North Dakota State University will be the first representative from the state to participate in the bowl season. When it travels to Excelsior Springs, Mo., Nov. 28 to 30 in the 35th annual Mineral Bowl.

The invitation was issued by bowl officials in Missouri after they watched the third quarter of the 34-16 victory over the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The bowl-bound Bison have assured the administration to reschedule final tests to help assure students attending the big game.

Dr. Albrecht, NSU athletic director, and President Dillard Mudra signed the pact approximately two hours after the Bison had chalked up their ninth win of the season.

NSDU students who at times have seemed apathetic regarding other Bison conquests displayed their enthusiasm concerning the bowl bid Sunday afternoon. Between 250 and 300 students turned out on the chilly evening to greet the bowl-bound Bison upon their return from Milwaukee.

Plans are being made to secure special rates for a train to Excelsior Springs and the Memorial Union. Bison trips to Excelsior Springs and the Memorial Union Sunday at 8 and Friday's are on Saturday.

Student Body President Bill Findley probably expressed the feelings of the student body when he commented, "We are proud of our team and offer them our sincerest congratulations."

Findley indicated that he was going to make the trip to Missouri and urged all students to do the same.

Head Coach Darrell Mudra was conductedly proud of his championship football team. The Nebraska native will be making his second trip to a Mineral Bowl.

In his initial appearance Mudra said that he was making his desire to have as many students as possible make the trip to Excelsior Springs.

Mudra indicated that the Bison are scheduled to leave Fargo Wed., Nov. 25. Plans are to travel as far as Omaha, Neb. and then work out at Omaha University until they make the trip to Excelsior Springs will then be completed on Thursday.

Lantz Explains $8,000 Senate Request

A special budget for $8,000 was completed the Fieldhouse swimming pool was approved by Senate Nov. 10. The decision was made by Frank Kunze, finance commissioner, who was the largest single-item expenditure ever approved by Senate.

Questions were raised concerning the effect this would have on the budget, and the fieldhouse was guaranteed that its addition would not force the completion of the pool to be put in.

Lantz explained that the Finance Commission considered these questions and mission statements were decided on. It is the basis for the budget request.

AS 4, a lumber company, was involved in that decision.

Support was sufficient to make sure in advising Lantz. The budget was unanimous.

Commissioner Lantz also estimated $3,000 (plus extra expense) that would have been spent over the years, which would be used to build a fence around the newly formed tennis courts, the purpose for which it was intended. Construction will not be completed until next spring.

Money was appropriated to print the teacher-evaluation forms which were completed last month.

President Findley relinquished the chair to Vice-President Allen Redman to make a motion asking for Senator Verlin Anderson's removal from office.

Reason for the action was the accumulation of excessive absences during the past year by Senator Anderson. He had missed two meetings and the maximum allowed is five. The motion passed unanimously.

Jack Berry, AS 2, was appointed commissioner of legislative research by President Findley to replace Lee Grin who resigned from that position.

In his Constitution Revision Committee report Senator Ron Carlson moved that senate by-laws be amended to include a provision for a financial audit each spring.

This motion was prompted by a suggestion from a constitutional review sub-committee within the Board of Organization and Activities. The amendment was approved.

Bison team and coaches as they stepped off the bus and into the Memorial Union. Bison Tri-captain Ardell Weigandt commented, "Our whole football team was very happy to see students react as they did. It makes the time and effort spent a lot more gratifying."

Regarding the bowl game Weigandt said, "We have a great coaching staff and I know the team will make the most of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.""

Editor of Spectrum Submits Resignation

Joe Schneider, editor of the Spectrum, has resigned. The resignation is not effective until the end of fall quarter.

Schneider has been editor-in-chief for the past three quarters and connected with the Spectrum in some capacity as editor at the total time at North Dakota State University—three years.

He submitted his request for resignation last Wednesday to the Board of Publications. Editors of the Spectrum are usually selected each spring and their term of duty runs for one school year. Schneider was made an editor at the start of last winter quarter when the previous editor graduated. Schneider has been head man on the Spectrum staff for more than three quarters.

Schneider commented that he believed the quality of the Spectrum would not improve if he remained editor for another quarter. "I think," said Schneider, "that the only possible way to improve the paper is to have the present staff put in twice as much time or secure another editor." He further commented that the first way was not feasible and the second way does not seem possible on this campus.

