Disciplinary Action Taken Against Three Greek Organizations

The Interfraternity Council Judiciary Committee met last week to discuss alleged violations of University regulations regarding a beer party held in Lindenwood Park on the evening of September 7.

The allegation under consideration stated that members of Sigma Chi, Alpha Tau Omega and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternities were present at the unauthorized party and at which property damage was done.

The committee, comprised of IFC advisor Tom Goodale, Phil Wattles, Gary Puppe, Dave Swanson, John Yunker, Roman Klein and Joe Spafford, found that the party was not organized or sponsored by members of any Greek-letter organization, but rather by two independent students whose names were not disclosed.

Evidence was introduced which proved that only a small number of Sigma Chi's were present while just two members from each of the other organizations attended the function.

The committee recommended that Sigma Chi be put on "Official Warning," a directive which would come directly from the Dean of Students, Dr. Daniel Leasure.

Action taken against Alpha Tau Omega and Tau Kappa Epsilon involved an official censure by IFC. Censure involves condemnation of actions which members of an organization participate in that brings disrepute and ill-will upon the Greek system.

The recommendations were adopted by the Dean of Students, and the three fraternities were notified of the action by letter.

The two students responsible for organizing the party have been placed on disciplinary probation until the end of winter quarter.

Dean Leasure said of the action, "It is unfortunate this had to happen during rush activities as it gave the system a black mark. We hope the fraternities in question will strive to conduct themselves in a manner which is in the best interests of the University and fraternities."

Any further violation would mean an immediate suspension of social privileges for a period of time to be determined by the Dean's office.

"We hope fraternities will realize that IFC is not a meaningless organization, but one which can be used as a sounding board to further programs of fraternities at North Dakota State University," said Goodale.

Four Appointed to 1963 Athletic Staff

Darrell Mudra, director of athletics, announced the remainder of NDSU athletic staff appointments for the 1963-64 year.

Two new graduate assistantships, one fulltime staff member, and a part-time helper were added.

The graduate assistants are Roger Nelson, former head coach at Harvey, North Dakota, for the past four years, and Dennis Isrow, a native of Detroit, Michigan, who has been at Adams State College in Alamosa, Colorado.

Nelson is serving as backfield coach for the NDSU freshmen team working under freshmen mentor Vern McKee. He also assists in the scouting duties for the Bison, and will be working toward a degree in Education.

Isrow is serving as the Bison trainer. A Marine Corps veteran, Isrow attended the University of Detroit and holds a bachelor's degree from Adams State. He worked as trainer for Darrell Mudra when the Bison director coached there. Isrow will be working towards a Master's degree in Education.

Jim Grubbs, a native of Edgemont, S. D., replaced Herb Blakeley as Bison equipment manager this fall. He worked for Bison baseball coach Vern McKee at Yankton College last year and moved to Fargo when McKee joined the SU athletic staff. Grubbs will be assisted part-time by Clair Posely, SU alumnus, and long-time Fargo native.

Mudra also announced that Carl Nystrom, State line coach, will handle the tennis coaching duties this next spring. He replaces Chuck Bentson, who will devote more time to recruiting.

NOTICE

Anyone who forgot his year-book photo appointment is requested to see the photographer in the faculty lounge of the library for new arrangements.

North Dakota State University is building! Among the many new structures going up on campus is this addition to the chemistry complex. Scheduled for completion in 1964, this air-conditioned building will house laboratory facilities for upper-classmen and graduate students in research.

NOTICE

Director of Admissions Burton Brandrud has made an urgent request that all students who did not know their addresses or phone numbers at the time of registration report them to the Admissions and Records Office. This is important in order that we have an accurate and complete student directory. Admissions and Records is located on the first floor of the Administration Building.

Reading Course Is Expanded

An expanded program in reading improvement will be offered this fall at North Dakota State University.

Begun a year ago as a non-credit, non-fee course for students who wanted to improve their reading speed and comprehension, the program could accommodate 20 students each quarter. This year, according to LaVerne Nelson, assistant director of counseling and testing, the capacity of instructional facilities has been doubled.

According to Dr. Nelson, the course makes use of three methods of reading instruction. A controlled reading device which projects film strips at varying rates of speed, emphasizes reading by phrases rather than one word at a time. This is augmented by a kit designed to improve the reader's comprehension and a workbook stressing vocabulary. Students must purchase their own workbooks, at a cost of about $2.50.

Prerequisite for the course is high motivation, Nelson said. "A student must have a strong desire to improve himself," he added, "Most of us read well below our capabilities, but not everyone is willing to put forth the effort to make the needed improvement."

Last year's students, according to Dr. Nelson, were unanimous in their endorsement of the program.

Summer Married Students Improve Living Conditions

Due to alleged inadequate mosquito control by the City of Fargo and the University itself, the married student council decided this past summer that campus residents must take this matter upon themselves.

An agreement with the Expert Spray Service provided a means for the summer residents to obtain mosquito control. Because of a lack of funds in the association treasury, the Expert Spray Service offered to control mosquitoes over a time period determined by the amount of money which could be collected from the summer residents. The councilmen collected nearly two hundred dollars from a voluntary contribution, based on one dollar per unit. This allowed mosquito control for nearly the entire summer; however, with the shortage of funds, the mosquito problem did exist in the latter part of the summer, at no fault of the Expert Spray Service. Summer residents have congratulatory words only for the firm; and the MSC is grateful for the cooperation of the summer residents themselves during the project.

The school and the maintenance department received a word of thanks from the MSC for their efforts put forth toward improving campus living conditions. Among the major improvements, the new garbage disposal system undertaken on the campus must be rated number one, according to the council. Another notable improvement, says the council, is the paving of the service road in Bison Court. A special word of thanks, the council continued, is offered to the University and the maintenance department for the fine projects and services they have rendered to married student housing.

Two special meetings were held this summer by the Married Student Association. The first meeting of fall quarter will be held in the Student Union conference rooms 1, 2, and 3, Thursday, September 19, at 8:00 p.m. All married students are welcome to attend.

Students Found Club Supporting Dr. Hove

An NDSU "Students for Hove" club has been organized to support Dr. John Hove, chairman of the English department, in his race for the Eastern District House of Representatives seat.

