Radio Society Hamfest Plans Are Revealed

The Amateur Radio Society's Sharivar Hamfest will be held Sunday, April 28, in the Memorial Union on the campus of North Dakota State University. This will also be their official American Radio Relay League State Convention.

Parents and high school students are urged to attend this event and the open house exhibits and demonstrations. The Hamfest will last from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Open House will take place all three days from 1:30 to 5 p.m. for everyone.

Sharivar Hamfest will draw attendance from a three state area and Manitoba, Canada. It is anticipated that 200 "Hams" and their families will attend. Five contests will be held and door prizes from all the major electronic manufacturers will be given. The prizes are valued from $300 to $500. It is not necessary to be a licensed operator to attend and register for prizes.

Commercial equipment displays featuring manufacturers from two states will occupy Meineke Lounge and the Ballroom of the Memorial Union.

Saturday's activities will include the launching of "Sharivar - Gamma," a research balloon, weather permitting. This will take place on the mall of the Memorial Union at 9 a.m. There will also be a transmitter hunt on Saturday.

The tentative schedule of events

Dr. Leasure

To NDSU From Penn State

Dr. Daniel Raymond Leasure has been named the new Dean of Students at North Dakota State University, according to Dr. H. R. Albrecht, president.

He will begin his duties on campus July 1, succeeding Dean Charles S. Sevrinson, who is retiring under the new board policy that administrators must resign their administrative positions at age 65.

Dr. Leasure will come to NDSU from Pennsylvania State University where he is currently Dean of Men. He began at Penn State as a resident counselor in 1959, and in 1960 was counselor-coordinator while working toward his master's and doctor's degrees in education. He received his doctor of education degree in August, 1961, and in addition to his duties as Asst. Dean, he has served as an instructor in the College of Education and as lecturer in the Graduate School.

Visiting the NDSU campus last month, Leasure said he is looking forward to joining the staff at North Dakota State although he has spent most of his life in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Leasure was a Youth Director for the YMCA in New Castle, Pennsylvania, prior to receiving his B.A. degree in psychology (Continued on page 12)

Dean Sevrinson Under Treatment

Dean of Students, Charles Sevrinson, under treatment at University Hospital in Minneapolis, is reported "up and around" after taking several in a series of tests.

No conclusion has yet been reached as to the exact nature of the Dean's illness, and more rigid tests must be undergone. Lighter medication than that necessary upon his admission to the hospital has prompted physicians to urge him to get up and out, and enjoy the 80 degree Minneapolis weather.

Dean Sevrinson would appreciate hearing from anyone who wishes to drop him a line. His address is: Room B-551, Section 50, University Hospital, Minneapolis.

Destruction of Dakota Hall Begins; Unique Past Claimed by Landmark

Ladd Addition To Be Built

by Dave Nesvold

Demolition of Dakota Hall was begun Monday by Northern Improvement, Inc. of Fargo.

Erling Thorson, superintendent, Buildings and Grounds, said the Fargo firm will remove the remnants of the razed structure to the University dump grounds. Salvagable furnishings and other materials were removed from the building earlier.

Plans are in the final stages for a new addition to Ladd Hall, which will occupy the vacated space. It is hoped the addition will be in operation fall quarter of 1964.

History Recorded

Dakota Hall's history is recorded in Dr. William C. Hunter's comprehensive account of the events and people at NDSU, "Beacon Across the Prairie".

Constructed in 1918, during Edwin F. Ladd's presidency, the "barracks" original purpose was to house soldiers in training under government supervision. It was designed to house and feed 400 men.

The federal government requested the building, and after consent by the State Council of Defense, the North Dakota Board of Regents approved erection of the emergency building. Construction was completed in nine weeks. Fargo carpenters, college instructors and students donated time for much of the construction, according to Hunter.

The Farm Folk School, a series of agricultural short courses, was set up for the 1940 winter session. Students in these courses gave

The old and "temporary" makes way for the new and permanent. The first section of Dakota Hall was towed away last week as complete razing of the structure began.

Fargo Businessmen, Faculty Help Kick Off Fund Drive

The North Dakota State University Rodeo Club started its fund raising campaign last Saturday night, with two donkey basketball games.

Participating in the first game were the Fargo businessmen against the NDSU faculty, with the game ending in a tie at 12-12. The businessmen's team consisted of Cy Fossum, Fargo Rubber Stamp Works; Don Hart, Al's Sport Shop; Wayne Jacobson, Northwestern Supply Co.; and John Ginakes, Smoke Shop. Playing for the faculty were: Dallas Heidt, An Hub; Clayton Haugse, An Hub; Don Johnson, An Hub Grad; Fraser Stewart, An Hub Grad; Ronald Krenz, Ag Econ; Dwight Palmer, Extension Service; Chuck Benson, Phy Ed; James McDowell, Ag Econ and Paul Tix, Ag Econ Grad.

Playing the second game were twenty members of the NDSU Rodeo Club against eight members of the Montana Club of Concordia. The game ended with the Montana Club winning 8-2.

The games were played with four members of each team riding donkeys at a time.

The games were sponsored for the purpose of raising money for the production of an intercollegiate rodeo in May. The rodeo will be held May 11 and 12 at the Fargo fairgrounds. It will be sponsored by the NDSU Rodeo Club, with rodeo teams from colleges of six states competing.

Dolve Hall Annex Planned

A preliminary plan for the proposed addition to Dolve Hall has been presented to Dean Mirgain by the architects.

Stressing the fact that the plans are only the most preliminary, Mirgain said it "has not been subjected to our critical analysis." However, Mirgain said the plan did come close to meeting the educational needs of the engineering department. South Engineering would probably be turned over to Arts and Sciences.

The early plans offer the advantage of integrating the entire engineering department into one building, which would alleviate some of the difficulties in administering the department as it now stands, split between North and South Engineering. The plan would fuse the addition to the existing Dolve Hall.

Although the front section of Dolve was planned and built so that two more floors of classrooms could be added, Mirgain said the sketchy plan in his office offers "more potentialities for additional space without having to build all four floors". Each section of engineering would be segregated into separate areas with the plan, and additional space could be added in the future easily. Mirgain felt this to be important, since, he said, "We don't know which sections of the engineering department will expand the fastest."

Since the space in question is in the center of the campus, Mirgain said, it must be used as wisely as possible. Harland Bartholomew and Associates, City Planners' Civil

Second Polio Clinic Today

The second in a series of three Polio Clinics will be held this afternoon in the Fieldhouse from 3-6.

Type III vaccine will be administered at this, the "white" clinic, and those who missed the first immunization dose are recommended to start with this clinic and receive the first type at some other time.

Minors on the campus will not be required to send home a form to be signed if he received vaccine at the last clinic. Only the small white cards from the last clinic are needed; however, if you have lost your card, the pink forms, like those used previously, are still on hand.

Blue Key is again organizing the polio clinic. The service fraternity and others who helped with the last clinic were well pleased with the turnout.

A 25c charge will again be made for each sugar lump; but again, no one will be turned away who cannot pay.

The third and final clinic, the "Blue," will be held early in May.

Rahjahs Jump On Schneider Again; Constructive Activities Are Listed

To the Editor:

Several recent issues of the Spectrum have carried articles and letters criticizing the Rahjah Club. It's about time somebody responds to this criticism, so on behalf of myself and the Rahjah Club, I wish to point out some facts concerning those reports and letters, and our club.