In the fall of 1961 Schneider started with the Spectrum as a beat reporter. By spring quarter of his sophomore year he had become a social columnist. Writer. At the start of his sophomore year he wrote a column called 'Over The Back Fence.'

Schneider was associate editor of his sophomore year and managing editor fall quarter of his junior year. He then became editor-in-chief.

Schneider will remain on the Spectrum staff through the end of the spring quarter.

Possible new editors will be interviewed Friday at 10:30 a.m. and the decision given to the Board of Publications. At the end of the interview a new editor-in-chief will be named.

Schneider is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity and President of Inter-fraternity Council.

Playboy Party

The Memorial Union Film Committee's film series, "Playboy," bills itself as "A Significant Motion Picture Series" and so it is artistically and socially.

The first three films have taken up in order the problem of the "bomb," the problem of getting ahead in life through the widely one's occupation and the problem of all human beings.

Now the most recent film, "A Raisin in the Sun," has the problem of the Negro. Perhaps "has taken up the problem of the Negro" is too self-conscious a phrase for the film. Perhaps shown as us a family with problems" is more appropriate.

At no point in the running of the film did I have the thought to take out pen and paper to jot down ideas or elaborations. The crease stays sharp—the photographer, his film, firmly based on the traditional values of the mother.

The final belief that the film leaves is that the strength of Negro lies in his strong family ties, that have been thrown down since the days of slavery when families were separated by conquests and pillages.

So much for theory. In a truer sense, we see a man fighting dignity through self-employment, his sister struggling to maintain her, his wife looking for better living conditions for herself, his mother determined to keep her family from disintegrating.

We see a man who wants to be a doctor, his wife who wants a new house, his children who buy the new house.

We see people who want things. We see why they can't get them. We understand. This is important.

Technically, it would be even more important if the camera occasionally came to the aid of the sound track. Too often we feel the feeling, but the story is not told visually. The dialogue is excellent, when the equipment in the Union ballroom chooses to function and we can hear the equipment.

But the fault does not lie entirely with the technicians. It is essentially an optical medium and in the hands of skilled artists it is used as such. The camera does the important storytelling. It is used as such.

This is in part of the reason why the old silents are still considered such great films. There the filmmakers had to use the eyes they could not have been "talky" if they had wanted to be.

This is also the reason why the great foreign films lose through the use of subtitles. The story is told visually.

If "A Raisin in the Sun" is ever shown in France the there will be unable to see the screen through the white jittery letters.

his committee. He has appointed Claudia Peterson, another freshman, to work with him. He said he wished he could find someone who knew something about journalism to work on the committee.

The problems that he is trying to iron out are the insufficient staff and the poor distribution of students' money. He had no solution to the staff problem other than a pay raise. He said that the Bison should try to get a larger and better-trained staff.

He did not say, however, where people with a journalism background could be obtained since the Spectrum "seems to take away all the qualified people."

If the money were distributed according to Miller's plan it would not decrease the amount of student funds which are collected. Students would still pay the same amount but their money would go to what, in Miller's estimation, are more worthwhile activities.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Music Listening Room Is Criticized

To the editor: It seems the taking advantage of the facilities offered us in the new music listening room. We're grateful for having this privilege of listening to good music of our personal choice.

However, some of us do have one complaint regarding this. We've heard ear phones and music loud enough to make us feel this room has been chosen by the students.

But, there is music piped in the room and this is loud enough to make us feel that the students are listening to the music coming through the phones.

To the editor: It seems like having two radios on different stations isn't enough. Surely it would be better to lower the volume of the music or to have the music listening room be in the most pleasant room on campus.

College President Says Professors Believe "More Pay For Less Work"

Bethany, W. Va. - I.P. - The college professors who PARLOR have "gladly appear" to be a vanishing tribe, according to Dr. Fer-

r. Gresham, president of Bethany College.

"Gladly around colleges and universities is related to light teaching," he said. "The trade union goals of more pay for less work appear to have infected the teaching profession."

Chairman of the Commission on Colleges and Universities of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Dr. Gresham pointed out that "Many celebrated teachers seldom look forward to being a part of this college faculty."

"As a veteran teacher who has known the penalty of the profession, I would be the last to disparage the more ample reward, which is long overdue. But, it is more fortunate that the teaching profession is a very selective one."

Students at Bethany College are considered: "And gladly would I teach, and glad to teach."