The executive committee members are Roger Wetzel, Stan Erickson, Phebe Kermis, Judy Moir, and Wayne Bjorlie.

The next meeting will be held in the Student Lounge of the Library on Thursday, September 19 at 7:30. Howard Dahl, executive director of the North Dakota Democratic Party, will be the speaker.

Everyone interested in supporting Dr. Hove is urged to attend.

Spectrum Staff: A meeting of the staff will be held today, at 12:15 p.m., in the Publications Office, second floor, Memorial Union.

Rush Figures Show Increasing Trend, IFC 'Gratified'

Formal rush statistics for Fall quarter, 1963, have been compiled by the Inter-Fraternity Council, and the results show an increase over previous years.

Leading the list of ten was Alpha Tau Omega, with 48 pledges, followed by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with 26. Sigma Chi, Kappa Psi, and Theta Chi each pledged 24, with Tau Kappa Epsilon reporting pledges numbering 17. Alpha Gamma Rho pledged 13 new members, and the Sigma Nu list counted eight. Sigma Nu is the most recently established social fraternity on campus. The remaining two fraternities reporting a pledge class were Farm House and Sigma Phi Delta. The Farm House pledged three, and the SPD's reported one. Rush pledges totalled 188.

Tom Goodale, sports information director and advisor to the Interfraternity Council said, "We are gratified by the number of pledges. It shows continued growth."

Perhaps we were too optimistic, or maybe we believed the local news-media when they said we were going to have a winning football team. Oh well, there are other games, and other sports.

Poor Taste

At the game last Saturday we had plenty of chances to look over the newly organized pom-pom girls. Although it would be slanderous to comment on the quality of the girls, we do dare say that their outfits would look better on third graders.

Schneider

Why couldn't they wear something like stretch pants which would cover up their legs, and sweaters to warm their arms.

This type of outfit seems adequate for the cheerleaders and we are sure that our pom-pom girls would do themselves more of a justice if they donned the same thing. If for no other reason they would at least be warm.

As far as the color is concerned, we have seen faded out ROTC uniforms which looked better. An attractive shade of green to contrast with the cheerleaders yellow would be more appropriate than the present colors.

Sit Down

It is apparent to us that most colleges which have pom-pom girls also have places provided where they can sit when they have nothing to cheer about.

It has gotten to the point now where there is quite a crowd standing along the sidelines supposedly cheering on the Bison. Instead of adding the pom-pom girls to the general confusion lets seat them until the cheerleaders need them to give voice for a cheer.

Trouble

Having a new dean on campus with firm ideas on how the rules should be interpreted has resulted in several students finding themselves in trouble.

On the weekend before school started, about 60 students collected in the park with the idea of consuming several cups of keg beer. Being in a direct violation of school and state rules, the Dean of Students, Dr. Leasure, has become involved. He promises to use his office in such a way as to discourage these types of parties in the future.

The students who are supposedly responsible for organizing the get-together have been contacted by the Dean and properly informed of their mistake.

Three local fraternities which had members present at the picnic have been brought before the Inter-Fraternity Judiciary committee for a hearing. Their recommendation of the proper punishment will go to the Dean for his consideration.

An official proclamation will be released from the Dean's office sometime this week concerning the punishment of the Greeks involved, and the independents who organized the gathering.

Although we cannot make any comments at this time as to the outcome of the "picnic case" we can predict that there will be a

SUAB Seeks New Members, Lists Partial Schedule

"The purpose of this board shall be to plan, coordinate, and supervise, cultural, recreational and educational programs or services that are conducted primarily by and for the students in the Union Building."

Anyone interested in the above statement, who would like to work on the Student Union Activities Board, is urged to contact the Union Program office for an application form. Any student enrolled at NDSU the quarter prior to application for membership on the Board is eligible subject to approval of the Personnel Committee and the Executive Council of SUAB. Meeting times are usually scheduled on every second Thursday and start at 7 p.m.

There are six program committees in the SUAB organization. They are: Dance and Decoration, Creative Arts, Games and Recreation, Publicity, Personnel and House and Hospitality. For further information obtain an application blank or talk to any SUAB members. Blanks may be obtained Monday, September 23, from the Program Office.

Listed below is a partially completed schedule of the SUAB 1963-64 program. Further scheduled events will be published.

Position Open On KDSU Staff

KDSU is starting another school year of broadcasting and is looking forward to entertaining you, the students of NDSU. New quarters are in the schedule for this year and a wider range of broadcasting will be possible upon installation of a new satellite received this past summer.

With the start of a new school year also comes the many new talents, from far and wide, in our new and transfer students. Many areas of work ranging from disc jockey to record librarian to business manager are available to students of NDSU. No experience is necessary as this is where the experience is acquired. Anyone, young or old, male or female, interested in doing work for KDSU, is asked to stop at the radio station located on the second floor of the Student Union.

Remember, if it's good musical listening your looking for, you'll find it on the 750 mark on your radio dial, KDSU.

No Nigerian Language Barrier; SU Senior Relates Year Abroad

North Dakota State University's first participant in the Junior Year Abroad Program has returned to campus after a year's study at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria, Africa.

Having completed her third year requirements in chemistry in Nigeria, Arlene Weiss, now a chem senior, has had an educational opportunity not available to many of today's university students.

Asked if there were any particular difficulties with a language barrier, Miss Weiss explained that "English is the second language of the country, and really serves to tie its four regions together." All of her classes, which averaged about 55 in number, consisted of students enrolled in similar programs and English speaking natives of the country "So there were no problems in communicating," she added.

Her curriculum, which included organic, inorganic and physical chemistry, as well as some physics, was the same as she would have obtained at NDSU, but instruction methods were different. "There was no class participation," she commented, "it was strictly theory. All mathematics involved was up to the student, and a lot more was covered as a result."

During most of her stay in Ibadan, Miss Weiss dressed according to western styles, but occasionally attired herself in native garb when under the influence of "friendly persuasion." It was not uncommon to see her friends wearing pumps while she went barefooted.

Sightseeing was not confined to the University city, as she spent most of her vacation time traveling Nigeria, making one trip to neighboring Dahomey.

Miss Weiss said she would like to make another trip to Nigeria, "although I have no definite plans along that line." Her immediate plans call for completion of her undergraduate work in chemistry and then a masters degree.