First, our purpose as a pep club is to promote school spirit. This, I feel, we have accomplished to a certain extent. It is impossible to arouse a crowd that doesn't exist. This apathy of the students is partially justified by our losing teams.

For those who don't know what the Rahjah Club does, let me mention that we give a $50 scholarship to the outstanding freshman football player, and the $50 Bill Cook Memorial Scholarship for the outstanding freshman basketball player. We are also giving a $50 scholarship for track this year, which we are doing because we feel the importance of track is not stressed on this campus. We donate several trophies including the Outstanding Athlete Award. This year we are giving the athletic department about $200 to help finance the recruiting and bringing of prospective athletes to NDSU.

When money was needed for recruiting new athletes, the Rahjahs were asked to sell Teammakers tickets, saying that those who bought the tickets would have the privilege of better seats at the games, a promise which wasn't fulfilled. We spent our time without making one cent, doing it only for the benefit of athletics in this school. However, we were criticized by many students and by Joe Schneider in his column.

In the edition of the Spectrum previous to the last, freshman Tom Feigum wrote a letter saying that there were only six Rahjahs at the game and that they all were (censored) drunk. I seriously question Mr. Feigum's powers of observation because there were 22 members of the Rahjah Club cheering at that game and they were not drunk. At this point, I wonder who was the inebriated one!

In the last edition of the Spectrum, our friend Joe Schneider devoted most of his column to his "constructive" criticism of the Rahjah Club. Again, Mr. Schneider displayed his own brand of yellow journalism and mud slinging in slamming us. Also, as usual, his remarks were quite far from the truth.

I sincerely don't blame Joe, for he must make up somehow for the poor quality of his column, and it is easy to understand his bitterness after being turned down when he expressed his desire to become a member of the RAHJAH CLUB.

Wrestling Team Record Presents False Picture

To the Editor:

The last issue of the Spectrum (Feb. 27,) carried a headline in the sports section which read as follows: "Grapplers Lose Two More, End Season 0-10-3." This is fine, because it is the duty of a newspaper to carry the truth; but, may I elaborate on the situation.

It is true that the wrestling team did not win a match this year. But, the whole truth is not within the headline and accompanying article. The truth includes the information that at no time did the wrestling team consist of more than seven men this season. (It takes eight men to make a team.) The last part of the season, the team consisted of four men when injuries struck three of the participants. Can't you see the basketball team with only three men on the floor!

Why don't more students choose to participate in wrestling? This question in itself would make a fine topic for discussion, but it is the purpose of this letter to defend the four to seven wrestlers who did make up the North Dakota State University wrestling team. They are fine young men who worked and trained extremely hard throughout the season and deserve a better fate than this season produced.

The official record of the 1962-63 wrestling team cannot be changed. But perhaps with this information, the opinion of the North Dakota State University family will be a bit less critical towards the efforts of some fine athletes who made up the wrestling team, now that the "whole truth" is known.

Respectfully, Tom Neuberger, Wrestling Coach

Religious Holiday Goes Unobserved This Year

To the Editor:

An open letter to the powers that be:

America is great!! I feel this is due to two major reasons. First is that we are a God-fearing people and the second is that we have a great educational system; but is it necessary for our educational system to become so exulted that we have to eliminate the recognition of our religious holidays?

It seems strange to me that our school is willing to recognize Memorial Day which conveniently falls in the middle of final week, yet it is unwilling to acknowledge Good Friday as a holiday.

The whole idea of Christianity stems from this day, yet North Dakota State University is not willing to recognize the significance of it by recessing classes for one day. In a nation of predominantly Christian people, I do not feel that it is unfair to ask for one day for one of our most important religious holidays.

I believe in separation of Church and State, but separation doesn't mean that they are unaware of one another.

Richard Fockler ME sr

To the Editor:

When I heard that we would be having school on Good Friday my first reaction was "you're kidding". However, since that time the rumor has been verified. I can't help but wonder who is responsible for this ridiculous action. The United States was founded on a God centered faith. This can be easily seen in the lives of such men as Jefferson and even more so in Lincoln. It seems that we are losing this God centeredness and I feel the height has been reached here on campus with Good Friday classes.

I feel that those who want to worship God on Good Friday should be given the freedom to do so. I don't feel that the "state" should rule the church in this case. It is my hope that the President or whoever has the authority to dismiss classes on Good Friday will do so. If the administration does not call off classes I hope that the individual instructors will take the initiative to dismiss their classes on this day. If they don't, I hope that responsible students will worship as they see fit. I plan to.

KEY IDEAS "A BLUE KEY MEMBER SPEAKS" by Kerry Hawkins

North Dakota State University is a growing institution. Enrollment projections estimate an increase of 75% in the next ten years. Expansion of our physical plant is taking place everywhere on our campus. With these assumptions in mind let me elaborate on the real subject of this article.

Are we keeping pace in our teaching and faculty growth and development?

Two weeks ago a group of students in one of the Arts and Sciences departments organized and made an inquiry at the Dean's office. It seems that these students, ranging from freshmen to seniors, had to find out if they could graduate from this institution with a degree that they are presently working towards.

In stating their case they felt and knew that the quality of their instructors was so poor that they could not expect to be recognized in their field. All they wanted was one qualified teacher. One of the present teachers comes to NDSU once a week on Saturday mornings, the other drives in from out of town on Tuesday nights. I don't know how they manage during the rest of the week. The Dean was also unaware of some of these facts. Will they graduate? . . . They still don't know.

Next let us look at a 400 course available only to seniors. There is a simple text and a simpler workbook to accompany the lectures. A brief glance at the workbook, which a student completes and hands in at the end of the quarter, is in itself enough to make one wonder. It is terribly hard and it tests the knowledge of the student with such questions as, "The horse and buggy were or were not a result of the car?" or "List the uses you have for your car in your daily routine." Keep in mind that this is a 3-credit 400 course for seniors only.

Lastly, let us go back to winter quarter finals. It is rumored that a teacher failed more than 40% of his students in a particular course. This is by far not the only case of its kind.

I will even go so far as to grant the student didn't have adequate knowledge of the subject. But why? I suggest that the teacher wasn't properly prepared to project the subject matter to his pupils and is to blame for his teaching methods. I say this, because I'm positive that such a large per cent of students in a university class couldn't be so mentally void. The fact that the majority didn't fail any of their other subjects is enough for this.

"So what?" you say. "What prompted this bit of wisdom?" Simply another increase in our registration fees. Can you honestly say that you are getting your money's worth. I feel safe in saying that I'm sure those people enrolled in the aforementioned course aren't.

The claim was made that the $60 increase would in part be used to pay the salaries demanded by professors who threatened to leave NDSU. I say let some of them leave and hire some well-qualified, competent teachers who will give us our money's worth.

What happened to the teacher evaluation committee that was proposed and talked about so much during student elections? Possibly the student body can come up with some feasible suggestions that will prod the administration into taking some steps for our benefit.

The examples given above are not alone and I am by no means condemning or condoning them.

I feel that the fee increase in itself will take care of our enrollment problem for the next few years. Can we stand by and see more harm done???

Editorial Common Market To Share?

The present administration in Washington acknowledges the need for continuing foreign aid, and not just to settle the stomachs of liberals.

Although our massive assistance program has contributed to an outflow of American gold, it has not brought economic ruin to our shores. Nor is the imminent cut an attempt to "show the world that we are no longer going to be suckers," in the words of Rep. Otto Passman.