A one-year university president has defined a full professor as a man who travels. Between overseas appointments there are numerous conferences which afford an escape from teaching.

"At several prominent American institutions of higher learning there are faculty members of a very distinguished rank who teach only once a week. They are at all, so do no research for the institute, but in some cases, receive minimal salaries for their teaching in the college. Other teachers tend to emulate these very distinguished men."

Some research-minded faculty members are annoyed by students and by the necessity of teaching in classes. They consider the ancient and honorable art of teaching to be a sort of a nuisance superior to the other pursuit of research. Students who attend classes of such teachers may feel neglected, even deprived.

"Any worthy college teacher spends time to read, prepare, think and evaluate the progress of his students. He needs time for reflection and travel."

This does not mean, however, that he must have only six class hours a week, as many now do, with three months holiday in the summer, a full year's leave of six years and plenty of graduate assistants to grade papers and meet classes in his absence. No wonder the light schedule tends toward the moonlight rather than the library or the counseling offices.

NDSU Administrators Active At Convention

Three people from North Dakota State University were on the program of the 78th annual convention of the Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges held last week in Washington, D.C.

President H. R. Albrecht, as chairman of the Board of the National Agricultural Extension Center for Advanced Study, conducted a meeting of that group Monday morning in Washington's Sheraton-Park Hotel.

Vice-President James F. Nicksen delivered a report on "Plants and Projects for 1966" for the association's Division of Teacher Education at an evening dinner meeting Tuesday.

Naurine Higgins, assistant director for family living for the Cooperative Extension Service at NDSU, spoke at a sectional session of the convention on the subject of minority groups. Mrs. Higgins' talk dealt with her work with Indian people, both on and off the reservations. She spoke at a joint luncheon of the Extension Service and Home Economics sections Monday noon.

Several other NDSU administrators also attended the convention.

Study Reveals Motives For Student Suicides

(CPD)—The number of student suicides has risen in the United States during the past few years, according to a report in the November issue of the NEA Journal, official magazine of the National Education Association.

"Depressed boys and girls, victims of inner turmoil and increasingly difficult outside conditions, are taking this way out of their troubles," Margarette Clark of the Cornell University Medical College declared in the current issue. In 1965, about 550 young people between 15 and 19 years old took their own lives.

Cornell University conducted a study of suicide among college students. Dr. Leif Brusland, former psychologist of Cornell and author of the study, outlined four motives for student suicides in his report.

1. A desire to destroy themselves because they can no longer tolerate the discrepancy between how they appear to themselves and how they would like to be.

2. A need to punish others who hurt them.

3. An urge to repent from some mark.

4. A cry for help — "Please rescue me. Don't leave me alone."

Cornell doctors found that the student-patient who gets the high mark is more likely to commit suicide. "Students with suicidal tendencies were, as a group, good or very good students." Non-suicidal students, on the other hand, were often doing poorly in their academic work, the study noted.

"The bright students were often overachieving themselves, measuring themselves by their own standards, which were much higher and more demanding than the minimum standards of the University," the report concluded.

The panel discussed the reasons for suicide and ways to prevent it. They urged students to seek help when they are feeling down.

The discussion was followed by a question and answer session. The panelists answered questions from the audience and provided resources for students in need of help.

In conclusion, the panelists emphasized the importance of seeking help and reaching out to others when feeling overwhelmed or struggling with mental health issues.
Sharivar Pavilion Designed To Last
Ten Years Has Deteriorated Already

Should the Sharivar Pavilion be repaired or donated to a charity organization? This question is one which has been brought to the attention of members of Student Senate and the Finance Commission this week.

The pavilion was originally designed by the students of the architectural department and financed through an appropriation of student funds to be used during Sharivar, orientation-week activities and Homecoming.

The structure was designed to last at least ten years but this did not prove to be the case through no apparent fault of the designers.

The fault lay in the shortage of time allotted for construction and the weight of the canvas available at the time the pavilion was built.

The canvas structure was not substantial. The canvas is mildewed, torn and discolored.

Should the canvas be replaced with a new and heavier material or should a more permanent covering be installed?

The student body president and the senate custodian met with university staff members this week to discuss the repair problem. The possibility of constructing a cover for the pavilion by using one-quarter inch waterproof plywood was suggested. The plywood would be precision cut to fit the rafters.

The covering would be held rigid by a series of bolts embedded in the rafters. These panels could then be painted in a variety of colors for beauty and permanence.