The second participant in the Junior Year Abroad Program has recently departed for Beirut, Lebanon. She is Carol Mehloff, HE, jr. Miss Mehloff will study in the area of Related Arts at Beirut College for Women.

The Junior Year Abroad Program, a national program sponsored by the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., is open to all members of United Campus Christian Fellowship. Some 50 students throughout the country are selected by the national organization to study in their choice of three areas. Trips are financed by the students for the most part, with UCCF contributing to defray transportation expenses.

Reverend Robert Siberry, director of the campus UCCF organization, emphasized that "Any sophomore student interested in taking part in the program should contact him as soon as possible."

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what some scholarly people like to call a decade—from the Latin word deccum, meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as deccum when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel—especially over water—until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, because without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstate the importance of lighting your Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, unlighted, provide, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

You might even call it the limp or spongy sell

I mention Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. The makers of Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels—except on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys and white duck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are primarily fresh water dwellers, although they have been successfully raised in salt water too. Another salt water denizen I'm sure you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny organisms like diatoms and algae and like that which float sluggishly near the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these creatures, microscopic in size, should supply the principal source of food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, I must say, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because it takes the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to gather a day's meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and could, if they tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes in your campus newspaper. I will, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco flavor, that pristine white filter, that supple soft pack, that infrangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. What I favor is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp or spongy sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro in ten full years have not once complained about my desultory sales approach. Neither have they paid me.

But that is of small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboro, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to cast the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs?" and "Are roommates sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps, reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for want of trying.

I thank you.

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's unpredictable and uncensored column—and also happy to bring you fine filtered Marlboros, available in pack or box, wherever cigarettes are sold in all 50 states.

New Halls To Be Named For Prominent SU Alumni

Approval was given Friday by the state Board of Higher Education to name two newly-constructed residence halls at North Dakota State University after pioneer North Dakotans.

The newest women's residence hall on the NDSU campus will henceforth be known as Mary Darrow Weible Hall, while the newly-constructed men's residence hall has been named in honor of the late Roy Johnson of Casselton. Both buildings were opened for occupancy last week.

Selection of the names was made by a faculty committee which recommended them to President H. R. Albrecht.

Mrs. Weible, wife of the late Dr. R. E. Weible, a prominent Fargo physician and surgeon, is a 1904 graduate of North Dakota State University. A chemistry major at NDSU, she also took part in dramatics, helped create the school's first athletic letters, and wrote a senior thesis comparing the protein content of different varieties of wheat.

Her early interest in cultural activities, public health and civic affairs carried over into a lifetime of service to the Fargo community and the state. During the women's suffrage movement, Mrs. Weible promoted the Fargo appearance of the English suffragette Sylvia Pankhurst and organized the Votes for Women group in North Dakota. She also aided in organizing the first community lecture series, helped to establish English classes for non-English-speaking residents, and was instrumental in surveying social conditions, appointing the first police matron, establishing the first free kindergarten and visiting nurse program.

Mrs. Weible is the mother of four children. Two of her sons followed in the family tradition by becoming doctors.

In 1960, Mrs. Weible was chosen to receive the annual NDSU Alumni Achievement Award.

Roy Johnson, after whom the men's dormitory has been named, was an active worker in North Dakota civic and political life for more than 30 years. A one-time county extension agent, he was a member of the Farm Foundation's first board of trustees from 1933 to 1940, was a bank director for 25 years and served three terms in the North Dakota legislature.

Appointed to the Board of Higher Education in 1938, he remained a member until 1954, serving two terms as board president.

Johnson was chairman of the Casselton township board for 30 years, and a director of the school district for 10 of his 35 years as a member.

A past president of the Northwest Farm Managers Association, Mr. Johnson also served as a spokesman for agriculture in the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and spent three years on the chamber's agriculture committee.

Long interested in education at all levels, he also served as a regional director of the Association of Governing Boards of Colleges and State Universities.

Johnson was awarded the Blue Key Doctor of Service Award at NDSU in 1952, and received an Honorary Doctor of Science degree from the institution in 1956.

The two new residence halls are part of a long-range program in housing and food service at NDSU. The new Roy Johnson Hall is joined to Reed Hall, another recently completed men's residence hall, and the two buildings share a dormitory office. Each of the structures can accommodate 242 men students.

Future plans call for an additional women's residence hall to be built which will be joined with Mary Darrow Weible Hall, similar to the two men's residences. Weible Hall will house 180 women students.

Also planned in conjunction with the housing complex is a food service unit which will serve the four residence halls.

All of the units are being financed under a self-liquidating system through which building revenues will pay off long-term, low-interest loans. Reed Hall was financed under the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The two new structures were financed through the State Treasurer's Office.

Grinnell College President Attacks Validity of Entrance Requirements

(Grinnell, Ia.) The Criteria for student admissions are too narrow," states Dr. Howard Bowen, president of Grinnell College. "It is only a slight exaggeration to say that our admissions procedures are based overwhelmingly on a singularly narrow dimension of personality and ability—skill in taking multiple choice and other so-called objective tests.

A tyranny of numbers exists in American higher education today. When a student is admitted to one of our better colleges, it is largely on the basis of three numbers—his scores on the verbal and qualitative portions of the College Board tests and his rank in his high school class.

No nonsense about his curiosity, his moral fiber, his dreams and aspirations, his social consciousness, his human decency, his imagination, his philosophy of life, or his aesthetic sensibilities. These cannot be readily measured.

Colleges tend to regulate their activities accordingly. Admissions policy tends to be dominated by the need to have high average College Board scores for the record, counseling of seniors is affected by the desire to have a high proportion of graduates going on to advanced study for the record. In this pattern we are following, there are several glaring weaknesses.

The atmosphere of college life is frenzied and filled with little deadlines. We do not achieve the calm necessary for serious, contemplative study, or essential for fruitful discussion, or needed if individuals are to be able to follow their interests. We tend to sacrifice qualitative excellence for quantitative standards.

The work of the student is scheduled in detail almost day to day with the result that he has little opportunity for initiative and little responsibility to pursue his own education through his own interests. The system places a premium on conformity, on following instructions, on meeting short-run assignments.