However, Washington has come to feel this is slight consolation to Friends of Goldwater - that it is high time somebody else carry their fair share, and has been hinting so lately.

But who will carry their share? To make the question easier, who is the most able to carry their share? In the foreseeable future, the most likely choice is the bloc of nations within the budding Common Market. Back to the first question: Who will carry their share?

Since the ascension of Premier de Gaulle of France, now uncrowned king of the six-nation bloc, it seems that we won't be able to count on this source in the near future. De Gaulle has said of France: "Nothing else matters to us except her. We must liberate her, conquer her enemy, punish the traitors, preserve her friends . . . and resume her march toward her destiny."

If we here seem rash in interpreting these and other remarks by the French premier as a mixture of deluded grandeur and isolationism a' la Francaise—and we do—the "London Economist" stated the British view this way: ". . . the whole brilliant, crazy system of ideas has come out in one mouthful as General de Gaulle's plan for Europe today; a restored Europe of 1810, self-sufficient Franco-centric, its door shut tight against the nation of shopkeepers, its back turned upon the New World."

Even considering that this attitude may be tinged by revenge because of de Gaulle's veto of Britain's request for entry into the European economic community, it is not entirely wrong.

To Americans, it may seem ironic, or at least strange, to have a European leader with the means to challenge our leadership of the western alliance, but de Gaulle has that means. We can no longer relegate to Europe her duty to shoulder the cross called foreign aid: she will pick it up willingly — if at all.

Over the Back Fence

by Joe Schneider

A great man lies ill in a hospital bed at University Hospital, Minneapolis. He is our Dean of Students, Charles Sevrinson.

No Fitting Tribute

Many organizations on campus, including the Student Senate and the Inter-Fraternity Council, have sent flowers to the room of their dean. Although this is just a small gesture, it clearly shows the respect and admiration which the students of this University have for Dean Sevrinson.

We seriously hope that he returns to this campus to finish out the year before retiring after a career of service to the students of this college.

Poor Showing

Recently, a special convocation was held on this campus with the purpose of influencing students to go out and recruit high school men and women.

A rousing time was had by all who attended the convo, but it appears that the purpose did not get through to very many students. The chart in the Union, which shows the schools visited, clearly backs up this statement. The chart was posted to show the extend of recruitment carried on by the students. However, the chart is so bare that it is embarrassing to have it present as a reminder of our failure.

It appears that many students did not feel it necessary to recruit for our school; or perhaps they had no desire to do so. It is the latter excuse which this writer feels is the reason there was such a poor showing.

When a student on campus is asked whether or not he plans to give this school money after graduation, the answer is a quick "no." It seems that the students already on campus have no great love for this school; thus they cannot picture themselves trying to convince high school students to attend here.

There must be a reason why people enrolled here don't want to recruit students. Perhaps it goes back to that familiar term—apathy.

Every year this word is displayed in speeches and in print, usually trying to convince students to support our teams, or else to hawl them out for going home on weekends. Everybody realizes that we have apathy, but there doesn't appear to be any clear cut answer for getting rid of it.

Several people have hinted that if we had a winning football team, or even a basketball team who could manage to stay out of the cellar, our apathy would soon diminish.

Another reason for our apathy is the number of commuter students on our campus. Whenever a campus is faced with a large number of students who go off campus everynight, it is hard to have a combined student body; and it is debatable whether or not the students who do live on campus and in Greek houses are organized.

Thus, it all boils down to the fact that we have apathy combined with a disorganized student body. Because of this, most students are not particularly happy with their school.

Yet we expect these students to go home and try to recruit their hometown high school students. We have little to offer them outside of a fine education. The University of North Dakota can give them this, plus a national champion hockey team, and better than average football and basketball teams.

Why Recruit?

Several students, and some of the faculty, have asked the question "Why recruit?"

This is a difficult question to answer, and it is even harder to try and justify the amount of money spent in trying to get students onto this campus. Regardless of how we feel about recruitment, we are all paying for it.

The way the problem has been explained to this writer, every other school in the state is engaging in recruitment, and we are forced to compete. It can be argued that a university of our size and status shouldn't have to compete with Ellendale Normal, to take an example. Since our state is so poor that it cannot give a decent increase to the two large universities, it seems logical that we should close down some of the smaller schools.

However, our state legislature has decided to keep Ellendale open and raise the tuition of students in schools across the state.

This type of competition, it is said, forces us to continue our recruitment program.

Tips for Recruitment

When you go home for Easter, providing you live real close or you'll never make it, tell every high school student you come across about our institution of higher learning. You can brag up our instructors, courses, new buildings, and some exceptional departments.

However, don't mention our winters, the possibility of contract feeding, the campus police force, losing athletic teams, and our suitcase students. Let them learn these aspects of college life by themselves.

Poor Rahjabs

If you haven't already read the letter to the editor from Tony Sotolongo, then stop what you are doing and give it a minute of your time; especially if you hate this column and love the Rahjabs.

It seems that the Mutual Admiration Society is mad at all the derogatory but truthful remarks concerning their club, and they persuaded their "letter to the editor man" to spill out his heart.

After buttering up this writer—calling me his friend, yet—Sotolongo proceeds to heap compliments on this column by calling it a brand of yellow journalism and me a mud slinger. One thing about our Rahjah Club; they sure know how to flatter people.

Sotolongo says that we are making up for the poor quality of this column by criticizing the SAP's and that it is easy to understand the columnists bitterness after being turned down when he expressed his desire to become a member of the Rahjah Club.

Such yellow journalism he uses, already! It is such a shame that he had to include this last statement, just when people might have thought the Rahjabs were needed. This is the first we've heard about this writer being turned down by the group.

As for this writer's wanting to join the Rahjabs, you might say this is a little far-fetched after last week's column.

They weren't going to vote on new members until this week, so we figured that the right time to have a few facts revealed about them would be the week before. This way no once could claim we were nursing sour grapes.

However, it seems that this little bit of reasoning on our part was to no avail. Sotolongo, employing a few lies in his own mud-slinging brand of yellow journalism, seems compelled to search for sensation.

It would seem that the Rahjabs, if they are the least bit concerned with their reputation, would try to disprove the bad things about them instead of attempting to hide these under the few good things they accomplished.

MARKING ON THE CURVE—AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twonkey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafoos was a sophomore. Twonkey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafoos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twonkey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafoos believed in elves, Julie London, and thirteen hours of sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twonkey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly outthought, outfoxed, outmaneuvered, outplayed; and out-witted by Choate Sigafoos, sophomore.

"You and your ideas!"

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers—A, B, C, and D. You had to check the correct answer, but the trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafoos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy, every one scared and pasty. Choate looked sadly at their stricken faces. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to dusty books in a dusty library! We should be out singing and dancing and cutting didoes on the greensward! Instead we are here."

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Oh, I know that Choice 'A' can't be the right answer to every question," said Choate. "But what's the difference? Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answers, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C'."

"Hm," said his classmates. "So why should we knock ourselves out studying?" said Choate. "Let's get out of here and have a ball!"

So they all ran out and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and had a ball, as indeed, you will too when you light a Marlboro, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, to dispel the shades of night, to knot up the ravelled sleeve of care, to put spring in your gait and roses in your cheeks, it is filtered Marlboros—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with rich, natural, golden tobacco. And, what's more, this darlin' smoke comes in soft packs that are actually soft and flip-top boxes that actually flip.

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said, and, sure enough, they all got 'C's, and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Marlboros and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he did not give them one hundred multiple choice questions. He only gave them one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a living as a camshaft in Toledo.

