in a Dublin tenement house shortly before and during the Irish Easter Rebellion of 1916.

The play opens with talk of war and we find that Nora, in a selfish patriotic hideout on the top floor of the tenement house, is alone. Mollser, the fireworks seller, stands at the open window and the bullets of a sniper fly past. Nora's uncle, an old soldier, is played by Frederick Emery. The uncle, a fiery old man, is quick tempered and fidgety (perhaps too fidgety), and he believes he is constantly being "thwarted and tormented."

Fluther Good is portrayed by Bessie Burgess. He is a conscientious carpenter, a heated arguer, a rebellious freedom seeker, an alcoholic, and a coward who is quick to fight. Fluther speaks without an Irish brogue, and is often marked down as a "good woman" but dies in an effort to protect Nora from the danger of an invasion of the tenement house.

In Act IV, the final act, the mood changes from that of humor and chauvinism to one of tragedy. Bessie Burgess has become hysterical after losing her baby, and Mollser, the fireworks seller, has gone to the war in France. Patricia Connolly, playing the part of Nora, finally comes back to her, and Fudge, the tenement house elevator, winds up as a "good woman" but dies in an effort to protect Nora from the danger of an invasion of the tenement house.

Chevy is America's "hot" car - officially!

Chevrolet Wins Coveted Manufacturers' Trophy at Daytona Beach as "best performing U. S. automobile!"

Want facts about performance? Then look at the official figures from NASCAR's internationally famous Daytona Beach competition for stock cars. Here's what you'll find: Chevrolet, in two weeks of blistering competition, proved itself as America's Number One performance car. Nothing in the low-price field could touch it.

No other car, regardless of price, scored such a sweep. And Chevy walked away with the famous Manufacturers' Trophy, hands down! This is the 57th Chevrolet, by all odds, the most astonishing performer ever produced in the low-price field. Best of all, this superiority isn't limited to just a few extra-cost high-performance models. Every type of Chevrolet—from the six-cylinder models right up to the 283-horsepower "Super Turbo-Fire" V8's, from the single-cylinder V8's with Powerglide to the stick-shift "270"—is a championship car.

Spectrum Sports Scribe's Selection for All-Conference Team is Flynn

Hello people. Last week my brand, Mr. Luberon, the sports editor of the Dakota Student gave a few rummery remarks about the selection of the Railroad Bynd winner.

He charged and we quote: '"...anyone did not win the award. It was an outright gift. The only award he received was the Fitzgerald award".'

Luberon, you really have nothing to gripe about. The voting was a close call and Flynn came out the no. 1. You seemed to think that big storm in Alaska in 1954-55-56 and a ridiculous you can be.

How can you blame Fitz for some of the selection when it is clear that none of the three men were unanimous.

Your burst of hot air was un necessary only proved how ridiculous you can be.

I wish to take nothing away from Haaven. He is perhaps the greatest ball player the NCC has ever known. But, considering the sounding and the scoring records during the season. Though he was valuable, he was not valuable on the field at one time and took unfair advantage of his players.

Bison In Steve Gorman League Race; Sioux Are Contemplating Withdrawal

NSDC will again field a team in the Steve Gorman Trophy Baseball League this spring.

This announcement was made last Saturday as members of the area intercollegiate baseball loop met at the Fargo Elks Club to discuss plans for the coming season.

League commissioner Stan Kostka of Fargo presided over the meeting. The eight-team circuit will include NDSC, MSTC, Concordia, Wahpeton, Valley City, Jamestown, Mayville, and NDU.

NDU baseball coach Harold (Pinky) Kraft said that the Sioux may be forced to withdraw from the league unless the group revives its rolling on players who have signed contracts to play organized baseball. The league permits players who have signed professional contracts to compete one year after being released.

Kraft told the delegates that his team must comply with NCAA rules which do not permit players who have signed pro contracts, nor to play against teams that use them. NDU will not play until the matter comes before the ND athletic board this week.

The league likewise will be unable to make a schedule until the Sioux decision is announced. A scheduling committee of Chuck Bentson of NCC, MSTC's Larry McLeod, and Al Meyer of Mayville, will meet later to draw up the season's slate.