This is true to the unbelievable extent that it is rare for a student to read or write except in response to assignments."

U of C Faculty Upholds Student Right To Dissent

(Boulder, Colo.) The Faculty Senate at the University of Colorado adopted as submitted the report of the ad hoc committee to consider "the degree to which students may criticize publicly members of a university faculty and administration without disciplinary action by the University."

The committee, which included five faculty members and two student government representatives, agreed that disciplinary action "would be called for only under the rarest of circumstances. The committee said it "recognizes that 'guidelines' can consist only in the general principle to which we appeal."

"In the 'extreme cases' we believe that the University Discipline Committee will have to rely on its own judgment as to whether the violation is so flagrant that it cannot pass unnoticed." The Committee said it "was unanimous in its recognition that students must under no circumstances have their academic freedom abridged, and, indeed, that they should be encouraged to be critical of the teaching to which they are exposed."

The text of the committee's statement follows: "The University should encourage and stimulate independent thinking on the part of its students in every way possible. Likewise, it should encourage dissent, and freedom of opinion, and criticism of all ideas, policies, and programs of the University and of society. It should also encourage students to be critical of the quality of teaching to which they are exposed.

However, it should be recognized that all such freedoms carry with them an obligation to use them wisely and prudently and in the best traditions of fair play and justice; with due consideration and respect for the rights and feelings of others; and with a view to the ultimate effects upon the University of which they are a part.

The University, since it is a corporate society having specific and unique aims, purposes, and objectives, has the right and the duty to expect of all its faculty, staff, and students, a reasoned and careful balance of their freedoms and responsibilities. In extreme cases the University, through appropriate channels, may be called upon to pass judgment upon its members with respect to their observance of the obligations that they owe to the University."

Chinese-Soviet Split Expressed In Subtle Ways

The break between Red China and the Soviet Union is demonstrated not only in their elaborate denunciations of each other, but also in subtler ways.

For instance, Chinese ships at the river port of Blagoveschensk on the Soviet-Chinese border in Siberia now ignore the salutes of Soviet vessels. A Russian dispatcher told Radio Moscow recently that in his 15 years at the port, Russian and Chinese dockers had always been very friendly.

Another example of what the Sino-Soviet split has brought about concerns the international Communist journal Problems of Peace and Socialism. The North Korean edition of the magazine was dropped from the August issue. The Chinese edition disappeared last December after a long period in which no Chinese contributions got past the Soviet-dominated editorial staff.

Guest Editorial Editor Adapts Doll Fad To Campus Characters

We saw an advertisement in a newspaper recently that offered for sale a Kennedy doll which when wound up winds up another Kennedy doll which winds up another Kennedy doll, etc.

This current craze of dolls for everyone is sweeping the nation. And not to be left out, we can see definite possibilities for several SCI models.

First we see the "average" student doll. You wind it up, and it does nothing for four years. Also, not to be unfair, there is the professor doll. Wind it up, and it is pedantic. (This model must be wound every 50 minutes.)

Two dolls which would be appropriate gifts for the incoming freshman are the adviser and registration models. You wind up the registration doll and it stands on line. You wind up the advisor doll and it selects the wrong courses.

The Sammy Suitcase doll has also been designed especially for freshmen. Wind it up and it goes home for the weekend.

Another Model with which every college student will come into contact is the librarian doll. You wind it up and it hands you a 35 cent fine for overdue books.

When it comes Homecoming time in the fall, no one should be without a football player doll. Wind it up and it punts, and punts, and punts.

The social life on campus also has its dolls. For example, wind up the bridge player doll and it bids "six no trump."

The Playboy doll can be spotted in almost any classroom. You wind it up and it parties all night and then sleeps through class.

And we must not forget the SCI drinker doll. Wind it and it gets drunk sniffing the bar rag.

Possibilities are endless. We might start a campus craze of having a doll for every occasion. We don't agree with that wise old sage who said dolls are just for little girls or for big boys.

We can even visualize a College Eye editor doll. Wind it up and it makes typographical errors.

The SCI College Eye

From the Editor's Desk

It was a risk.

We all knew it - the students, faculty, community, businessmen, contributors, backers, coaches and players. Even the "Morning Line" knew it when they installed the Bison as three-and-a-half point favorites over MSC. The predictions of so many optimists were wrong, just as were the predictions of the pessimists who said "If they lose this one, the going will really get tough."

It wasn't a risk in the sense that NDSU was gambling its prestige on the outcome of a football game, though this was the immediate thought in everyone's mind. It wasn't as if we'd bet the whole pot on one hand. It was simply a matter of winning or losing the season opener, with the only risks taken being those of the players, who, incidentally have no reason for low-hanging heads, and those who may have had some money on the game.

There's not a competitor in athletics who wouldn't, under the pressure of an entire city's high expectations, be nervous at zero hour. The jitters are gone now, Coach Mudra and his staff are more aware of who can do what. There are more games and more seasons.

And so the prediction of the pessimists quoted above was inaccurate. Nobody has suffered any humiliation (an ugly word at best), and the mature thinking of students on this campus is obvious and commendable - they're just as enthusiastic now as they were last Saturday noon.

We suspect that Saturday's fourth quarter is indicative of the kind of ball the Herd is capable of playing, and a .500 season still wouldn't surprise us.

Good Grief:

As if our nation doesn't have enough bad international publicity with civil rights demonstrations in the South! Now a bunch of screaming, raving American youth - attired in beatnik garb no less - make jerks out of themselves with an assault on Capitol Hill.

The propaganda machines of our rivals for world leadership are not ineffective. Of the news items which do get publicized behind the iron curtain, you can bet this one will get top billing. Films of police throwing college students down long flights of marble stairs is something less than flattering when presented with the appropriate narrative.

The group was protesting a House Un-American Activities Committee inquiry into an unauthorized trip to Cuba by some 59 youths. The trip had been banned by the State Department. One of the youths, a girl, and student at the City College of New York, came back (or perhaps left with) the idea that "socialism is the way to end racism, and under socialism we can have congressmen who are truly representative and who are not elected because Negroes are not allowed to vote." She did not volunteer socialism's magic formula for controlling the human mind.