Thetas Arrive Friday For District Meeting

"Friendship, the foundation of fraternity" will be the theme of the District Eight convention of Kappa Alpha Theta to be held in Fargo, April 5, 6 and 7.

Registration of 150 members of the fraternity will begin Friday April 5, at the Gamma Nu Chapter house at NDSU.

Delegates and guests to the convention will be from the five active and alumni chapters located at the University of South Dakota, University of North Dakota, University of Minnesota, University of Nebraska and North Dakota State University.

Convention sessions will be held Friday evening, Saturday morning and afternoon at the Town House Motor Lodge. Included in the new business will be the election of a new district president.

Mrs. Opal McCelvey, a member of Grand Council, will be a speaker at the banquet Saturday evening.

For the active chapter the convention will close with a Sunday morning breakfast and then church. There will be a meeting for the alumni on that day.

The delegates and guests who are members of the active chapters will stay at the Gamma Nu chapter house. This chapter is serving as the convention's hostesses.

Officers Named For Panhellenic

At the regular March meeting of North Dakota State University Panhellenic held last week, the new officers assumed their duties.

The new officers are as follows: Judy Jensen, Gamma Phi Beta, president; Karen Nordstrom, Alpha Gamma Delta, secretary; Melanie Lundberg, Phi Mu, treasurer; Judy Van Vlissingen, Kappa Alpha Theta, AWS delegate; Donna Hue-ther, Kappa Delta, junior Panhellenic representative; and Ginger Mease, Kappa Kappa Gamma, publicity chairman.

The new junior representatives to Panhellenic Council are as follows: Sandy Fossum, Alpha Gamma Delta; Linda Landis, Gamma Phi Beta; Patricia Dodge, Kappa Alpha Theta; DeeRae Schmidt, Kappa Delta; Janet Griffin, Kappa Gamma; and Karen Benson, Phi Mu.

At a luncheon held in the Harvest Room of the F-M Hotel recently, the 1962-63 Panhellenic Council revised its constitution and by-laws, standing rules of rushing, and the rushing, pledging and initiation rules of NDSU Panhellenic.

The next event scheduled to be held by Panhellenic is the Scholarship Recognition Service. It will take place on May 6, at 6:45 p.m. in Memorial Union Ballroom.

The story of a classic

In many ways the story of the Thunderbird is one of the most unusual in the automobile business. The whole idea of the car was born at one of the great European automobile shows. The then president of our company pointed to some of the small, lush sports cars that are always a center of attention at such shows and asked his companion, "Why can't we build something like these?"

The companion, who later became a vice president of the company, said, "It just so happens I have one on the boards. I'll show it to you when we get back to Detroit." Then as fast as he could discreetly get to a transatlantic telephone he called his assistant and told him, "Remember that car we've been talking about? Finish those sketches on it."

The Thunderbird became one of the few cars ever built that was produced essentially as the original sketches presented it. Most cars undergo countless changes in the design period. But there was a natural clarity and cleanness to the Thunderbird design that immediately captured all of us at Ford.

It was probably this clean, sharp look that won so many friends so fast when the car went into production. That first Thunderbird had its drawbacks. For example, it was too soft-sprung for true sports-car handling. But, the truth is, it was not designed in the European tradition of the fast performance car. Some people called it a sports car but we never did. We called it a "personal" car; a small, fairly luxurious car that was fun to look at and fun to drive. It had its own integrity: it was one alone.

We built the Thunderbird as a bellwether car for Ford. It was our intention to test new ideas before we put them into our Fords, Fairlanes and Falcons. The new Ford ride and Swing-Away steering wheel appeared first on the Thunderbird, for instance. However, we never foresaw the extraordinary influence Thunderbird would have on the whole automobile business here and abroad. Almost everybody offers the Thunderbird bucket seats these days. And the Thunderbird look is the most decisive styling of the '60s.

The Thunderbird is a classic, made so by a peculiar blend of magic ingredients of which we would love to know the secret. We're building cars right now we hope will become classics, but the truth is, we don't make classics, we make cars. People make the car a classic. And that's the story of the Thunderbird.

America's liveliest, most care-free cars!

NDA Loans Available For Next Year Worms Invade SU Flower Beds; Giant Gun Used For Control

Last quarter the Spectrum erroneously reported that loan funds under the National Defense Act had depleted and no more loans were available.

spring, or at least in early June. Loan applications for next year are acceptable at any time, Mirgain said.

Dean Mirgain, chairman of the University Scholarship and Loan Committee, said funds are available, and students in need of financial assistance can do one of two things: those who don't have a loan now may apply for one on the regular forms, available from the Dean's office, the business office or the registrar's office; those who already have a loan and need additional help do not need to fill out another application, but should contact Ron Corliss in the business office to adjust their loan.

Mirgain anticipates that fund approvals for next year are going to be made available from the U. S. Office of Education this spring rather than in late summer, as has been the case previously. He added that the NDSU loan committee plans to make as many loan approvals as possible firm before college closes this

Corah Receives Purina Award

Larry Corah, Ag jr, has been selected to receive the Ralston Purina Scholarship for 1963-64, according to an announcement made in St. Louis, Missouri, by J. D. Sykes, vice president of the Ralston Purina Co.

The scholarship amounts to $500. It is awarded each year to an outstanding junior in the land grant colleges in each of the 50 states, and in three Canadian agricultural colleges and one in Puerto Rico.

Winners are selected at each college by a faculty scholarship committee on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, ambition in agriculture and a desire for financial assistance.

The duty of restoring the campus grounds each spring falls on the Buildings and Grounds department. Incidents sometimes arise which require the aid of other departments; thereby hangs a tale.

In the spring of 1961, where Karl Oveson, head gardener at North Dakota State University, expected to see the petunias, set out earlier, in full bloom, withered plants without a single bud appeared.

Oveson suspected something amiss and went to consult Dr. Richard L. Kiesling, plant pathologist. The buildings and grounds department has full charge of all flora on campus, and Oveson takes particular pride in its beauty.

Kiesling's department took samples of the soil and discovered large numbers of root-knot nematodes, small animals belonging to the worm family. These small eel-worms cause knots about the size of peas to develop in the roots of plants, stunting growth. Worms in the ground would be not unusual, had they not been this type of nematode. The root-knot species cannot normally survive North Dakota's severe winters, according to Kiesling.

Worms Localized

Further sampling showed that the worms occurred only in the two flower beds along Campus Avenue. Why only here?

Kiesling reasoned that the presence of steam pipes under the beds prevented the ground from freezing solidly during the winter months. Pipes run underground from the central heating plant to all campus buildings. The heat from the pipes, kept from dissipating through the insulating effect of high-piled snow over the beds, furnished the nematodes with just enough heat to live through the winter. Now the puzzle was narrowed down to determining exactly how the eel-worms got into North Dakota, because this was the first reported instance of them in the state. Checking back, Kiesling and Oveson found geranium stock imported from out of the state to be the apparent culprit.

Kiesling drew upon the equipment stocked by the plant pathology department and issued Oveson a soil-application gun in an effort to "eradicate the introduced condition," according to the pathologist, Oveson set upon the beds with the gun, loaded with soil fumigant furnished by the Panogen Corp. of Woodstock, Illinois.

Inserting the tip of the gun, which might be compared to a giant hypodermic needle, into the afflicted soil, Oveson exposed the worms to the deadly fumigant. Applied at six inch intervals, the fumigant is squirted from the gun about six inches below the surface, dissipating into the soil.