The plywood construction would be more sturdy, more easily stored, and would expedite the eventual dismantling of the structure. It is estimated that the repair would be about as the cost of replacing the entire canvas with a heavier, more durable material.

The pavilion is a student project and each student may have his views or criticisms to hold against representatives within Student Senate.

Equipment Donated To NDS

A gift of electronic equipment valued at about $1,960 has been received by the North Dakota State University department of electrical engineering from the Texas Instruments Foundation of Dallas, Tex.

Professor Edwin M. Anderson, chairman of the department, said this is the fourth year in a row that such a gift has been received by the North Dakota State University. Anderson said the equipment, which consists of Germanium Silicon transistors, C.P. diodes, photocell diodes, resistors and capacitors and graded computer circuitry, is by the department in both instruction and research.

Dr. Stodola Investigates New Method Of Testing

Dr. Stodola is a psychologist who conducts an experiment under semi-controlled conditions. He asks questions to students, but also gives feedback on tests administered to them.

The reason for the experiment is to determine how the technique works. Dr. Stodola and Dr. Ralph, who is also a psychologist, believe that the technique can be used to improve teaching. The exam administered is given to both classes, and the results are compared.

The experiment is considered a success, as students in the experimental group performed better than those in the conventional group. The technique used was the item-analysis technique, which is effective in identifying weak spots in lectures.

Results of the experiment have been published in a journal, and the technique is recommended for use in schools and other educational institutions.

After graduating in 1969 Pal-

1961, where his teams had a 35-12

Last year Palmer assisted Ben-through fundamentals, fundament-

Palmer seems to have a knack for being able to take advantage of a situation, as he demonstrated one night last week.

The juniors had set up chairs in the gym for a program that night, so Palmer had his boys practice through the rows of chairs. Commenting on the picture of the incident carried by the Spectrum, he said: "It looked like we were practicing in the

Players Of Week Selected For Strong Play Against Cardinals

By Bill Nowell

A strong Bison defense plus a big Bison offense yields a big win over the State University squad plus a bid to the Mineral Bowl. It's a simple chemical equation.

The two main components for a win were the main focal point of the game and are certainly all that is needed to create a winning team. The main focal point was the defense, which held the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee to yards running, was tough against all the forwards and alert Roy Baranko.

The big punch was delivered by duCharme, whose 61-yard run put the game out of reach. The three men together yielded the "Players of the Week" honors. duCharme got his first chance at starting quarterback this year. The reserve signal caller showed depth of the team as he played the three Wisconsin pansies.

BISON STATISTICS ARE IMPRESSIVE

The reasons are evident for the Bison’s finest football season. The previous successful season can be seen in every phase of the game.

Defensive Statistics:
- Yards rushing per game: 64
- Yards passing per game: 180
- Total points rushing: 24
- Total points passing: 100

Offensive Statistics:
- Yards rushing per game: 64
- Yards passing per game: 180
- Total points rushing: 24
- Total points passing: 100

The Bison’s running ability is the most impressive statistic. Their runners were among the leaders in the conference for the entire season.

Rushing Statistics:
- Airheart: 183
- Mische: 120
- Sturdevant: 407
- Pinson: 233

Spending a season with only one substitute has its drawbacks, but not the "holding the ball" dis-advantage. K. Wehrle, games area director of the Memorial Union, out with his new scoring system for indoor pocket pool. Expressing the spirit of the Bison fans, the new scoring system has been adopted by the student Councils Union Board.

Basketball rosters are due next week. The season will begin the week of winter quarter.

Area Colleges To Join Forces

Concordia College, Moorhead State College and North Dakota State University are joining forces. Nov. 4 the student body presidents of the three schools met to organize.

Steve Setness, Concordia student body president, was mainly responsible for bringing these men together to start the formation of a Tri-College Council.

Purpose of this organization is to coordinate social and cultural activities of the schools, to co-sponsor events and to handle other projects beneficial to the three schools. This type of organization has been tried before but found little success.

There is now one representative from each school scheduled to meet once every week at Concordia. The representative's job is to form a constitution which can be ratified by the student government.

The representatives' job is to form a constitution which can be ratified by the student government of the three schools. Rodger Wetsel, CP 3, is the NSDU representative.

"King Lear" Tryouts To Be Next Week

Tryouts for KING LEAR will be held Monday at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m., and next Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Little Country Theatre.