For the demonstrators, whose actions according to Committee Chairman Edwin Willis—were Communist inspired, and many of whom sported Castro-type beards, we hope that the fleas of a thousand camels rests in them—the beards, that is.

For the 59 travelers, or that portion of them which prefers socialism, we suggest they study a more aged socialist government than so unpolished a regime as that which exists in Cuba.

Campus Chest Drive Due Sept. 28

To the editor:

Do you know that the Inter-Campus Affairs Commission has charity on its agenda already for this year? Do you realize that September 28 - October 5 is scheduled as the official solicitation week for the Campus Chest Drive?

If you haven't heard till now mark this column well for an individual effort is required of each student to enable the drive to reach its goal of $2500.

Sound like a great deal of money? Not at all! Employing mathematics for a moment, we see that each of the 4,000 enrolled at SU contributing an equal portion, each person would be out a mere

$.60!! Surely most of us spend more for coffee during a day or two while practicing the old Bison tradition of "unionization."

Organization for the Campus Chest Drive stems from ICA Commissioner Jerry Exner, the general chairman, and branches into seemingly infinite directions. Working with the chairman are Carol Anstett and Carol Berg, solicitations; Mary Hinz and Roger Forsgren, administration; Fowler Humphrey, chairman of education and publicity; with Betty Kay Bitterman, vocal; Roger Wetzel, printing; and Frank Bernhoft, news releases.

Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, is on hand each year to aid the Inter-Campus Affairs Commission by enhancing the quality of the weeks activities. APO annually sponsors the "Ugly Man Contest," a truly macabre event which features grotesquely "decorated" fraternity men competing for the strange title of the "Ugliest Man on Campus".

The momentous value of the Campus Chest Drive, one of the very, very few times that we students have the opportunity to practice charity, can not be overly emphasized. It is believed that when this is realized during solicitations week even a rise above the $2500 goal will emerge. Where do the funds go? Before any organization receives allocations, still additional thought must be exercised.

For the last drive, recipients were the Crippled Children's Home, Jamestown, North Dakota; March of Dimes; the Opportunity School; the NDSU Inter-Religious Council and the Red Cross.

You may be asked to assist the ICA and the Campus Chest Drive. You feel that you're too busy? Well, then, remember the thoughts of a forgotten philosopher. "You may light another's candle with your own without loss." We can only gain in helping others less fortunate than ourselves.

"Y" Sponsored Freshman Retreat Acquaints Students To Campus Life

A regiment of Frosh left Fargo at 6:30 p.m. on September 2, and enjoyed a mixer and an open session that evening.

The day, arriving for the campers at an ideal 7:30 hour, was highlighted by the appearance of a number of North Dakota State University's faculty. Dr. Leasure, the new dean of students, offered the keynote address. He discussed questions which he considered upmost in the entering student's useful if help is needed:

- * Each student has a faculty advisor who assists the student in choosing courses, and advises the student on other matters which the student may bring to him.
- * The instructor of most courses may be sought out by the student for advice on class progress and ways to improve classwork.
- * The college dean is in con-ing what is virtually his first decision upon arriving on the campus - whether to become a Greek or to remain independent - became the task of a panel moderated by Dr. Warren Kress, associate professor of geography.

Ann Bertelson and Dean Nordquist presented the independent view, and Carol Gass and Paul Madsen countered with their reasons for becoming sorority and fraternity members.

"The place of extra-curricular activities in college", was the theme of the final panel discussion. Professor Sol Schulman, associate professor of chemistry, acted as moderator. Ann Bertelson, Kathy Degan, Lee Grimm, and Frank Bernhoft acquainted the frosh with the functions of a wide variety of activities, adding, "the importance of immediately joining some organization could not be overemphasized." "The student must feel 'in the swing' of campus life in order to enjoy his college years," the group concluded.

The subject of men-women relations in college became the topic of Rev. Robert Ouradnik's discourse. Rev. Ouradnik is the campus pastor at the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist Student Center, and advisor to the Inter-Religious Council.

It is hoped that as more students express a desire to attend YMCA-YWCA camp, and as the program expands in scope, a full week can be devoted to it, rather than the present two days.

"Y" members and new students took part in a mixer September 2 held in conjunction with the freshman camp.

thoughts . . . "What is the University? Will it help me achieve my goals? What do I expect from the University? What does it expect from me? Is there an easy way out?"

Dr. Vern Nelson, assistant director of counseling and assistant professor of education and psychology at SU, aided Rayetta Hankel and Walt Mundstock in a panel discussion on methods for improved study. These included:

- * Set goals for yourself consistent with your abilities and interests.
- * Budget your time - set aside hours for study of specific courses.
- * Learn how to make accurate and useful notes.
- * Be prepared for exams - space your review throughout the quarter.
- * Maintain good health - mental as well as physical.
- * Provide an adequate physical setting for study as free as possible from distractions.
- * Develop your listening and reading skills.
- * Become skilled in an effective study method.

"If you need help" emerged as the theme of a beneficial session featuring Dr. Nelson, Dr. Seth Russel, dean of the college of Arts and Sciences, and Rev. Robert Siberry, the campus pastor for the United Campus Christian Fellowship.

Dr. Nelson spoke of the many functions that the department of Counseling and Testing can have for the student. His office, located in Old Main, provides, without charge, assistance with various problems which may arise to hinder the individual's progress as a student at NDSU. His department administered a battery of tests which all new students must take. The test's results will aid the student's advisor to be more beneficial in helping the advisee plan his future academic career.

Dr. Nelson continued, "A much more important function of our department and one which continues throughout the year is that of providing individual assistance with any problems which you may wish to discuss with someone. Educational planning, vocational choice, personal adjustment, effective study methods - these are typical areas in which problems may arise. Members of our staff are trained counselors and you may rest assured that topics discussed in conferences are kept strictly confidential. We invite you to visit our office if we can be of help to you."

Dean Russel presented three main areas in which the faculty is tact with all departments of his college and the university at large. If a student desires to change major fields or colleges, one of the first places he goes for advice is to the college dean.