The first treatment by Oveson reduced but did not extinguish the nematode population. This past summer, Oveson again fumigated the beds, and Kiesling said he thought the rest of them had probably perished over this past winter.

JOBS IN EUROPE

Grand Duchy of Lux. Mar. 29, 1963

The American Student Information Service, celebrating its 6th Anniversary, will award TRAVEL GRANTS to first 1500 applicants. ASIS is the only authorized organization offering approved summer jobs in Europe, on a large scale, to U. S. students.

3,000 paying summer jobs (some offering $190 monthly) are available. Jobs include working in Swiss resorts, on Norwegian farms, in German factories, at construction sites in Spain, and at summer camps in France.

Send $1 for a 20-page Prospectus, complete selection of European jobs, Job Application, handling and airmail reply. Write, naming your school, to: Dept T., ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, G.D. of Luxembourg. The first 8000 inquiries receive a $1 coupon towards the purchase of the new student travel book, Earn, Learn and Travel in Europe.

Clapp Chosen Assistant Deputy Post Commander

Colonel Edwin G. Clapp, professor of military science at North Dakota State University, has been chosen assistant deputy camp commander of the Reserve Officer Training Corps camp to be held this summer at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Colonel Clapp will be one of three military science professors from Midwestern colleges and universities in charge of the camp. Colonel Clapp recently attended a meeting at Fort Riley to help coordinate plans for this summer's training.

The camp will be held June 15-July 26. About 2,400 cadets, representing 37 Midwestern schools, are expected to attend making it the largest camp ever held at Fort Riley. This would be approximately 1,000 more than attended last summer's camp.

Training for the future army officers will include familiarization and qualification with weapons, instruction in military skills such as first aid and map reading and tactical problems designed to

NDSU Air Force Head Promoted to Colonel

Melvin W. Faulk, Professor of Air Science at North Dakota State University, has just been promoted to the rank of Colonel in the United States Air Force.

Colonel Faulk assumed command of the Air Force ROTC Detachment at the University last July. He has had a varied military career, including active participation in two wars.

He entered the Air Force from Fort Worth, Texas, was commissioned in 1941 after completion of pilot training, and served in England and France during World War II. After several service schools he went to Korea in 1950 and 1951. Subsequently he has been assigned to the Pentagon later to duty training new pilots. His last station before coming to Fargo was Misawa Air Force Base, Japan, where he was Operations Officer of a Tactical Fighter Wing and Base Executive Officer.

Before entering the service he attended Texas A & M College, but the war prevented his completing his education there. While serving with the Air Force he found the time to earn his degree in Industrial Management from the University of Denver, just before departing for Korea.

The Faulks reside at 202 24th Ave. North, Fargo. Their three children are enrolled respectively in the University, Fargo Central High School, and Benjamin Franklin Junior High School.

Noted Geochemist On Campus Today

A geochemist from Columbia University, Dr. J. Laurence Kulp, will speak on the "Geochronology of Rock Systems" at the annual Sigma Xi public lecture on the North Dakota State University campus Wednesday, April 3, at 7:30 p. m.

The lecture will be held in room 223 of the Agricultural Engineering building.

For many years, Dr. Kulp has been in the forefront of research on determining the age in years of the rocks of the earth's crust by radioactive methods. It is through this research that it has been possible to put absolute dates on many events in the earth's history.

Dr. Kulp is a professor of Geochemistry at Columbia University and the director of the geochemistry laboratory, Lamont Geological Observatory, Palisades, New York.

Among his awards and distinctions are the N.S.F. Senior Postdoctoral Fellowship, 1958; Guest Lecturer and Honorary Fellowship Venezuelan Assoc. for Advancement of Science, 1957; Delegate to the International Union of Chemists in Paris, 1957 and Distinguished Lecturer A.A.P.G., 1956.

His many areas of emphasis include geochemistry of ore deposits and trace elements, world-wide fallout of atomic debris, effects of nuclear weapons, and the chemistry and structure of clay materials.

His April 3 schedule at NDSU also includes a chemistry seminar on "World-wide Radioactive Fallout," at 4:10 p.m. in Ladd Hall and a dinner meeting of the Sigma Xi Club.

Recording Artist Cash To Appear

Johnny Cash, one of the nation's top western and folk singers, will headline the next local presentation by F-M Community Productions at the Fargo Civic Memorial Auditorium, Thursday, April 25.

Appearing with Cash will be comedienne-songstress June Carter, humorist-banjoist Grandpa Jones and The Tennessee Three—a versatile instrumental trio.

The 31-year old Cash has been a tremendous success in all phases of entertainment... records, television, movies and personal appearances. Sale of Cash records is now over the ten million mark. Some of his top recordings include "I'll Walk the Line," "Ballad of a Teen-Age Queen," "Rock Island Line" and "Johnny Yuma."

Tickets are now on sale at Daveau's in Fargo and Moorhead — $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50. Mail Orders can be forwarded to Box 24, Fargo, N. D.

Physics Student Wins Scholarship

Darrell Strobel, a junior in physics at North Dakota State University, has been awarded a scholarship to study space physics next summer at Columbia University.

Senator Quentin N. Burdick announced from Washington that Strobel was selected from 134 applicants in national competition.

The institute is being conducted by Columbia University and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Strobel will make field trips to NASA centers in Huntsville, Ala.; Houston, Tex.; Cape Canaveral, Fla.; and Greenbelt, Md.

Publicity Of Student Production Object Of Blue Key Schemes, Ideas

by Frank Bernhoff
 Ingenious ideas for "The Pajama Game" are forming in the minds of the Blue Key publicity committee, headed by Roger Helgoe.

Be on the lookout within the next three weeks for shocking, brilliant schemes employed by Helgoe's Henchmen in an attempt to spread the musical's name to far corners of the globe!!

Lawrence Welk
 The publicity chairman sent a letter to native North Dakotan Lawrence Welk a few weeks ago. Helgoe suggested that Welk's renowned orchestra might play a medley of "Pajama Game" hits prior to production time April 25-27. The band man's recent reply stated, "I have just discussed your suggestion with our producer and director and am sorry to say that the idea was turned down." He elaborated, explaining that he always abides by the decisions of his staff, but left the impression that he hasn't forgotten his home state.

Ticket Sales

Warfare is being waged among Greek organizations for "Pajama Game" ticket sale honors. Phil Wattles, Blue Key ticket chairman, declared that as of last Thursday, 6700 tickets have been distributed to fraternity and sorority houses. He said, "There should be a good deal of publicity given to the victorious organizations. We (Blue Key) hope that the Fargo Forum and, of course, the Spectrum, will grant us as much coverage as possible." Wattles declared that this favorable publicity could only improve public relations.

Blue Key is awarding a certificate of recognition to the chairman of the winning brotherhood or sisterhood plus a $25 gift in appreciation for his efforts. Also, the triumphant party will receive a trophy—traditional for many years. There is a possibility that two of each of these awards will be presented to the leading fraternity and top sorority. Vending "Pajama Game" tickets throughout the area can be a profitable enterprise for Greeks or any interested group. A ten percent commission is granted when $250 is collected. That is—ten percent on the total!

Incidentally, the tickets now in circulation must be exchanged after April 14 for a reserved seat ticket at Daveau's in either Fargo or Moorhead or at the SU Student Union.

Larry Schulze, stage manager for the Broadway hit, stated that work on the sets began in earnest last week in Ag Engineering. He commented in satisfaction, "The labor seems to be producing results; we're progressing quicker than in past years, and I anticipate an early finish."

If you can wield a paint brush, see Dennis Brovold, supervisor of the paint crew, and join the artists in Shepard Arena.

A Spirit Employed In Comedy

Noel Coward's famous domestic comedy, "Blithe Spirit," will be presented at the Little Country Theater April 17, 18, 19 and 20.

In this delightful British farce, Charles, a writer portrayed by Ray Rogalla, is looking for material for a new story. He and his wife Ruth (Teddy Krump) arrange for Madam Arcati, a noted spiritualist played by Bonnie Greenblatt, to hold a seance in their home. In the seance Charles' first wife Elvira (Cheryl Blenkush) materializes and refuses to leave her former home.

Though she is visible only to Charles and the audience, Elvira proves to be one wife too many, especially when she jealously plots to kill Ruth. Charles is then faced with the difficult task of getting rid of the troublesome blithe spirit of his first wife before she in turn eliminates his second spouse.

Other characters in this delightful comedy include Dr. and Mrs. Bradman, friends of Charles and Ruth, played by Bill Flint and Charlene Herman; and Edith, the maid, portrayed by Kathy Degen. Blithe Spirit is directed by Bryan Gackle.

SUAB Stage Set For June Bride

Everyone is invited to attend the 5th Annual Bridal Show tomorrow in the Memorial Union Ballroom. There will be two presentations; at 3:15 and 7:45.

Sponsors for this year's Bridal Show are: The Bridal Shop, Straus Clothing, and Flowers by Marty.

Four styles of dress will be shown starting with casual and ending up with the formal wedding attire. Eighteen coeds will be modeling the various and colorful styles.

The stage setting will be in two phases; first the casual scene in the living room of the date, and second, the makeshift setting of an altar scene for the actual wedding.

SUAB hostesses will serve wedding cake and coffee to all people attending at no charge.

So, if you want to view the current trends in popular wear, attend SUAB's 5th Annual Bridal Show tomorrow in the Memorial Union Ballroom.

New York City; Stop Taken By Quarter Break Tourists

by Ted Holland

Thirty-one NDSU students, under the leadership of Rev. Bob Ouradnik of the Methodist Student Center, visited Washington, D.C. and New York City during the quarter break.

The purpose of the trip, which was made possible by donations from interested groups and individuals, was to enlighten the students on the executive, judiciary and legislative branches of the Federal Government and to observe the operation of the United Nations.

Traveling by bus, the group stopped at Gettysburg, Pa., to tour the Civil War battlefield on which 51,000 men were killed, wounded or captured in three days. A guide described the happenings of the battle, which took place 100 years ago this July.

In Washington, the students met with North Dakota's House Representatives Don Short and Hjalmar Nygaard, lunched with Senator Young and had dinner with Senator Burdick. Minnesota Senator Eugene McCarthy spoke to the group, as did Mr. Moscoso, the director of the Alliance for Progress.

Other highlights in Washington included sitting in on a heated House debate on the extension of the Selective Service Act, a tour of the Supreme Court, and a visit to Arlington Military Cemetery. An interesting afternoon at the F.B.I. was climaxed when an agent fired an Elliott Ness-style burst with a Thompson sub-machine gun.

Visits were also made to the Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington Memorials. A minor disappointment occurred at the latter when a few of the rugged travelers climbed the 55 story structure only to find that visibility was zero.

After a brief stop in Philadelphia, the contingent descended on New York City. Much time was spent studying the various branches of the United Nations.

During the evenings, some of the group attended Broadway plays such as, "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," and "Mr. President." After watching the stock exchange in action and viewing St. John's Cathedral, the busload headed home.

There was one empty seat on the return trip and it was feared Harry Gisarshkin from Flat Hills, North Dakota, was still wandering around Grand Central Station. The only other unfortunate circumstance was that four students reported sunburn on the roofs of their mouths from gazing at the skyscrapers.

The place not to be wandering aimlessly around on Saturday afternoon was the main floor of the Fieldhouse. During this time, twelve area colleges participated in small bore rifle competition. The scene above was typical of the day. (Results on Sports Page)

Debate Society Officers Direct Activities; Tour

Philip Bleyhl, AAS jr, was recently elected the new captain for the Lincoln Debate Society. Other officers include: Janna McCoy, student manager; Gary Fatland, treasurer; and Joan Scott, recording secretary.

Immediate activities of the Society under the direction of the new officers include debates and a tour. On April 3, at 4 p.m., the group will debate "Resolved that Communism in Cuba is a threat to the United States" and "Resolved that narcotics should be legalized in the United States." Everyone is welcome to attend the debates at the speech department.

Last week the debaters hosted a group of students from Grace Lutheran Church, Eau Claire, Wis. The twenty-six students were attending a Luther League debate at the First Lutheran Church of Fargo. Lincoln Debate Society conducted them on a tour of campus and spent time with them at the Lincoln Log Cabin.

Notice to all NDSU students who participated in the Sharivar quarter break tours: Please turn in your evaluation sheets to the communications office in the Administration Building. We need the information immediately.

Libra Honors 100 Freshmen at Tea

Nearly a hundred freshmen women were entertained at a tea last Sunday afternoon in the President Albrecht's home by the members of Libra. Purpose of the tea was to honor freshmen who have maintained over a 2.5 scholastic average this year.

Mrs. Herbert Albrecht, Miss Beth Rochefort, advisor, and Kay Oveson, president of Libra, received the girls in the parlor after they had had an opportunity to see the house.

Special guests included Miss Matilda B. Thompson, Dean of Women, and Mrs. Frank Cassel, Senior Staff advisor. Assisting at the tea were the girls in Senior Staff.

The thirteen girls in Libra, sophomore women's honorary, will complete their membership on Honors Day when the outstanding freshmen women are selected to be the new members for the coming year.

Campus Elects Officers For The Coming Year

Guidon

Guidon, honorary women's auxiliary to the Association of the United States Army, recently elected new officers. They are as follows: Virginia Egan, Company Commander; Carol Berg, vice-president; Sara Avery, secretary; Judy Garass, treasurer and Lane Gunner, company clerk.

Egan

Guidon is in the process of planning a rushing tea to be held on April 7, from 3:4-3:30 p.m. Girls will be selected on the basis of scholarship, personality and interest in campus affairs. Outstanding girls with a cumulative average of 2.5 or over will be invited to this function.

Guidon members are looking forward to a spring term of activity. On April 19, Guidon members, AUSA, and their respective dates will attend a formal banquet and dance at the Elks Club.

Radio Society Elects

Marlan Modrow, EE soph, was elected president of the North Dakota State University Amateur Radio Society for the coming year.

Modrow

Modrow has been an active member of the club for the past two years, and has participated actively in the club's research projects.

Other officers elected were: Lee Johnson, vice-president; Roger Roth, secretary-treasurer; Donald Dawkins, public relations; Phillip Schloss, QSL manager; James Froemke, research director, and Ernest Anderson, faculty advisor.

Saddle and Sirloin

Larry Corah, An Hub jr, was recently elected president of the North Dakota State University Saddle and Sirloin Club, the organization that produces the Little International Livestock Show on campus each February.

Corah

Harold Spickler, An Hub jr, and Marvin Odegard, An Hub soph, were elected manager and assistant manager for next year's Little International.