Reverend Siberry mentioned the ways in which denominational pastors serve the campus . . . and specifically, the student concerned with religion on a personal basis. To assist the Freshman in mak-

New Fund Procurement Position Created To Coordinate Receipts

A new position, created to coordinate and manage North Dakota State University fund procurements, has been filled by Marvin Moll of Battle Lake, Minnesota. "Increasingly," said NDSU president H. R. Albrecht, "institutions such as ours are recognizing a growing need for coordination of activities concerned with procurement of such grants and gifts." The sources of funds include industry, foundations, government agencies and individuals.

For the past seven years, Moll has worked as campaign director for college, church and hospital funds. His most recent work in the field of higher education was with Ward, Dreshman and Reinhardt, Inc., of New York City. At that time he was engaged in helping the people of Sarasota, Florida, raise over four million dollars as a foundation stone for the establishment of New College.

Moll foresees a long-term program for more support for student aid through scholarships, loan funds, fellowships and graduate assistantships. He will also strive to identify and secure support for facilities, library acquisitions and specific research projects and programs not normally underwritten by legislative appropriations.

He said NDSU is already receiving a substantial amount of grants through the Federal Government based on the competence and initiative of individual faculty members.

"It is apparent to me," said Moll, "that no one person can do the job alone, but through a co-operative effort on the part of the administration and all others concerned, NDSU will produce lasting results in the overall picture."

His conviction of the purpose and destiny of NDSU stems from his days as an undergraduate. After receiving his B.S. from North Dakota State, he went on to earn a B.D. from Northwestern Lutheran Theological Seminary. He has done additional study at the University of Minnesota and at Mankato State in psychology and sociology.

A Chaplain for the Eighth Air

Force in England and France during World War II, he also served several Minnesota churches prior to full-time work in civic fund-raising efforts.

SU Alum Has New Naval Duties

Navy Commander David D. Lewis has assumed duties as public affairs officer to Rear Admiral Howard A. Yeager, Commandant of the Ninth Naval District with headquarters at Great Lakes, Illinois.

The 42-year-old commander is a veteran of 20 years' naval service with a varied background in public information shipboard duty. He served on the information staff of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, at Honolulu before going to Great Lakes.

Lewis

During the Korean War, Commander Lewis was Navy press officer of the Tokyo headquarters of Naval Forces, Far East. He also served on the Korean War Staff of the late Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, who, as Commander, Naval Forces Far East, became famous for his toughness in bargaining with the Red Korean generals during the truce talks.

Commander Lewis has headed the public information staffs of four commands, including the Potomac River Naval Command in Washington, D. C., the Destroyer Force, Atlantic Fleet, in Newport, R. I., and the Naval War College, also in Newport.

In one of the Navy's major commands, he was chief of information on the staff of NATO's Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic in Norfolk, Va., for four years.

Before entering the public relations field, Commander Lewis logged four years' sea duty aboard three destroyers and destroyer escorts, serving as a gunnery officer, first lieutenant, communications officer, executive officer and squadron officer and squadron staff officer.

The commander attended North Dakota State University and has taken graduate work at American University in Washington, D. C. He also is a graduate of the Naval War College.

Commander Lewis is married to the former Miss Dawn Cassidy of Syracuse, N. Y. They have three daughters, Ann 13, Jane, 11, and Sarah, 7.

Making sure they know where their first class is, freshman, Kris Dinusson and Kathy Platt, look over the campus map.

Technological Era To Be Discussed

"Christians in a Technological Era" will be the theme for the Sunday evening programs begun September 15, at the University Lutheran Center.

In a world come of age where "machines are taking over the Christian faith is challenged to break through to new life and relevance. Issues of vital concern to both students and faculty will be explored by labor and management leaders, scientists, educators, campus staff and students. The pattern of personal and social life in this state, this country and beyond is powerfully influenced by the impact of science and technology. In a world guided by science and its technology there is no choice but to encourage the development of automation and computers." "Yet American citizens, Christian or otherwise, ought to be aware of the advantages, uncertainties and dangers in man's use of cybernation technology." Each Sunday evening a different aspect of the technological era will be explored. programs begin promptly at 6:45.

Newman Chaplain To Give Washington March Talk

by Jane Belzer

With the opening of the 1963 school year, two fulltime chaplains will be serving the Newman Foundation and St. Paul's chapel. Father Robert W. Hovda has been assigned to assist Father William J. Durkin, director of the Catholic student center.

Father Hovda is a native of Minneapolis, and was ordained to the priesthood of the Diocese of Fargo in 1949 after completing his studies in Theology at St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn. After ordination, he served as assistant pastor at St. Mary's Cathedral until 1954, when he was assigned as pastor at Berlin, N. Dak. In 1959, he was invited to join the faculty of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., where he taught Theology in the graduate school of religious education.

While carrying on his teaching assignments, Father Hovda completed advanced studies, and was awarded the degree of Licentiate in Sacred Theology.

During the past year, he has edited a collection of essays in pastoral practice that will be published this month. The book, which includes three of his own essays, has been selected as "the book of the month" by a Catholic book society.

Before coming to Fargo to take up his work at the Newman Foundation, Father Hovda took part in the "March on Washington". For many years he has been active in groups fostering social justice.

On Wednesday, September 18, he will speak on the Washington March at Newman Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Wesley Foundation Sets Midweek Services

The Wesley Foundation begins a new program of mid-week worship services and study opportunities for students of every denomination this Wednesday evening, September 18.

The program is designed to be of particular interest to the "suitcase" student who has no opportunity to participate in Sunday campus activities.

A worship service will be conducted by the campus pastor, Robert Ouradnik, from 7:15 to 7:45 p.m. This will be followed by a short coffee break and by study groups at 8 p.m. entering into discussions of various topics of interest to the students.

A series on "Discovering Yourself" will get underway this week with a film and discussion of the walls of defenses which people erect to separate themselves from other persons.

Students are encouraged to attend either the worship service or the study program or both. Meetings will be in the Methodist Center at 1239 12th Street North.

Sunday evening fellowship meetings will continue as in previous years with supper at 5:30 p.m. Murtha Bateman will address the group this Sunday on her experiences in Mexico on a work camp.

Eleven New Staff Members Appointed By Albrecht

President H. R. Albrecht announced Tuesday the appointment of eleven new persons to his staff.