Other new officers are: Lannis Bergsgaard, Ag Ed jr, vice-president; Gary Puppe, Ag Ed jr, secretary; Howard Leland, An Hub jr, treasurer; Bob Beckner, An Hub soph, assistant treasurer; Russel Danielson, An Hub jr, reporter; and Darryl Eatstvoid, Ag Ed jr, historian.

Merle R. Light, associate professor of animal husbandry, is advisor to the club.

FFA Officers

Lannis Bergsgaard, Ag Ed jr, was elected President of the North Dakota State University Collegiate FFA Chapter last week.

Bergsgaard

Other new officers are Duane Berglund, Ag Ed jr, vice president; Larry Lechler, Ag Ed jr, secretary; Jim Mortensen, Ag Ed jr, treasurer; Terrence Phillips, Ag, Ed sr, reporter; and Norbert Mayer, Ag Ed jr, sentinel.

Newly elected "Officers at Large" are Roger Berglund, Ag Ed soph; Winslow Helt, Ag Ed jr; and Gary Running, Ag Ed jr.

Shubel D. Owen, professor of agricultural education, is the club's advisor.

New Senate Convenes: Appropriations For IRC, Selection Of Cheerleaders Hits First Session

by Joe Schneider

Discussion of whether or not to give the International Relations Club money, who should select cheerleaders and the possibilities of altering student election methods met the new Senate as they convened last week.

Need Money

Jon Greenly, spokesman for IRC, arranged with Ken Nelson, student body president, to plead his case before the session. After stating his case, Greenly asked Senate to appropriate funds for the purpose of sending sixteen students to the University of Minnesota to attend a model United Nations Conference.

Greenly mentioned that last year, his organization sent eight representatives to a similar conference in Minneapolis.

Explaining the reason for requesting the money, Greenly said, "We are asking for the money because we have a limited budget." He continued, "Our dues are only one dollar for each member so we don't have much money, however, we would like to represent our school."

Ken Nelson then asked Greenly how much money he got last year from Student Senate.

Greenly replied $110, compared to the $225 they are asking for this year. He went on to explain that last year, some of the group's expenses were paid for by donations from several other groups.

At this point, Judy Jensen, newly appointed finance commissioner, told Senate that if they gave the money to the International Relations Club, they would be working against their budget. Miss Jensen reminded Senate that last quarter, the old commission, under Skip Duemeland, had advertised in the Spectrum that if any organization wanted money for the coming quarter, they must come before the commission within a certain specified time limit.

"The IRC didn't show," said Miss Jensen, "making them ineligible for money unless the Senate decides to over-ride that rule."

At this point, Greenly rose and told Senate that this was his fault because he hadn't been involved with the club at the time, thus the notice had no effect on him.

Patricia Dodge, new senator, asked Miss Jensen if a special allotment couldn't be given to them. Miss Dodge pointed out that at the Senate's last meeting, money was allotted for a special project.

Miss Jensen replied that this was true, but that the special project was the V-Day convocation. To this, Miss Dodge answered, "Well, this could be considered a special event."

Miss Jensen immediately denied any similarity between the two projects.

Ending the discussion, Kerry Hawkins, Commissioner of Radio, moved that Senate appropriate the funds for the International Relations Club.

Senator Jensen then defended her position asking for a cut in the proposed allotment. She claimed that the students who are going on the trip should be willing to spend two dollars of their own money for the personal benefit they will receive.

Bob Norum, senator, then changed the motion to read that IRC should receive only $195. The motion passed with this revision.

Architects Get Lights

In her finance report, Commissioner Jensen announced that her group had okayed the architects request for $300. She went on to explain that the group had originally requested 375 for the purpose of constructing their Sharivar exhibit. Of the total allotment, $100 was for lights which would become the property of the Senate after Sharivar is over.

CCD Collects $1,000

Jerry Ezner, the new inter-campus affairs commissioner, read to Senate the former commissioner's report on the results of the Campus Chest Drive.

In his report, Bill Findley (former commissioner), stated that the Drive collected $1,071.18 for distribution to the various charities. Although the goal was $3,000, the report explained that the amount collected was "not bad." The reason for not reaching the higher goal was that personal solicitation was incomplete.

Crackdowns on Rahjahs

In his athletic report, Lee Grim, the new commissioner, told Senate that his commission was going to pick the new cheerleaders in a different method from last year.

Dave Pollock, commissioner of the student union and president of the Rahjah Club asked Grim to explain what the changes would be.

In reply, Grim said that he was going to set up a better set of standards for cheerleaders. Continuing, Grim said "I feel that cause they are not supporting this group, the Rahjahs will not be able to help select the new cheerleaders."

Klein, another Rahjah, said that his club has bought the cheerleaders uniforms, pom-poms, and provided them with transportation to the games.

Miss Jensen told Senate that the past year the Rahjahs had not paid any money for the benefit of the cheerleaders thus felt that they should not be allowed to pick them.

The discussion was dropped until after the meeting when Poll asked to meet with Grim.

New Method of Voting

Nelson selected a committee to investigate the possibility of having the Senate elections conducted on a school basis, so that each college would nominate students for office.

After he named the committee, Phil Wattles, commissioner of Legislative research, asked Nelson if this project wouldn't come under his commission. Agreeing, Nelson turned over the matter to Wattles.

Kaiser Picks 10 'Bison Trackmen' 12 Matches Set Take 2nd Place' Break Records

"We are further along now than we were at mid-season last year," stated golf coach Irv Kaiser. The NDSU golf team is currently practicing for the 1963 season. The potential and shown strength of the golfers is promising.

Last year the golf team amassed a record of 6 first places. Coach Kaiser announced that he has 10 men picked for the 1963 season. The men are: Ron McLeod, Dennis Huber, Tom Wimmer, Robert Daley, Mark Mathieson, Bob Dahm, Ed Anderson, Joe Kuzniakowski, Roderick Rime and Paul Koenig.

There are 10 men on the team, but the basis for making the first five is individual competition among all ten players. Any teammate may challenge one of the top five for tournament play.

The 1963 schedule:

April 23	U of M, Morris	Here
April 26	Concordia Invitational	Moorhead Ctry Club
April 30	UND Dual	Here
May 3	Bison Invitational	Detroit Lakes
May 4	Cougar Meet, Morris	Alexandria
May 10	UND Invitational	UND
May 11	Bemidji Invitational	There
May 13	Tenative—
May 14	U of Nebraska	There
May 15	Creighton University Omaha	There
May 17	NCC Conf. Sioux City	There
May 28	Inter-City	Fargo Ctry Club

The Freshmen golf team is also being organized and has scheduled three meets so far. They will play UND twice and Valley City.

Bringing his way into the 1963 season is SU golfer, Ron Leod. The Bison golfers start practicing last week.

NDSU took second place in Saturdays quadrangular indoor track meet held at MSC's Alex Nemzek Fieldhouse. Northern State Teachers of Aberdeen scored 63 points for first place, NDSU 39, MSC 20 for third and NDSU's freshmen 13.

Bison trackster Neil Jacobson broke the 880 record while teammate Mike Anderson tied the low hurdles mark. Bison Coach Tom Neuberger singled out Chuck Offerdahl as the outstanding player. Offerdahl won first place in the 2-mile run and second in the one mile.

Arden Rapp of Northern Teachers set a new record in the indoor 60-yard high hurdles with a time of 7.9. Aberdeen's mile relay team also set a new mark in the meet.

Another record was set by MSC's Marshall Shoquist as he raised his own mark in the broad jump. The new record is 21-2½.

NDSU's Brian Dieterle was also outstanding in Saturdays meet. Dieterle took first in both the 60 yard dash and, 440. His time in the dash was 6.4 and 53.3 in the 440.

NDSU's next track meet will be against the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks on April 3. UND edged NDSU in their last encounter by two points.

Pollock's Pitches

by Dave Pollock

The weekends events saw NDSU pull down two second places. They were in track and a rifle match.

In the National Rifle Association's intercollegiate sectional match held on Saturday in our fieldhouse, SU posted a score of 1,106 just missing first by five shots. This was followed by St. Johns 1,101, S.D.S.'s 1,084 and led by USD's winning score of 1,111. NDSU captured the pistol honors with hits of 1,067. At the meet sponsored by the Fargo Rifle Club and the NDSU Army ROTC were some 90 entrants competing. Gene Petermann led SU scorers with a tally of 280x300.

Back To Track

In the quadrangular meet at MSC, Coach Neuberger commented that Northern Teachers had a real outstanding team. Neuberger also related that we put on a much better show Saturday than we did in the Northern NCC meet in Grand Forks a while back. The track team has been hurt this year by the academic axe. Seven players have been sliced by grades. Two of the best were Bruce Airheart and Tom Holmgren. Tom was a good scorer—probably better than Airheart, but Airheart was a better performer.

Nice to see the new records being set by the team. Neal Jacobson and Mike Anderson did it in Saturday's meet. Anderson tied a mark set by past SU athlete Jerry Erck in 1961. The competition for the frosh in the meet was high, but they did come through in good shape. They pulled down 13 points. The next meet for the Bison is today against UND. We lost to them by two points in the NCC meet. Neuberger stated, "It will be a real close meet." And I believe it.

The hottest featured track opponent this season is against Western Kentucky on April 17th. This is a good one to mark down as some records should be broken. Six other teams have been invited to add even more competition. In case of foul weather, the meet will be held indoors at Nemzek.

Wrestling Awards

Coach Tom Neuberger announced that Brian Christianson was selected as the most valuable player by his teammates at the recent post-season banquet. Ron Hanson was re-elected captain for the 1963-64 season. The most improved label was put on Jon Colebank. Jerry Schuelke was high point man for the season with 29 points in 13 matches. The wrestling team was handicapped by many losses this past season, sometimes competing with only several wrestlers. This more than anything else probably explains the season record of 0-10-3.

Recruiting

Bison officials have announced that Larry Anderson from Jamestown will join the NDSU Athletic roster. Anderson is an all-Western Dakota Association fullback and has won six letters in athletic competition. Larry plans to enroll in engineering upon entering our University.

As far as news on other recruiting, there is little to mention at the present. It has been reported that Phil Jackson has decided on other than NDSU for a college career.

In the North Dakota State Rodeo Club "Donkey" basketball series, the SU faculty members and Fargo businessmen ended in a 12-12 tie.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it. Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

Swedish Embassy Sponsors Contemporary Art Display

Over fifty black and white and color prints by contemporary Swedish artists will be exhibited in the main lounge of the Union for two weeks beginning Monday, April 7.

The Swedish prints are the second group by contemporary artists displayed this year through the Related Art Department and the Public Events Committee. The first exhibit, shown in February, was from Brazil.

The exhibit is open to the public and is being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition Service. It is sponsored by the Embassy of Sweden. The prints were placed on exhibit by the display class under the direction of Ralph Peotter, instructor in related art.

The Swedish collection features art forms that have gained attention during the most recent years. Artists represented in this show include Kerstin Abram-Nelsson, Lars Lindeberg, Evert Lundquist and Rune Pettersson.

As late as the middle of the 1940's, graphic art in Sweden was still dominated by the traditions of 19th century romanticism and realism, influenced largely by the English landscape style. Executed in line and dry point engraving, these graphic works appealed to only a small number of connoisseurs.

In the late 40's, two organizations, "The National Movement for the Promotion of Art" and "The FIB Art Club," aroused interest in and promoted the popularity of the graphic arts by buying and distributing publicly whole editions of artists' works. Good original art rather than bad art and reproductions was thus made known and available to the public.

All Ben Caseys Should Attend

For all students interested in medicine as a career, there will be a meeting in the Memorial Union, Conference Room A, today at 7:30 p.m.

Students interested in any field of medicine including: dentistry, chemistry, pharmacy, medical technology, dental technology, nursing, optometry, osteopathy, veterinary medicine or any biological science are invited to attend.

The University of North Dakota has extended an invitation to all students interested in medicine to attend a pre-medicine field day on April 6. Any student who shows an interest by attending this meeting will have the opportunity to attend this conference.

Dakota . . . cont. from page 1 half time to Dakota Hall, fitting it with new floors, dividing the second floor into rooms and re-wiring the building.

Dakota was refitted as a dormitory in 1941, when a kitchen and dining room were added.

On September 21, 1942, plans were laid for an officer's candidate school, and with the revival of ROTC in 1943, the temporary barracks again had military residents. Every four weeks, a new field of 335 candidates was enrolled, and the program eventually commissioned 1300 students of the military sciences.

During the school year 1946-47, a record 2300 students registered, and it was necessary to house women home economics students in the structure.

A section of the frame structure was redecorated and divided into individual rooms in 1957 at a cost of $4500. The improvements were financed by the alumni association, the section titled Casey Finnegan Hall, and used exclusively by students of the athletic department.

C. C. (Casey) Finnegan was the athletic director in 1928. He and the president, John Lee Coulter, planned an extensive program of intramural sports and interscholastic activities, in which all students could participate.

Shortly after the establishment of the athletic section, it was affectionately retitled "The Pit" by its tenants.

Rahjah Organization Awards Scholarships

by Larry Rolfstad

The Rahjahs have announced the recipients of their scholarships for the most deserving freshman football and basketball players.

Matthew Vukelich, 200 pound end from White Bear, Minn., will receive the football scholarship; and Tom Noyes, high scoring center from Barnesville, Minn., will get the basketball award. These awards will be presented at the Annual Awards Day convocation this spring.

The awards consist of $50, to be applied to the athlete's academic pursuits at North Dakota State University, and are given on the basis of ability, need, scholarship and recommendation from the coaching staffs.

There has been some discussion about giving a scholarship of a similar nature to a deserving young trackster. This is yet to be decided.

The money for these scholarships was raised by the Rahjah Club through its annual Rahjah Ball which was held during the recent "U" series.

Other funds raised by the Rahjah organization go for the purpose of paying travel expenses for promising young athletes considering attendance at NDSU. This gives them the opportunity to examine the campus and its' athletic facilities.

Hamfest . . . cont. from page 1 group seminars, movies, transmitter hunt and presentation of awards. From 4-6 p.m., the contest winners will be announced, door prizes awarded and surveys will be taken. Ham bingo and a speaker will close the event.

Over fifteen faculty and students are actively engaged in the Hamfest. The faculty advisor is Ernest Anderson of the Electrical Engineering Department. The Coordinator Committee Chairman is Jim Froemke. The Contest Committee Chairman is Lee Johnson, Registration Chairman is Marlan Modrow and the Advertising Committee Chairman is Jerry Mitchell.

Dolve . . . cont. from page 1 Engineers and Landscape Architects, of Washington, D. C., has been engaged by the North Dakota Board of Higher Education to make a campus planning survey of all state educational institutions, including NDSU, with the thought of making a new master plan.