Named to the faculty were Stewart Wong, associate professor of pharmacology; Wagar H. Bhatti, assistant professor of pharmacognosy; Eldon Walker, instructor in speech; Vaughn E. Hayes, instructor in zoology; Orrie O. Stenroos, instructor in zoology; Eleanor Dybdal, junior nurse in the health center; Anupam Banerji, instructor in architecture; Edward Lindgren, instructor in architecture; Ray Kleppe, county extension agent-at-large in Foster County; and Zahoor M. Alvi, instructor in pharmaceutical chemistry.

Resignations were accepted from Gloria Olson, home extension agent, Richland County; Mrs. Marian D. Tudor, extension clothing specialist and James A. Naetzold, assistant county extension agent, Richland County.

Wong, a native of Toronto, Canada, holds bachelor's and master's degrees in physiology and biochemistry from the University of Toronto. He is currently a candidate for a doctorate at Purdue University.

Dr. Bhatti holds a bachelor's degree in biology and a master's degree in botany from Punjab University in Lahore, West Pakistan. He received the Ph.D. in biology from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science in 1963. During his stay in Philadelphia he was also a resident assistant in hematology at the Albert Einstein Medical Center there.

Richardson is a printing and journalism graduate of South Dakota State college and has done graduate work there and at the University of Washington. Prior to coming to NDSU he was employed in the editorial offices at South Dakota State.

Walker holds a master's degree from the University of Arkansas and has been teaching in Louisiana prior to coming to NDSU.

Hayes holds a master of science degree from Miami University of Ohio, and Stenroos is currently working on a master's degree at NDSU.

Miss Dybal is a graduate of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and has done advanced work in public health at the University of Minnesota. She has also worked as a public health nurse in Ottertail County, Minnesota.

Introductory Film Shown at I.C.F.

The NDSU Chapter of Intersivity Christian Fellowship met Thursday night at NDSU Meineke Lounge in the Union.

A film, showing the purpose of Intersivity, helped acquaint new students with the organization.

Intersivity is an interdenominational organization, open to any interested person. Many international students are regular contributors to the fun and fellowship.

The next meeting will be Thursday, September 19 at 6:45 in Conference Rooms 1, 2 and 3 of the Union. The topic for discussion is "Christianity-Dull or Dynamic?"

Federal Service Entrance Exams Open To Students

Applications are now being accepted for the 1964 Federal Service Entrance Examination, the U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced.

This examination, open to college seniors and graduates regardless of major study, as well as to persons who have had equivalent experience, offers the opportunity to begin a career in the Federal service in one of 60 occupational fields. These positions are located in various Federal agencies both in Washington, D. C. and throughout the United States. Depending on the qualifications of the candidates, starting salaries for persons appointed from this examination will be $4,795 and $5,795 a year. A written test is required except for those candidates who have attained a sufficiently high score on the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test. Applicants who file by September 19, 1963 will be scheduled for the first written test on October 12, 1963. Six additional tests have been scheduled. The closing date is April 14, 1964.

Management internships with starting salaries of $5,795 and $7,030 a year will also be filled from this examination. An additional written test is required.

Details concerning the requirements, further information about the positions to be filled, and instructions on how to apply are given in Civil Service Announcement No. 311. The announcement may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country, college placement offices, Civil Service Regional Offices, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. 20415.

Forget MSC—Get Ready For USD

Darrell Mudra's first encounter as Head Football Coach at NDSU was one he will remember as a "flying circus." He reported he has seen flying footballs in his sleep since the defeat.

"I told the squad that they were not wholly responsible for our apparent lack of pass defense on the long 'bomber' that killed us Saturday," Mudra related, "we simply didn't anticipate them and consequently spent very little time on that phase of our defensive game in practice."

"These kids need only one thing to get started — a win," Mudra stated.

"Our defense was adequate, I felt," stated Ron Erhardt, defensive coach, "but we were just always that one play away."

"I've simply told the squad to forget the MSC game and get ready for the USD one," Coach Mudra commented. Chuck Bentson scouted the Coyotes in their loss to Bemidji State and relayed praise on the South Dakota passing which accounted for over three-fourths of the Coyote offense. Mudra indicated that several changes in the lineup for Saturday's encounter with USD will be made.

Not the best picture of pass defense. (Above number 81, Bruce Bausman of MSC, eludes Bison players to grab the ball which was good for a TD. (Below) Quarterback Frank Hentges (10) is stopped on drive by MSC.

Pollock's Pitches

by Dave Pollock

"We can't change anything that's already happened." Those are the words of Head Football Coach, Darrell Mudra. They probably best sum up general feeling of discontent. It was a hard one to lose. Pre-game enthusiasm was the greatest at NDSU for a long time. The opener resembled Homecoming. Bands, convertibles, pennants, TV, yells and excitement were the order of the afternoon. Then the final score cast a dark shadow over the city of Fargo.

But, we can't change what has already happened and this goes a long ways. The players were after a victory as much and maybe more than any fan in the stadium. They tried. Their marked improvement in the second half was great to watch. And you can bet that they will be going over the films of Saturday's game with a magnifying glass. Improvement will be the word for the practices. They will see their mistakes and the staff will make sure they do not happen again.

Pass defense will be sharpened to what it should have been for the MSC game. The Bison held the Dragons on the ground and led in the statistics column with 202 yards rushing against their 143. We had 16 first downs against their 11. We made a good showing in the statistics column and I predict that we'll be even tougher there after this coming game against the University of South Dakota.

That Terry Sturdevant and Ed Pflipsen deserve much praise is very evident. They played great football and were consistent morale builders for the Bison fans. As backs, they are terrific for the Herd.

That Sturdevant should carry across the first touchdown for the 1963 Bison was a deserved reward. Kevin Wimmer was his equal on the Dragon team. Wimmer threw the four TD passes for victory.

On Bison:

It was sad to hear the laughter from the fans when the Bison players collided on two plays to allow MSC to score. I'll bank now that this not going to be the joke of the next game. Inexperience was evident and has to be considered in any opener under the conditions that persisted here. The staff and the players know each other a lot better now and when Mr. Mudra says there will be changes you know he means it. NDSU will have a classier team on the field this Saturday and they will be meaner. The USD game is a conference counter which adds weight to the purse.

"Wait and see" is probably the ground to stand on at the present for all the pessimists and doubters. The Bison had only 16 days to work up a combatant team. That excuses will be made is natural. That changes will be made is the order. No one should give up at the present time as we have more potential now than we ever had in past seasons. Determination is on the minds of everyone responsible and victory will soon be ours.

Other NCC Action:

Our opponents for the game on this Saturday, University of South Dakota, also lost their opener. USD played Bemidji on the 14th and lost 33-7. Looking to the North where our prime rivals are, we find they won their opener. The Sioux trounced Duluth 33-0. Passes were the loss signal also. We play UND for our Homecoming game on October 19. You can be sure that field will be torn apart royally on that day. We should be in prime shape for that game.

Going back South again, State College of Iowa nipped Northern Michigan 12-11 in their first game. It was the first home game loss in 18 starts for Michigan. Another NCC opponent, Augustana, dropped their first '63 season game meekly on a 3-0 score to Gustavus. Last year's NCC victor South Dakota State won 9-6 over Montana State. We play SDS on October 26, in Brookings. That will be another rough game.

Cross Country:

Gary Ness won the cross country two-mile run that took place during the halftime of Saturday's game. Ness set a time of 11:07 in the run. Chuck Offerdahl pulled down second place in the all-Bison lineup.

The Last Pitch:

Quarterback and interceptor Pierre DuCharme explained that it was a football player's dream come true after snatching one of MSC's passes. It was not only the catching of the ball, but the run which was good for 6. DuCharme passed for the conversion which was good also.

One last comment that was heard about the Bison performance in the opener concerned their over-all ground speed. It seems they did not click fast enough on certain plays and were somewhat sluggish. This was evident on a few key plays and cost one first down for sure. Snapping from huddle to line was absent, and this is reported to be on the list of areas of improvement.

So, Bison fans, don't lose your enthusiasm and spirit. The Bison team will win this weekend's game or I'll eat this column. The players are out for trouncing USD. Overall, we will win more than we lose in this season. That's it, fire-up at the Pep Rally on Friday.

Banks Increase Activity In Area Of Ag Credit

Modern agriculture, which has clearly been established as a sound business enterprise and not just a way of life, is being provided with credit through correspondent relationships to meet increasing needs, according to T. P. Axton, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of The American Bankers Association. Axton is presiding at a Correspondent Agribanking Forum at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel here today which is being attended by 150 leading executives of banks in major cities.

"The importance of correspondent relationships in meeting the need of present-day agriculture and related business," and Axton, president of the Lafayette Savings Bank, Lafayette, Ind., "shows up in figures being tabulated from our committee's 'Midyear Agricultural Credit Situation Survey' which will be completed in October.

"The results of this study show that 29 per cent of the banks making agricultural loans during 1963 have received one or more acceptable loan applications which, as a result of their individual lending limitations, they could not handle alone.

"The growing percentage of banks faced with this problem emphasizes the importance of correspondent relationships among banks," Axton continued. "Commercial banking, with improved working relationships between the correspondent bank and its country bank customer, is in the best position to provide a complete and quality-type of credit service. The banks in the Corn Belt and 48 per cent of the banks in the Plains must look to outside participation if they are to handle individual loans of more than $50,000.

The importance of correspondent participation in loans to farmers and related businessmen is more marked by the situation in the Great Plains States, the A.B.A. credit study shows. In those states, 47 per cent of the banks received excess farm loan applications during the first six months of 1963.

Two-fifths of the banks report their legal loan limit to be under $50,000, while one out of six of these banks is unable to make an individual loan for more than $25,000. Regionally, 46 per cent of Ninety-five per cent of the dollar volume of those excess loan applications remained within the banking system. Eighty-nine per cent of the overlines were taken on a participation basis with city correspondent banks. Slightly more than half of the loans were retained in the originating banks. Two regional exceptions to this were in the South and Plains States, where city correspondents carried more than half of the participation credit.

Both country and city bankers rated participation in overline loans as the most important correspondent bank service to agriculture. Eighty-four per cent of the country bankers and 74 per cent of the city banks placed it first. Among country bankers, assistance with technical and other agricultural information was rated second in importance as a correspondent bank service. Among city banks, it was placed last. However, city banks in the Corn Belt and Plains place more importance on this phase of service than bankers in other regions.

"It is gratifying to note," says Axton, "that more large city banks are establishing formal agricultural departments. We hope that more city banks will be encouraged by this forum to take similar action, thereby assuring that agriculture will be provided with a source of credit from its hometown commercial bank."

New Fads

From across the country and other college campuses comes fads and local customs which have little if any chance of being adopted at the SU. However, we shall list a few of them for the sake of some students who might feel we are a little unusual at North Dakota State.

For one thing, a college coed from California says that one of their big fads among the girls is hiding each other's underwear in the refrigerator overnight and then returning them just before the victim wakes up.

At one college in Kentucky matching dog collars are being worn as belts by students. Along the same line, suspenders are real popular in parts of California for the girls to use to keep up their slacks and skirts.

Farm Employers Urged To Heed Wage-Hour Law

Farmers and contractors who expect to hire young workers to help with the fall harvest were reminded today of the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (Federal Wage-Hour Law).

Robert M. Kelley, Regional Director of the United States Labor Department's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, said that the law sets a 16-year age minimum for the employment of children in agriculture during school hours.

"The importance of an education cannot be minimized," Kelly said. "The future success of youngsters depends on the amount of schooling they have."

Kelley reminded farmers that children may legally work in agriculture outside of school hours or on weekends and holidays. However, their place is in the classroom when school is in session.

"The need for continued vigilance is pointed out by the fact that last year more than 4,200 minors under age 16 were found employed during school hours in agriculture in violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act," said Kelley. "Fifty-seven percent of these youngsters were in grades below normal for their ages." The law applies to the children of migratory workers as well as to local children. The only exception is where a child is working exclusively for his parents or guardian.

Kelley said that most states also had school attendance laws and all states have child-labor laws. If the standards differ from the Federal law, the higher standards apply.

Additional information on how the Fair Labor Standards Act applies to children working in agriculture is available from the U.S. Labor Department's Wage and Hour Public Contracts Divisions. The nearest office is located at 455 Boyce-Greeley Building, 231 South Phillips Avenue, Sioux Falls, South Dakota.
